To the most puissant and mightie Prince Edward the first, by grace of God King of Englande France & Ireland defender of the fayth, and of the church of England also of Ireland Subiect Edmund Beche my humble prayer for your graces most humble and obedient service and peace from God, with long reigne, honour, health and prosperitie.

If stones most noble & puissant Prince, one handsome and commodious Byble is putfurth wyth certayn sundry Prologues, schollies, or brieve Annotations (not heretofore in our native language publyshed) to the aduancement and promotyng of Gods glory, your Maiesties honoure, and partly to gratifye your graces louyng subiectes, who sythen the tyme of the impressiō of the Byble in the largest volume (the pryce of late tyme for the scarcitie of the same, being as semeth to the to excessive) haue bene either greatly discouraged therebi from bying of the same, or otherwyle not of abilitie to disburse so much money for them, were forsed to lacke the fruicion therof the food of their soules, one of the greatest commodities, whych thei possesse & in.oy vnder God and your graces permission here in earth. For what other are the base people, nay rather al your graces subiectes, boyde of the knowledge of Gods word, and ignoraunt in the same, then brutish, sauage, destitute of al humanitie, replete with grosse errors, euer to learne, and neuer learning theyr dutye to God, theyr allegiaunce to your Maiestie, the loue to theyr neyghbours, the vse of theyr wordli substance, & al other benefites receiued of the aboundant munificence & large liberalitie of god. The premisses therfore, most noble Prince, diligently considered, & with mature deliberacion wel & aduisedly weid, after long consulting with my selfe, to whom of duetye I oughte to dedicate the frutes of mine industry & trauayle, I haue boldeli vpon hope of your princely beningnitie, attempted this interprise, trusting that your highnes wil not onely therefore pardon me your graces humble and obedient subiect, but wyl also of your naturall inclinacion to gentilnes, wel accept, & in good part take, my rude, & simple lucubracions, trauayle, & diligence herein employed & susteyned, whych I your sayd humble & obedient subiecte wyth al reuerence exhibite and dedicate to your royal Maiestie, as to the moost worthy defendour, & principal patrone, next vnder God in earth, thereof. To what other person in earth doth the tuicion & patronage of Gods boke so iustly appartayne, as to the kyngs, princes, and hygh maiestrats, whom the scripture bouchsafe to nominate & cal gods, &

Therefore to dedicate Gods boke, to any other then onely to kynges, hygh Ma- gistrates and princes, is prejudicial to theyr princely estate, and as it were a detrimente to theyr dignitie or a derogacion of theyr honoure. Who dar then interprise to challenge and vsurpe the patronage of Gods boke, onles he be an Emperour, a kyng, a Monarch or a gouernoure. For suche do not vsurpe, but rather vse it as theyr princely patrimony and most lawfulllest inheritaunce. Theyr interest and title herein, dependeth not onely vpon prescription of time or stablished by politique statutes, lawes, and ordinaunces of mutable men, but it is ratified & confirmed by the infallible worde of God, as it appeareth euidently in the xvii. of Deutono. where the institution of a kyng is dyscribed, and immediatly vpon his institution these Godly wordes ensuyng, are inferred.

When the kyng is set vpon the seate of hys kyngdome, he shal write him forth this second law, in a boke taking a coppe of the priestes and the Leuites, & it shalbe wyth hym, & he shal read therin al the dayes of hys lyfe, that he may learne to feare the Lord hys God, to kepe al the wordes of this law and these ordinaunces to do them, that his herte arple not aboue hys brethren, & that he turne not from the commaundemente, ey-ther to the ryght hand or to the left & both he & his children may prolong theyr dayes in hys kindom in Israel.

A gatherynge

of certayne harde wordes

in the newe Testament, with their explication.

To the Reader.

Because there are in y<sup>e</sup> newe Testament some wordes, which should not of euery body be wel vnderstanded, because they are not accustomed in common speech, we haue made a s<sup>pe</sup>ciall gathering, & an explication of the: Not thoroughly to treat them as learned men might, nor to declare them with longe circumstance; but only that the rude and ignorant may knowe what they signifie, & so not be troubled in the readinge.

Aba, is a word of the comon speche, v<sup>se</sup>d among the Hebrewes, in the tyme of our Lord Iesu Christ, & cometh from the ryght Hebrew tongue, and doeth signifie father.

Angell translated worde for worde, signifie a messenger, but it is taken commonly for the heauenly spirites, whiche serue God, in doynge and accomplishing his heauenly will.

Archangell is a compounded name, signifyinge the pryncypall or chiefe amonge the Angels.

Assemble is sometyme taken not onely simply for a company or multitude of people, but also for a Synagoge.

Baptist is a name of offyce attributed to Iohn the sonne of zacharye, because he was the first that began to Baptise.

Beelzebub is the name of an ydol, whiche had the begynnyng of ayes: but the cause why, is not nedeful here to be declared: Because it was an ydole of greete renoume, it is taken for the deuyl, as by cursynge.

Byshoppe is as muche to saye as watchynge or ouersynge, but it is taken for a Pastoure whiche is ordeyned to gouerne the congregacion.

Blasphemie is a Breke worde, whiche signifieth wrong, outrage, or detraction, but it is taken particularly for the injury and rebuke that is done to God.

Blesse, doth signifie sumtime to praise, as when we saye: we blesse God: sumtime it is taken for geuyng thanks, sumtime also to sanctifie or consecrate. As in the 1. Cor. x. Chapter.

Brother in the Hebrew tongue, is taken for all kinde of kynred, in whatsoeuer degree it be.

straunge wordes.

Christ is as muche to saye, as vincted, but this is the proper title of our Lord Iesus Christ, because that by his spirituall anoyntynge, that is to say by the grace of the holy goste, he was consecrate of God the father, to be both a soueraigne, sanctifier, a kynge and a prophete.

Churche signifieth worde for worde, a congregacion or gatherynge together of people: but is taken in the new Testament for the company of the saythful assembled in Christes name, accordynge to the order that he hath instituted.

Circumcision is taken sumtyme for the signe or sacramente whiche was gyuen the Jewes, and oftentymes for the people them selues.

Commen signifieth despyled or vncleane because it was a despyng to the Jewes to meddle with the Gentyles, and to company with them.

Cup, this worde is taken for a drynkyng vessel of whatsoeuer forme it be, because the Breke wordes expresse no certayne fashion. Agreouer sumtyme it is put for the crosse or tribulation, because God hath distributed to euery of his saythfull, accordynge to the porcyon that he knoweth to be mete for hym.

Description is taken for declaracion or notynge, and for numbryng, not of landes but of men, as when a prince would knowe the numbre of his subiectes, he causeth the to be wyrtten in a byll together.

Dram was a piece of money beyng in value woorth a grote and two partes of an Englyshe peny.

Didram maketh the double.

Dreames, in the seconde of the Actes, signifieth the reuelacions whiche God geueth his Prophetes in theyr sleepe.

Exorcist signifieth hym that hath the offyce to coniure deuils, as there was in olde tyme amonge the Jewes.

Fayth is taken ordinarily for the beliefe whiche men haue in God, or for the perswasion & certaintie that they haue of his mercy and truth, but singularly for the assurance that Christians oughte to haue through the grace of Iesu Christe, accordynge to the promesse of the Gospell. The saythe of God sometyme signifieth his truth it selfe, or the loyaltie whiche he keepeth in accomplishing what he hath spokē, as in the 111. to the Ro. Sometime it betokeneth a sleight knowledge of god such as the wicked & despisers haue. Ja. ii. & also the gyfte to worke myracles. 11. Cor. xii. xiii.

Fynger of God, is taken for his vertue, in and by whiche he worketh.

Flesh, is sumtime taken for man simply without any other consideracion: And sumtime, & that specially of s. Paule for the vicious & corrupt nature whiche we haue of our first father, and in this signification is the whole manne comprehended, before he be regenerate, & after he be regenerate the leauinges of his carnal nature.

Gates of hell, are taken for defence or munition because the strengthe of townes was chiefly in their gates. Generacion, besyde engendrynge bys common significacion, is taken for age or worlde.

Gospel signifieth good newes, but chiefly by this word is vnderstand the preaching of the grace & mercy of God, whiche hath bene declared to vs in Iesu Christ.

Greke or Grecian. Though this be the name of a particular people yet in Paul it is taken generally for the Gentyles, (whiche were all such as were no Jewes, nor obserued Moses law) because that nation was more renowned among the Jewes then all the rest.

Halleluiab, this is two Hebrue words, whiche are as much to saye: as praise the Lorde: we woulde not chaunge them, because. S. John wytyng in the greke tong, hath purposely writen this in the Hebrue.

Hand, this word is sumtyme taken for force, but it signifieth also ministerye or seruyce, as when it is sayd that God deliuered bys people, and gaue bys lawe by the hande of Moses.

Horne is taken, for strengthe, force, and vertue, as in the. ii. of Luke.

Houre, muste not be taken as we take it now, for the Jewes deuyded the day from the sunne ryling to the sunne set into twelue houres, so that the first was alwayes midday or none, as we call it, and these hours were shorter and longe, accordynge to the tymes of the yeare.

Idoll, is as much to say as an ymage, or fygure that presenteth sumwhat. But in the scriptures this woorde is taken for an ymage whiche is made for deuotion, and taken for holy.

Ire or wrath, is taken for the iudgement or vengeance of God, by which he punyssheth sinners: not that God can haue or be moued wth any passion, but because men beyng stroke wth bys rodde, do feelee hym as if he were angry.

Iustify is taken commonly to absolue, or count for iust. In this sort when. S. Paul sayth that man is iustified before God, he meaneth that he is reputed iust: And when he sayeth that he is iustified by fayth, he meaneth that he is agreeable to God, not throughe bys owne iustice or ryghteousnesse, but throughe Iesu Christe, and the grace, by whiche he obteyneth to be forgiven bys synnes, and to be accepted and acknowledged for iust.

To iustifye God or bys wysedome, is to allowe hym, and gyue hym gloire. Luke. v. and. vii. Justification of the lawe, in the fyrste of Luke, are the commandementes whiche are geuen, because they be the very rule of Justice: sainte Paule for the reason calleth them iustificacions of the lawe, for there is set oute vnto vs, the manner to lyue iustly and holylye.

Legion was a bande of soldyers, whiche contayned ordinarily siue thousande footemen, and syue hundred horsemen: sometyme moe, sometyme lesse. And therefore this word is sometime taken for an army.

Letter is taken in. S. Paule for preaching or outwarde fygure, whiche is as a dead thyng and wythoute strengthe, and therefore contrarye to the spirite. Rom. ii. and. ii. Corin. iii.

Man signifieth a reasonable creature compounde of body and soule.

The olde man signifieth that whiche is of oure owne nature, because all that we haue of Adams race, tendeth to corrupcion. For the soule is infected wth originall synne, and therefore is the body subiect to death and corrupcion.

Contrariely the newe manne signifieth hym that is regenerate by the grace of the holy gost. The outwarde man is taken in S. Paul for al that belongeth to the world, as honoz, helth, ryches, and credit.

The inward man signifieth that which we haue renued in vs a freche, to lyue for euer in the kyngedome of God, and in summe, whatsoeuer it belongeth to the soule.

Minister is taken, for anye that ministereth in anye offyce. In the. xvi. to the. Roma, it is taken for a woman widowe, whose offyce was to serue the poore, and to destribute the almes vnder the charge of the deacons.

Offence signifieth a stumbling blocke.

Offende dothe signifie to geue occasyon or matter for one to stumble or fall at. And because Gods woorde is as it were a waye for vs to walke in, this woorde is taken to cause bynderaunce or trouble therein, to the entente it be not folowed as it ought.

Osanna, or rather Osianna, is an Hebrue sentence, whiche is as much to saye: as I beseeche the make me prosper or safe. And it is a prayer taken oute of the. cxlii. psalme, whiche was by the people applyed to our Lorde Iesu Christ at bys last entrey into Ierusalem, as it was made of David

A declaracio of certain

wpd purposely for hym.

Of heauenlye souldiers, is taken for a company of angels, which are as souldiers of God, & ministers of his puissance, but in the .vii. of the Actes it signifieth the Sunne, the Moone & starres, which lyke as an army are disposed, and set in order.

The summe and content of al the holy Scripture, both of the Old and new Testament.

Deuter. vi.
1 Tim. ii.
Gene. xlii.
Exodi. xv.
Genesis. i.
Psalm. i.
Exodi. iii.
Jeremy. ix.
Romay. ix.
Esay. liii.
Jeremy. x.

After the holpe wytynges of the Byble teach vs, that ther is one God almyghty, that hath nyether begynnyng nor endyng: whiche of hys owne goodnes dyd create al thynges: of whom al things proceade, and wythoute whom ther is nothyng: whiche is rightuous and merciful, and which worketh al things in al after his wyll: of whome it may not be demaunded wherfore he doth this or that.

Then that thys very God dyd create Adam the fyrst man after hys owne ymage and spmilitude, and dyd ordeine and appoynt hym Lorde of al the creatures in the earth. Whiche Adam by the enuy of the deuyll, dysobernyng the commaundement of hys maker, and dyd fyrst syn, and brought synne into thys world, such and so greare, that we whiche be spronge of hym after the fleshe, are subdued vnto synne, deathe, and damnacion, brought vnder the yoke and tyranny of the deuyll.

And further that Christ Iesus hys sonne was promysed of God the father, to be a saulour to this Adam, Abraham, Isaac, Jacob, David and the other fathers: whiche shoulde deliuer them from theyr synnes and tyranny of the deuyll, that wyth a quicke and luyng saythe woulde beleue hys promes, and trust to thys Iesus Christe, hoppyng to haue thys deliuerance of and by hym. And truly this promes is very oft rehearsed, in the bookes of the Olde Testament is thys promes: as it is called the Newe, whiche teacheth that this promes is fulfilled.

And that in the meane season while the fathers looke for saluacion and deliuerance promysed, because mans nature is such that he not onely can not, but also wyll not confesse hym selfe to be a synner, and specially such a synner that hath nede of the sayng healte promysed, the lawe was geuen where throughe men myghte knowe synne, and that they are synners: when they se that they do none of the thynges that the lawe commaundeth, wyth so glad and wylling a mynde as God requirereth: but rather agaynst theyr wylls, wythout affection, and as though they wer constrained wyth the feare of that hel whiche the lawe threatneth, sayinge: Cursed be he that maynteyneth not all the woordes of thys lawe to kepe them. And that this lawe was geuen, to the entente that synne and the malice of mens heart beyng thereby better knowne, men shoulde the more feruently thurst the comming of Christ, which shoulde redeme them from theyr synnes:

As it was figured vnto the Jewes by many ceremonies, hostes & sacrifices: whiche wer ordeined of God, not to reuintente to take away synnes, but to shewe and declare: that they shuld be put away by faith the saluacion promysed throughe Christ: and which now are put away by the comming of that Christ, which is the very host of the father that taketh away al synne.

Last of al by the bookes of the Newe Testamente, we are taught, that Christe whiche was promysed and shadowed in the old Testament, is sent of the father, at such tyme as he had determined wyth himselfe, at such tyme (I say) as al wyckednes flooyshed. And that he was sent not for any mans good works (for they al wer sinners) but to the intent that he wold truly shew the aboundant riches of his grace, whiche he had promysed.

In the new Testament therfore it is moste euidently declared, that Iesus Christ the true lambe and host, is come to the intent to reconcile vs to the father payng on the crosse the punishment due vnto our synnes: and to deliuer vs from the bondage of the deuyll (vnto whom we serued throughe synne) & to make vs his sonnes of God, for he hath geuen vs the true peace and tranquillite of conscience, that we no longer doo feare the paynes of hell: whiche feare is put away by the faith, confidence and assurance that the father geueth vs, drawinge vs vnto hys sonne. For the sayth is the gyft of god, whereby we beleue that Christ is come into thys worlde to saue synners: whiche is of so great pyth that they which haue it, desyre to performe al the duties of loue to al men, after the example of Christ. For saythe ones receiued God geueth hys holy gost, wherwyth he tokeneth and marketh al þe beleue: whiche is the pledge and earnest that we shal surely possesse euerlasting life, and that geueth wytnes vnto our spirit, and graffeth this sayth in vs, that we be the sonnes of God: pouryng therwith the loue into our hearts whiche Paule describeth and setteth oute to the Corinthians. By the faith and confidence in Christ whiche by loue is myghty in operation, and that sheweth it selfe throughe the workes of loue, strynging men thereto, by that (I saye) we are iustified: that is by þe sayth, Christes father (whiche is become oures also throughe that Christe our brother) counteth vs for rightuous, & for hys sonnes: imputinge not our synnes vnto vs, throughe hys grace.

To conclude, he came to the intente we beyng clesed from our synnes, and sanctified vnto God the father: that is, bestowed vnto the vse of the father to exercise good workes reuyng and forsakynge the workes of the flesh, shoulde truly serue hym in righteousnes and holynes al oure lyfe long: throughe good workes whiche God hath ordeyned to the intent that we shuld walke in them, declaring our selues there by to be sure: called vnto this grace: whiche the works whosoever hath not, declareth that he hath not sayth in Christ.

Vnto whom we must come, and followe hym with a cheareful heart, that he maye instructe and teach vs: for he is our mayster meke and humble of heart: he is our example of whom we must learne the rule of good lyving: further, he is our priest, his byshop, and onely mediator: whych now sytteth on the ryght hande of God the father, is our aduocate, and prayeth euer for vs: whiche wyl vndouted obtrayne what so euer we desyre, eyther of him, or of his father in his name: if we beleue that he wil doo it when we requyre it: For so hath he promysed. Let vs therefore not doubt (although we sometyme synne) with a confidence to come vnto hym, and with a ly-ving and vndouting sayth, that we shall obteyne mercede. For therefore came he, to the intent to saue synners: neyther requyreth he any thing more of vs, then to come vnto hym without feare.

This is that Christ Iesus whych after he hath kylled the man of synne with the breath of his mouth, shal sit in his ma-iesty and iudge all men, geuing vnto euery one the workes of his body, accordyng to that he hath done, whether it be good or bad: And that he shal saye vnto them that shal be on his right hand. Come ye blessed chylidren of my father, in heret ye the kyngdome prepared for you fro the beginning of the worlde: And vnto them that shal be on his left hand: Depart from me ye cursed, into euerlasting fyre: which is prepared for the deuyll and his angels. The shal the ende come and he shal deliuer by the kyngedome to God the father.

To the intent that we shuld knowe this, by the goodnes of God, workinge by his holy spirit, are the holy wytynges of the Byble geuen vs: That we shuld knowe I saye) and beleue that there is one God, and Iesus Christ whom he hath sent: and that in beleuyng, we shoulde haue euerlasting lyfe thowh his name.

Another foundation then this can

In the begyn-

God heauē and earth. The earth was voyde and andemptie, and darknesse was vppon the depe,
and the * spi-

ſayde: lette there be lpghte: and there was lpghte. And God ſawe the lpghte that it was good, and deuided the lighte from the darknes, and called the light the day, and the darknes the night: and ſeueninge and morninge was made one dape.

God alſo ſaide: let there be a firmament betwene the waters, and lette it deuide the waters a ſunder. Then God made the firmamente, and parted the waters whiche were vnder the firmamente, from the waters aboue the firmamente: And ſo it was doone. And God called the firmament heauen: And the eueninge and mornynge was made the ſeconde dape.

And God ſayde: * Let the waters vnder heauen be gathered together in one place, that the drye lande maye appeare. And ſo it was doone. And God called the drye lande the earthe, and the gatheringes togyther of waters called he the ſea. And God ſawe that it was good.

And God ſayde: lette the earthe bringe forth grene graſſe and that beareth ſede, and frutful trees bearynge frute every one in his kinde, hauing theyr ſede in them ſel-

God ſaw that it was good: * the eueninge ſeaſons, daies and yeres. And * let them be the dape and the nyghte, and to deuyde the lpghte from darkenes. And God ſawe that it was good: and the eueninge and mornynge was made the fourth dape.

And God ſayde: * let the waters bringe forth creatures that moue and haue lyfe, & foules for to flye ouer the earthe vnder the firmament of heauen. And God created greate whales, and all maner of creatures that liue & moue, which the waters brought forth in their kindes, and all maner of fethered foules in theyr kindes. And God ſawe that it was good, and * blessed them, ſaying: Encreaſe and multiplie, and fill the waters of the ſea, & let the foules multiplie vpon the earth. And the eueninge and mornynge was made the fyfth dape.

And God ſayde: let the earth bring forth liuynge creatures in their kindes, cattell and wormes, and beaſtes of the earthe in their kindes, and ſo it was. And God made the beaſtes of the earth in theyr kindes, and cattell in theyr kindes, and all maner wormes of the earthe in theyr kindes: and God ſawe that it was good.

And God ſayde * let vs make man too our ſimilitude and after our likenes: and let hym haue rule ouer the fyſhe of the ſea, and ouer the foules of the ayre, and ouer cattell, and ouer all the earth, and ouer all wormes that creepe on the earth. And God created manne after hys likenes, after the lykenes of God created he him: male and female, created he them.

And God blessed them, and ſayde: Grow and multiply, and fill the earth, and ſubdue it, and haue dominion ouer the fiſhes of the ſea, and foules of the ayre, and ouer all the beaſtes that moue on the earthe.

And God ſayde: Se, I haue geuen you al heerbes that beare ſede vpon the earthe, & al maner trees that haue fruit in them and beare ſede: to be meate for you and for all beaſtes of the earthe, and vnto al foules of the ayre, and vnto al that moue in the erth, and wherein is lyfe, that they maye haue al maner herbes and graſſe for to eate, and ſo it was done. And * God behelde al that he hadde made, and lo, they were exceeding good: and the eueninge and mornynge was made the ſixte dape.

The Lorde God also planted a garden of pleasure from the beginning, and there he set man whome he hadde formed. And the Lorde God made to sprynge forth of the earth, all manner trees beautifull to the sight, and plesant to eate, and the<sup>3</sup> tre of lyfe in the myddest of the garden: and also the tree of knowledge of good and euyl.

And ther sprang a riuer out of Eden to water the garden, and thence deuyded it self, and grewe into foure pryncypall waters.
The name of the one is þis: he it is that compasseth all the lande of Hevila, where golde groweth. And the golde of that coun-tre is precious, there is founde bdellion, and a stone called Onix. The name of the seconde riuier is Sihon, which compasseth all the lande of Inde. And the name of the thyrde riuier is Tigris, whiche runneth on the East side of the Assyrians. And the.iiii. riuier is Euphrates.

And the Lorde God toke Adam, and put him in the garden of pleasure, to dresse it

Adam saying: Of al the trees of the garden eate: But of the tre of knowledge of good and bad eate thou not: For the same daye thou eatest of it, thou shalt dye the death.

And the Lorde God sayde: It is not good that man be alone, I wyl make hym an helpe to beare hym company. And after the Lorde God hadde made of the earth all manner beastes of the felde, and al maner foules of the ayre, he brought them vn-beastes, so at their names. And Adam gaue names vnto al maner cattell, and vnto the foules of the ayre, and vnto al maner beastes of the felde. But there was no helpe found vnto Adam to beare him companye.

Then the Lorde God cast a slumber on Adam, and he slepte. And he toke oute one is in the myddest of the garden (said God) se ye eate not, and se that ye touche it not, leaste ye dye. Then sayde the serpente vnto the woman: not so: ye shall not dye: for God dothe know that whosoever ye shuld eate of it, your eyes shulde be opened, and ye shoulde be as goddes, and knowe bothe

it was a good tree to eate of, and sayde vnto the eyes, and a pleasaunte tree to gyue vnderstandyng, and she tooke of the fruite of it, and eate, and gaue vnto her husband generacion of Enoch, Mathusael, Tubal Lamech, Seth and Enos.

ADAM laye with Eue his wife, which conceyued and bare Cayne, & sayde: I haue obteyned a man of the Lord.
And she proceedede forthe, and bare his brother Abel: And Abel became a sheepeheard, and Cayne a plowman.

And it fortuneth in processe of time, that Cayne broughte of the fruite of the earth an offeringe vnto the Lorde. Abel brought also of the fyrste borne of hys shepe, and of the fatte of them. And the Lorde *looked vnto Abel and his offeringe, but vnto Cayne and his offeringe looked he not. And Cayne was wrothe exceedinglye, and lowred. And the Lord said to him: whi art þ angry, and why lowrest thou. Wotest thou not if thou doest wel thou shalt receiue it? But if thou doest euil, forthwith thy sinne lieth open in the doore. Notwithstanding let it be subdued vnto the, and rule thou it. And Cain talked with Abel his brother.

BAnd as sone as they were in the fieldes, Cain fel vpon Abel his brother, and slew hym. And the Lorde sayde vnto Cayne Where is Abel thy brother? And he sayde: I canne not tell, am I my brothers keeper? and he sayde: What haste thou doone. The voyce of thy brothers bloud *cryed vnto me oute of the earth. And nowe cursed be thou vppon the earth, whiche opened her mouthe to receiue thy brothers bloude of thine hand. For whē thou tillest the ground it shall henceforth not giue her power vnto the. A vacabund and a frennagate shalt thou be vpon the earth.

And Cain said vnto the Lord: My sinne is greater then that it may be forgiven. Be holde thou castest me oute thys daye from the earth, and from thy syght must I hide my selfe, and I muste be wanderynge and a vacabounde vppon the earth. Moreover who soeuer fyndeth me, wyl kyll me. And the Lorde sayde vnto hym: Not so, but whosoever slepeth Cayne shall be punished seuen folde. And the Lorde putte a marcke vpon Cayne that no man that found hym shuld kil him. And Cain wet out from the face of the Lorde, and dwelte in the lande Eden, on the east syde of Eden.

And Cayne laye with his wyfe, whiche conceyued and bare Henoah. And builded a ctyte, and called the name of it after the name of his sonne, Henoah. And Henoah begat Irad. And Irad begatte Mathusael And Mathusael begat Mathusael. And Mathusael begate Lamech. And Lamech toke hym two wyues: the one called Ada, and the other Zilla. And Ada bare Jaball, of whome came they that dwelt in tentes, and hadde cattell. And his brothers name was Juball, of hym came all that exercise them selues on the harpe, and on the Organs. And Zilla also bare Tubalcain a worker in metall, and father of all that graue in brasle and Iron. And Tubalcaines Sister was called Noema.

Then sayde Lamech vnto hys wyues A da and Zilla, heare my voyce ye wyues of Lamech, and herken vnto my wordes, for I haue slayn a man and wounded my selfe, and haue slayne a ponge man, and got my selfe stryppes, for Cayne shall be auenged se-again, and she bare a sonne and called his name Seth. For God (sayde she) hathe geuen me an nother sonne for Abel whome Cayn slew. And Seth begate a sonne, and called his name Enos. And in that time began men to call on the name of the Lord.

The genealogye of Adam vnto Noe.

This is the booke of the generacion of Adam. In the daye when God created man and made hym after the simi-litude of God. Male & female made he the, and blessed them, and called theyr names manne, in the daye when they were created. And when Adam was an hundred and thyrtye yere olde, he begatte a Sonne after hys lykenesse and symilitude: and called his name Seth. And the daies of Adam after he begatte Sethe, were eyghte hundred yere, and begat sonnes and dought-ters. And all the dayes of Adam whiche he lyued, were .ix. hundred and thyrtye yeres, and then he dyed. Seth was an hundred and .v. yeres old and begate Enos. And after he had begot Enos, he lyued .viii. C. and
vii. yeres, and begate sonnes and Dought-ters. And all the dayes of Seth were .ix. C. and .xii. yeres, and he died. And Enos was iii. score & .x. yere old and begate Kenan. And Enos after he begate Kenan, lyued eyghte

C. lxxv. yeres, and begate sonnes and doughters. And al the daies of Lamech wer. vii. C. lxxv. yeres, & then died. And when Noe was .v. C. yeres old, he begat Sem, Cham & Japheth.

The. vi. Chapter.

The cause of the flood. The malice of mans herte. The preparing of the arcke.

And it came to passe when men began to multiply vpon the earth, and had begot them doughters, the sonnes of God sawe the daughters of menne that they were fayre, and tooke vnto them wyues whiche they bestelyked amonge them. And the Lorde sayde: My spirite shall not alwaye strue with man, for he is flesh. Neuerthelesse I wil geue them yet space an hundreded and .xx. yeres.

There were gyauntes in the worlde in those dayes. For after that the chyldren of God had lyen with the daughters of men, and had begotten them chyldren, the same chyldrene were the myghtiest of the worlde and menne of renowme. And when the Lorde sawe that the malice of manne was encreased vpon the earth, and that al the ymaginacion and thoughtes of hys hert was onely euill continuallpe, he repented that he hadde made manne vpon the earthe and sorowed in hys herte. And said: I wyll destroye mankynde whiche I haue made oute of the earthe: bothe man beaste, worme & fowl of the ayre, for it repetheth me that I made the. But Noe foude grace in the syghte of the Lorde.

* These are the generations of Noe. Noe was a ryghteous man and perfyte in hys tyme, and walked wpth God. And Noe begate thre sonnes, Sem, Cham, and Japheth. And the earthe was corrupte in the sight of God, and was ful of mischefe. And God looked vpon the earth, & lo it was corrupte: for all flethe hadde corrupte his waye vpon the earthe. Then sayde God to Noe: * the ende of all flethe is come before me, for the earthe is full of theyr myschefe. And lo, I wil destroye them with the earth. Make the an arcke of pyne tree, and make chambers in the arcke, and pitche it within & withoute with pitch. And of this facion shalte thou make it.

The lengthe of the arcke shal be thre hundred cubytes, and the bredthe of it. L. cubytes, and the hepth of it. xxx. cubytes. And wyndowe shalte thou make aboue in the arcke, and within a cubite compasse shalte thou spynne it. And the doore of the arcke shalt thou set in the syde of it: & thou shalt make it with thre loftes, one aboue an other. For beholde, I wil brynge in a flood of water vpon the earth to destroye al fleth vnder heauen, wherein bryeth of life is: & al that is in the earth shal perishe. But I wil make my league with the, that bothe thou shalt come into the arcke and thy sonnes, thy wife and thy sonnes wiues with the.

And of al that liueth whatsoeuer fleth it be, shalt thou bring into the arcke of euery thyng a payre, to kepe them alpyue with the. And male and female se that they be, of byrdes in theyr kynde, and of beastes in theyr kynde, and of al maner of wormes of the earthe in theyr kynde: a payre of euery thing shal come vnto the to kepe the alpyue. And take vnto the of al maner of meate that maye be eaten, and laye it vppe in store by the, that it maye be meat both for the and for them: And Noe did according to al that God commaunded hym.

The. vii. Chapter.

The entryng of Noe and such as wer with him into the arcke. The entryng of the flood wherewith al things did perishe.

And the Lorde saide vnto Noe: Go into the arcke bothe thou and al thy householde. For the haue I seene righteous before me in thys generacion. Of all cleue beastes take vnto the .vii. of euery kynde, the male and female, and of vncleue beastes a payre, the male and female lykewise of the byrdes of the ayre. .vii. of euery kynde, male and female too laue seed vpon al the earth. For .vii. daies hence wil I sende rain vpo the earth. xl. daies and .xl. nights, and wil destroye al maner of things that I haue made from the earth.

And Noe byd accordyng to all that the Lorde commaunded hym: and Noe was fyr hundred yere olde when the * floude of water came vpon the earth: and Noe went, and hys sonnes, and hys wyfe, and hys sonnes wyues wth him into þe arcke; for the waters of the floude. And of cleane beastes, and of the beastes that were vncleane, and of birds, and of all that moueth vpon the earth came in by couples of eue-ry kynde vnto Noe into the arke, a male and female as God commaunded Noe. And the seuenthe daye the waters of the floude came vpon the earth.

And the vi. hundred yere of Noes lyfe, in the seconde moneth, the xvii. daie of the moneth, were all the fountaynes of the greate depe broken vp, and the windowes of heuē were opened, and ther fel a raine

wyfe and the three wyues of hys sonnes, wth them into the arcke: both they and all maner of beastes in theyr kynde, and all maner of catell in ther kynde, and all maner of wormes that moue vpon the earth in theyr kynde, and all maner of birdes in theyr kynde, and all maner of foules what soeuer had fethers. And they came vnto Noe into the arcke by couples, of all fleche that had breath of life in it. And they came male & female of every fleche accordyng as God commaunded hym: & the Lorde shut the doore vnto hym. And þe * floud came. xl. dayes and. xl. nyghtes vpon the earth, and the water increased and bare vp the arcke, and it was lyfte vp ouer the earth. And the water preuailed and increased exceedyng-iled the waters, so that þe hils wer couered,

And all flesch that moued on the earth, both byrdes, cattell and beastes perished, wth all that moued on the earth, and all men: so that all that had the breath of lyfe throughtoute all that was on drye land, died. Thus was destroyed al that was vpon the earth, both man, beastes, wormes and foules of the ayre, so that they were destroy-

The viii. Chapter.

After the sendyng forth of the rauen and the doue. Noe went forth of the arke. He offreth sacrifice. The malice of mā's hert.

And God remembered Noe and al the beastes, and all the catell that were wth hym in the arcke. Then God broughte a winde vpon the earth, and the waters ceased: and the fountaynes of the depe and the wyndowes of heuen were stoppt, and the rayne of heauen was stoppt den, and the waters returned frome the earth, and abated after the ende of an hundred and. l. daies. And the arke rested vpon the mountaynes of Ararat the xvii. daie of the vii. moneth. And the waters wente awaye, and decreased tyll the. x. moneth.

And the fyrste daie of the. x. moneth, the topps of the mountaynes appeared.

And after the ende of. xl. dayes Noe opened the window of þe arke which he had made and sent forth a rauen, which went out, & cuer goynge and comyng agayne, til the waters were dryed vpon the earth. He sent forth also a doue from hym, to wytte whether the waters were fallen from the earth. And when the doue coulde fynde no restyng place for her fore, she returned to hym agayne vnto the arcke, for the waters were vpon all the earth. And he put oute hys hande, and toke her, and pulled her to him into the arcke.

Some read
and neuer
came againe.

And he abode yet. vii. dayes more, and sent out a doue agayne out of the arcke, and the doue came to hym agayne aboute euētide, and behold, there was in her mouthe a lefe of an olyue tree, whiche she had plucked: wherby Noe perceyued that the waters wer abated vnto the earth. And he taried yet. vii. other dayes, & sent forth þe doue, which fro thenceforth came no more agayne to hym. And it came to passe, the fyrst daye of the first moneth, that the waters wer dryed vp vpon the earth. And Noe toke of the hatches of the arke, and looked: and behold, the face of the earth was drye. So by the. xvii. daye of the seconde moneth the earth was drye.

And God spake vnto Noe, saying: Come oute of the arcke, both thou and thy wyfe and thy sonnes and thy sonnes wyues wth the. And all the beastes that are wth the, whatsoeuer fleshe it be, both foule and ca-tell, and all maner wormes that creepe on the earth, bynge oute wth the, and lette them moue, & growe and multiplye vpon the earth: And Noe came out, and his sonne and hys wyfe, and hys sonnes wyues wth hym. And al beastes, and al the wormes, & al the foules, and al that moued vpon the earth, came also oute of the arcke, all of one kynde together.

Gen. i. c. d.
and. ix. d.

And Noe made an auter vnto the lorde and tooke of all maner of cleane beastes, and all maner of cleane foules, and offered sacrifice vpon the auter. And the Lorde smelled a swete sauoure, and sayd in hys berte: I wyll henceforth no more curse the earth for mannes sake, for the ymaginacyon of mannes herte is euill, euen from the verye yowth of hym. Moreouer I wyll not destroye henceforth al that lyueth as I haue done. Neyther shall sowynge tyme and harueste, colde and heate, somer and wynter, daye and nyghte cease, as longe as the earth endureth.

The ix. Chapter.

God bleſſeth Noe and his ſonnes, and ſay-byddeth the ſhedynge of mannes bloude.
The lawe of the ſwarte. He maketh a couenaunte that he wyl deſtroy ſ world no more be water, and giveth the rainebowe as a token and confirmation of the ſame. Noe is dyenken, and Cham getteth his fathers curſe.

AND God *blessed Noe and his sones and sayde vnto them: Increase and multiplye and fyll the earthe. The feare also and dreade of you be vppon all beastes of the earthe and vppon all foules of the ayer, and vppon all that crepeth vppon the earthe, and vpon all fyshes of the sea, whyche are gyuen vnto your han-des. And all that moueth vpon the earthe haupng lyfe, shall be your meate: Euen as the grene herbes so grue I you all thinge.
Only the *flesh wyth hys lyfe, whyche is hys bloude se that ye eate not.

* If for verely the * blud of you, wherin your lyues are, wil I require: Euen of the bande of all beastes wyll I require it: and of the hand of man, and of the bad of euery mans brother, wyll I requyre the lyfe of man: so that he whych shedeth mans bloude shall haue hys bloude shed by man agayne: for God * made man after his owne lykenesse: Se that ye encrease, and ware, and be occu-pyed vpon the earth, and multiply therein.

B Furthermore God spake vnto Noe and his sonnes with him, sayinge: Se, I make my bonde wyth you and your seede after you, and wyth all lyuynge thyng that is wyth you: both soule and catel, and al manner beastes of the earthe that is with you: of all that cometh oute of the arcke, what soeuer beaste of the earth it be. I make my bonde wyth you, that henceforth all fleshe shall not be destroyed wyth the waters of any floude, and that henceforth there shall not be a floude to destroye the earth.

The rayne-
bowe.

And God sayde: * This is the token of my bowde which I make betwene me and you, and betwene al lyuynge thynges that is wryth you for euer: I wyll set my bowe in the clowdes, and it shall be a sygne of the appoyntmente made betwene me and the earth: so that whan I brynge in cloudes vpon the earth, the bowe shall appere in the clowdes. And than wyll I thynke vpon my testamente whych I haue made be-twene me and you, and all that lyueth whatsoever fleshe it be. * So that henceforth there shall be no more waters to make a floude, to destroye al fleshe.

The bowe shall be in the cloudes, and I will looke vpon it, to remember the euerlasting testament betwene God and all that lyueth vpon the earth, what so euer flesh it be. And God sayd vnto Noe: This is the sygne of  $\text{the}$  testament wherch I haue made betwene me and all flesh that is on the earth.

The Sonnes of Aee that came out of the arke, were Sem, Cham, and Japhet. And Cham is the father of Canaan. These are the.iii. sonnes of Noe, and of these was all the worlde ouerspredde.

And Noe beinge an husband man, went forth and planted a vyneyard, and dranke of the wyne and was droncke, and laye vnder a tree, and was couered in the myddeste of hys tente. And Cham the father of Canaan sawe hys fathers priuytyes, and tolde hys two brethren that were wythout. And Sem and Iapheth toke a mantel: and put it on both their shoulders and went backward and couered theyr fathers secretes, and theyr faces were backward, so that they sawe not theyr fathers nakednes. As soone as Noe was awaked from his wyne, and wist what his yongest sonne hadde done vnto him, he sayde: * Cursed be Canaan, and a curse, seruaunt of al seruauntes be he to hys brethren. And he sayde: Blessed be the Lorde God of Sem, and Canaan be his seruaunt. God increase Iapheth that he may dwell in the tents of Sem. And Canaan be theyr seruaunte. And Noe lyued after the floude thre hundred and fyfty yere: so that all the dayes of Noe were. ix. hundred and fyfty yere, and than he dyed.

The .x. Chapter.

¶ The genealogy of Japheth Sem and Chā.

These be the generacions of the sonnes of Noe: of Sem, Cham, and Japheth whiche begatte theym chyldren after the floude.

The sonnes of Hapheth were: Gomer, Magog, Madai, Jauan, Tuball, Melech and Thiras. And the sonnes of Gomer were Ascanas, Rypbat and Togarma. And the sonnes of Jauan were, Elpha, Tharsys, Lithym and Dodanim. Of these came the Isles of the gentils in their countreis, every man in his speech kindred and nation.

The sonnes of Cham were: Chus, Mizraim, Put and Canaan. The sonnes of Chus were Seba, Henyia, Sabta, Raima and Sabrema. And the sonnes of Kayna were Sheba and Dedan. * Chus also begat Nemrod whiche began to be myghty in the earth. He was a myghtye hunter in the syght of the Lorde. Whereof came the prouerbe: he is as Nemrod that myghtye hunter in the syght of the Lorde. And the begynnyng of hys kyngedome was * Babel, Erech, Achad and Chalne, in the lande of Spneat: Out of that lande came Assur, and buylded Ninue, and the streets of the egypte, and Calah, and Kessen betwene Ninue and Calah. That is a great city.
And Mizraim begat Ludim, Enampm, Lethym, Raphthim, Pathrusim and Casu-sym: from whence came the Hylythys, and the Caphterynes.

Canaan also begat 3rdon hys eldest son and Geth, Jebusi, Emori, Brzgoſy, Hun, & Arki, Srrny, Aruady, & mary and Har-nari. And afterwarde ſprange the kyn-eds of the Cananites. And the coſts of the Cananites

Cananytes were frome Sydon tyll thou come to Betara & to Asa, and til thou come to Sodoma, Gomorra, Adama, zeboim, & uen vnto Asa. These were the chyldren of Cham in theyr kyntredes, tonges, landes and nations. And Sem the father of al the chyldren of Eber, and the eldeste brother of Japheth begate chyldren also.

D And hys sonnes were Elam, Assur, Arphachsad, Lud and Aram. And the chyldren of Aram were: Uz, Hul, Gether and Mas. And Arphachsad begat Sala, and Sala begat Eber. And Eber begatte two sonnes. The name of the one was Peleg, for in hys tyme the earthe was deuided.

And the name of his brother was Jakerā. Jakerā begate Almodad, Saleph, Haharmoneth, Jarah, Hadoram, Uzal, Dyzkela, Obal, Abimael, Seba, Dphir, Hevila and Jobab. All these are the sonnes of Jakerā. And the dwellinge of them was fro Mesopotymie thou come vnto Sephara a mountayne of the east lande. These are the sonnes of Sem in their kyntredes, languages, contreyes and nations. These are the kyntredes of the sonnes of Noe, in their generations & nations. And of these came people that wer in this world after the floud.

The.xi.Chapter.

The building of the tower of Babel. The confusyon of tongues. The generacyon of Sem the sonne of Noe vntill Abraham whych goth wyth Lot vnto Haran.

And al the world was of one tongue, and one language. And as they came from the east, they found a playne in the lande of Synear, and there they dwelled. And they sayde one to another: come on let vs make byrke and buene it wyth spye. So byrke was their ston, and spye was their moister. And they sayed: Come on, let vs builde vs a city and a towre, that the toppes may reach vnto heauen. And let vs make vnto vs a name afore we be scattered abroad ouer al the earth. And the Lord came downe to se the cytie and the towre whiche the chyldren of Adam had builded.

God methoweth hym selfe presente among men by hys wonderfull worke, as it is in Isai. xlii. b. & c. xliiii. a. B And the Lord sayde: See, the people is one and haue one tongue among them al, and thys haue they begon to do, and wyll not leaue from all that they haue purposed to do. Come on, let vs descende, and myngle theyr tonge euen there, that one vnderstand not what another sayeth. Thus the Lord scattered them from thence vpon all the earthe. And they leste of to builde the cytye. Wherefore the name of it is called Babel, because that the Lord ther confounded the tongue of al the world. And because that the Lord from thence scattered them abroad vpon all the earthe.

These are the generacions of Sem: Sem was an hundred yere olde, and begat Arphachsad. ii. yere after the floude. And Sem liued after he hadde begote Arphachsad spue hundred yere, and begat sonnes and daughters.

And Arphachsad lyued. cxxv. yere and begatte Sala, and lyued after he had begat Sala. iiii. hundred yere and. iii. and begat sonnes and daughters. And Sala was xxx. yere olde, and begat Eber, and lyued after he had begat Eber foure hundred and thye yere, and begat sonnes and daughters. Whē Eber was. cxxiii. yere old, he begat Peleg, and lyued after he had begot Peleg foure hundred and thyrty yere, and begat sonnes and daughters.

Peleg when he was. xxx. yere old begat Regu, and lyued after he had begot Regu ii. hundred and. ix. yere, and begat sonnes and daughters. And Regu whē he had lyued. cxxii. yere begat Serug, and liued after he had begot Serug. ii. hundred and. vii. yere, and begatte sonnes and daughters.

And when Serug was. xxx. yere olde he begat Rabor, & lyued after he had begot Rabor. ii. hundred yere, and begat sonnes and daughters. And Rabor when he was xix. yere olde, begat Terah, & lyued after he had begotte Terah, an hundred and. xix. yere, and begat sonnes and daughters.

And when Terah was. lxx. yere olde, he begat Abiam, Rabor and Haran.

And these are the generacions of Terah, Terah begat Abiam, Rabor and Haran. And Haran begat Lot. And Haran dyed before Terah his father in the lad wher he was borne, at Ur in Chaldea. And Abiam and Rabor toke them wyues. Abiams wyfe was called Sarai. And Rabors wyfe Milca the daughter of Haran, whiche was father to Mylcha and to Jesca. But Sarai was baren and hadde no chyld.

Then toke Terah Abiam his sone and Lot hys sone, Harans sone, and Sarai hys daughter in lawe, hys sone Abiams wyfe. And they wente wyth hym frome Ur in Chaldea, to go into the land of Chanaan. And they came to Harā and dwelled ther. And when Terah was two hundred yere olde and spue, he dyed in Haran.

The.xii.Chapter.

Abrahim is blessed of God, and goth with Lot into Canaan. And God promisseth to geue the same land to hys seede. And afterward goeth Abiam into Egypt and causeth Sarai hys wyfe to say she is hys syster. And she was taken away of Pharaon, for whiche the Lord plageth hym.

Then the Lord sayed vnto Abiam, Get the out of thy contrey and from thy kyntred, and oute of thy fathers house into a lande whiche I wyll shewe the. And I wyll make of the a myghty people, and wyll blesse the, and make thy name greate, that thou mayest bee a blessinge. And I wyll blesse them that blesse the, and curse the that curse the. And in the shal be blessed all the generacions of the earthe.

And Abiam wente as the Lord hadde hym, and Lot went wyth hym. Abiam was lxxv.

The.xiii. Chapter.

Abram and Lot departeth out of Egypt. And Abram buylded hys lande and catel wpyth hys brother Lot. Here agayne is promised to Abram the lande of Canaan.

Then Abia departed out of Egypt, both he and his wyfe, and that he had, and Lot wpyth hym vnto the south. Abram was very ryche, in cartell, syluer, and gold.
And he went on his iourney from the south euene vnto Berbell, and to the place where his tente was at the firste tyme, betwene Berbell and Ay, and vnto the place of the auter wpych he made before. And ther called Abram vpon the name of the Lord. Lot also wpyche went with hym had sheepe, ca-tell and tentes: so that the lande was not hable to receaue them that they myghte dwel together, for the * substance of theyr dwel together. And ther fel a stryfe betwene the herdmen of Abrams catel, and the herd-men of Lots catel. Moreover the * Cana-nytes and the Pheresites dwelled at that tyme in the lande. Than sayd Abram vnto Lot: Let there be no strife (I pray the) be-twene the and me, and betwene my herd-men and thine, for we be * brethren. Is not al the hole land before the? Depart, I pray the from me. If thou wylte take the lefte hand, I wyl take the ryght: or if thou take a plenteouse countrey of water euerye where before the Lorde destroyed So-dome and Gomorra, euene as the garden of the Lorde, and as the lande of Egypte tyl thou come to zoar.

Than Lot chose al the coasts of Jordan & toke his iourney from the east. And so departed the one brother from the other. Abia dwelled in the lad of Canaan: and Lot in the cities of the playn, & pitched his tent toward Sodome. But the menn of Sodome were wicked, & sinned exceedingly against the lord. And the lord saide vnto Abram after that Lot was departed from hym: Lift up thyne eyes, and loke frome the place wher thou art northward, southward, eastward, & westward, for al * the land wpych thou seeest wil I gyue vnto the and to thy seed for euer. And I wyl make thy seede, as the duste of the earthe: so that if a man can number the dust of the earthe: than shal thy seed also be numbred. Aryse and walke aboute in the lande, in the length of it and in the bredthe, for I wyl geue it vnto the.
Than Abram toke downe hys tente and mente and dwelled in the valey of Mamre whiche is in * Ebron, and buylded there an

All these came together vnto the vale of Syddym, whiche is now the salte sea. Twelue yere were they subiecte to kynge Kedorlaomor, and in the .xiii. yere rebelled. Therefore in the fourtene yere, came Kedorlaomor and the kynges that were wyth hym, and smote the * Raphaims in Asaroth Karnaym, and the Susym in Ham, and the Emims in Sabe Karathaim, and the Horims in theyr owne mount Seir, vnto the playne of Sharan, whych bordeth vpon the wyl-dernesse. And then turned they and came to the well Misphat, whiche is Lades, and smote all the contrey of the Amalechites, and also the Amorytes that dwelt in the Jezon Thamar.

Then went out the kynge of Sodome, and the kynge of Gomorre, and the kynge of Adama, and the kynge of zeboym, and the kynge of Bela now called zoar. And set they men in aray to fyght wyth them in the vale of Syddym, that is to saye, wyth Kedorlaomor the kynge of Elam, and wyth Chydeall kynge of the Nations, and wyth Amraphel kynge of Syuear. And wyth Arpoch kynge of Ellasar, foure kynges agaynst fyue. And that vale of Syddym was full of fyre pyres.

And the kynge of Sodome and Gomorre fledde, and fell there. And the resydue fled to the mountaynes. And they tooke all the goodes of Sodome and Gomorre and all theyre byttles, and wente theyr waye. And they toke Lot also Abiams brother sonne and his goods (for he dwelled at Sodome) and departed. When came one that had escaped, and tolde Abram the Hebrew whych dwelled in the valere of * Mamre the Amoryte, brother of Eschol and Aner: whiche were confederate wyth Abram. When Abram herd that his brother was taken, he harnessed his seruantes bozue in his owne house, thre hundred and eyghrene, and folowed till they came at Dan. And sette hym selfe and his seruantes in aray, and fell vpon them by nyghte, and smote them, and chased them away vnto Hoba: whiche lyeth on the lefte hande of Damascus, and broughte agayne all the goodes, and also his brother Lot, and his goodes, the women also and the people.

And as he returned agayne fro flaughter of Kedorlaomor, and of the kynge that were wyth hym, came the kynge of Sodome to mete him in the vale of Saue, whiche now is called kynge dale. Then * Melchisedech kynge of Salem brought forth bread and wyne. And he blessed hym, sayinge: * Blessed be Abram vnto the mooste hygheste God, possessor of heauen and earth. And blessed be God the moost hyghest, whiche hath deliuered thine enemies into thy handes. And Abram gaue hym tithes of all. Then sayde the kynge of Sodome vnto Abram: Gyue me the * soules, and take the goodes to thy selfe. And Abram answered the kynge of Sodome: I lyfte vp my hand vnto the Lord God, mooste hygheste possessor of heauen and earth, that I wyl not take of all that is thynne so much as a thred or a shewlachte, lest thou shuldest say, I haue made Abram ryche. Saue onelye that whiche the yonge men haue eaten, and the partes of men whych went with me, Aner Escholl and Mamre. Lette them take their parts.

The xv. Chapter. The land of Canaan is yet agayne promysed to Abram. God promyseth him seede he beleueth and is iustified. The prophete of the bondage wherein the chyldre of Israhell shuld be vnder Pharaon, and of their deliuerance frome the same.

After these deedes, the * word of god came vnto Abram in a visyon, sayinge: Feare not Abram. I am thy shyld, and thy reward shal be exceeding greate. And Abram answered: Lord god what wilt thou geue me? I go chyldlesse, and the seruant of myne house, this Eleasar of Damas co hath a sonne. And Abram sayde mozeouer: Se, to me hast thou giuen no seede: lo a lad borne in my house shal be myne heire. And beholbe, the word of the Lord spake vnto Abram, sayinge: He shall not be thine heire, but one that shal come oute of thynne owne bodye shal be thynne heire. And he brought hym oute of the dozes, and sayed: loke vp vnto heuen and tell the * sterres if thou be able to number them. And sayd vnto hym: euen so shall thy seede be.

And Abraham * beleued the Lord, and it was counted to hym for ryghteousnes. And he sayd vnto hym: I am the Lord that brought the out of Ur in Caldea to gyue the thys lande to possesse it. And he sayd: Lord God, wherby shall I knowe that I shall possesse it? And he sayd vnto hym: Take a cowe of thre yere olde, and a she goate of thre yere olde, and a thre yere olde ram, a turtill doue and a yonge pygeon. And he toke all these and diuided them in the myddes, and layde euery pece one agaynst another. But the soules deuiled he not. And the birdes fel on the carcases, and Abram droue the awaye. And whē the sunne was downe ther fel a floume vpon Abram. And lo, feare and greate darcknesse came vpon hym.

And he sayde vnto Abram: knowe thys of a suretye, that thy * seede shall be a stranger in a lande not theyr, and they shall make bondemen of theym and entreate them euill. .iii. hundred yeres. But the nation whome they shal serue wyl I * iudge. And afterwarde shall they come out wyth greare substance. The. xli. Chapter.

Sarai giveth Abram leave to take Agar her mayde to wyfe. Agar despyled her maystres: for whych she was evill intrea-ted of Sarai, and therfore runneth away The aungell metynge her, commaundeth her to turne agayne and doth promise her seede, and nameth her fyrst child Ismael.

Sarai Abrahams wyfe bare hym no childre But she had an handmayde an Egypt-cia, whose name was Agar. Wherfore she said vnto Abraham: Beholde, the Lord hath shut me by that I can not bear. I pray the go in vnto my mayde, peradventure I shall bee multiplyed by meanes of her.
And Abram hearde the voyce of Sarai.

Then Sarai Abrahams wyfe toke Agar her mayde the Egyptian (after Abram had dwelled. x. yere in the lande of Canaan) & gaue her to her husband Abrahā to be his wyfe And he wet in vnto Agar, & she conceiued.

And when she sawe that she had conceiued her maystres was despyled in her syghte.

Then sayd Sarai vnto Abram: Thou dost me vntyghe, for I haue gyuen my mayde into thy bosom: & now because she seeth the hath conceiued I am despyled in her syght: y lord iudge betwene the & me. Then sayd Abrahā to Sarai: beholde, thy mayde is in thy hande, do wyth her as it pleaseth y.

And because Sarai feared foule with her she fled from her. And the Aungell of y Lord founde her, besyde a fountayne of water in the wyldernes: euen by a well in the waye to Sur. And he sayde: Agar Sarais mayde, whence comest thou, & whither wyle thou go? And she answered: I fle from my may-stres Sarai. And the angel of the Lord sayed vnto her: retorne to thy maistres againe and submit thy selfe vnder her handes.

And the angelle of the Lorde sayde vnto her: I wyll so encrease thy seede, that it shal not be numbred for multitude. And the Lordes aungell sayd further vnto her: se, thou art wyth chylde, and shalt bere a son, and shalt calle hys name Ismaell, by-cause the Lord hath herde thy tribulaciō.

He wil be a wild mā, & his hande wil be against every man, and every mans hand against him, and yet shall he dwell fast by all his brethren. And she called the name of the lord that spake vnto her: thou art the god that lokest on me, for she said: I haue of a suerty sene here the backe partes of hym that seeth me, wherfore she called the wel, the well of the lyuing that seeth me, which wel is betwene Cades & Bared. And Agar bare Abram a son, & Abrahā called hys sones

And they answered: do as thou hast saied. And Abraham wente apace into hys tent vnto Sara and sayd: Make redye at once thre pecks of fyne mele, knede it and make cakes. And Abraham ranne vnto hys beastes and fet a calfe that was tendre and good, and gaue it vnto a yong man, whych made it readye at once. And he toke butter and mylke & the calfe whiche he had prepared, and sette it before them, and stode hym selfe by them vnder the tree: and * they eat. Cob. xli. b.

And they sayd vnto him: where is Sara thy wife? He sayd: in the tent. And he said: I will come agayne vnto the as sone as the fruite can liue. And lo, Sara thy wyfe Hall haue a sonne. That hearde Sara out of the tent doze, which was behind his backe. Abraham and Sara were both olde and well stryken in age, and it ceased to be with Sara after the maner as it is with wyues. And Sara laughed in hyr selfe, sayinge: Howe when I am waxed olde, Hall I gyue my selfe to * lust, and my lord olde also? Then sayd the Lorde vnto Abraham: wherefore doth Sara laugh, sayinge: Hal I of a suerty beare a chylde now when I am olde? is the thing to hard for the lord to do? In the tyme * appointed will I retorne vnto the, Eccl. xlv. d.

it, sayinge: I laughed not, for I was a-frayd. But he sayd: yest thou diddest laugh.
Then the menne stode by from thence and looked toward Sodome. And Abraham went with them to bryng them on the way. And the Lorde sayd: Can I hide from Abraham that thing which I am about to do, seynge that Abraham Hall be a * great and a migh- Eccl. xliii. a Hall be blessed in hym? For I knowe hym that he will commaunde his chylzen and his housholde after him, that they kepe the wape of the lorde, to doo after ryghte and conscience, that the Lorde maye bryng vpon Abraham, that he hath promysed hym.

And the Lorde sayd: The crye of So-dome and Gomorre is greete, and theyr synne is excedynge greuous. I will goo downe and see whether they haue done all together accordynge to that crye whych is come vnto me or not, that I maye knowe. Eccl. xli. a.
And the menne departed thence and went Jona. i. a. towards Sodome. But Abraham stode yet before the Lorde, and drewe nere and sayd: Wylt thou destroye the rightuous with the wycked?

If ther be fyfthe ryghtuous wythin the cptye, wilt thou destroye it, and not spare the place for the sake of fyfthe ryghtuous that are therein? What be farre from the,
and thou shouldest do after thys maner, to slepe the ryghteous with the wycked, and that the rightuous shoulde be as the wyc-ked, that be farre from the. Should not the iudge of all the worlde do accordynge to ryght? And the Lorde sayd: If I fynde in Sodome fyfthe ryghtuous wythin the cptye, I wyl spare all the place for theyr sakes.

And Abraham answered and sayd: be-holde, I haue taken vpon me to speake vnto the Lorde, and yet am but * duste and a- Gene. xli. b. shes. What thoughte there lacke fyue of fyfthe ryghtuous, wylt thou destroye all the cptye for lacke of .v. And he sayd: If I find ther .xl. & .v. I wil not destroy the. And he spake vnto him yet agayne & saied: what if there be fourty found ther? And he said: I wyl not do it for fourties sake. And he said: O let not my Lorde be angry, that I speake. What if there be founde thyrty? And he said: I wyl not do it, if I find thyrty there. And he said: Wh, se: I haue begon to speake vnto my Lorde, what if there be twenty founde there? And he sayd: I wyl not destroe them for twentys sake. And he sayd: O let not my Lorde be angry that I speake yet ones more onely: what if ten be founde there? And he said: I will not destroe them for tens sake. And the Lord wente his waie, as sone as he had left tal- kyng with Abraham. And Abraham retur- ned vnto his place.

The. xix. Chapter.

Lot receyued two aungels in to his house. The fylthye lustes of the Sodomites. Lot is deliuered and despyeth to dwell in the cy- tye zoar. Lottes wyfe is turned in to a pyller of salte. Sodome is destroyed. Lot is bron- ken, and lyeth with his daughters, whiche conceived chyldren by hym.

AND there came two angelles to So- dome at euen. And Lotte late at the gate of the ctye. And Lotte sawe them, and rose vp to meete them, and he bowed him selfe to the grounde wpyth hys face. And he said: See lordes, turne in I praye pou in to pour seruants house, and tarpe all nyghte and washe poure fete, and rise vp early and goo on poure wapes. And they said: nape, but wee will abide in the stretes all nyghte. And he compelled them exceedingly. And they turned in vnto hym and entred into his house, and he made the a feaste, and dydde bake swete cakes, and they ate. But before they wente to rest, the men of the citie of Sodome compassed the house rounde aboute, bothe olde and pong, all the people from all quarters. And they called vnto Lotte and said vnto him: where are the menne which came into thy house to (a) nyghte? bringe them oute vnto vs, that we may do our lust with them.

And Lotte wente oute at the doores vnto them, and shut the doze after him and said: nape for Goddes sake brythren, do not so wickedly. Beholde I haue two daughters whiche haue knowen no man, them will I bringe oute vnto you: doo with them as it semeth pou good: Only vnto these men do nothing, for therfore came they vnder the shadowe of my rofe. And they said: come hither. And they said: Camest thou not hi- ther to sojourne, and wilt thou be now a iudge? we will surely deale worse with the than with them.

And as they pleased sore vpon Lot, and beganne to breake vp the doze, the menne put forth their handes, and pulled Lot in to the house to them, and put to the dooze. And they smote the menne that wer at the dooze of the house with blyndnesse bothe smal and great: so that they could not find the doze. And the men said moreouer vnto Lotte: If thou haue yet here any sonne in lawe, or sonnes or daughters, or whatsoe- uer thou haste in the ctye, bringe oute of this place, bicause the crye of them is great * before the Lorde, which hath sente vs to destroe it.

Ge. xlii. c.

And Lot went oute and spake vnto hys sonnes in lawe, whiche should haue mar- yed his daughters, and said: stande vp and get pou out of this place, for the Lorde wil destroe the citie. But he semed as though he hadde mocked vnto his sonnes in lawe. And as the morninge arose, the aungelles caused Lot to speke him, sayinge: Stande vp, take thy wife and thy two daughters, and that that is at hande, lest thou perishe in the (b) sinne of the citie. And as he pro- longed the time, the men caught both him, hys wyfe, and his two daughters by the han- des, bicause the Lorde was mercifull vnto him, and they brought him forth, and sette him withoute the ctye. When they hadde broughte them oute, they sayed: Saue thy lyfe, and loke not behinde the, neither ta- rpe thou in anye place of the countrey, but saue thy selfe in the mountayne, lest thou perishe. Then said Lot vnto them: Oh nay my Lorde: beholde, forasmuch as thy ser- uant hath founde grace in thy sight, now make thy mercy great, which thou shewest vnto me, in sauyng my life. For I can not saue my selfe in the mountaines, lest some misfortune fall vpon me and I dye. Be- holde, here is a ctye by, to flie vnto, and it is a litle one, let me saue my selfe therein: is it not a litle one, that my soule may lyue? And he said to hym: see, I haue receyued thy request, concernyng thys thyng, I wil not ouerthrowe thys citie for whiche thou haste spoken. Haste the, and saue thy selfe there, for I can do nothinge, till thou be- come thyrther. And therefore the name of the ctye is called zoar. And the sunne was vpon the earthe when Lotte was entred in to zoar.

(b) The syn is taken for the sinner, as malice is for wicked and pygh- teousnes for rightuous. As Paul to Titus. i. c.

Then the Lorde rayned vpon Sodome and Gomorra, brimstone and fyre from the Lorde out of heauen, and ouerthrew those ctyes and all the region, and al that dwel- led in the cities, and that that grewe vpon the earth. And Lottes wyfe looked behynde hym, and was touned into a pyller of salte. Abraham rose vp early, and got hym to the place, where he stode before the Lorde, and looked towarde Sodome and Gomorre, and towarde all the land of that countrey. And as he looked: beholde the smoke of the countrey arose, as it had ben the smoke of a fornace. But yet when God destroyed the ctyes of the region, he thoughte vpon Abraham: and sent Lot out fro the daun- ger of the ouerthrowinge, when he ouer- threw the cities where Lot dwelled.

Eccl. xlii. d. Jer. l. f. Ezech. xvi. f.

And Lotte departed oute of zoar and dwelled in the mountaynes, and hys two daughters with him, for he feared to tarpe in zoar: he dwelled therfore in a caue, both he and he and his two daughters also.

When said the elder vnto the younger: our father is olde, and there are no mo men in the earth to come in vnto vs after the maner of all the worlde. Come therfore let vs giue our father wine to drynke, and let vs lye wpyth hym, that wee maye saue sede of oure father. And they gaue theyr father wyne to drynke that same nighte. And the elder daughter wente and laye with hir father. And he perceiued it not, neither when she laye doune, neyther when she rose vp.

And on the morowe the elder sayed vnto the younger: Behold, yesternight lay I with my father. Let vs giue him wine to drynke this nyght also, and go thou and lye with him, and lette vs saue sede of oure father. And they gaue their father wine to drynke that night also. And the younger arose and laye with him. And he perceiued it not: neither when she laye doune, neyther when she rose vp. Thus were both the daughters of Lot with chyldre by theyr father. And the elder bare a sonne, and called him Moab, whych is the father of the Moabites vnto this dape. And the younger bare a sonne, and called him Ben Ammi, whych is the father of the chyldren of Ammon vnto this dape.

The xx. Chapter.

Abraham went as a straunger into the lande of Gerar. The kynge of Gerar taketh away his wyfe.

AND Abraham departed thence towarde the south countrey and dwelled betwene Lades and Sur, and so iourned in Gerar. And Abraham sayed of Sara his wyfe, that she was his sister. Then Abimelech king of Gerar sente and fet Sara awaye.

Gene. xii. c. and. xxi. b

Abimelech is threathened for Saras sake.

And God came to Abimelech by nyghte in a dreame, and sayed to him: See, thou arte but a dead man for the womans sake, whiche thou hast taken awaye, for she is a mannes wife. But Abimelech had not yet come npe hir, and therfore sayed: Lorde, wilt thou slepe ryghtuous people? sayed not he vnto me, that she was his sister? yea, and sayed not she hir selfe, that he was hyr brother? wpyth a pure herte and innocent handes haue I done this. And God sayde vnto him in a dreame. I wote it well, that thou dyddest it in the purenesse of thy hert. And therfore I kepte thee, that thou shouldest not synne agaynst me, neither suffered I thee to come nigh hir. Now therfore delpue to the man hyr wyfe agayne, for he is a prophete. And lette hym praye for thee that thou mayest lye. But if thou delpue hyr not agayne, bee sure that thou shalt dye the death, wpyth all that thou haste.

When Abimelech rose vp by tymes in the mornynge, and called all his seruauntes, and tolde all these thynges in theyr eares, and the menne were sore afrapde. And Abimelech called Abraham, and sayd vnto hym: what haste thou done vnto vs, and what haue I offended thee, that thou shouldest bypunge on me and on my kyngdome so great a synne? thou haste done dedes vnto me, that oughte not to be done. And Abimelech sayed mozeouer vnto Abraham: what sawest thou that moued thee to do this thinge?

And Abraham answered: I thought that peradventure the feare of God was not in this place, and that they shoulde slepe me for my wyfes sake: yet in verpe deede she is my syster, the daughter of my father, but not of my mother: and became my wyfe. And after god caused me to wandre oute of my fathers house, I sayed vnto hyr: This kyndnes shalt thou shewe vnto me in all places where wee come, that thou saye of me, that I am thy brother.

Then toke Abimelech shepe and oxen, menne seruauntes, and womenne seruauntes, and gaue them vnto Abraham, and delpued hym Sara his wyfe again. And Abimelech sayed: beholde the lande lyeth before thee, dwelle where it pleaseth the beste. And vnto Sara he sayed: See, I haue gyuen thy brother a thousande peces of syluer, beholde this thyng shall be a couerynge to thyne eyes, and vnto all that are wpyth thee, and vnto all mine an excuse.

* The fear of God among the heathenes is principally taken for the honoz and sayth he we owe vnto God, & that with such a loue as the chyldre hath to his father.

And so Abraham praied vnto God, and God healed Abimelech and his wyfe and his maidens, so that they bare chyldren. For the Lorde had closed to all the matryces of the house of Abimelech, because of Sara Abrahams wife.

The xxi. Chapter.

Isaac is borne. Agar is caste out wpyth hyr yonge sonne Imael. The atynge comforyeth Agar. The couenaunt betwene Abimelech and Abraham.

THE Lorde visited Sara as he hadde sayed, and dyd vnto hir accordynge as he hadde promysed. And Sara was with chyldre, and bare Abraham a sonne in his olde age, even the same season whiche the Lorde had appointed.

And Abraham called his sonnes name that was borne vnto him, whych Sara bare him Isaac, and Abraham circumcysed Isaac his sonne when he was epyghte dayes olde, as God commaunded hym. And Abraham was an hundred yere olde, when his son Isaac was borne vnto him. And Sara sayed: God hath made me a laughing stock: for all that hear, wil laugh at me. She sayed also: who woulde haue sayed vnto Abraham, that Sara shoulde haue gyuen chyldren sucke, or that I shuld haue borne him a sonne in his olde age? The childe grewe, and was weaned, and Abraham made a greate feast the same day that Isaac was weaned. Sara sawe the sonne of Agar the Egypcean, whych she had borne vnto Abraham a mocking.

f. ii. Then

Then he sayed vnto Abraham: putte a waie thyse bondmayde and her sonne: for the sonne of this bondwomanne shall not be heire wth my sonne Isaac: But the wordes semed verie greuous in Abrahams syghte, because of hys sonne. Then the Lorde sayed vnto Abraham: lette it not be greuous vnto the, because of the chyldre and of thy bondmayde: But in all that Sara hath sayed vnto the, heare hys voyce, for in Isaac shall thy seide be called. Moreover of the sonne of the bondwomanne will I make a nacyon, because he is thy seide.

And Abraham rose vp early in the morning, and toke breade and a bottell wth water, and gaue it vnto Hagar, putting it on hys shoulders wth the chyldre also, and sente hys away. And he departed and wandred vp and doune in the wilderness of Berseba. When the water was spent that was in the bottell, he caste the chyldre vnder a bushe, and went and sate hys out of sighte a great waie, as it were a bowshote of: for he sayed: I wyl not se the chyldre dye. And he sate doune oute of sighte, and lyfte vp hys voyce and wepte.

And God hearde the voyce of the chyldre. And the aungell of God called Hagar from aboue, and sayed vnto hir: what ayleth the Hagar? feare not, for God hath hearde the voyce of the chyldre where he lyeth. Arise and lifte vp the chyldre, and take him in thy hande, for I will make of hym a great people. And God opened hys eyes, and he sawe a well of water. And he wente and fylled the bottell wth water, and gaue the boie drinke. And God was with the ladde, and he grewe and dwelte in the wilderness, and became an archer. And he dwelt in the wilderness of Sharan. And his mother gotte him a wife out of the lande of Egypte.

And it chaunced the same season, that Abimelech and Phicol his chiefe captayne spake vnto Abraham, sayinge: * God is with the in all that thou doest. Now therefore sweare vnto me euen here by God, that thou wilt not hurte me nor my chyldren, nor my chyldrens chyldren. But that thou shalt deale with mee, and the counstrepe where thou arte a straunger, accordinge vnto the kyndenesse that I haue shewed the. Then sayed Abraham: I wyl sweare.

And Abraham rebuked Abimelech for a well of water, whiche Abimelech had taken away. And Abimelech answered, I wylle not who dydde it: also thou toldest me not, neyther hearde I of it afore this daie. And Abraham toke shepe and oxen, and gaue them vnto Abimelech. And they made of them a bonde together. And Abraham set seven lambes by them selues. And Abimelech sayed vnto Abraham: what meane these seven lambes, whiche thou hast sette by them selues. And he answered: seven lambes shalt thou take of my hande, that it maye be a witness vnto me, that I haue dygged thys well: Wherefore the place is called Berseba, because they sware both of them.

Thus made they a bond together at Berseba. Then Abimelech and Phicol his chief captayne rose vp and turned againe vnto the lande of the Philistines. And Abraham planted a woode in Berseba, and called there on the name of the Lorde, the euerylastyng God: and dwelt in the Philistines lande a longe season.

The xxii. Chapter.

The sayeth of Abraham is proued in offeringe hys sonne Isaac. Chylike our saupoure is proued. The generayon of Nachor Abrahams brother.

After these dedes, God dyd proue Abraham and sayed vnto hym: Abraham. And he answered: here am I. And he sayed: take thy onely sonne Isaac whom thou louest, and gette the vnto the lande Mozia, and sacrifice hym there for a sacrifice vpon one of the mountaynes whiche I wyl shewe the. Then Abraham rose vp early in the morning and saddled hys asse, and toke two of hys meyn wth him, and Isaac hys sonne: and cloued wood for the sacrifice, and rose vp and got hym to the place whiche God hadde appointed him.

The thyrde daie Abraham lyfte vp hys eyes, and sawe the place a farre of, and said vnto his yonge manne: byde here wth the asse. I and the lad wyl go ponder and worshipp and come agayne vnto pou. And Abraham toke the woode of the sacrifice, and laid it vpon Isaac hys sonne, and toke fire in his hande and a knyfe. And they wente both of them together.

Then spake Isaac vnto Abraham his father and sayed: My father? And he answered, here I am my sonne. And he sayd: See here is fyre and wodde, but where is the shepe for sacrifice? And Abraham said: my sonne, God wyl proude hym a shepe for sacrifice. So went they both together.

And when they came vnto the place, whiche God shewed hym, Abraham made an altare there, and dressed the woode, and bounde Isaac hys sonne, and layed hym on the altare, aboue vpon the woodde.

And Abraham stretched forth hys hande, and tooke the knyfe to haue kyled hys sonne. When the aungell of the Lorde called vnto hym from heauen, sayinge: Abraham, Abraham? And he answered: here am I. And he sayde: lay not thy handes vpon the chyldre, neyther do anye thyng at al vnto him, for now I know that thou fearest God, in that thou haste not spared thyn onely sonne for my sake.

And Abraham lyfte vp hys eyes and looked aboute: and beholde, there was a ram caught caught by the horns in the briers. And he went and took the ram and offered hym up for a sacrifice in the steade of hys sonne. And Abraham called the name of the place: the Lord wil se: wherfore it is a comen sayinge thys daye: in the mount will the lord be sene.

D And the aungell of the Lord cryed vnto Abraham from heauen the seconde tyme, sayinge: by my selfe haue I sworn (sayeth the Lord) because thou haste done this thyng, and haste not spared thy only sonne, that I will blesse the, and multiplye thy seede as the starrs of heauen, and as the sande vpon the sea syde. And thy seede shall possesse the gates of hys enemies. And in thy seede shall all the nations of the earth bee blessed, because thou hast obeyed my voice. So turned Abraham agayne vnto his yonge menne, and they rose vp and went together to Bersaba. And Abraham dwelt at Bersaba.

And it chaunced after these thynges, that one tolde Abraham, saying: Beholde Milca, she hath also borne chyldren vnto thy brother Nachor: Bus hys eldest sonne, and Bus hys brother, and Remuel the father of the Syrians, and Cesed, and Baso, and Isydas, and Jedlaph, and Bethuel. And Bethuel begatte Rebecca. These. viii. dydde Milca beare to Nachor Abrahams brother. And hys concubynne called Rheuma she bare also Tebah, Baham, Thaaas, and Maacha.

The. xlii. Chapter.

Sara dyeth, and is buried in the fyerde that Abraham boughte of Ephron the Hethite.

Sara was an hundred and seven & twenty yere olde (for so long lyued she) and than dyed in a heade ctyte, called Bethon in the lande of Canaan. Then Abraham came to mourne and bewaile Sara. And when Abraham stode vp from the funeralles, he talked with the sons of Beth, sayinge: I am a straunger and a forpner amonges you, geue me a possession to burie in with you, that I may bury my dead out of my sight. And the chyldren of Beth answered Abraham, sayinge vnto him: Heare vs Lord, thou arte a pryncce of B D D amonge vs.

In the chiefest of oure sepulchres burie thy deade: None of vs shall forbydde the hys sepulchre, that thou shouldest not burie thy deade therein. Abraham stode vp, and reuerently thancked the people of the lande the chyldren of Beth. And sayed vnto them: If it be poure myndes that I shal bury my dead oute of my syghte, heare me, and speake for me to Ephron the sonne of zoar: and let hym geue me the double caue which he hath in the ende of hys fiede, for so much money as it is worth, let him geue it me in the presence of you, for a possession to burie in. For Ephron dwelled amonge the chyldren of Beth.

Then Ephron the Hethite answered Abraham in the audyence of the chyldren of Beth, and of all that wente in at the gates of hys ctyte, sayinge: Not so my Lord, but heare me: The felde geue I the, and the caue that therein is geue I the also: and euen in the presence of the sonnes of my people geue I it the to bury thy dead in. Then Abraham bowed hymselfe before the people of the lande, and spake vnto Ephron in the audyence of the people of the countrepe, sayinge: I praye the heare me, I will geue syluer for the fiede, take it of me, and so wll I burye my deade ther.

Ephron answered Abraham, saying: My Lord hearken vnto me, The lande is worth foure hundred cycles of syluer: but what is that betwene the and me? bury thy dead.

And Abraham harkened vnto Ephron, and payde hym the syluer whych he hadde sayed in the audyence of the sons of Beth, that is to wytte, foure hundred syluer cycles of curraunt money amonge marchantes. Thus was Ephrons fiede wherin the double caue is before Mamre, aswell the fiede as the caue that is therein, and all the trees of the fiede, whych growe in all the borders rounde about, made sure vnto Abraham for a possession, in the syghte of the chyldren of Beth, and of all that wente in at the gates of the ctyte. And then Abraham buried Sara hys wyfe in the double caue of the fiede that lyeth before Mamre, otherwyse called Bethon in the lande of Canaan. And so bothe the fiede and the caue that is therein, was made Abrahams sure possession too burye in, of the sonnes of Beth.

The. xliii. Chapter.

Abraham maketh hys seruaunt to sweare, and sendeth hym to seeke a wyfe for Isaac hys sonne. The seruaunt was saythfull, and brought Rebecca, whych Isaac toke to hys wyfe.

Abraham was olde and stryken in age, and the Lord hadde blessed him in all thynges. And he sayde vnto his eldest seruaunte of hys house, whych had the rule ouer all that he had: (a) Butte thy hand vnder my thye, that I may make the sweare by the Lord, that is God of heauen and God of the earth, that thou shalte not take a wife vnto my sonne, of the daughters of the Cananytes, amonge whych I dwell. But shalt go vnto my countrey and to my kynrede, and there take a wyfe vnto my sonne Isaac.

Then said the seruaunte vnto hym: what if the woman wll not agree to come wth me vnto thys lande, shall I brynge thy sonne agayne vnto the lande, whych thou camest out of? And Abraham sayd vnto hym: beware of that, that thou brynge not my sonne thither.

The Lord God of heauen whych toke me from my fathers house, and fro the lande wher I was borne, and whiche spake vnto hams brother, & her pytcher vpon her shoulder. The damsell was very fayre to loken vpon, & mayde and vnknewen of man. And she went downe to the well, and fylled hys pytcher, and came vp agayne. Then the seruant ran vnto her and sayde: let me sup a litle water of thy pitcher. And she sayde: dryncke sy.

C And she hastened and late downe hys pitcher vpon hys arme, and gaue him dryncke. And when she had geuen hym dryncke, she sayde: I wpll drawe water for thy camels also, vntill they haue dronke inough. And she poured out hys pytcher into the trough haste-ly, and ranne agayne vnto the well, to fet water: and drew for all hys camelles. And the felowe woundred at her. But helde his peace, to wete whether the lord had made hys iourney prosperous oz not. And as the camels had left drynkyng, he toke a golden (b) eating of half a spyle weight, & two bracelets for hys hands, of .x. spyles weight of gold, and said vnto hys: Whose daughter art thou? tell me: is ther roume in thy fathers house for vs to lodge in? And she said vnto him: I am the daughter of Bethuel þ sonne of Milca, whiche she bare vnto Ra-hoz: and sayd mozeouer vnto him: we haue litter and prouender inough, & also roume to lodge in.

And the man bowed hym selfe, and worshipped (c) the Lord, & sayd: blessed be the Lord God of my mapster Abraham, which ceaseth not to deale mercifully and truly wyth my maister, and hath brought me the to geue thys waye to my maisters brothers house. And hec. the damsell ran and folde vnto theim of hir mothers house these thynge. And Rebecca had a brother called Laban.

And Laban ran out vnto the man, to the well: for as sone as he had sene the earringes and the braceletes vpon hys sisters handes, and hearde the wordes of Rebecca hys sister, sayinge: thus sayed the man vnto me, then he wente oute vnto the man.
 And lo, he stode yet with the camels by the well syde. And Laban sayde, come in thou blessed of the Lord. Wherefore standest thou without? I haue dressed vp the house, and made rowme for the camels. And then the man came into the house, and he vnbrydeled the camels: and broughte litter and prouender for the camels, & water to wash hys fete, & they fete that were wyth him, & there was meate set before hym to eate.

But he sayde: I will not eate, tyll I haue sayd my message. And he sayd: say on. And he said: I am Abrahams seruaunt, and the Lord hath (d) blessed my maister out of me-sure, so that he is become greate, and hath geuen him shepe, oxen, spluer and gold, me seruautes, mayde seruautes, camels and asses. And Sara my mapsters wyfe bare hym a sonne, when she was olde: to whom he hath giuen al that he hath. And my maister made me swear, saying: thou shalt not take a wyfe to my son, amonge the daughters of the Cananytes, in whose lande I dwell. But shalt goo to my fathers house & to my kynred, and there take a wyfe vnto my sonne. And I sayde vnto my maister: what if the wyfe will not folowe me? And he sayd vnto me: The Lord before whom I walke, wpll sende his angel with the, and prospere thy iourney, that thou shalt take a wyfe for my sonne, of my kynred and of my fathers house. But if (when thou commeste vnto my kynred) they wpll not geue the one, then shalt thou beare no perell of myne othe.

And I came thys dape vnto the well, and said: O Lord, the God of my mapster Abra-ha, if it be so that thou makest my iourney which I go, prosperous: behold I stand by thys well of water, and when a byrgin cometh forth to drawe water, and I sape to hys: geue me a litle water of thy pytcher to dryncke, and she sape agayne to me: dryncke thou, and I wpll also drawe water for thy camels: that same is the wyfe whiche the lord hath prepared for my maisters sonne.

And afore I had made an ende of speakyng in myne harte: behold Rebecca came forth, and hys pytcher on hys shulder, & she went downe to the well and drew. And I sayde vnto hys: geue me dryncke. And she made haste, and toke down hys pytcher fro hys shulders, and sayd: dryncke, and I wpll geue thy camels dryncke also. And I drake, and she gaue my camels dryncke also. And I asked hys sayinge: whose daughter arte thou?

And I bowed my selfe, and worshipped the Lorde, and blessed the lord God of my maister Abraham, whiche hadde broughte me the rpght way, to take my maisters brothers daughter vnto his sonne. Then answered Laban and Bethuel, saying: The thing is proceeded of the lord, we can not therefore saye vnto the, ept her good ozt badde: beholde Rebecca befoze thy face, take hyr and goo, and lette hyr be thy maisters sonnes wife, as the lord hath appointed. And when Abrahams seruaunte hearde theyr wordes, he bowed him to the lorde, flat vpon the earth. And the seruaunt toke forth iewels of siluer, and iewelless of golde and rayment, and gaue them to Rebecca: but vnto hyr brother and to hyr mother he gaue spces. And then they ate and dranke, both he and the men that were wth hym, and tarped all nyghte and rose vp in the mornynge.

And he said: let me depart vnto my maister. But hir brother and hir mother saied: lette the damsell abyde with vs a whyle, at the lest ten dayes, and then goth wapes. And he sayed vnto them: hinder me not, for the lord hath prospered my iourney. Sende me awape, that I maye goo to my maister. And they sayde: let vs call the damsel, and wpt what she sayeth to the matter. So they called forth Rebecca, and sayed vnto hyr: wilt thou go with thys man? And she said: yea.

And Isaac was commynge from the well of the * lpuinge and seynge, for he dwelt in the south countrepe, and was gone oute to walke in hys meditacions about the euen tide. And he lptt (h) vp his eies & looked, and beholde the camels were commynge. And Rebecca lift vp hir eies, and when she saw Isaac, she lighted downe of the camel, and sayd vnto the seruaunte: what man is this that commeth against vs in the felde? And the seruaunt sayd: it is my maister. The he toke hir mantell, and put it about hir. And the seruaunt tolde Isaac all that he hadde done. Then Isaac brought hir into his mother Saras tente, and toke Rebecca, & she became hys wyfe, and he loued hir: and so was Isaac comforted ouer hys mother.

Abraham toke hym another wife called Retura, which bare hym Simra, Jecklan, Medan, Midian, Jethback Suah. And Jecklan begat Seba and Dedan. And the sonnes of Medan were Assurim, Letusim and Leumim. And the sons of Midian were Ephra, Ephra, Danoch, Abida, and Elda. All these were the chyldren of Retura. But Abraham gaue all that he had, vnto Isaac. And vnto the sons of hys concubynes he gaue gyftes, and sent them awape from Isaac hys sonne (while he yet liued) eastward, vnto the east countrepe.

These are the dayes of the lyfe of Abraham whiche he lyued: C. & lxxv. yere, and then fell speke and dyed, in a * lustye age, (whē he had lyued ynough) and was put vnto hys people. And hys sons Isaac and Ismaell burped hym in the double caue in the felde of Ephron sonne of zoar the Hethyte befoze Mamre, whych felde Abraham bought of the sonnes of Beth: There was Abraham burped and Sara hys wyfe. And after the death of Abraham, God blessed Isaac hys son, whych dwelled by the well of the lpuynge and seynge.

The. xxi. Chapter.

The iorneye of Isaac toward Abimelech.
The promys made to Isaac and hys sede. Isaac is rebuked of Abimelech for callynge hys wyfe syster. The chydynge of the shepe-hardes for the welles. Isaac is comforted.
The leage betwene Abimelech and Isaac.

And ther fell a derth in the land, passinge the firste derth that fell in the dayes of Abraham. Wherefore Isaac went to Abimelech kyng of the philisty-ans vnto Gerar. Then the Lorde appeared vnto him, and sayd: So not doune into Egipt, but abide in the land which I bid the:
for I am in that lande, and I will be with the, and wil blesse the: for to thy sede I wil geue all these countreies. And I wil per-forme the othe which I made to Abraham thy father, and will multiplie thy sede as the starres of heauen, and will geue to thy sede all these countreies. And thow the thy sede shall all the nacpons of the earth be blessed, because that Abraham harkeneth vnto my voice, and kepte myne ordynaunces, commaundementes, statutes & lawes.

And Isaac dwelled in Gerar. And the men of the place asked him of his wyfe, and he saied that she was hys *sister: for he feared to call her his wyfe, lest the men of the place should haue kyled him for hyr sake, because she was beautifull to the eie. And it happened after he had bene there longe tyme, that Abimelech kyng of the philistians looked out of a windowe, and saw Isaac sportyng with Rebecca his wyfe. And Abimelech sente for Isaac and said: se, she is of a suerty thy wyfe, & why saydest thou, that she was thy sister? And Isaac said vnto him: I thought that I might peraduen-ture haue died for hir sake. Then said Abimelech: Why hast thou done this vnto vs?

one of the people mighte lightly haue lyen by thy wyfe, and so shouldest thou haue broughte sinne vpon vs. Then Abimelech charged all his people, saying: he that toucheth thys mannes wyfe, shall vndoubtedly dye for it.

And Isaac sowed in that lande, & found in that same peare an. C. folde as much: for the Lorde blessed him, and the man waxed myghty, and went forth and grewe. tll he was excedyng great, that he had possession of sheepe, of oxen, and a myghty house-holde, so that the philistians had spyte at hym: in so much that they stopped and fylled vp wpth earth all the welles whych his fathers seruauntes dygged in hys father Abrahams tyme. Then saied Abimelech vnto Isaac: gette the from me, for thou arte myghty per then we a great deale. Then Isaac departed thence, & pytched hys tente in the valey Berar, and dwelte there. And Isaac dygged agayne the welles of water whiche they digged in the dayes of Abrahā his father, which the philistians had stopped after the death of Abraham, and gaue them the same names whych hys father gaue them. As Isaacs seruauntes digged in the valey, they founde a well of lypynge water. And the herdmen of Berar did strue with Isaacs herdmen, sayinge: the water is ours. Then called he the well Essek, because they stroue with him.

Then they dygged another well, & they stroue for that also. Therefore called he it Sirena. And then he departed thence, and dygged another wel, for which they stroue not: therfore called he it Rehoboth, sayinge: the Lord hath nowe made vs rouse, and wee are (a) encreased vpon the earth.
Afterwarde departed he thence, and came to Berseba. And the Lorde appeared vnto hym the same night, and sayde: I am the God of Abraham thy father, feare not, for I am with the, and wil blesse the, and multiplie thy sede for my seruaunt Abrahams sake. And then he builded an aultare there, and called vpon the name of the Lord, and there pitched his tente. And there Isaacs seruauntes dygged a well.

Then came Abimelech to him from Be-rar and Ahusath his frend, and Philcol his chiefe captayne. And Isaac sayd vnto the:
wherefore come ye to me, sayng ye hate me, and haue putte me awaye from you? Then sayde they: we sawe that the *Lorde was with the, and therfore we sayed, that there shoulde be an oth betwene vs and the, and that we would make a bond with the, that thou shouldest do vs no hurte, as we haue

The xxvii. Chapter.

Isaac receiveth the blessing from Esau by hys mothers counsel. Isaac is sad. Esau is co-forted. The hatred of Esau toward Jacob.

And it came to passe that Isaac was ed old and his eyes were dym, so that he coulde not see. Then called he Essau hys eldest sonne and sayde to hym: my sonne. And he answered hym, here I am.
And he sayde: behold, I am old, and know not the daye of my death: nowe therefore take thy artillery, and the quiver and thy bowe, and gette thee to the felde, and kyll me some venison, and dresse me meate such as thou louest, and brynge it me, and let me eat that my soule maye (a) blesse thee afoze I dye. And Rebecca herd when Isaac spake to Esau hys sonne. And as soone as Esau was gone to the felde to hunt venison, and too brynge it, she spake vnto Jacob her sonne, sayinge: Beholde I haue herde thy father talkynge wth Esau thy brother and sayinge: brynge me venison and dresse me meate that I maye eate and blesse thee before thee Lozde, &c. I dye.
Nowe therfore my sonne heare my voyce in the whych I commaunde thee: get thee to the floocke, and brynge me thence two good kyddes, and I will make meate of them for thy father, such as he loueth.
And thou shalt brynge it to thy father, and he shall eate, and blesse thee before hys death.

Then sayde Jacob to Rebecca hys mother: beholde Esau my brother is rough, & I am smoth. My father shall paraventure fele me, & I shall seme vnto hym as though I wente aboute to beggelye hym, and so shal he brynge a curse vpon me, for a blessing: and his mother sayde vnto hym: Upon me

(b) be the curse my sonne, onelye heare my voyce, and go and fetch me them. And Jacob wente and fet them, and broughte the to hys mother. And his mother made meate of them, accordynge as hys father loued.
And he wente and sette goodly raymente that was her eldest son Esaus, whych he had in the house wth her, & put them vpon Jacob her yonger son, & she put the skyn-nes vpon hys handes & vpon the smoth of his necke. And he put the meate and bread whych he hadde made, in the hande of her sonne Jacob.

And he wente in to hys father, sayinge: my father. And he answered: here am I. who art thou my son? And Jacob sayd vnto hys father: I am Esau thy eldest son, I haue done as thou baddest me: arylse, sit vp & eate of my venison, that thy soule maye blesse me. But Isaac sayd vnto his sonne: how commeth it that thou hast found it so quyckly, my son? He answered: The Lozde thy God brought it to my hand. Then said Isaac vnto Jacob: come nere, & let me fele thee, my son, whether thou be my son Esau or not. Then went Jacob to Isaac hys father, & he felt him and sayd: the voice is Jacobs voice, but the hands are y hands of Essau. And he knewe him not, because his hades were rough as hys brother Esaus hades: and so he blessed hym.

And he asked him: art thou my son Esau?
And he sayd: I am. Then sayde he: brynge forth, & let me eat of my sons venison, that my soule maye blesse thee. And he broughte him, and he eat. He brought him wine also, and he dracke. And his father Isaac said vnto him: come nere & kisse me my son. And he went vnto him & kissed him. And he smelled the sauour of his rayment, & * blessed him, and sayde: Se, the smel of my son is as the smel of a felde which the Lozde hath blessed.
God geue thee of the (c) dewe of heauen, and of the fatnesse of the earth, and plenty of (d) corne & wine. People be thy seruauntes, & nations bowe vnto thee. Be the Lozde ouer thy brethren, and thy mothers children stoupe vnto thee. Cursed be he that curseth thee, and blessed be he that blesseth thee.

As soone as Isaac had made an ende of blessing, Jacob was scarce gon out fro the presence of Isaac his father, but Esau his brother was come from huntynge, and had made also meate, and brought it vnto hys father, & sayde vnto hym: Arylse my father and eate of thy sonnes venison, that thy soule may blesse me. Then hys father Isaac sayde vnto hym: who arte thou? he aun-swered: I am thy eldest sonne Esau. And Isaac was astonied out of measure, & said: Where is he then that hath hunted venison and broughte it me, and I haue eaten of al before thou camest, and haue blessed hym, & he shal be blessed still. When Esau herde the words of hys father, he cryed out greatly and bytterlye aboue measure, and sayde to hys father: blesse me also my father.

And he sayde: thy brother came wth sub-teltie, and hath taken awaye thy blessing.
Then sayde he: He may well be called Jacob, for he hath vndermynded me nowe two tymes, fyrst he toke awaye my heritage: & se nowe hath he taken awaye my blessing also. And he sayde: hast thou kepte neuer a blessynge for me?

Isaac answered, and sayde vnto Esau: beholde I haue made hym thy Lozde, and al hys mothers chyliden haue I made hys seruauntes. Moreover, wythe corne and wyne haue I stablyshed hym; what can I do vnto the nowe my son? And Esau sayd vnto his father: hast thou but that one blessing my father? blesse me also my father.

*Heb. xlii. c. Jacob is al so blessed of his father.

So lpyt up Esau hys voyce and wepte. Then Isaac hys father answered and sayde vnto hym: beholde thy dwelling place shall haue of the fatnes of the earth and of the dewe of heauen from aboue. And wyth thy swerde shalt thou lyue, and shalt be thy brothers seruaunte. But the tyme wyl come, when thou shalt get the may stripe, and lowse hys pocke from thy necke.

And Esau hated Jacob, because of the blessing wyth whiche hys father blessed hym, and sayed in hys herte: The dayes of my fathers sorowe are at hande, for I wyl slep my brother Jacob. And these wordes of Esau her eldest sonne were tolde to Rebecca. And she sente and called Jacob her yongest sonne, and sayde vnto hym: beholde thy brother Esau threateneth to kyll the, nowtherfore my son heare my voyce, make the redye, and flee to Laban my brother at Haran, and tarp wyth hym a while, till thy brothers fearcenesse be aswaged, and till thy brothers wrath tourne awaye from the, and he forget that whiche thou hast done to hym. When wyl I sende and fet the awaye from thence. Why shouldest thou lose pou boeth in one daye? And Rebecca spake to Isaac: I am werpe of my lyfe, for feare of the daughters of Beth. If Jacob take a wyfe of the daughters of Beth such one as these are, or of þ daughters of the land, what luste shouldest thou haue to lyue?

The xxviii. Chapter.

Jacob is sente into Mesopotamia, to Laban for a wyfe. Esau marieth an Ismaelite. Jacob dreameth a dreame. Christe is promysed. Jacob maketh a vowe.

Jacob is blessed.

Then Isaac called Jacob hys sonne, and blessed hym, and charged hym, saying, se thou take not a wyfe of the daughters of Canaan, but aryse and gette the to Mesopotamia to the house of Bethuell thy mothers father: and there take the a wyfe of the daughters of Laban thy vnckle. And god almighty bles the, increase the, and multiplie the that thou mayste be a nūbre of people, & geue the the blessing of Abraham: boeth to the and to thy seede wyth the, that thou mayst possesse the land (wherein thou arte a straunger) whiche God gaue vnto Abraham. Thus Isaac set forth Jacob to go to Mesopotamia vnto Laban, sonne of Bethuel the Spuen, and brother to Rebecca Jacobs and Esaus mother.

When Esau sawe that Isaac had blessed Jacob, and sente hym to Mesopotamia to fet hym a wyfe thence, & that as he blessed hym, he gaue him a charge, saying: se thou take not a wyfe of þ Daughters of Canaan: and that Jacob had obeyed hys father and mother, and was gone to Mesopotamia: and seing also that the daughters of Canaan pleased not Isaac hys father, then wente he vnto Ismaell, and toke vnto the wyues whiche he had, Bahala the daughter of Ismaell Abrahams sonne, the Syster of Rabaiothe to be hys wyfe. Jacob departed from Berseba, and wente toward Haran, and came vnto a place, and tarped there all nyght, because the sonne was downe. And toke a stone of the place, and put it vnder hys heade, and layd hym downe in the same place to slepe. And he dreamed: and beholde there stood a ladder vpon the pearth, and the top of it reached vp to heauen. And see, the aungels of God wente vp and downe vpon it, pea and the Lord stode vpon it, and sayd.

Esau marieth an Ismaelite.

Jacob dreameth.

i. Pa. xviii. e.

I am the Lord God of Abraham, thy father, and the God of Isaac: The lande on whiche thou sleepest wyl I geue the and thy seede. And thy seede shall be as the duste of the earth: and thou shalt spreade abroad: weste, east, northe, and south. And thoro we the and thy seede, shall all the kyndes of the earth be blessed. And see I am wyth the, and wyl be thy keper in all places whither thou goest, and wyl brynge the a gayne into thys lande: neither wyl I leaue the till I haue performed all that I haue promysed the.

When Jacob was awaked out of hys slepe he sayde: surely the lord is in thys place, and I wyl not. And he was a frayde and sayd: howe fearefull is this place: it is none other but euē the house of god, and the gate of heuē. And Jacob stode vp early in the mornynge and toke the stone that he had layd vnder hys head, and pitched it vp an ende, & poured oyle on the top of it. And he called the name of the place Bethel, for the name of the cite was called Lus, before tyme. And Jacob bowed a vowe, saying: If god wyl be wyth me, and wyl kepe me in this iorney which I go, and wil geue me bread to eate, and clothes to put on, soo that I come agayn vnto my fathers house in safety: then shall the lord be my God, and thys stone, whiche I haue sette vp an ende, shall be Goddes house, and of all that thou shalt geue me, wyl I geue the tythes vnto the.

Then Jacob lyfte vp hys feete, and wente toward the Ek countrei. And as he loked aboute, beholde ther was a well in the felde, and thre flockes of shepe laye there by (for at that well were þ flockes watered) and ther lay a great stone at the well mouth. And the manner was to brynge byng the flockes thither, and roule the stone from the welles mouth, and to water the shepe, and to put the stone agayn vpon the welles mouth vnto his place. And Jacob saied vnto them: Wherfore whence be ye? And they saied, of Haran are we. And he saied vnto them: knowe ye Laban the son of Nahor? And they saied: we knowe him. And he saied vnto them: is he in good helth? And they saied: he is in good helth, and be- holde, his daughter Rachel cometh with the shepe. And he saied: lo, it is yet a greete while to nighte, neither is it tyme that the cattell should be gathered together, water the shepe, and go and fede them. And they sayed: we maye not, till all the flockes be broughte togyther, and the stone be rouled from the welles mouth, and so wee water our shepe.

Rachel kepeth hyr fathers shepe

¶ While he yet talked with them, Rachel came with hir fathers shepe, for she kepeth the. And as sone as Jacob sawe Rachel the daughter of Laban his vncle, & hyr vncles shepe, he went and rouled the stone fro the welles mouth, & watered the shepe of Laban his mothers brother. And Jacob kissed Rachel, and lifte vp his voice and wept: & tolde hir also that he was hir fathers brother, and Rebeccas son. Then Rachel ran and told hir father.

¶ When Laban hearde tell of Jacob hyr sisters son, he ran to mete him, and imbraced him, and kissed him, and broughte hym to his house. And then Jacob tolde Laban all the matter. And then Laban sayd: well, thou art my bone and my flesh. Abide with me the space of a moneth. And afterwarde Laban saied vnto Jacob: Though thou be my kynsman, shouldest thou therfore serue me for nought? tel me what shal thy wages be? And Laban had two daughters, the eldest called Lea, and the yongest Rachel. Lea was sore eyed, but Rachel was beautifull and well fauoured. And Jacob loued hir well, and sayed: I wyll serue the seven yere for Rachel thy yongeste daughter. And Laban answered: it is better that I giue her to the, then to another man: abide therfore with me.

And Jacob serued *seven yeres for Rachel, and they semed vnto him but a fewe daies, for the loue he had to her. And Jacob saied vnto Laban: giue me my wyfe, that I maye lye with her, for the tyme appoynted is come.

¶ Then Laban bade all men of that countrey, and made me a feast. And when euen was come, he toke Lea hyr daughter, and broughte hir to him: & he laye with hir. And Laban gaue to his daughter Lea, Zilpha his maide, to be hir seruante. And when the mornig was come, behold it was Lea. The said he to Laban: wherfore hast thou playd thus with me? dyd not I serue & for Rachel, wherfore then hast thou begiled me? Laban answered, it is not the manner of this countrey, to marie the yongest before the eldeste. Passe oute this weke, and then shall this also be giuen the for the seruyce, which thou shalt serue me yet seven yeres more. And Jacob did euē so, & passed out of weke, & the he gaue him Rachel his doughter to wife also. And Laban gaue to Rachel his daughter, Bilha his handmaid to be hir seruante. So laye he by Rachel also, and loued Rachel more then Lea, and serued hym yet seven yeres more.

¶ When the lord saw that Lea was despy- sed, he made hir fruitfull: but Rachel was barein. And Lea conceived and bare a son, and called his name Ruben, for she sayed: the lord hath looked vpon my tribulacion. And now my husband wil loue me. And she conceived againe and bare a sonne, & saied: the lord hath hearde that I am despyed, & hath therfore geuen me this son also, and she called him *Simeon. And she conceived yet and bare a sonne, and saied: nowe this ones will my husbände kepe me com- panye, because I haue borne him thre son- nes: and therfore she called his name Levi. And she conceived yet againe and bare a sonne, sayinge: nowe wyll I praise & lord, therfore she called his name Iuda, and left bearynge.

¶ When Rachel sawe that she bare Ja- cob no chyldren, she enuied hyr sister, and saied vnto Jacob: Gyue me chil- dren, or els I am but deade. Then was Ja- cob wroth wth Rachel, sayinge: Am I in Gods steede, which kepeth from the fruit of thy wombe? Then she saied: here is my maide Bilha: lye with hir, that she maye beare vpon my lap, that I maye be encrea- sed by hir. And she gaue him Bilha hir hand maide to wyfe. And Jacob laye with hyr: and Bilha conceived and bare Jacob a son. Then saied Rachel: God hath geuen sen- tence on my spede, and hath also heard my voyce, and hath gyuen me a sonne. There- fore called she hym Dan. And Bilha, Ra- chels maide conceived agayne, and bare Jacob another sonne. And Rachel sayed: God is tourned, & I haue made a chaunge wth my spster, and haue gotten the upper hande. And she called his name Nephtali.

And he slepte with hir that nighte. And God heard Lea, that she conceived & bare vnto Jacob the fift sonne. Then saied Lea: God hath giuen me my rewarde, because I gaue my maiden to my husbände, and she called him Isachar. And Lea conceived yet again, and bare Jacob the sixt son. Then saied she: God hath endewed me with a

Mi. xxi. d

And God remembred Rachel, heard hir, and made hir fruitefull: so that she conceiued and bare a sonne, and saied: God hath taken away my rebuke. And she called hys name Joseph, saying: The Lorde geue me yet another son. Asone as Rachel hadde borne Joseph, Jacob saied to his father in lawe. Send me away, that I may go vnto my owne place and countrey, geue me my wiues and my chyldren, for whom I haue serued the, and let me go, for thou knowest what seruice I haue done the. Then saied Laban vnto him. If I haue found fauour in thy sight (for I suppose that the Lorde hath blessed me for thy sake) appoint what thy reward shall be, and I will geue it the.
Then he sayd vnto him, thou knowest what seruice I haue done the, and in what case thy cattell haue bene vnder me: for it was but litle that thou haddest before I came,
and nowe it is encreased into a multitude, and the Lorde hath blessed the for my sake.
But now when shall I make provision for mine owne house also? And he saied, what shall I then geue the? And Jacob answered: thou shalt giue me nothinge at all, so thou wilt do this one thinge for mee, and then will I turne again and fede thy shepe and kepe them.

So thou aboute all thy shepe this daye, and seperate from them all the shepe that are spotted and of dyuers coloures, and all blacke shepe among the lambes. And then loke, all that shall be party coloured, black and spotted, as well amongs the shepe as the kyddes, the same shall be my reward. So shall my *ryghteousnes aynswere for me, when the time cometh, that I shall receiue my rewarde of the, so that whatsoe-uer is not speckled, and party amonge the goates, and black among the lambes, lette that be theste with me. Then saied Laban:

*Ryghteousnes
misch here true & faith-
full seruice.

Lo I am content, that it be accordynge as thou hast said. And he sorted out that same day the goates that were party & of dyuers colours, & all the kyddes that were spotted & party coloured, & all that had white in the,
and all the blacke among the lambes, and put them in the keeping of his sonnes, and sette thre daies iourney betwene him selfe and Jacob. And so Jacob kept the reste of Labans shepe.

Jacob toke rodde of grene popul, hasel, & of chestnot trees, and piled white strea-kes in them, and made the white appeare in the stauess: And he laid the stauess whiche he had pyled before the shepe in the gutters & watering troughes, when the shepe came to drinke: that they should conceiue when they came to drinke. And the shepe conceiued before the stauess, and broughte forth speckled, spotted, and party coloured.
Then Jacob diuided the flocke, and putte the rodde in the troughes before the eyes of the wethers and all whyte and al blacke were Labans, but the resydue were Jacobs, and he seuered the flockes one from another. And alwaye in the firste buckinge tyme of the shepe, Jacob put the stauess before the shepe in the gutters, that they might conceiue before the stauess: But in the latter buckinge tyme, he put them not there: so the laste broode was Labans, and the fyrst Jacobs. And the man became excedynge ryche, and had many shepe, maide seruauntes, menne seruauntes, camelles and asses.

The xxxi. Chapter.

At the commaundement of God, Jacob departed from Laban, & toke hys goodes wpyth hym. Rachel stealeth hys fathers ymagess.
Laban followeth Jacob. The covenant be-twene Laban and Jacob.

And Jacob heard the wordes of La-bans sonnes howe they sayd: Jacob hath taken away all that was oure fathers, and of our fathers goods hath he gotten all this honoure. And Jacob beheld the countenaunce of Laban, that it was not toward him as it was in times past.
And the lord said vnto Jacob: turne again into the land of thy fathers, and to thy kin-red, and I will be wpyth the. Then Jacob sent and called Rachel and Lea to & felde vnto hys shepe, and saied vnto them: I see your fathers countenaunce, that it is not toward me as in tymes past.

Moreouer the God of my father hath bene with me. And ye knowe howe that I haue serued your father with al my might.
And your father hath disceiued me, and chaunged my wages ten tymes: but God suffred him not to hurte me. When he said, the spotted shall be thy wages, then all the shepe bare spotted. If he saied, the speckled shall be thy reward, then bare all the shepe speckled: thus hath God taken away your fathers cattell, and giuen them me.
For in bucking time I lyfted vp mine eyes and

and sawe in a dreame, and behoulde, the rammes that bucked the sheepe were straken, spotted, and partye. And the aungell of God spake vnto me in a dreame, saying: Jacob? And I answered: here am I. And he sayde, lyfte vp thyn eyes and see, howe all the rammes that leape vpon the sheepe are straken, spotted, and partye: for I haue sene all that Laban doth vnto the, I am the God of Bethel where thou anoyntedst the stone, and where thou bowedst a bow vnto me. Now arise and get thee oute of this cuntry, and returne vnto the lande where thou were borne.

Gen. xxxi. d.

Ge. xxxi. c.

Then answered Rachell and Lea, and sayde vnto hym: we haue no parte nor inheritance in oure fathers house, he counteth vs as straungers, for he hath sold vs and hath eat vp the price of vs. Moreover all the ryches which God hath taken from our father, that is oures and our chyldrens, now therefore whatsoever God hath said vnto the, that do. Then Jacob rose vp, and let his sonnes and wiues vp, vpon camels, and carped awaye all his cattell and all his substance whiche he hadde gotten in Mesopotamia, for to goo to Isaac hys father vnto the land of Canaan. Laban was gone to shepe hys shepe, and Rachel had stollen her fathers images. And Jacob stole away pryuelie from Laban the Syrien, and told him not that he wold departe. So fled he all that he had, and made himself redy, and passed ouer the riuers, and went streight towarde the mounte Gilead.

ge. xxviii. b. ii. Re. xlii. c.

Upon the thyrde dape after, was it told Laban that Jacob fled. Then he tooke his brethren wth hym, and pursued hym. vii. dayes iourney: and ouertooke hym at the mounte Gilead. And God came to Laban the Syrian in a dreame by nighte, and said vnto hym: take hede to thy selfe, that thou speake not to Jacob ouer sharply. And Laban ouertooke Jacob: and Jacob had pitched hys tente in the mounte. And Laban wth hys brethren, pitched thei tente also vpon the mount Gilead. Then sayde Laban to Jacob: whye haste thou thys done to steale awaye from me, and carpe away my daughters as though they had bene taken captiue wth the swearde? Wherefore wentest thou awaye secretely vnkowne to me, and dyddest not tell me, that I might haue broughte the on the waye wth mynnyng, tymbrelles, and harpes, and hadst not suffred me to kysse my chyldren and my daughters? Thou wert a*fole to do it, for I am hable too do pou euill. But the God of your father spake vnto me yester day, saying: take hede þ thou speake not to Jacob oughte saue good. And nowe though thou wetest thy way, because thou lovest after thi fathers house, yet wherefore hast thou stollen my goddes?

l. Re. xlii. c. l. Par. xvi. c.

Jacob answered and sayde to Laban: I departed pryuelie, because I was afrayde, and thoughte that thou woldest haue take awaye thy daughters from me. But where as thou doest challenge me for theste, wth whome so euer thou findest thy goddes, let hym dye here before oure brethren. Seeke that thynne is wth me, and take it to the: for Jacob wste not that Rachel had stollen them. Then went Laban into Jacobs tente, and into Leas tente, and into the ii. maydens tentes: but founde them not. Then wente he oute of Leas tente, and entered into Rachels tente. And Rachell toke the images and putte them in the camels strawe, and sat down vpon them. And Laban searched all the tente: but founde them not. Then sayde she too her father, Syr, be not angry that I can not rise vp before the: for the disease of women is come vpon me. So searched he, but founde them not.

Rachels po lerte.

Jacob was wrothe, and chode with Laban. Jacob also answered and said to him: what haue I trespassed, or what haue I offended, that thou folowedest after me? Thou haste searched all my stuffe, and what haste thou founde of all thy housholde stuffe? Putte it here before thy brethren and myne, and lette thei iudge betwene vs bothe. This xx. pere that I haue bene with the, thy shepe and thy goates haue not bene baren, and the rammes of thy flocke haue I not eaten. Whatsoeuer was torne of beastes, I broughte it not vnto the, but made it good my selfe: of my hand diddest thou require it, whether it was stolen by day or night. Moreover, by day the heate consumed me, and the cold by night, and mi slepe departed from mine eyes.

Thus haue I ben. xx. pere in thy house, & serued the xiiii. peres for thy ii. daughters, and vi. pere for thy sheepe, and thou haste chaunged my reward ten times. And except the God of my father, the God of Abraham and the God whom Isaac feareth, hadde bene wth me: surely thou haddeste sente me awaye nowe all empty. But God beheld my tribulacion, and the labour of my hands: and rebuked the yester day.

Gen. xxxi. g.

Laban answered and sayde vnto Jacob, the daughters are my daughters, and the chyldren are my chyldren, and the shepe, are my shepe, and all that thou seest is myne. And what can I do thys dape, vnto these my daughters, or vnto theyr chyldren whiche they haue borne? Nowe therefore come on, let vs make a bonde, I and thou together, and let it be a wytnesse betwene the and me. Then toke Jacob a stone and set it vp for a pillar and marke stone, and sayd vnto hys brethren, gather stones. And they toke stones, and made an hepe, and they eat there vpon the heape. And Laban called it Jeger Sahadutha, but Jacob called it Gilead, after thei after the proprietye of hys language.

Then sayde Laban: thys heape be wytnesse betwene the and me thys dape, (therfore is it called Gilead) The Lorde looke and iudge betwene me and the; when wee are departed one from another: that thou shalt not bere my doughters, neither shalt take other wiues vnto them. Here is no man with vs: Behold, God is witnesse betwene the and me. And Laban sayde more ouer to Jacob: behold, this heape and this marke whiche I haue sette here, betwene me and the: thys heape be wptnesse and also thys marke, that I wpll not come ouer this heape to the, and thou shalt not come ouer this heape and this marke, to do anye harme. The God of Abraham, the God of Nahor, and the God of theyre fathers, bee iudge betwene vs.

And Jacob swate by him that his father Isaac feared. Then Jacob did sacrifice vpon the mounte, and called his brethren to eate breade. And thei ate breade and taried all nyght in the hyl. And early in the morning Laban rose vp and kissed his children and hys Doughters, and blessed them and departed and wente vnto his place againe: but Jacob went forth on his iourne, and the aungels of God came & met him. And when Jacob sawe them, he sayde: thys is goddes hoste, and called the name of that same place Mahanaim.

The. xxii. Chapter.

The vision of the aungels. Jacob sendeth presentes vnto hys brother Esau. How he wrestled with the angel which chaunged his name, and called hym Israell.

Jacob sente messengers before hym to Esau hys brother, vnto the Lande of Seir, and the fiede of Edom. And he commaunded them, sayinge: Se that ye speake after this maner to my Lord Esau: thy seruante Jacob saythe thus, I haue sojourned and bene a straunger with Laban vnto this time, and haue gotten Oxen, Asses and Shepe, men seruantes and womenne seruantes, and nowe I sende ambassage too the my Lord, that I maye fynde grace in thy spghte. And the messengers came againe to Jacob, sayinge: we came vnto thy brother Esau, and he cometh against the and. iiii. hundred men with him. Then was Jacob greatly afrayde and wist not which way to turne him self, and deuided the people that was with him, and the shepe, oxen, and camels into. ii. compaines, and sayde: If Esau come to the one parte, and smite it the other maye saue it selfe.

And Jacob sayde: O God of my father Abraham, and God of my father Isaac: Lord whiche saydest vnto me: retorne vnto thy cuntrye and to thy kynredde, and I wpll do all wel wpth the, I am not worthy of the leaste of all the mercyes and truthe whiche thou hast shewed vnto thy seruant, For with my staffe came I ouer this Iordan, and now haue I gotten two droues. Delouer me, from the handes of my brother Esau: for I feare hym, leaste he wpll come and smyte the other wpth the children. Thou saydest that thou wouldest sure ly do me good, and wouldest make my seede as the sande of the sea, which cannot be nūbred for multitude.

And he tarped ther that same night, and toke of that whiche came to hande, a presente vnto Esau his brother, two hundred she gootes and: xx. he gootes, two hundred shepe, and. xx. rammes: thyrtye mplyshe Camels wpth theyr coltes. xl. kyne, and tenne buls. xx. she asses, and. x. foales, & deliuered them vnto his seruantes, euerie droue by thepm selues, and sayde vnto thepm: goo forth before me, and putte a space betwene euerie droue. And he commaunded the foremoste, sayinge.

When Esau thy brother meteth the and asketh the, sayinge: whose seruante arte thou, and whether goest thou, and whose are these that go before the: thou shalt say, they be thy seruant Jacobs, and are a presente sente vnto my Lord Esau, and beholde, he him selfe cometh after, vs. And so commaunded he the second and euen so the thyrde, and lpkewple all that folowed the droues, sayinge: of this manner se that ye speake vnto Esau when ye meete hym and sayde moreouer. Behold thy seruant Jacob cometh after vs, for he sayd I wil please hys wraethe wpth the presente that goeth before me, and afterwarde I wpll se him my self, so peraduenture he wil receiue me to grace. So wente the presente before hym, and he tarped all that nyghte in the tente, and rose vpp the same nyghte, and tooke his two wiues and hys. ii. maydens, and his leuen Sonnes, and wente ouer the foorde Jacob. And he toke them and sente them all ouer the ruer, and tarped behind hym selfe alone.

And ther* wrestled a manne wpth hym vnto the breakyng of the dape. And when he sawe that he could not preuaile against hym, he smote hym vnder the thyghe, and the senewe of Jacobes thighe shanke as he wrestled with him. And he sayde: let me goo, for the dape breaketh. And he sayde: I wpll not lette the goo, except thou blesse me. And he sayde vnto hym: What is thy name? He aunswered: Jacob. And he saide thou shalt be called Jacob no more, but * Israell. For thou hast wrestled with God, and hast preuailed.

And Jacob asked him, sayinge: tell me thy name. And he sayde, wherefore dooest thou aske after my name: & he blessed hym ther. And Jacob called the name of þ place wheniel for I haue sene God face to face & yet is my life reserved. And as he wet ouer wheniel, the sunne rose vpon hym, and he halted vpon his thyghe, wherefore the childrene of Israell eate not of the senewe of the thyghe vnto thys dape, because that he smote Jacob vnder the thyghe in the senewe that shonke.

A Jacob lyfte vp his eyes and sawe his brother Esau come, and with hym. iiii. C. men. And he deuided his chyldeyne vnto Lea, vnto Rachell, and vnto his two women seruauntes. And dyd sette the women seruauntes and theyr chyldeyn for most, and Lea and her chyldeyn after, and Rachell & Joseph hindermost. And him selfe went before them and fel on the ground. vii. times till he came vnto his brother. Esau ran to mete him and embraced him and fel on his necke and kyssed him, and they wepte. And he lyfte vp his eyes and sawe the wives and theyr chyldeyne, and sayde: what are these whiche thou there haste? And he sayd: they are the chyldeyne whiche God hath geuen thy seruaunte. Then came the maide ns forthe, and did theyr obeysaunce. Lea also and her chyldeyn came & did their obeysaunce. And last of al came Joseph and Rachell, & dyd theyr obeysaunce.

B And he sayde: what meanest thou wpth all the droues whiche I met? And he answered: to fynde grace in the sighte of my lord. And Esau sayde: I haue ynoughe my brother, kepe that thou haste vnto thy selfe. Jacob answered: Oh naye, but if I haue founde grace in thy syghte, receyue my presente of my hand: for I haue sene thy face as though I had sene the face of God, wherefore receyue me to grace and take my blessing that I haue brought the for god hath geuen it me. And I haue ynoughe of al thinges. And so he compelled him to take it. And he said: let vs take our iourney & go: And I wil go in thy company. And he sayd vnto him: my Lorde knoweth that I haue tendinge chyldeyn, ewes and kine with yong vnder myne hande, whiche if men shulde ouerdrine but euen one daye, the hole flocke wold dye. Let my Lorde therfore go before his seruaunt, and I wil drine fayne & softly accordynge as the catell that goeth before me and the chyldeyn be hable to endure: till I come to my Lorde vnto Seir.

C And Esau said: let me yet leaue some of my folke with the. And he sayde: what needeth it? let me find grace in the sighte of my Lorde. So Esau went his way again that same daye vnto Seir. And Jacob tooke his iourney toward Succoth, & bilt him an house and made bootes for his cattel: wherefore the name of the place is called Succoth.

And Jacob came peacefully into the city of Sichem in the land of Canaan, after he was come from Mesopotamia, and pitched before the city, and bought a parcel of ground wher he pitched his tent, of the chyldeyn of Demoz Sichems father, for an. C. lambes. And he made there an altare, & ther called vpon the mighty God of Israel.

The xxxiii. Chapter.

The rauishing of Dina Jacobs daughter by the men of Sichem. And of the greates bloudshedding don by the sonnes of Jacob.

Dina the doughter of Lea whiche she bare vnto Jacob, wente oute too see the doughters of the lande. And Sichem the sonne of Demoz the Heuite Lord of the countrey, sawe her, and toke her and laye wpth her, and forced her: and his hert laye vnto Dina the doughter of Jacob. And he loued the damsell and spake kindly vnto her, and spake vnto his father Demoz, sayinge: gette me thys mayden to my wife. And Jacob heard that he had defiled Dina his doughter, but his sons wer with the catell in the fiede, and therfore he held his peace till they were come. Then Demoz the father of Sichem wente oute vnto Jacob to comen wpth hym. And the sonnes of Jacob came oute of the fiede as sone as they hearde it, for it greued they, and they wer not a lytle wroth, because he had wroughte folpe in Israel, in that he hadde lpen with Jacobs doughter, whiche thing oughte not to be done. And Demoz communed with them, sayinge: The soule of my sonne Sichem longeth for your doughter: geue her hym to wyfe, and make mariages with vs: giue your doughters vnto vs, and take oure doughters vnto you, and dwell with vs, and the lande shalbe at your pleasure, dwell and do your busynes, and haue your possessions therein. And Sichem said vnto her father and her brethren: lette me fynde grace in your eyes, and what soeuer ye appoynte me, that wpll I geue. Aske freely of me both the dowry and gifts, & I wil geue accordynge as ye sai vnto me, and giue me the damsel to wife.

Then the sonnes of Jacob answered to Sichem and Demoz his father disceitfully because he had defiled Dina theyr syster. And they saide vnto them, we can not do thys thinge that we shoulde geue oure syster to one that is vncircumcised, for that wer a shame vnto vs: Only in thys wpll we consente vnto you. If we wpll be as we be that al the men chyldeyn amonge you be circumcised, then wpll we geue oure doughter to you, and take youres to vs, and wpll dwell wpth you and be one people. But if ye wpll not herken vnto vs to be circumcised, then wpll wee take oure doughter and go our waies. And theyr wordes pleased Demoz, and Sichem his sonne. And the yong man deferred not for to do the thing, because he had a lust to Jacobs doughter, he was also mooste set by of al that wer in his fathers house. Then Demoz and Sichem went vnto Jacob and communed with thynge: these men saye wpll dwell in the cion therein. And for them, lette wyues, and in wpll they wpll be, men chyldeyn.

D And vnto Demoz and Sichem his sonne harkened al that wente oute of the gate of hys citie. And all the menne chyl dren were circumcised whatsoeuer wente oute at the gates of the cypre. And the thyrday whē it was paynefull to them, two of the sons of Jacob Simeon and Leuey Dinas brethren, tooke epyther of them his swerde and wente into the cypre bouldelpe, and flew all that was male wpyth the edge of the swerde, and tooke Dina theyre syster oute of Sychems house, and wente theyre waye.

Then came the Sonnes of Jacob vpon the dead, and spoyled the city, because they had despyled theyre syster, and tooke theyre shepe, Oren, asses and whatsoeuer was in the cypre and also in the felds. And al theyre goodes, all theyre chyl dren and theyre wyues toke theyre captiue and made hauocke of al that was in the houses. And Jacob sayde to Simeon and Leui: ye haue troubled me and made me synke vnto y inhabitauntes of the Lande, booth the Canaanites and also to the phereytes. And I am few in numbze. Wherfore thei shal gather them selves together against me and slep me, & so shal I and my house be destroyed. And thei answered, shoulde they deale wpyth our syster as with an hooze?

1. Para. i. c.

And Esau took his wives, his sonnes and daughters, and all the soules of his house: his goodes and all his cattell and all his substance which he had got in the land of Canaan, and went into a cuntry awaye from his brother Jacob: for they were so muche that they coulde not dwell together, and that the Lande where in they were straungers, could not receiue them: because of theyr cattell. Thus dwelt Esau in the mounte Seir, which Esau is called Edon. These are the generations of Esau father of the Edomites in mounte Seir, and these are the names of Esaus Sonnes: Eliphaz the sonne of Ada the wyfe of Esau, and Reguell the sonnes of Basmath the wyfe of Esau also. And the Sonnes of Eliphaz were Theman, Omar, Zepho, Baetham and Kenas. And Thimna was concubine to Eliphaz Esaus son, and bare vnto Eliphaz, Amalech. And these be the Sonnes of Ada Esaus wyfe. And these are the Sonnes of Reguell: Nahath, Serah, Samma, and Gissa: these were the sonnes of Basmath Esaus wife. And these were the sons of Ahalibama Esaus wife & daughter of Ana son of Zibeon, which she bare vnto Esau: Jeus, Jaelam and Kozah.

1. Para. i. c.

These were dukes of the sonnes of Esau. The chyldrene of Eliphaz the first sonne of Esau were these: Duke Theman, Duke Omar, Duke Zepho, Duke Kenas, Duke Kozah, Duke Baetham, and Duke Amalech: these are the Dukes that came of Eliphaz in the lande of Edom. And these were the sonnes of Ada. These were the children of Reguell Esaus sonne: Duke Nahath, Duke Serah, Duke Samma, Duke Gissa. These are the Dukes that came of Reguell in the Lande of Edom, and these were the Sonnes of Basmath Esaus wife. These were the children of Ahalibama Esaus wyfe: Duke Jeus, Duke Jaelam, Duke Kozah: these Dukes came of Ahalibama the daughter of Ana Esaus wyfe. These are the children of Esau. And these are the dukes of them, which Esau is called Edom. These are the children of Seir the Horite, the inhabitoure of the lande, Lothan, Soball, Zibeon, Ana, Dison, Ezer and Dison.

These are the dukes of the Horites the children of Seir in the land of Edom. And the children of Lothan were, Hori and Hemam.

And Lothans sister was called Thimna.

The children of Soball were these: Aluan, Manahath, Ebal, Sepho and Onam. These were the children of Zibeon: Zia and Ana, this was that Ana that founde the mules in the wilderness, as he fedde his father Zibeons asses. The children of Ana were these, Dison and Ahalibama the daughter of Ana. These are the children of Dison, Hemdan, Elban, Metham and Cheran. The children of Ezer were these, Bilhan, Seauen, and Akan. The children of Dison were Uz and Aran. These are the Dukes that came of Hori: Duke Lothan, Duke Soball, Duke Zibeon: Duke Ana, Duke Dison, Duke Ezer, Duke Difa. These be the Dukes that came of Horie in theyr Dukedomes in the Lande of Seir. These are the kynges that raygned in the Lande of Edom before there raygned anye kyng amonge the children of Israel. Bela the sonne of Beor raygned in Edomea, and the name of his cytye was Dinhaba. And when Bela dyed, Jobab the sonne of Serah out of Bezara raygned in his steede, when Jobab was dead, Hulam of the land of the Temanites raygned in his steede. And after the death of Hulam, Hadad the sonne of Pedad which slew the Moabites in the feld of the Moabites, raygned in his steede, and the name of his citie was Aith. When Hadad was deade, Samla of Masaka raygned in his steede. When Samla was deade, Saule of the ryuer Rehoboth raygned in his steede. When Saule was deade, Baal Hanan the sonne of Achbor raygned in his steede. And after the death of Baal Hanan the sonne of Achbor, Hadad raygned in his steede, and the name of the citie was Hagu. And his wifes name Mehetabeell the daughter of Matred, the daughter of Melea.

These are the names of the Dukes that came of Esau, in the xii. kindes, places & names: Duke Thimna, duke Alua, Duke Jetheth, duke Ahalibama, duke Ela, duke Binon, duke Kenas, duke Theman, Duke Meibzer, duke Magdiel, duke Jram. These be the dukes of Edomea in theyr habitacions in the land of theyr possessions. This Esau is the father of the Edomites.

The xxxviii. Chapter.

Joseph accuseth his brethren. Joseph dreameth and is hated of his brethren, & is sold to the Egyptians. Jacob bewyleth Joseph.

unto hys brother. And the thynge whiche he dyd, displeased the Lorde, wherefore he slew hym also. Then sayde Judas to Tha-mar hys doughter in lawe: remayne a wydowe at thy fathers house, till Sela my sonne be growen: for he feared lest he shuld haue dyed also, as his brethren dyd. Thus wēt Thamar, & dwelt in her fathers house.

And in proceſſe of tyme, the daughter of Sua, Judas wyfe, dyed. Then Judas whē he had leſte mournynge, wente vnto hys ſhepe ſhepers to Thymnah, with his frend Hira of Odollam. And one tolde Thamar, ſayinge: beholde, thy father in lawe goth vp to Thymnah, to * there hys ſhepe. And he put her wyddowes garments from her, and couered her wth a cloke, and dyſgyſed her ſelfe: And ſate her downe at the enterynge of Enaim, whiche is by the hye wayes ſyde to Thymnah, becauſe ſhe ſaw that Sela was growen, and ſhe was not geue him to wyfe.

When Juda ſaw her, he thought it had bene an hoore, becauſe ſhe hadde couered her face. And turned to her vnto the waye and ſayd: Come I pray the, let me lye with the, for he knew not that it was his daughter in lawe. And ſhe ſayde what wilt thou geue me to lye wth me? Then ſayde he, I wyl ſende the a kydde from the ſtocke. She anſwered: When geue me a pledge til thou ſende it. Then ſayde he, what pledge ſhall

I geue the? And ſhe ſayde: thy ſyguet, thy bracelet, and thy ſtaffe that is in thy hand.
And he gaue it her, and laye by her, and ſhe was wth chylde by hym. And ſhe gat her bp, and wente, and put her mantelle from her, and put on her wyddowes rayment a-gayne. And Judas ſent the kyd by his neybour of Odolla, for to ſetch out hys pledge agayne from the wyues hande. But he founded her not. Then asked he the men of the ſame place, ſayinge: Where is the whore that ſat at Enaim in the way? And they ſayd: ther was no whore here. And he came to Juda agayne, ſayinge: I cannot fynd her, and alſo the men of the place ſayd that ther was no whore ther. And Juda ſaid: let her take it to her, leaſt we be aſhamed:
for I ſente the kydde, and thou couldeſt not fynde her.

And it came to paſſe that after thre monethes, one tolde Juda, ſayinge: Thamar thy daughter in law hath plaid the whore, and wth playynge the whore is become greate wth chylde. And Juda ſaid: bring her forth, and let her be bience. And when they broughte her forth, ſhe ſent to her father in lawe, ſayinge: by the man vnto whoſe theſe thyngeſ pertaine, am I wth chylde.
And ſayde alſo: loke whoſe are thys ſeale, bracelet, and ſtaffe. And Juda knew them, ſayinge: ſhe is moze ryght wyſer than I, becauſe I gaue her not to Sela my ſonne.
But he laye wth her no more.

When tyme was come comethat ſhe ſhuld be deliuered, beholde there was two chylde in her womb. And as ſhe traueled the one put out hys hand, and the midwife toke and boande a red threed about it, ſaying: thys wyl come out firſt. But he placked hys hande backe agayne, and hys brother came out. And ſhe ſayd: wherefore haſt thou * rent a rent vpon the? and called hym Pharez. And after ward came out his brother that had the red threed about hys hand whych was called Zara.

The .xxxix. Chapter.

God prospereth Joſeph. Hys maſtres tēp-teth him. He is accuſed and caſte in priſon.
God hath mercy vpon hym.

Joſeph was broughte vnto E gypte, and Putiphar * a Lorde of Pharaos, and his chefe maſhall an E gyptian boughte hym of the Iſmaelytes, whych broughte hym thither. And the Lorde was with Joſeph, and he prospered and contynued in ſ houſe of hys maſter the E gyptian. And his maſter ſawe that the Lorde was wth him, and that the Lorde made all that he dydde proſpere in hys hande: Wherefore he foundede grace in hys maſters ſyght, and ſerued hym. And hys maſter made hym ruler of hys houſe, and put all that he had in hys hand. And as ſoone as he had made him ruler ouer his houſe, and ouer all that he had the Lorde bleſſed thys E gyptians houſe for Joſeph ſake, and the bleſſynge of the Lorde was vpon all that he hadde: bothe in the houſe, and alſo in the feeldes. And therfore he leſte all that he had in Joſeph hande, and looked vpon nothyng that was wth hym, ſauē onely on the bread whych he ate. And Joſeph was a * goodly perſon, and a well fauoured. And it fortunēd after thys, that his maſters wyfe caſte her eyes vpon Joſeph, and ſayd: come lye wth me.
But he denyed and ſayd to her: Behold, my maſter woteth not what behath in ſ houſe wth me, but hath committed all that he hath to my hand. He hym ſelfe is not greter in the houſe then I, and hath kepte nothyng from me, but onely the becauſe thou art his wyfe. How then can I do this gret wpyckednes, for to ſpyne agaynſte God? C.
And after this maner ſpake ſhe to Joſeph daye by day: but he hearkenēd not vnto her, to ſepe nere her, or to be in her companye.

And it fortunēd aboute the ſame ſeaſon, that Joſeph entered into the houſe, to doo hys buſynes: and ther was none of ſ houſe holde by in the houſe. And ſhe caughte him by the garment, ſaying: come ſepe wth me.
And he leſte his garment in her hande, and ſled and got hym out. When ſhe ſawe that he had leſte hys garment in her hand, and was ſled out, ſhe called vnto the men of the houſe, and tolde them, ſayinge: Se, he hath broughte in an Heb:ue vnto vs, to doo vs ſhame: for he came into me, for to haue ſepte wth me. But I cried wth a loude voyce. And when he hearde that I lyfte by my voyce and cryed, he leſt his garment

When his mayster herde the words of hys wyfe whych she tolde hym, sayinge: after thys maner dyd thy seruante to me, he waxed wrothe.

And he toke Joseph and put hym in pryson euen in the place wher the kynges prysoners lay bounde. And ther continued he in pryson, but the Lord was wpth Joseph, and shewed hym mercy, and got hym fauoure in the syghte of the keeper of the pryson, whych committed to Josephs hande all the prysoners that were in the pryson house. And whatsoeuer was done ther, that dyd he. And the keeper of the pryson looked vnto nothyng that was vnder hys hande, by cause the Lord was wpth hym, and by cause that what soeuer he dyd, the Lord made it come luckely to passe.

The. xi. Chapter.

Joseph expoundeth the dreames of the two prysoners.

A And it chaunced after this, that the chiefe butler of the kyng of Egypte and hys chiefe baker had offended theyr lord the king of Egypt. And Pharaos was angry wpth them and put them in ward in his chiefe marshalles house: euen in the pryson where Joseph was bounde. And the chiefe marshall gaue Joseph a charge wpth them, and he serued the. And they contynued a season in ward.

And they dreamed either of them in one nyght: both the butler and the baker of the kyng of Egypte whych were bounde in the pryson house, cyther of them his dreame: and eche mannes dreame of a sondrye interpretation. When Joseph came in vnto them in the morning, and looked vpon them: Beholde, they were sadde. And he asked them sayinge, wherfore loke ye so sadlye to day? They answered hym, we haue dreamed a dreame, and haue no man to declare it. And Joseph sayde vnto them. Interpreting belongeth to god, but tel me yet. And the chiefe butler tolde hys dreame to Joseph, and sayed vnto hym. In my dreame me thoughte there stode a vyne before me, and in the vyne were thre braunches, and it was as though it budded, and her bloomes shotte forth: and the grapes thereof waxed ripe. And I had Pharaos cup in my hande, and toke of the grapes & wroge them into Pharaos cuppe, and deliuered Pharaos cuppe into hys hande. And Joseph sayed vnto hym, thys is the interpretation of it. The thre braunches are thre dayes: for wpthin thre daies shal Pharaos lift vp thine head, and restore y into thine office agayne, and thou shalt deliuer Pharaos cuppe into his hand, after the old maner, euen as thou dydest when thou wast hys butler. But thinke on me when thou art in good case, and shew mercy vnto me. And make mencyon of me to Pharaos, and helpe to bringe me out of this house, for I was stolen out of the land of the Hebrewes, and here also haue I done nothyng at all wherfore they shoulde haue put me into this dongeon. When the chiefe baker saw that he had well expounded it, he sayde vnto Joseph: Se thoughe I also in my dreame, that I had. iiii. wyke baskets on my head. And in the vppermost basket, of all maner bake meates for Pharaos. And the byrdes ate them out of the basket vpon my heade.

Joseph answered and sayde: thys is the interpretation thereof. The. iiii. baskets are thre daies, for this day. iiii. daies shal Pharaos take thy head from the, and shal hang the on a tree, and the byrdes shal eat thy flesh fro the. And it came to passe the thirde day whych was Pharaos *byrthe daye, that he made a feast vnto all hys seruantes. And he lyfted vp the head of the chiefe butler and of the chiefe baker amonge hys seruantes.

Mat. xiii. e

And restored the chiefe butler vnto his butler shyp agayne, and he reached the cup into Pharaos hande: and hanged the chiefe baker, euen as Joseph had interpreted vnto them. Notwithstanding the chiefe butler remembred not Joseph, but forgate hym.

The. xli. Chapter.

Pharaos dreames are expounded by Joseph. He is made ruler ouer all Egypt. He hath two sonnes, Manasses and Ephraim. The dearth beginneth in Egypte.

A And it fortuneth at two yeres end that Pharaos dreamed, and thought that he stode by a ryuers syde, and that ther came out of the riuer, vii. goodli kyne, and fatte fleshed, and fed in the medowe, and him thought that, vii. other kyne came vp after them out of the riuer euyl sauored and leane fleshed, and stode by the other vpon the byncke of the ryuer. And the curli sauored and leane fleshed kyne, eat vp the vii. wel sauored and fatte kyne, and he awoke ther wpth. And he slepte agayne and dreamed the second tyme, that, vii. eares of corne growe vpon one stalk ranke & goodly. And that, vii. thynne eares blasted wpth the wynd, sprange vp after them, and that the seven thynne eares deuoured the seven ranke and full eares.

And then Pharaos awaked, and see, here is his dreame. When the morning came, his spirit was troubled. And he sent and called for the soothsayers of Egypt, and all the wyse men thereof, and tolde them hys dreame: but there was none of them that coulde interprete it vnto Pharaos. Then spake the chiefe butler vnto Pharaos sayinge. I do remembre my fault this day. Pharaos was angry with his seruantes, and

and put in warde in the chiefe marshalles house, both me and þe cheyf baker. And we dreamed both of vs in one nyght, and eche mans dreame of a sondrye interpretacion.

And there was wyth vs a younge man an Hebrue boiue, seruaunte vnto the chefe marshall. And we tolde hym, and he declared oure dreames to vs accordynge to eyther of our dreames. And as he declared the vnto vs, so it came to passe. I was restored to myne offyce agayne, and he was haged.

¶ Then Pharaos sent and called Joseph. And they brought him forth out of prison. And he shaued hym selfe and chaunged his raiment, and went in to Pharaos. And Pharaos sayed vnto Joseph, I haue dreamed a dreame and no man can interpretate it, but I haue hearde tell of the, that as soone as thou hearest a dreame, thou dost declare it. And Joseph answered Pharaos, sayinge: God shall gyue Pharaos a prosperous answer without me. Pharaos sayd vnto Joseph: In my dreame me thought I stode by a ryuer syde, and there came out of the ryuer vii. fat fleshed and well fauoured kyne, and fed in the medow. And then, vii. other kyne came vp after them, poore and very euill fauoured and leane fleshed: so that I neuer sawe they: lyke in all the lande of Egypt in euill fauourednesse. And the, vii. leane and euill fauoured kyne ate vp the fyfthe vii. fat kyne. And whā they had eaten them vp, a man could not perceiue that they had eaten them: for they were still as euill fauoured as they were at the begynnyng. And I awoke. And I sawe agayne in my dreame, vii. eares sprynge out of one stalk full and good, & vii. other eares withered, & thyn & blasted wyth wynde, sprynge vp after them. And the thynne eares deuoured the, vii. good eares. And I haue tolde it vnto the southsayers, but no man can tel me what it meaneth. Then Joseph sayed vnto Pharaos, bothe Pharaos dreames are one. And god doth shewe Pharaos what he is about to do. The, vii. good kyne are, vii. yeres, and the, vii. good eares are seven yeres also, and it is but one dreame. Lyke wyse the, vii. thyn and euill fauoured kyne that came out after them, are seven yeres, and the seven emptye and blasted eres shall be seven yeres of hunger. This is that

Beholde there shall come, vii. yeres of great plenteousnesse throughout all the land of Egypt. And ther shall aryse after them, vii. yeres of hunger: So that all the plenteousnesse shall be forgotten in the land of Egypt. And the hunger shall consume the lande, so that the plentuousnesse shall not be ones perceiued in the lande by reason of that hunger that shall come after, for it shall be exceedynge greete. And where as the dreame was doubled vnto Pharaos the seconde tyme, it betokeneth that the byngge is certaynesly prepared of God and that God wil shortly bring it to passe.

Now therefore let Pharaos proude for a man of vnderstandynge and wisdom, and set him ouer the land of Egypt. And let Pharaos make officers ouer þe land & take vp the fyfte parte of the lande of Egypt in the seven plenteous yeres, and let them gather all the foode of these good yeres that come and laye vp corne vnder the power of Pharaos that there may be foode in the ctytes, and there let them kepe it that there may be foode in store for the land against the seven yeres of hunger whiche shall come in the lande of Egypt, and that the land perishe not throuwe hunger.

And the sayinge pleased Pharaos and all his seruantes. Then saide Pharaos vnto his seruantes: where shall we fynde suche a man as this is, that hath the spirit of God in hym? wherefore Pharaos sayde vnto Joseph: forasmuch as god hath shewed the al this, there is no man of vnderstanding or of wisdom lyke vnto the. Thou therefore halte be<sup>r</sup> ouer my house, & according to thy word shall all my people obey: only in the kyngs seat wyl I be aboue the. And he sayde to Joseph, behold, I haue set the ouer all the lande of Egypt. And he toke of his ryng from his fynger, & put it vpon Josephes fynger, and arrayde hym in raiment of silke, and hong a golden chaine aboute his necke, and sette hym vpon the beste charret that he had saue one. And proclamation was made, that euerye person shuld bowe his kne before hym, as to hym whā Pharaos had set ouer al þe land of Egypt.

And Pharaos sayed vnto Joseph, I am Pharaos, withoute thy wyl shall no man lyfe by eyther bys hand or fore in al þe land of Egypt. And he called Josephs name *zaphnath Paena. And he gaue hym to wyse Asnache the daughter of Putyphar pryeste of On. Then went Joseph abrode in the lande of Egypt. And he was thyrty yere olde when he stode before Pharaos kyng of Egypt. And then Joseph departed from Pharaos and wente throughtoute all the lande of Egypt.

And in the seven plentysfull yeres they made sheues, and gathered vp all the increase of the seven plenteous yeres which were in the lande of Egypt, and put it in to the ctytes. And he put the foode of the fyeldes that grewe rounde aboute euerye ctyte, euen in the same. And Joseph layed vp corne in store, lyke to the lande of the sea in multytude aboue measure, vntill be lefte numbryng: for it was withoute noubre. And vnto Joseph were borne two sonnes before the yeres of hunger came, whiche Asnath the daughter of Putyphar pryest of On bare vnto hym. And he called the name of the fyfthe sonne *Manasse, for God (sayde he) hath made me forget all my labour, and all my fathers household. The second called he Ephraim, for God (said he) hath caused me to growe

And when the seven plentyfull yeres that were in the lande of Egypte were ended, then came the seven yeres of * dearth accordynge as Joseph had sayed.

And the dearth was in all landes, but in the lande of Egypte was there yet fode. When now all the land of Egypte began to hunger, then cryed the people to Pharaos for bread. And Pharaos sayd vnto all Egypte: go vnto Joseph, and what he sayeth to you, that do. And when the dearth was throughout all the lande, Joseph opened all that was in the cytyes and solde vnto the Egyptians. And hunger waxed sore in the lande of Egypte. And all countreys came to Egypte to Joseph for to bye corne: bycause that the hunger was so sore in all landes.

The.xlii. Chapter.

Josephs brethren come into Egypte to bye corne, he knoweth and tryeth them. Symeon is put in prison, the other returne to theyr father to fetch Ben Iamyn. Hys father lothe to let hym go, at laste granted.

Act. vii. b

Vhen Jacob sawe that there was corne to be solde in Egypte, he sayde to his sonnes: Why are ye neglygent? Beholde I haue hearde that there is corne to be solde in Egypt. * Get you thither & bye vs corne from thence, that we maye lyue and not dye. So went Josephs ten brethren downe to bye corne in Egypte, for Jacob woulde not sende Ben Iamin wth his other brethren: for he said, some misfortune myghte happen him. And the sonnes of Israel came to bye corne amonge other that came, for there was dearth also in the lande of Canaan. And Joseph was gouernour in the lande, and solde corne to all the people of the lande. And his brethren came and fell flat on the grounde before hym, when Joseph sawe his brethren, he knewe them, but made strange vnto them, and spake roughly vnto them, saying: whence come ye? and they sayde: oure of the lande of Canaan, to bye vnto you. Joseph knewe his brethren, but they knewe not hym.

Joseph examineth his brethren.

ge. xxxvii. b.

And Joseph remembred his * dreames whiche he dreamed of them, and sayd vnto the, ye are spies, and ye come to se where the lande is weake. And they sayde vnto hym: naye my lord, but to bye vitaille thy seruantes are come. We are all one mans sonnes, and we meane trulpe, and thy seruantes are no spies. He sayd vnto them: Nay verily, but euen to se where the lande is weake is your commynge. And they sayed: we thy seruantes are. xii. brethren, the sonnes of one man in the land of Canaan. The yongest is yet with our father, but one no man woteth wher he is. Joseph sayd to the, that is it that I sayd vnto you that ye are surely spies. Hereby ye shalbe proued. For by the life of Pharaos ye shal not go hence til your yongest brother be brought hither. Send therfore one of you to fetch your brother ye shalbe in prison in the meane season. And therby shal your words be proued whether ye be true, or els by the life of Pharaos, ye are but spies. And he put them in wardethree dayes.

Then Joseph, sayd vnto them, the third day. Thus do, and ye shal lyue, for I feare god. If ye meane trulpe, let one of your brethren be bound in prison, and go ye & beate necessary fode to your households, & bringe wth you your yongest brother vnto me: that your wordes may be beleued, and that ye dye not. And they dyd so.

Then they sayd one to another: we haue verily sinned agaynst our brother, in that we sawe the anguyshe of his soule, when he besought vs, and wold not heare hym: therfore is this trouble come vpon vs. Ruben answered them, saying. Sayed I not vnto you that ye should not * synne agaynst the chylde: but ye woulde not heare. And now verily ye se, hys bloud is * requyred. They were not aware that Joseph understode them, for he spake vnto the by an interpreter. And he turned from them and wepte, and then turned to them agayne and talked wth them and toke out Simeon from the, & bound hym before their eyes, and commaunded to sell theyr sackes wth corne, and to putte euery mannes money in his sacke, & to geue them bytyle to spend by that way: And so it was done to them. And they laded theyr asses wth the corne and departed thence. And as one of them opened his sacke for to geue hys ass prouender in the mornynge, he spyed hys money in hys sackes mouth. And he sayd vnto his brethren: my money is restored me agayne, and is in my sackes mouth. Then they vertes sayled them, & they were astonied, and sayd one to other, how cometh it that God dealeth thus wth vs? And they came to Jacob their father vnto the lande of Canaan and told hym all that had happened them, saying: The Lord of the land spake roughly to vs, and toke vs for spies to serche the countrey. And we sayd vnto hym: we meane trulpe and are no spies. We be twelue brethren sonnes of our father, one is away, and the yongest is now with our father in the land of Canaan. Then the Lord of the countrey sayd to vs: by this shal I know if ye meane trulpe: leaue one of your brethren here with me, & take fode necessary for your households, and get you away, and bring your yongest brother vnto me. And hereby shal I knowe that ye are no spies, but meane trulpe: So wll I deliuer you your brother agayne, and ye shal occupie in the lande.

Ge. xxxvii. d

To require the bloud of another, is to take vengeance of a man as in Gene. ix. 8. Deut. xix. 6. Eccl. iii. 1.

And as they emptyed theyr sackes, beholde euery mannes boundell of money was in hys sacke. And when both they and theyr father sawe the bundels of money, they were afrayed.

And Jacob theyr father said vnto them, haue ye robbed me of my chylde: Joseph

Joseph is dead, and Simeon is awake, and he will take Ben Jampn from me. All these thynges fall vpon me. Ruben answered hys father, sayinge: Sle my two sonnes, if I brynge hym not to the agayne. Delouer hym therefore vnto my hande, and I will brynge hym to the agayne: But he sayd: my sonne shal not go downe wth you, for his brother is dead, and he is left alone. Moreouer some myffortune mighte happen vpon hym by the waye whych he go. And so shoulde he brynge my gray head wth sorrowe vnto the graue.

The. xlii. Chapter.

When Ben Jampn was broughte they returned wth gyftes. Simeon is delouered out of prison. Joseph goth aspyde and weapeth. They feaste together.

And the deth waxed sore in the land. And when they had eatte vp the corne whych they broughte oute of the land of Egypt their father saide vnto them: go a gayne and bye vs a litle fode. Then sayed Juda vnto hym: the man dyd testifie vnto vs, sayinge: loke ye se not my face, onles your brother come wth you. Therefore if thou wylte sende out brother wth vs, we wyl go, and bye the fode. If thou wylte not sende hym, we wyl not go: For the man sayd vnto vs: loke ye se not my face, except your brother be wth you. And Israel sayed: wherfore delte ye so cruell ye wth me, to tell the manne ye had yet another brother? They sayde: The man asked vs of our kynred, sayinge: Is your father yet aloue? haue ye not an other brother? And we tolde hym accordinge to these wordes: How coulde we knowe that he woulde bid vs brynge out brother downe wth vs? Then said Juda vnto Israel hys father: Send the lad wth me, & we wyl ryle and go, that we maye lyue and not dye: bothe we, thou and also our chyldren. I wyl be suretye for hym, and of my handes requyre hym. If I brynge him not to the, and sette him before thine eyes: let me bere the blame for euer. For onlesse we had made thys taryng, by thys we hadde bene there twyle and come agayne.

Gen. xlii. d.

Gen. xliii. g.

Then theyr father Israel saide to them: If it must nedes be so now, then doo thus, take of the beste frutes of the land in your vessels, and carie the man a present, a quartyne of bawme and a porcyon of honye, foyces, and myrre, dates and almondes. And take as muche money more wth you. And the money that was broughte agayne in your sakes, take it agayne wth you, peraduenture it was some ouerspyghte.

Take also your brother wth you, and ryle and go agayne to the man. And God all myghte grue merue in the syghte of the man, and sende you your other brother and also Ben Jampn, and I wyl be as a man robbed of hys chyldren.

Thus toke they the presente and ryle so muche more money wth them, and Be Jamin. And rose vp, went downe to Egypt and presented themselves to Joseph. When Joseph sawe Ben Jampn wth them, he sayd to the ruler of hys house, brynge these men home, and slepe, and make ready: for they shall dyne wth me at noone. And the man did as Joseph bad, and brought them into Josephs house.

When they were broughte to Josephs house, they were asfayde and said, because of the money that came in our sakes mouthes at the fyrst tyme, are we brought, that they myghte pyke a quarell wth vs, and laye some thyng to our charge, to brynge vs in bondage and oure asses also. So came they to the man that was the ruler ouer Josephs house, and spake wth hym at the doore and sayed.

Syr, we came hyther at the fyrste tyme to bye foode, and as we came to an inne, and opened oure sakes: behold euery mans money was in hys sacke wth ful weight: But we haue brought it agayne wth vs, and other money haue we brought also in our handes, to bye fode, but we can not tell who put our money in our sakes. And he sayde: bee of good chere, feare not: your God, and the God of your fathers hath putte that treasure in your sakes, for I hadde your money. And he brought Simeon oute to them, and led them into Josephs house, and gaue them water to wash theyr fete, and gaue theyr asses prouender. And they made ready theyr presente, as agayne Joseph came at noone, for they hearde saye that they shoulde dyne there. When Joseph came home, they broughte the presente into the house to hym, whiche they had in theyr handes, and sel flat on the grounde before hym. And he welcommed them courteously, sayinge, is your father that old man whych ye told me of in good healt he? and is he yet aloue? They answered: thy seruante our father is in good helth, and is yet aloue. And they bowed themselves and fell to the grounde.

And he lyft vp his eyes, and behelde hys brother Ben Jamin his mothers sonne, & sayde: Is this your yongeste brother of whome ye sayde vnto me? And sayde: God be mercyfull vnto the my sonne. And Joseph made hast for his berr dyd melte vp on his brother, and sought wher to wepe, and entered into hys chamber, for to wepe ther. And he washed his face and came out and refrayned hym selfe, and bade sette breade on the table.

And they prepared for him by hym selfe, and for them by them selues, and for the Egyptians whych ate wth him by them selues, because the Egyptians may not eat bred wth the Hebrewes, for that is an abhominacion to the Egyptians. And they sat before him: eldest accordinge vnto his age, & the yongest accordinge vnto his youthe. And the me merueled among themselves. And they brought rewards vnto the from hym but

The xliiii. Chapter.

Joseph accuseth his brethren of theft. Juda becommeth surety for Ben Jamin.

And he commaunded the ruler of his house, sayinge: fyll the mens sakes with food, as muche as they can carry, and put euery mans money in his bag mouth, and put my syluer cuppe in the sakes mouth of the yongest and his corne money also. And he did as Joseph had said: And in the mornynge as soone as it was lycht, the men were let go wyth their asses. And when they were oute of the cypre and not yet farre passe, Joseph sayd vnto the ruler of his house: Arise and pursue after the men, and ouertake them, and saye vnto them. Wherefore haue ye rewarded euell for good? is that not the cup, of whiche my Lorde dryncketh, and doeth he not prophete therein? ye haue euill done, that ye haue done.

B And he ouertoke them and sayde the same wordes vnto them. And they answered hym: wherfore sayeth my Lorde, suche wordes? God forbyd that thy seruantes shulde do so. Beholde, the money whiche we sold in our sacks mouths, we brought agayne vnto the out of the lande of Canaan: howe then shoulde we steale oute of my Lordes house, eyther syluer or gold? wyth whomsoever of thy seruantes it be found let hym dye, and let vs also be my Lordes bondemen. And he sayde: Nowe therefore accordynge vnto youre wordes, he wyth whome it is founde, shal be my seruante: but ye shall be harmelesse.

I And forthwyth euery man toke doune his sacke to the ground and euery man opened his sacke. And he serched, frō y eldest to the yongest. And the cup was found in Ben Jamin's sacke. Then they rente their clothes, and laded euery man his asse, & went agayne vnto the cypre. And Juda and his brethren came to Josephs house, for he was yet there, and they fell before him on to y ground. And Joseph sayd vnto them: what dede is this whiche ye haue done? wythe ye not that suche a manne as I, can prophete?

Whys prophesying is the sovereyn that Egyptians comely vled, & not the effectuous & certain for knowledge of thynges to come, neyther the earnest rebuking of vices by the threatening of gods wrathfull displeasure for y same.

Then sayde Juda: what shall we say to my Lorde, what shal we speake, or what excuse can we make? God hathe founde oute the wyckednesse of thy seruants. Behold bothe we and he wyth whome the cuppe is found, are thy seruants. And he answered: God forbyd that I shoulde do so, the man wyth whome the cuppe is founde, he shal be my seruante: but goo ye in peace home to youre father.

Then Juda went vnto him and sayd: ob my Lorde, let thy seruante speake a word in my lordes eare, and he not worthe wyth thy seruante: for thou arte euen as Pharaoh. My Lorde asked his seruante saying:

haue ye a father or a brother? And we answered my lorde: we haue a father that is olde, and a younge ladde whiche he begat in his age: and the brother of the sayd lad is dead, and he is all that is left of that mother. And his father loueth him. Then said I my lorde vnto his seruantes, brynge him vnto me, that I may set myne eyes vpon hym. And we answered my Lorde, that the lad could not go from his father, for if he should leue his father, his father were but a dead man. Then saidest thou vnto thy seruants: *onles your yongest brother come with you, loke that ye se my face no more.

And when we came vnto thy seruante oure father, we shewed hym what my lord hadde sayde. And when our father sayde vnto vs, go agayne, and bye vs a lytle fode: we sayde, that wee coulde not go.

Neuerthelesse your yongest brother go wyth vs, then wyll we go, for we may not se the mannes face excepte oure yongeste brother come wyth vs. Then sayde thy seruante oure father vnto vs: Ye knowe that my wyf bare me two sonnes. And the one went out frō me, and it is sayd that he is torne in peaces of wyld beasts, and I sawe him not sence. If ye shal take this also awaye from me, and some my fortune happen vpon hym, *ye shall brynge my graue head, wyth sorowe vnto the graue.

Nowe therefore when I come to thy seruante my father, if the lad be not with me: seing that his lyfe hangereth by the laddes lyfe, then as soone as he seeth that the ladde is not come, he shal dye. So shall we thy seruantes, brynge the graue heade of thy seruante oure father, wyth sorow vnto the graue. For if thy seruante, became surety for the lad, vnto my father, and sayde: * If I brynge hym not to the agayne, I wyll beare the blame all my lyfe longe. Nowe therefore lette me thy seruante, remayne here for the ladde, and be my Lordes bondman: and lette the ladde goo home wyth his brethren. For how can I go vnto my father, and the ladde not wyth me? lest I shoulde se the wretchednes that shal come on my father.

The xlv. Chapter.

Joseph maketh him selfe knowne vnto his brethren and sendeth for his father.

And Joseph coulde no longer refraine before al them y stode about him, but commaunded that they shoulde go all out from hym, and that there shoulde be no man wyth hym, whyle he vttered him selfe vnto his brethren. And he wept alowde soo that the Egyptians, and the house of Pharaoh hearde it. And he sayed vnto his brethren: I am Joseph, doeth my father yet lyue? But his brethren coulde not aunswere hym, for they were abashed at his presence. And Joseph sayed vnto his brethren: come neare to me, and they came neare. And he fell on his brother Ben Jamins neck and wept, & Ben Jamin wept on hys necke. Mozeouer he kissed all his brethzen, & wept vpon the. And after that, his brethze talcked with him. And when the tidinges were brought to pharaos house, that Josephs brethzen were come, it pleased pharao well, and all his seruauntes.

E And pharao spake vnto Joseph: say vnto thy brethzen, this do pe: lade poure beastes, & get you hence. And when pe be come vnto the lande of Canaan, take poure father, and poure households, and come vnto me, and I wyl geue pou the beste of the lande of Egypte, and pe shall eate the fat of the lande. And commaunded also. Thys do pe: take charettes with you, oute of the lande of Egypte, for poure chyliden, and for pour wpues: and bringe poure father, and come. Also, regarde not pour stuffe, for the goodes of all the lande of Egypte shall be yours.

F And the children of Israel byd accordyngly. And Joseph gaue them charettes at the commaundemente of pharao, and gaue them vntayle also, to spende by the way. And he gaue vnto eche of the, charge of rayment: but vnto Ben Jamin, he gaue thre hundred peces of spluer, and spue charge of rayment. And vnto his father he sent lykewise ten asses laden with good out of Egypt, and ten she asses laden with corne, bread and meate: to serue hys father by the waye. So sente he hys brethzen awaye, and they departed. And he sayd vnto theym: see that pe fail not oute by the waye.

And they departed from Egypte, and entered the land of Canaan, and came to Jacob their father, and tolde hym, saying: Joseph is yet alpye, and is gouernour ouer al the lande of Egypt. And Jacobs hert was troubled, but he beleued the not. And they tolde him all the wordes of Joseph, whych he had sayd vnto them. But when he sawe the charettes which Joseph had sent to carpe him, then hys spirites reuiued. And Israel sayde: I haue ynough, if Joseph my sonne be yet alpye: I wyl go and se hym, or that I dye.

And Joseph tooke a parte of his brethren, euen fyue of them, & presented them vnto Pharao. And Pharao sayed vnto his brethren: what is your occupacion? And they sayed vnto Pharao: shepherds are thy seruantes, both we & also our fathers. They said moze ouer vnto Pharao: for to * soiozne in þ land are we come, for thy seruantes haue no pasture for their shepe, so soze is þ famishmete in the land of Canaan. Now therfore lette thy seruantes dwell in the land of Gosan. And Pharao said vnto Joseph: thy father & and thy brethren are come vnto the. The land of Egypte is open before the: In the best place of the lande, make both thy father and thy brethren dwelle: And euen in the lande of Gosan let them dwell. Moze ouer if thou knowe anye men of actiuite amonge them, make them rulers ouer my catell. And Joseph broughte in Jacob hys father, and set him before Pharao. And Jacob blessed Pharao. And Pharao asked Jacob, howe old art thou? And Jacob said vnto Pharao: the daies of my (a) pilgrimage, are an hundred and thirtie yeres. Ifewe and euill haue the dayes of my life bene, & haue not atteyned vnto the yeres of the lyfe of my fathers, in the daies of their pilgrimages. And Jacob (b) blessed Pharao, and went oute from him. And Joseph prepared dwellinges for his father and hys brethren, and gaue them possessiouns in the lande of Egypte, in the beste of the land: euen in the lande of Ramesses, as Pharao commaunded. And Joseph made prouisioun for hys father, hys brethren and all hys fathers householde, as ponge chyldren are fed with breade.

There was no breade in al the lande, for the derth was excedynge soze: so þ the land of Egypte, and the lande of Canaan, were famished, by the reason of the dearth. And Joseph gathered togyther all the moneye that was founde in the lande of Egypte, and of Canaan, for the corne whych they boughte: and he layd vp the moneye in Pharaos house. When money fayled in the land of Egypte, and of Canaan, all the Egypcians came vnto Joseph, and sayd: geue vs sustenance: wherfore sufferest thou vs to dye before the? for our money is spent. The sayed Joseph: brynge youre cattell, and I wyl geue you for your cattell, if ye be without money. And they broughte theyr cattell vnto Joseph. And he gaue them bread for horses and shepe, and oren and asses: so he fed them wth breade, for all theyr cattell, that yere.

When that yere was ended, they came vnto hym the nexte yere, and sayed vnto hym: we wyl not hyde it from my lord, how that we haue neither money nor cattell, for my lord, there is no moze left for my lord but oure bodyes, and our landes. Wherefore latest thou vs dye before thynne eyes, & the land to go to naughte? bpe vs and oure landes for breade: and let both vs and oure landes be bonde to Pharao. The Egypt for pharao. For the Egyptians sold every man his lande, because the derth was sore at their land vnto them: and so the land became (c) pharaos. And he appointeth the people vnto phyties, from one syde of Egypt vnto the other: onely the lande of prestes boughte he not. For ther was an ordinaunce made by pharao for the prestes, that they shoulde eat that which was appointed vnto them: whych pharao had geuen them, wherfore they solde not theyr landes.

Then Joseph sayde vnto the folke: behold I haue bought you this dape, & poure landes for pharao. Take there sede, & goe sow the land. And of the encrease ye shall geue the fyfte part vnto pharao, and. iiii. partes shalbe poure owne for sede to sowe the felde: and for you, and them of poure householdes, and for your children, to eat. And they answered: Thou hast saued our lyues. Let vs fynd grace in the syght of my Lord, and let vs be pharaos seruauntes. And Joseph made it a lawe ouer the lande of Egypte vnto this dape: that men muste geue pharao the fyfte part, except the land of prestes only, which was not bound vnto pharao.

And Israel dwelt in Egypt: euen in the countrepe of Bosan. And they hadde theyr possessions therein, and they grew and multiplied exceedingly. Moreover Jacob lyued in the lande of Egypte. xlii. yeres, so that the hole age of Jacob was, an hundred, and. xlii. yeres.

When the tyme drew nye, that Israel must die, he sent for his sonne Joseph, and sayde vnto him: If I haue founde grace in thy syght, put thy hande vnder my thye, and deale mercifully and truly wth me, that thou burye my not in Egypte: but let me lye by my fathers, and cary me oute of Egypt, and bury me in their burial. And he answered: I wil do as thou hast saied. And he sayd & swaie vnto me. And he swaie vnto hym: And then Israel worshipped the Worde, and bowed hym vnto the beddes heade.

The. xlviii. Chapter.
Jacob lyeth sycke. He despyeth Ephraim and Manasses for hys sonnes, and blesseth them.

After these deedes, tydings were broughte vnto Joseph, that hys father was sycke. And he toke with him his two sonnes, Manasses and Ephraim. When it was saied vnto Jacob: beholde, thy sonne Joseph cometh vnto the. And Israel toke hys strength vnto him, and laye vpon the bedde, and sayde vnto Joseph: God almighty appeared vnto me at Lus, in the lande of Canaan, and blessed me, and saied vnto me: beholde, I will make the growe, and will multiply the, and will make a great nombre of people of the, and will geue this land vnto thee, and vnto thy sede after the, for an euerlastyng possession.

Nowe therfore thy two sonnes Manasses and Ephraim, whiche were borne vnto the before I came to the into Egypte, shalbe myne, euen as Ruben and Simeon shall they be vnto me. And the children whych thou gettest after them, shalbe thine owne: but shalbe called with the names of theyr brethren in their enheritaunces. And after I came frome Mesopotamia, Rachel dyed vpon my hande in the lande of Canaan, by the waye: when I hadde but a felde bread to go vnto Ephrate. And I buried hyr there in the way to Ephrat, which is now called Bethlehem.

And Israel beheld Josephs sonnes, and saied: what are these? And Joseph sayd vnto his father: they are my sons, which God hath geuen me here. And he saied: bring the to me, and let me blesse them. And the eyes of Israel were dimme for age, so that he coulde not well see. And he broughte them to him, and he kissed them, and embraced the. And Israel saied vnto Joseph: I wold not haue thought, that I should haue sene thy face, and yet lo: God hath shewed it me, and also thy sede. And Joseph toke the awaye from his lappe, and they fell on the ground before hym.

When Joseph saw that his father layde his right hand vpon the head of Ephraim, it displeased him. And he lift vp his fathers hande, to haue remoued it from Ephraims head vnto Manasses head, and saied vnto hys father: Not so my father, for this is my eldest. Put thy right hand vpon his heade. And his father wold not, but sayd: I knowe it well my sonne, I knowe it well. He shall be also a people, and shalbe great. But of a truthe, his yonger brother shalbe greater then he, and hys sede shalbe full of people. And he blessed them, sayinge: At the ensample of these, the Israelites shall blesse, and saye: God make the as Ephraim and as Manasses. Thus set he Ephraim before Manasses.

And Israel sayd vnto Joseph: behold, I dye. And God shalbe with you, and bringe you agayne vnto the land of your fathers. Moreover I geue vnto the a porcyon of lande aboue thy brethren, which I gat out of the hands of the Amorites, with my sword and with my bowe.

A little, & deliuereth not hys people in an houre, that boeth the patience of hys electe, and also the worldely wit, and wylle policye of the wycked, wherewith they do fyghte agaynst God, myghte appeare.

Marke the longe sufferynge and losse patience of Moyses, and howe he toucheth the people and is euer betwene the wrath of God and the, and is readye to lyue and dye with them, and to be put out of the booke that God had wyrtten for theyr sake (as Paule for hys brethren, Romayns. ix.) and howe he taketh hys owne wylles pacientelye: and neuer auengeth hym selfe. And make not Moyses a fygure of Christ with Rochester: but an ensample vnto all Wyntes, and to all that are in authorite, howe to rule vnto Goddes pleasure, and vnto theyr owne profit. For there is not a perfecter lyfe in this worlde, boeth to the honoure of God, and profit of hys neyghboure, nor yet a greater crosse, then to rule chrystienlye. And of Aaron also, see that thou make no fygure of Christe, vntill he come vnto hys sacrificynge: but an example vnto al preachers of Gods worde, that they adde nothyng vnto Goddes worde, or take oughte therefro.

Note also, howe God sendeth hys promyse to the people, and Moyses confirmeth it with myracles, and the people beleue. But when temptacion cometh, they fall into vnbelyfe, and fewe byde standynge. When thou seest that all be not Chrysten that wyl be so called, and that the crosse trieth the true from the falsed, for if the crosse were not, Chyste shoulde haue disciples ynowe. Wherefore also thou seest, what an excellent gyfte of God true fayeth is, and impossible to be had withoute the spyrite of God. For it is aboue all naturall power that a manne in tyme of temptacion when God scourgeth hym, shoulde beleue then stedfastlye howe that God toucheth him, and careth for hym, and hath prepared all good thynges for hym, and that that scourgyng is an earnest that god hath electe and cholen hym.

Note howe oft Moyses styrred them vp to beleue and truste in God, puttynge them in remembraunce alwaye in tyme of temptation, of the myracles and wondrous that God hath wroughte before tyme in theyr eye syghte. How diligently also forbiddeth he al that might withdrawe theyr hertes from God: to put oughte to Gods worde, to take oughte from it, commaundyng to do that onely that is ryght in the sight of the Lorde, that they shoulde make no maner ymage, to knele downe before it: yea, that they shoulde make none aultare of hewed stone, for feare of Images, to see the heathen Idolatries vtterlye, and to destroye theyr Idoles, and cut downe theyr groues where they worshipped, and that they shoulde not take the Daughters of them vnto theyr sonnes, nor gyue theyr daughters to the sonnes of the, and that whosoever moued any of them to worshyppe false Goddes, howe soeuer nyghe of kynne he were, they muste accuse hym, and byng hym to death, yea, and wheresoeuer they heard of man, woman, or Cytie, that worshipped false Goddes, they shoulde seea them, and destroye the Cytie for euer, and not buylde it agayne, and all because they shoulde worshyp nothyng but God, nor putte confidence in anye thyng, saue in hys worde.

Yea, and howe warneth he to beware of wythcraftes, sorcerye, enchaunement, necromancye, and all craftes of the Deuill, and of dyasmers, southsayers, and of miracle doers to de-stroye the woorde, and that they shoulde suffer none such to liue.

Thou wylte haplye saye, they tell a man the trueth. What then? God wyl that we care not to knowe what shal come. He wyl haue vs too care onely to kepe his commaundementes, and to commit all chaunces vnto hym. He hath promysed to care for vs, and to keepe vs from all yll. All thynges are in hys hand, he can remedye al thynges, and wyl for hys trueth sake, if we praye hym. In hys promyses onely wyl he haue vs trust, and ther rest and to seeke no farther.

Howe also doeth he prouoke them to loue, euer rehercyng the benefites of god done to the already, and goodly promyses sheweth to come. And howe goodly lawes of loue geueth he, to helpe one an other, and that a man shoulde not hate hys neyghboure in hys herte, but loue hym as hym selfe. Leuiticus. xix. And what a charge geueth he in euery place, ouer hys poore and nedie, ouer the stranger, frendles and wydowes? And when he desyeth to shewe mercye, he reherceth with all, the benefytes of God done to them at there nede, that they myght se a cause at the least waye in god to shewe mercye of verie loue vnto theyr neyghbours at theyr nede.

Also there is no lawe so symple in appa- raunce thowwe out the frue bookes of Moyses, but that there is a greate reason of the making thereof, if a man searche diligently. As that a manne is forbydde to seeth a kynde in hys mothers mylke, moueth vs vnto compassion, and to be pytfull. As doeth also that a manne shoulde not offre the syre or dame and the yonge boeth in one dape. Leuiticus. xxi. For it myghte seme a cruell thyng, in as muche as hys mothers mylke is as it were hys bloude, wherefore God wyl not haue hym sodde therein: but wyl haue a man shewe curtesye, vpon the verie beastes. And in an other place he commaundeth that we molle not the Ore that treadeth out the corne (which maner of thyring is vled in hote countreys) and that because we shoulde muche rather be liberall and kynde vnto menne than do vs seruyce. O happye God woulde haue none suche wanton meate vled among the people. For the kynde of it selfe is nothyng, and the gootes mylke is restauratyue, and boeth together myght be to ranche, and therfore forbydden, some other lyke cause there was.

Of the ceremonies, sacrifices, and Tabernacle, with all hys gloire and pompe, vnderstand that they were not permytted onely, but also commaunded of God, to leade the people in the shadowe of Moyses and nyghte of the olde testament, vntill the lyght of Chyrt and dape of the newe testament were come. As children are led in the phantasies of pouth vntill the descrecion of mans age be come vpon them. And all was done to kepe them from Idolatrye.

The tabernacle was ordeyned to the entent they myght haue a place appoynted them to do theyr sacrifices openly in the syghte of the people, and namelye the Priestes whyche wayted thereon: that is myght be sene that they dyd all thynges accordynge to Goddes worde, and not after the Idolatrye of theyr owne Imaginacion. And the costynesse of the Tabernacle, and the beautey also pertaynyng therunto, that they shoulde se nothyng amonge the heathen but that they shoulde se thynges more beautiful at home, because they shoulde not be moued to folowe them.

And in lyke maner, the dyuerse fashyons of sacrifices and ceremonies was to occupy theyr myndes, that they shoulde haue no luste to fo-

lowe the heathen and the multitude of theym was, that they should haue so much to do in keepinge them, that they should haue no leasure to imagine other of their owne: yea and that gods word might be by in all that they dyd, that they might haue theyr faith and trust in God, which he can not haue that foloweth either hys owne inuencions, or traditions of mennes makinge wythout gods word.

Finally, God hath two Testaments: the old and the newe: The olde testament is those temporall promyses, whych God made the chyldren of Israell of a good lande, and that he woulde defende the, and of wealth and prosperitie, and of temporall blessinges, of whych thou readest ouer all the lawe of Moyses, but namely. Levitic. xvi. and Deuter. xxi. and the anoyntinge of all threatenynge and curses, of whych thou readest lyke wyse euery where, but specially in the two booke aboue rehearsed, and the anoyntinge of all punishment ordeyned for the transgressours of the lawe.

And the olde testament was built altogether vpon the keepinge of the lawe and ceremonies, and was the rewarde of keepinge them in this lyfe onely, and reached no farther then this lyfe and this worlde. As thou readest Levitic. xxi. A man that doeth the Mal lyue therein, which texte Paule rehearseth. Ro. x. and Galath. iii. That is, he that keepeth them, shall haue his life gloriouse, accordyng to all the promyses and blessinges of the lawe, and shall auoyde both all temporall punishments of the lawe, and all the threatenynge and cursynge also. For neyther the lawe euen of the ten commaundements, nor yet the ceremonies, iustified in the herte before God, or purgged vnto the lyfe to come. In so muche that Moyses at hys death, euen fouretye yeres after the lawe and ceremonies were geuen, complayneth sayng. God hath not geuen you an herte to vnderstande, nor eyes to se, nor eares to heare vnto this daye. As who shoulde haue sayed: God hath geuen you ceremonies, but ye knowe not the vse of theim, and hath geuen you a lawe, but God hath not wyrtten it in youre hertes.

Wherefore serueth the lawe then, if it geue vs no power to do the lawe? Paule answereth the, that it was geuen to vnter synne onely, and to make it appeare. As a cosolye is layed vnto an olde soze, not to heale it, but to styre it vp, and make the dyscase alpye, that a man myghte feeble in what sorow he is, and howe nyghe death and not aware, and to make awaye vnto the healyng plaster.

Euen so, sayeth Paule. Gala. iii. The lawe was geuen bycause of transgression (that is to make the synne alpye, that it myght be felte and seene) vntyll the seide came vnto whom it was promysed, that is to saye, vntyll the chyldren of sayth came, or vntyll Christe that seide in whom God promysed Abraham, that all nacyns of the worlde shoulde be blessed, came.

That is, the lawe was geuen to vnter synne, death, damnacion, and curse, and to dyspue vnto Christe, in whom forgiveness, lyfe, iustifyinge and blessinges were promysed, that we myghte se so great loue of God to vs warde in Christe, that we henceforth overcome wyth kyndenes, myghte loue agayne, and of loue kepe the commaundementes.

Howe he that goeth aboute to quiete hys conscience, and to iustify hym selfe wyth the lawe, doeth but heale hys woundes wyth freatyng cosoleis. And he that goeth aboute to purchase grace wyth ceremonies, doeth but sucke the ale pole to quenche hys thyrste, in as muche as the ceremonies were not geuen to iustifye the herte, but to signifye the iustifyinge, and forgiveness that is in Christes bloude.

Of the ceremonies that they iustifye not, thou readest. Hebrues. x. It is impossible that synne shoulde be done awaye wyth the bloud of oxen and goates. And of the lawe thou readest Galat. iii. If there had ben a lawe geuen, I coulde haue quickened or gyuen lyfe: then hadde rygheuousnes or iustifyinge come by the lawe in dede. Howe the lawe not onely quickeneth not the herte, but also woundeth it wyth conscience of synne, and ministreth death and damnacion vnto hys. i. Cor. xii. so that the must nedes dye and be dampned, excepte the synne other remedye. So farre it is of that he is iustified or holpen by the lawe.

The newe testament is those euerlasting promyses, whych are made vs in Christ the Lord thowowe out all the scripiture. And that Testament is buyt on sayth, and not on workes.

For it is not sayd of that testamente: He that worketh shall lyue: but he that beleueth shall lyue. As thou readest. John. iii. God so loued the world, that he gaue hys onely begotten son, that none that beleue in hym shoulde perishe, but haue lyfe euerlastyng.

And when this Testament is preached and beleued, the spyrte entereth the herte, and quickeneth it, and geueth it lyfe, & iustifyeth hys. The spyrte also maketh the lawe a lyuely thyng in the herte, so that a man byngeth forth good workes of hys owne accorde wythout compulsion of the lawe, without feare of threatenynge, or cursynge: yea, and wythout all maner respects or loue vnto anye temporall pleasure, but of the verie power of the spyrte, receyued thowowe sayeth, as thou readest. John. i. He gaue them power to be the sonnes of God, in that they beleued on hys name.

And of that power they worke, so that he whych hath the spyrte of Christe, is now no more a chyld: he neyther learneth nor worketh anye longer for payne of the rodde, or for feare of bugges or pleasure of apples, but doeth all thynges of hys owne courage. As Christ sayth John. vii. He that beleueth on me, shall haue riuers of lyuynge waters flowynge oute of hys bealy. That is all good workes, and all gistes of grace spryng out of hym naturallie, and by theyr owne accorde. Thou neadest not to wreste good workes out of hym, as a manne woulde wyngge veruice oute of crabbes. Hare, they flowe naturallie oute of hym, as sprynges oute of rockes.

The newe Testament was euer euen from the begynnynge of the worlde. For there were alwayes promyses of Christ to come, by sayth in whych promyses, the electe were then iustified inwardly before God, as outwardly before the worlde, by keepinge of the lawe and ceremonies.

And in conclusyon, as thou seest blessinges or cursynge folowe the breakynge or keepinge of the lawe of Moyses: euen so naturallie do the blessinges or cursynge folowe the breakynge or keepinge of the lawe of nature, out of whych spryng all our temporall lawes. So that wher the people kepe the temporall lawes of theyr lande, temporal prosperitie, and all maner of suche temporall blessinges as thou readest of in Moyses, do accompany them and fall vpon theym. And contrarywyse, when they synne vnto h. iiii. punished.

punished, and when the rulers haue no respect vnto equitie or honestye, then God sendeth bys curse among them, as hunger, dearth, moztren, bannynge, pestilence, warre, oppressyon, wyth straunge and wouderfull dysleases, and newe kyndes of mylfortune and euyl lucke.

If any man aske me, sayng that sayth Iustifieth me, why I worke? I aunswere. Loue compelleth me. For as long as my soul feleth what loue God hath shewed me in Christe, I can not but loue God agayne, and bys wyll and coman- dementes, and of loue worke them, nor they can seme harde vnto me. I thynke not my selfe bet- ter for my workynge, nor seke heauen nor an hygher place in heauen because of it. For a Chri- stian worketh to make his weake brother per- fect, and not to seke an hygher place in hea- uen. I compare not my selfe vnto hym that wor- keth not. No, he that worketh not to daye, shall haue grace to turne and to worke to morowe, and in the meane tyme, I praye hym and praye for hym: If I had wrought the wyll of God these thousand yeaeres, & an other had wroughte the wyll of the deuyl as longe, and thys daye he turne and be as well wyllynge to suffer wyth Christ as I: he hath thys daye ouer taken me, & is as farre come as I, and shall haue as muche rewarde as I, and I enuye hym not but reioyce most of al, as of a lost treasure found.

For if I be of God, I haue these thousande yeaeres suffered to wyne hym for to come and prayse the name of God wyth me. These thousand yeaeres, I haue prayed, sorow- ed, longed, sighed, and sought for that whych I haue thys daye found, and therfore reioyce with al my myght, and prayse God for bys grace and merce.

The seconde Booke of Moyles, called

Exodus, or departure.

The fyrste Chapter.

The chyldren of Jacob are numbred. The new Pharao oppresseth them. The acte of the Godly mydwymes,

Gen. xlii. b

THESE are the names of the * chyldre of Israel, whiche came to Egypt with Jacob, e- uery man with his housholde: Ruben, Sime- on, Levi, Iu- da, Isachar, Zabulon, Ben Jamin, Dan, Rephthali, Gad and Aser. All these soules procedynge out of the loynes of Jacob, were thre score and ten, whereas Joseph was in Egypte allreadye.

When Joseph was deade, and all hys bre- thren, and al that generacion, the * chyldre of Israel grew, encreased, multiplied, and waxed very myghtye: so that the land was full of them.

Then there rose vp a new kynge in Egypt which knew not Joseph. And he sayed vn- to his folke: behold the people of the chyl- dren of Israel are mo & mightier than we. Come, let vs playe wylfely with them: lest they multiplye, and so (if there chaunce any warre) they ioyne them selues to oure ennemies and fight againste vs, and so get them out of the land.

And he set taskemaisters ouer them, to kepe them vnder with burdens. And they buylt vnto Pharao ctytes of defense: Phn- ton and Rameses. But the more they vex- ed them, the more they multiplyed & grew: so that they abhorred the chyldren of Is- rael. And the Egyptians helde the chyldre of Israel in bondage withoute merce, and made theyr lyues bytter vnto them, wyth cruell labour in claye, and bypcke, and all maner worke in the fieldes, and in al ma- ner serupce, whych they caused them to worke, cruelly.

And the kynge of Egypte sayd vnto the midwymes of the Ebryes wmen, of which the ones name was Sephora, & the other Phua: Whē ye do the offpce of a midwife, to the women of the Ebryes, and se in the byrth tyme that it is a boye, kyll it. But if it be a mayde, let it lyue. Notwithstandynge the mydwymes feared God, and did not as the kynge of Egypte commaunded them: but saued the men chyldren.

Then the kynge of Egypte called for the mydwymes, and saide vnto them: why haue ye delt on thys maner, and haue saued the men chyldren? And the midwymes aunsw- red Pharao, that the Ebryes wemen were not as the wemen of Egypt: but were stur- dy womenne, and were delpuered afore the mydwymes came at them. And God there- fore dealte well with the mydwymes. And the people multiplyed & waxed very myghty. And because the mydwymes feared God, he made (a) them houses.

Then Pharao charged al his people, say- inge: All the menchyldren that are borne, caste into the ryuer, and saue the maidchyl- dren alpye.

The. ii. Chapter.

Moses is borne, and beyng cast into the flag- ges, is taken vp of Pharao's daughter. He kyl- leth the Egyptians, he fleeth and taketh a wife. The Israelites crye vnto the Lorde.

And therwēt a man of * the house of Levi. And toke a daughter of Levi. And the wyfe conceived and bare a sonne. And when she saw that it was a pro- pre chylde, she hyd him for. iii. moneths. But whē she could no longer hide him, she toke a basket made of bulrushes, and dawbed it with slime and pytche, and laid the chylde therein, and put it in the flagges by the ry- uers bypcke. And his sister stode a farre of, to wytte what would come of it. * And the daughter of Pharao came doune to the ry- uer to wash hyr selfe, & hir maydes walked a longe alonge by the ryuers syde. And when she sawe the basket amonge the flagges, she sente one of her maydens, and caused it to be fet. And when she had opened it she saw the chylde, and behold: the babe wept. And she had compassion on it and said: it is one of the Ebyues chylde. Then sayd hys sister vnto Pharaos daughter: shal I go and cal vnto the a nurse of the Ebyues women, to nurse the that chylde? Pharaos daughter answered. So thy wape. And the mayd ran, & called the chylde's mother. The Pharaos daughter sayed vnto her. Take thys chylde awaye, and nurse it for me. And the woman toke the chylde, and nursed it vp.

And when the chylde was growen, shee brought it vnto Pharaos daughter, and it was made her son, and she called it *Moy= ses, because (sayde she) I toke hym out of the water. And it happened in these daies, whē Moy= ses was waxed great, that he wēt out vnto hys brethren, and looked on theyr burdens, & spied an Egipcian smyttinge one of hys brethren an Ebyue. And he looked rounde aboute, and when he saw that there was no man by, he *slew the Egip= cian, and hys hym in the sande. And he wēt forth the nexte daye: and beholde, two E= byues stroue together. And he sayde vnto hym that dyd the wronge: Wherefore smyttest thou thyne neyghboure? And he answered: who hath made the ruler or a iuge ouer vs: intendest thou to kyll me, as thou kylldest pesterdaye the Egypcian? Then Moy= ses feared and sayde: Truly the thing is knowen. And Pharaos hearde of it, and wente aboute to sle Moy= ses: but he fled from Pharaos, and dwelte in the lande of Madyan, and he satte downe by a welles syde.

The preast of Madian had. vii. daughters whiche came and drew water, and fylled the troughes, for too water theyr fathers shepe. And the shepherds came and droue the maydens awaye: but Moy= ses stode vp, and helped them, and watered their shepe. When they came to *Raguell their father he said: how happeneth it that ye are come so soone to day? They answered: An Egypcian deliuered vs from the shepherds, and so drew vs water, and watered the shepe. And he sayde vnto hys daughters. Where is he? why haue ye lefte the man? So cal hym that he maye eat bread. And Moy= ses was contente to dwell wth y man. And he gaue Moy= ses zephora hys daughter whiche bare a son, and he called hym Gers= son: for he sayde: I haue bene a straunger in a straunge lande. And she bare yet ano= ther sonne whom he called Elieser, sayinge The God of my father is mine helper, and hath rid me out of the handes of Pharaos.

And it chaunced in prolesse of tyme, that the kynge of Egypte dyed, and the chylde of Israell syghed by the reason of labour, and cryed. And theyr complainte ascended vnto God from the labour. And God re= meembred hys promyse wth Abraham, Isaac and Jacob. And God *looked vpon y chylde of Israell, and knewe them.

The.iii. Chapter.

Moy= ses kepeth shepe, god appereth vnto him in a bush, and sendeth him to the chylde of Israell, and to Pharaos the oppressour.

Moy= ses kepeth the shepe of Jethro hys father in lawe, prieste of Madian, & he droue the flocke to y backside of A the wylterneffe, and came to the moun= tapne of God, Horeb. And the aungell of the Lorde appeared vnto hym, in a flame of fyre, out of a bush. And he percepued that the bush burned w fyre, & consumed not. Then Moy= ses sayde: I wyl goo hence, and sethys greate syght, how it cometh that the bush burneth not. And when the lorde sawe that he came forth to see, he called hym out of the bush, and sayd: Moy= ses, Moy= ses. He answered, I am at hande. And he sayde: come not hyther, but put thy shoes of thy fete: for the place whereon thou standest is holpe grounde. And he sayde: I am the God of thy father: the God of Abraham the God of Isaac, and the God of Jacob. And Moy= ses hid his face, for he was afraid to loke vpon God.

Then the Lorde sayed: I haue suerlye sene the trouble of my people whiche are in Egypt, and haue hearde their crye, whiche they haue of their taskmasters. For I knowe theyr sorowe and am come downe to delouer them out of the handes of the Egipcians, and to byng them out of that lande, vnto a good lande, and a large, and vnto a lande that floweth wth *mylke and honye: euen vnto the place of the Cananites, Hethites, Amourites, Pherezites, Heuites, and of the Jebusites. Now ther= fore behold the complaynt of y chylde of Israell is come vnto me, and I haue also sene the oppression, where wth the Egyp= cians oppresse them. But come, I wil send the to Pharaos, that thou mayst byng my people the chylde of Israell out of Egypt. And Moy= ses sayd vnto God: what am I to go vnto Pharaos, and to bynge the chyl= dren of Israell out of Egypt? And he sayd: I wyl be wth the. And thys shalbe a tokē vnto the, that I haue sent the: After that thou haste broughte the people out of Egypte, ye shal serue God vpon thys moun= tapne.

Then sayd Moy= ses to God: when I come vnto the chylde of Israell, and saye vnto them: The God of your fathers hath set me vnto you, and they saye vnto me, what is hys name, what answer shall I geue them? Then sayde God vnto Moy= ses: *I am that I am: And he sayde: Thys shalte thou saye vnto the chylde of Israell: He that is, dyd sende me vnto you. And God spake further vnto Moy= ses: Thus shalte thou say vnto the chylde of Israell: y lord god of your fathers, the god of Abraham, god of Isaac, and the god of Jacob, hath sente me vnto you: thys is my name for euer, and thys is my memoriall thowse out al generacions. Woe therefore and gather the elders of Israel together, and say vnto them: The Lord God of your fathers, the God of Abraham, the God of Isaac, & the God of Jacob, appeared vnto me, and sayd: I haue visited and sene both you and that which is done to you in Egypt. And I haue sayed it, that I wyl brynge you out of the tribulacion of Egypt vnto the land of the Cananytes, Hethytes, Amozites, & herrezites, & euites and Jebusites, a lande that floweth with mylke and honny.

If it come to passe & they heare thy voice then go, both thou and the elders of Israel vnto the king of Egypt, and say vnto him: The Lord God of the Ebrues hath called vs: let vs go therfore thye dayes iorney in to the wylernes, & we maye sacrifice vnto the Lorde our God. Notwithstanding I am sure that the king of Egypt wil not let you go, vnles it be wth a myghty had. I wil therfore stretch out mine hande, and smyte Egypt with al my wonders which I wil do therein. And after that, he wil let you go. And I wyl get this people fauoure in the sight of the Egipcians: so that whē ye go, ye shall not go emptye: but euerye wyfe shall borrow of her neyghboure, & of her & so iourneth in her house, Jewels of siluer & gold and raiment. #### The. iiii. Chapter.

Moses receyueh signes of hys callynge and was sente into Egypt. Hys wyfe zephora circumciseth her son. Aaron meeteth with Moses, Moses taketh hys leaue of hys father in lawe.

Moses answered & sayd: Se, they wil not beleue me nor herken vnto my voyce but wil say, the lord hath not appeared vnto the. Then the Lord sayd vnto him: What is that in thyne hande? & he sayd, a rod. And he sayd: cast it on & ground. he dyd cast it, and it turned vnto a serpente. And Moses ran away from it. And the lord sayd vnto Moses: put forth thine hande, & take it by the tayle. And he put forth hys hand and caught it, and it became a rod agayne in hys hande and this shalte thou do sayth the lord, that they maye beleue that the Lorde God of their fathers, the God of Abraham, the God of Isaac, & the God of Jacob hath appeared vnto the.

Signes.

And the Lord sayed furthermore vnto him thrust thyne hand into thy bosome. And he thrust his hand into hys bosome, and toke it out. And beholde, hys had was leporous euen as snowe. And he sayd: put thyne had into thy bosom agayne. And he put his had into his bosome agayne, and plucked it out of his bosome, and beholde, it was touned agayne as hys other fleshe. If they wyl not beleue the, neyther heare the voyce of the spiste token: yet wyl they beleue the voyce of the seconde token. But if they wil not beleue the two signes, neither herken vnto thy voyce, then take of the water of the ryuer, and poure it vpon the drye land. And the water whiche thou takeste out of the ryuer, shall tourne to bloude vpon the drye lande.

And Moses sayd to the Lorde: Oh my Lord, I am not eloquent, neyther in tymes past, ne yet sence thou hast spoken vnto thy seruaunt: but I haue an impedimēt of speche, and am slowe tongued. And the lord sayd vnto hym: who hath made mans mouthe or who hath made the dum or the deaf, the seying or the blinde? haue not I & Lord? So therfore, and I will be with thy mouth and teach the what thou shalt say. But he sayd: oh my lord send I praye the whom thou wylt. And the Lord was angri wth Moses and sayd, I know Aaron thy brother the Leuite that he can speake. And mozeouer behold, he cometh to mete the, and when he seeth the, he wyl be glad in his herte. And thou shalt speake vnto hym and put the wordes in hys mouth, & I wyl be wth thy mouth and wth hys mouth, & wyl teach you what ye shall do. And he shall be thy spokelman vnto the people: he shall be thy mouth, and thou shalt be his god and take this rod in thy hande wherewyth thou shalt do myracles.

And Moses wente and retourned to Jethro his father in law agayne, and said vnto hym: let me go (I praye the) and return to my brethren whiche are in Egypt, that I maye se whether they be yet aloue. And Jethro sayde to Moses: go in peace. And the lord sayd vnto Moses in Madian: retorne agayne into Egypt for they are dead whiche wente aboute to kyll the. And Moses toke hys wyfe, and hys sonnes, and late them on an Asse, and retourned to Egypt and toke the rod of God in hys hand.

And the lord sayd to Moses: when thou art come to Egypt agayne, se that thou do all the wonders before Pharaos whiche I haue put in thy had: but I wyl harden hys herte so that he shall not let the people go. And tell Pharaos, thus sayeth the Lorde: Israel is myne eldest sonne, and therefore sayeth vnto the: Let my sonne go, that he maye serue me. If thou wilt not let hym go, behold, I wyl slep thyne eldest sonne.

And it chaunced by the way in the ynnie that the Lorde met hym, and woulde haue kyllled hym. The zephora toke a stone and circumcised her sonne, and fell at his fete, and sayde: a bloody husbnde art thou vnto me. And he let him go. She sayd a bloody husband, because of the circumcisid. Then sayd the Lorde vnto Aaron: go mete Moses in the wilderness. And he went and met hym in the mount of god, and kyssed hym. And Moses tolde Aaron all the wordes of the Lorde, whiche he hadde sente by hym and al tokens whiche he had charged him wth

The. v. Chapter.

Moſes and Aaron go vnto Pharaow. The people of Iſrael are oppreſſed more & more, and they crye out vpon Moſes and Aaron therfore.

Then Moſes and Aaron wente & tolde Pharaow, thus ſayth the Lorde God of Iſrael. Let my people go, that they may kepe holpe dape vnto me in the wylderneſſe. And Pharaow answered: What ſe lowe is the Lorde, that I ſhould heare hys voice for to let Iſraell go? I knowe not the Lorde, neyther wil let Iſrael go. And they ſaid: the God of the Hebrues hath met with vs: let vs go (we praye the) thre dapes iourney into the deſert, that we may ſacrifyce vnto the Lorde oure God: leſt he ſmite vs either with peſtilence, or w ſword. Then ſaid the kyng of Egypt vnto them: Wherefore do ye, Moſes and Aaron, let the people fro their worke? get you vnto poure labour. And Pharaow ſaid furthermore: be holde, ther is much people in the land, and ye make theym playe, and let their worke ſtande.

* He knoweth not the lord, & feareth hi not, neither beleueth in hi, but is as one, hauing nothing to do w him. Such as al hard herced, & greedy worldlings & paſſe not to tranſgreſſe gods commaundes for lucre ſake

And Pharaow commaunded the ſame dape the taſkemasters ouer the people, and the offycers ſaying: ſe that ye geue the people no more ſtrawe to make bricke with, as ye did in tyme paſſed: let them goo and gather ſtraw theſelues, and the numbze of bricke, w which they wer wont to make in tyme paſſed, laye vnto their charges alſo, & diminiſh nothing therof. For they be ydel, and therfore crye, ſaying: Let vs go and do ſacrifyce vnto our God. They muſte haue more worke laied vpon them, that they may labour therein, and then will they not turne theim ſelues to falſe wordes.

Then went the taſkemasters of the people & the offycers out, and told the people, ſaying: Thus ſayth Pharaow: I will geue you no more ſtraw, but go you ſelues, and gather you ſtrawe where ye can find it, yet that none of your labour be miniſhed. The people ſcattered abroad thorow oute all the lande of Egypte, for to gather theym ſtubbyll, to be in ſtede of ſtrawe.

And the taſkemasters haſted them forward, ſaying: Fulfill poure worke dape by day, euen as whē ſtraw was geue you. And the offycers of the chyldre of Iſrael, which Pharaows taſkemasters had ſet ouer them, were beaten. And it was ſaid vnto them: Wherefore haue ye not fulfilled your taſke in makynge bricke, both yeſterdape and to dape, as well as in tymes paſt.

Then wente the offycers of the chyldren of Iſrael, and complayned vnto Pharaow, ſaying: Wherefore dealeſt thou thus with thy ſeruauntes? there is no ſtrawe geuen vnto thy ſeruauntes, and yet they ſay vnto vs: make bricke. And lo, thy ſeruauntes are beaten, and thy people is foule intreated. And he answered: Ydell are ye, and therfore ye ſape: lette vs go and do ſacrifice vnto the Lorde. Soo therfore and worke, for there ſhall no ſtrawe be geuen you, and yet ſe that ye delpue the hole tale of bricke.

When the offycers of the chyldren of Iſrael ſawe them ſelfes in threwd caſe (in that he ſayde, ye ſhal miniſhe nothinge of your daylye makynge of bricke) then they met Moſes and Aaron, ſtandynge in theyr waye, as they came out from Pharaow, and ſayd vnto them: The Lorde loke vnto you and iudge, for ye haue made the ſauoure of vs ſynke in the ſighte of Pharaow, and of hys ſeruauntes, and haue put a ſwerde in to theyr handes to ſley vs.

Moſes returned vnto the Lorde, and ſayde: Lorde, wherefore dealeſt thou cruelly w this people: and wherefore haſt thou ſente me? For ſence I came to Pharaow to ſpeake in thy name, he hath fared foule with this folke, and yet thou haſt not delpued thy people at all. Then the lorde ſaid vnto Moſes: Howe ſhalt thou ſee what I will do vnto Pharaow, for with a mighty hande, ſhall he lette them goo, and wyth a mighty hande, ſhall he dypue them out of hys lande.

Wherefore ſape vnto the chyldren of Iſrael: I am the lorde, and will delpue you from the burdens of the Egypcyans, and wyll ryd you out of their bondage, and wil delpue you wyth a ſtretched oute arme, and wyth great iudgementes. And I will take you for my people, and will be to you a God. And ye ſhall knowe that I am the Lord your God, whych delpue you from the burdens of the Egypcyans. And Aaron toke Elizaba daughter of Aminadab and ſyſter of Rahabon to wyfe: whych bare him Nadab, Abihu, Eleazar & Jthamar. The chyldren of Korah: Aſſir, Elkana, and Abiaſaph: theſe are the kynredes of the Korahites. And Eleazar Aarons ſonne, toke him one of the daughters of Putuel to wife, whiche bare him ſime- has: theſe be the principall fathers of the Lewites, in their kynredes.

Theſe are that Aaron and Moſes to who the Lorde ſayd: cary the chyldren of Iſrael out of the land of Egypt, with their armies. Theſe are the ſame Moſes and Aaron, which ſpake to Pharaos kyng of Egypt, & they might bring the chyldren of Iſrael out of Egypt. And in the daye when the Lorde ſpake vnto Moſes in the lande of Egypte, he ſpake vnto him, ſayinge: I am the lord, ſe that thou ſpeake vnto Pharaos the kyng of Egypte, all that I ſape vnto the. And Moſes answered before the Lorde: I am of vncircumciſed lppes, howe ſhall Pharaos then geue me audience?

Thou ſhalte ſpeake all that I commaunde the, and Aaron thy brother ſhall ſpeake vnto Pharaos: that he ſend the chyldren of Iſrael out of his lande. But I wyl harden Pharaos herte, that I make multiplie my myracles and my woundes in the lande of Egypt. And yet Pharaos ſhal not hearken vnto you, that I may ſet myne hande vpon Egypte, and bringe out myne armys, euen my people the chyldren of Iſrael out of the lande of Egypte, with great iudgements. And the Egypciās ſhal know that I am the lord, when I haue ſtretched forth my hand vpon Egypt, & haue brought out the chyldren of Iſrael from them.

And the Lorde ſpake vnto Moſes and Aaron, ſaying: Whe Pharaos ſpeaketh vnto you, and ſaith: Shew a wondre, then ſhalt thou ſay vnto Aaron: Take the rodde, and caſte it before Pharaos, & it ſhall turne to a ſerpent. Then went Moſes and Aaron to Pharaos, and did as the Lorde had commaunded. And Aaron caſt forth his rod before Pharaos and hys ſeruauntes, and it turned to a ſerpente. The plage of frogges. Moses prayeth for Pharao. The plage of flies.

Exod. viii. c.
Ex. a. x. a

A The Lord spake vnto Moses: Go vn to pharao, and tell hym, thus sayeth the Lord: *Lette my people go, that they maye serue me. If thou wilt not let them go, beholde, I wyl smyte all thy land wpth frogges. And the ryuer shall scraule wpth frogges, and they shall come vp, and go into thynne house and into thy chamber where thou slepeste, and vppon thy bedde, and into the houses of thyseruauntes, and vppon thy people, and into thynne Quens, and vppon thy Wytayles, whiche thou haste in stoor. And the frogges shall come vppon the, and on thy people, and vpon all thy setuauntes.

The second
plage.

B And the Lord spake vnto Moses, saye vnto Aaron: stretche forth the thynne hande wpth thy rodde ouer the streames, ryuers and pondes. And bynge vp frogges vpon the lande of Egypte. And Aaron stretched his hande ouer the water of Egypte, and f frogges came vp, and couered the lande of Egypte. And the sozcerers dyd lykewyse with their sozcerpe, and the frogges came vp, vpon the land of Egypte.

C Then pharao called for Moses and A- aron, and sayde: praye ye vnto the Lord that he maye take away the frogges from me and frome my people, and I wyl lette the people goo, that they maye doo sacri- fice vnto the Lord. And Moses sayde vn- to pharao: Appoynte thou the tyme vnto me, when I shall praye for the, and thy ser- uauntes, and thy people, too dryue away the frogges from the, and thi house, so that they shal remayne but in the ryuer onelye. And he sayde, to morowe. And he sayde: e- uen as thou haste sayde that thou mayeste knowe that ther is none lyke vnto the lord oure God. And the frogges shall departe from the, and from thine houses, and from thy seruauntes, and from thy people, and shall remayne in the ryuer onelye.

And Moses and Aaron wente oute from pharao, and Moses cryed vnto the Lord vppon the appoyntmente of frogges, whi- che he hadde made vnto pharao. And the Lord dyd accordynge too the sayinge of Moses. And the frogges dyed oute of the houses, courtes and fieldes. And they ga- thered them together vpon heapes, so that the lande stanke of them.

But when pharao sawe that he hadde reste geuen him, he hardened his heart, and herkened not vnto them, as the Lord had sayde. And the Lord sayde vnto Moses: saye vnto Aaron, stretche oute thy rodde, and smyte the duste of the Lande, that it maye tourne to lyse, in all the lande of E- gypt. And they did so. And Aaron stretched oute his hande wpth his rodde, and smote the duste of the earth, and it turned to lise bothe in man and beast, so that all the dust of the lande, turned to lyse, thowowe out al the lande of Egypte.

And the enchauntes assayed lykewyse with their enchauntementes, too bynge forth lise, but they coulde not. And the lyse were bothe vpon man and beast. Then said the enchauntes vnto pharao. It is f* sin- ger of God. Neuerthelater pharaos herte was hardened, and he regarded them not, as the Lord had sayde.

And the Lord sayde vnto Moses: rise vp earlye in the mornynge, and stand before pharao, for he wyl come vnto the water: and saye vnto him. Thus sayth the Lord: let my people go, that they maye serue me. If thou wilt not let my people go, behold, I wyl sende all manner flies, bothe vpon the, thy seruauntes, and thy people, and in to thy houses. And the houses of the Egip- tians shall be ful of flies, and the grounde whereon they are. But I will seperate the same day, the land of Golan wher my peo- ple are, so that there shall no flies be there: that thou mayst knowe, that I am f* lord vppon the earth. And I wil put a deuision betwene my people and thine. And euen to morowe shal this miracle be done.

And the Lord dyd accordynge: and there came nysome flies into the house of pharao and into hys seruauntes houses, and into al the land of Egypte: so that the land was marred with flies. Then phara- o sente for Moses and Aaron, and sayde: Go and do sacrifice vnto your God in the land. And Moses answered: it is not mete so to do. For we shoulde so offer vnto the Lord oure God, that whiche is an abhomi- nacion vnto the Egyptians: beholde, shall we sacrifice that whych is an abhominaci- on vnto the Egyptians before their eyes, and shal they not stone vs? we wil therfore go. iii. dayes iournepe into the wilderness, and sacrifice vnto the Lord our God as he hathe commaunded vs.

But let Pharao from henceforth desceiue no more, that he wil not let the people goo to sacrifice vnto the Lord.

And Moses went out from Pharao, and prayed vnto the Lord. And the Lord dyd as Moses had said, and toke awaye flies from Pharao, and from his seruants, and from his people, so that they remained, not one. But for all that Pharao hardened his hearte even then also, and would not let the people go.

The. ix. Chapter.

The mozen of bestes. The plage of botches and sores. The horrible hayl, thunder and lightninge.

And the Lord saide to Moses, go to Pharao and tel him, thus saythe the Lord God of the Egiptians: let my people go that they may serue me. If thou wilt not let them go, but wilt holde them still, beholde, the hande of the Lord shal be vpon thy cattell whiche thou haste in the felde, vpon horses, asses, camels, oxen, and shepe, with a myghtye greate mortayne. But the Lord shal make a deuision betwene the bestes of the Israelytes and the bestes of the Egiptians: so that there shal nothyng dye of all that belong to the chyldren of Israel. And the Lord appoynted a time, saying: to morow the Lord shal do this thynge in the lande.

And the Lord dyd the thynge on the morowe, and all the cattell of Egipte dyed: but of the cattell of the chyldren of Israel dyed not one. And Pharao sente to wete: but there was not one of the cattell of the Israelites deade. Notwithstandynge the hearte of Pharao hardened, and he wolde not let the people go. And the Lord sayde vnto Moses and Aaron: take your handes full of a shes oute of the fornace, and lette Moses sprinkle it vnto the ayre, in the syghte of Pharao, and it shal turne to dust in all the lande of Egipte, and shal make swellynge sores wth blaines, both on man and beast, in all the lande of Egipte. And they tooke ashes oute of the fornace, and stode before Pharao, and Moses sprinkled it vnto the ayre: And there brake oute sores wth blaynes, bothe in manne and beast, so that the sorcerers could not stand before Moses, for there wer botches vpon the enchaunters and vpon all the Egiptians. But the Lord hardened the herte of Pharao, that he hekened not vnto the, as the Lord had shewed Moses.

And the Lord sayde vnto Moses, ryse vp earlye in the mornynge, and stande before Pharao, and tell hym, thus saythe the Lord God of the Egiptians: Let my people go, that they maye serue me, or elsse I wyl at thys time send al my plages vpon thine hearte, and vpon thy seruantes, and on thy people, that thou mayeste knowe that there is none lyke me in all the earth. For nowe wyl I stretche oute my hande, and wyl smyte the, and thy people wth pestylence: so that thou shalte perishe from the earth. Yet in verpe dee de * for thys cause haue I stirred the vp, for to shewe my power in the, and to declare my name thowowe oute all the worlde.

If it be so that thou stoppest my people that thou wylt not let them go: beholde, to morowe thys tyme I wyl sende downe a myghtye greate Hayle: euen suche one as was not in Egipte sythens it was founded, vnto thys tyme. Sende therefore and fet homethy bestes, and al that thou hast in the felde. For vpon all the menne and bestes whiche are founde in the felde, and not broughte home, shall the hayle fall, and they shall dye. And as manye as feared the worde of the Lord, among the seruantes of Pharao made their seruantes, and they bestes flee to house: and they that regarded not the worde of the Lord, leste they seruantes and bestes in the felde.

And the Lord said vnto Moses: stretch forth thyne hande vnto heauen, that ther maye be hayle in all the lande of Egipt: vpon manne and beast, and vpon all the herbes of the felde of Egipt. And Moses stretched oute hys rodde vnto heauen, and the Lord thundered and hapled, so that the fyre ran a long vpon the ground. * And the Lord so hapled in the Lande of Egipte, that ther was hayle and fyre mingled with the hayle, so greuous that there was none suche in all the Lande of Egipte, sythens people inhabited it. And the hayle smote in the lande of Egipt, al that was in the felde bothe man and beast. And the haile smote all the herbes of the felde, and brake al the trees of the felde: onelye in the Lande of Gosan where the chyldren of Israel were, was there no hayle. And Pharao sent and called for Moses and Aaron, and sayde vnto them: I haue now synned, the Lord is ryghtwylle, and I and my people are wycked. Praye ye vnto the Lord, that the thunders of God and hayle may cease, and I wil lette you go, and ye shall tarpe no longer.

And Moses sayde vnto hym: Asone as I am oute of the ctyte, I wyl spiede abroad my handes vnto the Lord. and the thunder shall cease, nepther shall there be anye more hayle: that thou mayeste know howe that the earth is the Lordes. But I know that thou and thy seruants yet feare not the Lord God. The flaxe and the barelye were smytten, for the barley was shot vp, & the flaxe was boullid: but where and the eye wer not smiten, for they wer late sown.

And Moses wente oute of the cite from Pharao, and spredde abroad hys handes vnto the Lord, and the thunder and haile ceased.

The hert of pharao is hardned of God. The grasshoppers. The thicke darkenes.

they shall eate al your grene trees vpon the felde, and they shall fylle thy houses, and al thy seruauntes houses, and the houses of al the Egyptians after such a maner as nei ther thy fathers, nor thy fathers fathers haue sene, sithens the time they wer create vpon the earth to this daye. And he turned him self about, and went out from pharao

And pharaos seruauntes sayde vnto him: Howe longe shall we be thus entreated? Let the men goo that they maye serue the Lorde theyr God: wylte thou not yet knowe that Egypte is destroyed? And then Moses and Aaron were broughte agayne vnto pharao, and he saide vnto them: So & serue I Lord your God, but who are they that shall go: And Moses answered, we wil go wyth pong pea and olde, and with oure sonnes and wyth our daughters, and with our shepe & oxen must we go. For we must holde a feaste vnto the Lorde.

And he said vnto them: shal it be so? The Lord be wyth you, shulde I let you go, and your children also? Take hede, for ye haue some mischefe in hand. Nay not so, but go ye that ar men and serue the Lord, for that was your desyre. And they thrust them out of pharaos presence.

The eyghte plage. And the Lord sayd vnto Moses: Stretch oute thyne hande ouer the Lande of Egypt for grasshoppers, that they come vpon the lande of Egypte and eate all the herbs of the lande, and al that the hayle lefte vn touched. And Moses stretched forth his rod ouer the lande of Egypte, and the Lorde broughte an east wynde vpon the lande, all that daye and all that nyghte. And in the mornynge the east wynde brought the gresshoppers, and the gresshoppers wente vpper ouer all the lande of Egypte, and lyghted in all quarters of Egypte very greuously, so that before them were there no such gresshoppers, neither after them shall be. And they couered all the earth, so that the land was darcke therwyth. And they ate all the herbes of the land, and al the frutes of the trees whiche the hayl had left, so that there was no grene thing left in trees & herbes of the felde through al the land of Egypt.

Then pharao called for Moses and Aaron in haste and sayde: I haue synned agaynst the Lorde your God, and agaynst you. Forgyue me yet my synne onely this once, and praye vnto the Lorde your God, that he maye take awaye from me, this deathe onely. And he wente out from pharao, and prayed vnto the Lord, and the Lord turned the wynde into a myghtye stronge west wynde, and it toke awaye the gresshoppers and cast them into the red sea: so that there was not one gresshopper in all the coastes of Egypte. But the Lorde hardened pharaos hert, so that he wolde not let the chylde of Israell go.

And the Lord said vnto Moses: Stretch oute thy hande vnto heauen, and let there be darkenesse vpon the lande of Egypte, even that they maye grope the darknesse. And Moses stretched forth his hande vnto heauen, and there was a thicke darknesse vpon the land of Egypte. iii. daies longe, so that no man saw an other, neyther rose vp from the place wher he was by the space of iii. daies, but al the children of Israell had lyghte where they dwelled.

Then pharao called for Moses and said: Go and serue the Lorde, onely lette your shepe and your oxen abyde, but lette your chylde go wyth you. And Moses answered: thou muste gyue vs also offerynge for sacrifice vnto the Lorde our God, oure cattell therefore shall go wyth vs, and that shal not one hofe be left behinde, for there of must we take to serue the Lord our God. Moreover we cannot know wher with we shal serue the Lord, til we come thither.

But the Lord hardened pharaos hert, so that he wold not let them go. And pharao said vnto him: get the from me & take hede to thy self that thou se my face no more. For whensoever thou comest in my sight thou shalt dye. And Moses saide: Let it be as thou hast said, I wil se thy face no more.

The. xii. Chapter.

The passouer is eaten. The swete breade. They muste teache theyr chyldren what the passouer signifieth. The destruction of the first begotten in Egypt. The robbery of the Egyptians. The going out of the Israelites.

And the Lord spake too Moses and Aaron in the lande of Egypte, sayinge: This moneth shall be your chefe moneth, euen of the fyrste moneth of the yere shall it be vnto you. Speke ye vnto al the felowship of Israel, sayinge that they take the tenth daye of this moneth to euery household a shepe. If the household be too fewe for a shepe, then let him and his neighbour that is nexte vnto his house take accordynge to the nombze of the soules, and counte vnto a shepe accordynge too euery mans eatynge. A shepe wpythoute spot, and a male of one yere shall it be, and oute of the flocke of the Lambes and the goates shall ye take it.

And ye shall kepe hym in til the. xiiii. daye of the same moneth. And euery man of the multitude of Israel shall kyll hym aboute euen. And they shall take of the bloude, and strike it on the two spyde postes, and on the upper doze post of the houses, wherein theye ate hym. And they shall eat the flesch the same nyght, rost with fyre and with vnleuended breade, and wpyth soure Hearbes they shall eat it. Se that ye eate not therof rawe, nor soden in water, but rost wpyth fyre: bothe the head, feate, and purtenance together. And se that ye let nothyng of it remayne vnto the morninge, if oughte remayne burne it wpyth fyre.

Of this maner shall ye eate it: wpyth your loynes girded, and shooes on your fete, and poure staves in your handes. And ye shall eat it in haste, for it is the Lordes * passouer, for I wpll go aboute in the lande of Egypte this same nyghte, and wpll smyte all the fyrste borne in the lande of Egypte, bothe of man and beast, and vpon all the Goddes of Egypte wpll I the Lorde do execution. And the bloude shall be vnto you a token vpon the houses wherein ye are: for when I see the bloud, I wpll passe ouer you, and the plague shall not be vpon you to destroy you, when I smyte the lande of Egypte.

And this daye shall be vnto you a remembrance, and ye shall kepe it holpe vnto the Lord: euen throughout your generacions after you shall ye kepe it holpe daye, that it be a custome for euer. Seuen dayes shall ye eate vnleuended breade, soo that euen the fyrste daye ye shall put awaye leuen oute of your houses. For whosoever eateth leuended breade from the fyrst daye vntill the seventh daye ye shall put awaye leuen out of Israel. * The fyrst daye shall be a holp feast vnto you, and the. vii. also. There shall be no manner of worke done in them, saue about that only which euery man must eate, that onely ye maye do. And se that ye kepe you to vnleuended breade. For vpon that same daye I wpll bringe your armies out of the lande of Egypte, therefore ye shall obserue this daye, and all your chyldren after you, that it be a custome for euer. The fyrste moneth and the. xiiii. daye of the moneth at euen, ye shall eat swete breade vnto the xvi. daye of the moneth at euen agayne.

Seuen dayes see that there be no leuended breade so vnde in your houses. two syde postes, he will passeouer the doores and wyl not suffer the destroyer to come in to your house to plage you. Therfor se that thou obserue thys thynge, that it be an ordinaunce to the and thy sonnes for euer.

And when ye be come into the land whiche the Lorde wyl geue you accordyng as he hath promysed, se that ye kepe this seruice. And when your children aske you what manner of seruice is this ye doo? Ye shall saye, it is the sacrifice of the Lordes passeouer, whiche passed ouer the houses of the chyl dren of Israell in Egypte, as he smote the Egyptians, and saued oure houses.

Then the people bowed them selues and worshipped. And the chyl drene of Israell wente and did as the Lorde had commaunded Moses and Aaron.

And at midnight the Lorde smote al the fyrst borne in the lande of Egypt, from the fyrste borne of pharaon that sat on his seat vnto the fyrste borne of the captiue that was in pylson, and al the fyrste born of cattell. When pharaon arose the same nyghte and all the seruauntes and all the Egyptians: & ther was a great cryng through oute Egypte, for there was no house wher there was not one deade.

And he called vnto Moses and Aaron by nyghte sayinge: Ryse vp, and gette you hence from my people, bothe ye and also the chyl dren of Israell, and go and serue pharaon as ye haue said. And take your shepe and your oxen wth you as ye haue sayd, and depart: and blesse me also. And the Egyptians were fearce vpon the people, and made haste to sende them oute of the land, for they sayde: we be al deade men. And the people toke the dough before it was soure whiche they had in store, and bounde it in clothes, and put it vpon theyr shoulders.
And the chyl dren of Israell dyd accordyng to the sayinge of Moses: and they borrowed of the Egyptians iewels of syluer, and jewels of goulde, and raymente. And the Lorde gat the people fauoure in the syght of the Egyptians, and so they borrowed and robbed the Egyptians.

Thus toke the chyl dren of Israell theyr iourney from Rameses to Succoth. vi. hundred thousande men of foote, besyde chyldren. And muche common people went also wth them, and shepe and oxen, and cattell exceeding much. And they baked swete cakes of the doughe whiche they brought oute of Egypte, for it was not soured, because they were thrust oute of Egypt and coude not tary, neither had they prepared any other prouysion of meate.

And the tyme of the dwellynge of the chyl dren of Israell which they dwelled in Eg-ypte was. iiii. C. and. xxx. yeres. And when the. iiii. hundred and. xxx. yeres was expy-red, even the selfe same daye departed al the hostes of the Lorde oute of lande of Egypt. This is a nyghte to be obserued to the Lorde, because he brought them oute of the lande of Egypte. This is a nyghte of the Lorde, to be kepte of al the chyl dren of Israel and of theyr generacions after them.

And the Lorde sayde vnto Moses and Aaron: this is the maner of passeouer: there shall no straunger eate thereof, but all the seruauntes that are bought for mony that ye circumcise, and then let them eate ther-of. A straunger and a hyred seruaunte shall not eate thereof. In one house shall it be eaten. Ye shall carpe none of the fleshe oute at the doores: moreouer* see that ye breake not a bone therof. All the multitude of the chyl dren of Israell shall obserue it.

If a straunger dwell amonge you, and wyl holde passeouer vnto the Lorde, lette hym circumcise al that be males, and then let hym come and obserue it, and be taken as one that is borne in the lande. No vn-circumcised person shall eate thereof. One manner of lawe shall be vnto them that are borne in the land, and vnto the straungers that dwel among you. And al the chyl dren of Israell did as the Lorde commaunded Moses & Aaron. And euen the selfe same daye did the Lorde bring the chyl dre of Israell out of the land of Egypt with theyr armys.

The.xiii. Chapter.

The first begotten must be sanctified vnto the Lorde. The memorial of theyr deliuerance, whithey were caried through the wilderness. The

And the Lorde spake vnto Moses sayinge: Sanctify vnto me all the first borne that open all manner matry-

And they toke thei journey from Succoth, and pitched they tentes in Etham in the edge of the wyldernesse. And the Lord went before them by day in a pylle of a cloud, to leade them the way: and by nyghte in a pylle of fyre to geue them lyght, that they myght go both by day and nyghte. And the pylle of the cloude neuer departed by day, nor the pylle of fyre by nyght out of the peoples syght.

The.xiii. Chapter.

Pharaos hert is hardened, & he followeth the Israelites with all his hoste, and is drowned. The Israelites grudge. They go through the red sea.

Then the Lord spake vnto Moses sayinge: byd the chyldren of Israell that they turne and pitch their tents before the entering of Hyroth bitwene Migdole and the sea toward Baalzephon: euen before that shal ye pitch vpon the sea. For Pharaos myll saye of the chyldren of Israell: they are inuegled in the lande, the wyldernesse hath shutte them in. And I will harden his herte, that he shal folowe after them, to thynntence I may gette me honoure vpon Pharaos and vpon al his host, that the Egypcians maye knowe that I am the Lord. And they dyd euen so.

And when it was tolde the kynge of Egypte that the people fled, then Pharaos hert & al his seruants turned agaynst the people & sayd: why haue we this done, & we haue let Israell go out of our serupce? And he made readye his charrettes and toke his people with him, & toke .vi. hundred chosen charrettes and al the charrettes of Egypte, and capteyns vpon all his people. For the Lord hardened the herte of Pharaos king of Egypt, that he folowed after the chyldren of Israell, whiche neuer thelesse wente out thow an hye hand, and the Egypcians folowed after them, and ouertooke them wher they pitched by the sea, with all the horses and charrettes of Pharaos and with his horsemen and his host: fast by the enteringe of Hyroth before Baalzephon. And Pharaos dremene, and when the chyldren of Israell lyft vp they eyes, and saw that the Egypcians folowed after them, they were sore afrayde, and cryed oute vnto the Lord.

Then sayde they vnto Moses. Were there no graues for vs in Egypte, but thou muste bryng vs awaye to dye in the wyldernes: wherfore hast thou serued vs thus to carpe vs out of Egypte? Dyd not we tel the this in Egypte saying, let vs be in rest and serue the Egipcians? For it had ben better for vs to haue serued the Egipcians, then to die in the wyldernes. And Moses sayde to the people: feare not but stand styll & beholde howe the Lord shal saue you this day: For the Egipcians whome ye se this daye, ye shal neuer se more for euer. The Lord shal syght for you, and ye shal be styll.

The Lord sayd vnto Moses: Wherfore criest thou vnto me? speke to the chyldren of Israell to go forwarde. But lyfte thou vp thy rod, and stretch forth thy hande ouer the sea, and dyrde it a sondre, that the chyldren of Israell maye goo on drye grounde, thow the myddest thereof. And beholde, I will harden the hertes of the Egipcians that they maye folowe you. And I will get me honoure vpon Pharaos and vpon all his host, vpon his charretts, & vpon his horsemen. And the Egipcians shal knowe that I am the Lord whē I haue gottē me honoure vpon Pharaos, vpon his charers, and vpon his horsemen.

And the angel of God whych went before the host of Israell, remoued, & wente behind the. And the cloude pylle that was before them, remoued & stode behind them & went betwene the host of the Egipcians & the host of Israell. It was a darcke cloude & gaue lyght by nyght: so that all the night long the one could not come at the other.

When Moses stretched forth his hand ouer the sea, the Lord carped away the sea with a stronge east wynde that blew all nyght, and made the sea drye land, and the water deuyded it selfe. And the chyldren of Israell wente in thorowe the myddeste of the sea vpon the drye grounde. And the water was a wall vnto them bothe on theyre ryghte hande and on theyre left. And the Egyptians folowed, and wente in after them to the myddest of the sea, wpth al Pharaos horses and his charettes and hys horsmen. And in the mornynge watche the Lord looked vnto the hooft of the Egyptians oute of the fierpe & cloudy pyller, and troubled theyre hooft, and smote of theyre charette wheles, and cast them down to the ground. Then sayde the Egyptians: Lette vs flee from Israell, for the Lord syghteth for them agaynste vs. Then sayde the Lord vnto Moses: Stretche forth thyne hande ouer the sea, that the water maye come agayne vpon the Egyptians, vpon theyre charettes and horsmen.

Then stretched forth the Moses his hande ouer the sea, and it came agayne to his course earlye in the mornynge, and the Egyptians fledde agaynste it. Thus the Lord ouerthrewe the Egyptians in the myddeste of the sea, and the water returned and couered the charettes and the horsmenne: so that of all the host of Pharaos that came in to the sea after the remayned not one. But the chyldren of Israell went vpon dry land in the midst of the sea, and the water was a wall to them, both on the ryghte hande of them and also on the left.

Loke ex.xi

The Israelites come into the desert of Sin.
It raineth quailles & Manna. They grudge.

And they came to Elim, where were
xii. welles of water, and .lx. date trees, and they pitched thereby the water. And they took their journey from Elim, and all the hole company of the children of Israel came to the wilderness of Sin, whiche lyeth bytwene Elim and Sinai, the .xv. daye of the .ii. moneth after that they were come oute of the lande of Egypte. And the hole multitude of the chyl dren of Israel murmured agaynst Moses and Aaron in the wilderness, and sayed vnto them: woulde God wee had dyed by the hande of the Lorde in the lande of Egypte, when we sate by the flesch pottes, and ate breade out belies ful: for ye haue brought vs out into this wilderness to kill this hole multitude for hunger.

Then said the Lorde to Moses: beholde I wyl rayne bread from heauen downe to you, and let the people go out, and gather day by day that I may proue the whether they wyl walke in my lawe or no. The .vi. day let them prepare that which they wil brynge in, and let it be as muche as they gather dayly. And Moses and Aaron sayde vnto all the chyl dren of Israel: at euen ye shal know that it is the Lorde, whiche broughte you out of the land of Egypt, and in the mornynge ye shall see the glory of the Lorde, because he hath herd your grudgynge agaynst the Lorde: for what are we that ye shoulde murmure agaynst vs?
And moreover Moses said. At euen the Lorde wyl gyue you flesh to eate, and in the mornyng breade ynough, because the Lorde hath heard your murmure which ye mur-mure agaynst hym: for what are we? your murmure is not agaynst vs, but a-gaynst the Lorde.

And Moses sayd to Aaron: Say to all the companie of the chyl dren of Israel, come forth before the Lorde, for he hath heard your grudgynge. And while Aarō spake vnto the hole multitude of the chyl dren of Israel, they looked warde the wildernesse: and beholde the glorye of the Lorde appeared in a cloude. And the Lorde spake to Moses, sayinge: I haue herd the mur-mure of the chyl dren of Israel, tel the therfore and saye that at euen they shall eate flesh, and in the mornynge they shall be fylled wth breade, and ye shall knowe that I am the Lorde your God. And at euen the quailles came and covered the ground where they lay: And in the morning the dew laye round about the host. * And when the dew was fallen, behold it lay vpon the ground in the wilderness small and rounde as thin as the hore frost on the ground. When the children of Israel saw it, they said one to another: what is this? For they wist not what it was. And Moses sayde: * this is the bread whiche the Lorde hath gyuen you to eate. This is the bynge whiche the Lorde hath commaunded that ye gather euery man ynough for hym to eate: a gomer full for a man according to the number of you, and gather euery man for them whiche are in his tente.

And the chyl dren of Israel dyd so, and gathered some more, some lesse, and dyd more it wth a gomer. * And to hym that gathered much was no superfluite, and to hym that hadde gathered lytle, was no lacke, but euery man had gathered suffiente for his eatynge. And Moses sayed to them: se that no man let ought remayne of it tyll the mornynge. For withstandynge they obeyed not Moses: but some of them left of it tyll mornynge, and it was full of wormes and stanke, and Moses was angrye wth them.

And they gathered it all mornynge: e-uery man as muche as suffysed for his ea-tynge, for as soone as the heate of the sunne came it mould. And the .vi. day they gathered twyse so muche bread, that is to wyte, two gomers for one man, and the rulers of the multitude came and told Moses. And he said vnto them, this is that whiche the Lorde hath sayd: to morow is the Sabothe of the holy rest of the Lorde, bake that ye wyl bake, and seeth that ye wyl seeth, and that remayneth laye vp for you, & kepe it tyll the mornynge. And they layde it vp till the mornynge as Moses bad, & it stank not, neither was there any wormes therein. And Moses said: eate this to daye, for to daye it is the Lordes Saboth: to daye ye shall fynde none in the felde. Sixe daies ye shall gather, for the .vii. is the Saboth: in it shall be none.

Notwithstandinge there went oute of the people in the .vii. daye to gather, but they founde none. Then the Lorde sayed to Moses: howe longe shall it be eate ye wyl kepe my commaundemēt and lawes? * Se, because the Lorde hath giuen you a Saboth, therfore he gruethe you the .viij. daye bread for two dayes. Abode therfore euery man at home, and let no man go out of his place the .vii. daye. And the people rested the seuenth daye. And the house of Israel called it manā. * And it was lyke vnto Cortander seed, and whyte, and the tast of it was like vnto wafers made wth honny.

Moses sayde: this is that the Lorde com-maunderth, spyll a Gomer of it that it maye be kept for your chyl dren after you, & they maye se the bread wher wth he fed you in wil-dernes, when he had broughte you out of the land of Egypt. And Moses sayed vnto Aarō: take a cruse, and put a Gomer ful of manā therein, & lay it vp before the Lorde to be kepte for your chyl dren after you, as the Lorde commaunded Moses. And Aaron layed it vp before the testimony ther to be kept * And the chyl dren of Israel eate mā .xl. pere until they came to a lande inhabited. So

The.xvii. Chapter.

The Israelites come into Raphidym. They grudge, water is given them out of the rock. Moses holdeth up his hands, and they overcome the Amalechites.

AND all the company of the children of Israel went on their journey from the wilderness of Synai at the commandment of the Lord, and pitched in Raphidim: where was no water for the people to drink who chode with Moses and said: Give us water to drink. Moses said unto them: Why chide ye with me, and wherefore do ye tempt the Lord? So the people thirsted for water, and murmured against Moses, and said: wherefore hast thou brought us out of Egypt, to kill us, and our children and our cattle with thirst?

So Moses cried to the Lord saying, what shall I do unto this people? they be almost ready to stone me. Then the Lord said to Moses: go before the people, & take with thee of the elders of Israel, and thy rodde wherewith thou smotest the river take in thine hand and go. Beholde I will stande ther vpon a rocke in Horeb: and thou shalt smite the rocke, and ther shall come water out thereof, that the people may drinke.

Ex. ii. b. Ps. lxxvii. b. i. Cor. x. a.

* And Moses dyd so before the elders of Israel: And called the name of the place Massa, and Meriba, because of the chiding of the children of Israel, and because they tempted the Lord, saying: Is the Lord among us or not?

A battel of the Amalechites.

Then came Amalech and foughte with Israel in Raphidym. And Moses said vnto Josua: chose out me, and go fight with Amalech. To morowe I will stand on the top of the hill, and the rod of God in mine hand. And Josua dyd as Moses bade him, and foughte with the Amalechites. And Moses, Aaron and Hur went vp to the top of the hille, And when Moses held up his hande, Israel hadde the better. And when he late his hande downe, Amalech hadde the better.

When Moses hands were weary, they toke a stone and put it vnder hym, and he sate downe thereon. And Aaron and Hur stayed by his handes, the one on the one syde, and the other on the other syde. And his handes were stedy vntill the sune was downe. * And Josua discomfited Amalech and his people with the edge of his sword.

Jud. i. i. b. Sap. xi. a. Deu. x. b.

And the Lord sayde vnto Moses, write this for a remembrance in a booke, and tel it vnto Josua, for I will put out the remembrance of Amalech vnder heuen. And Moses made an alter, and called the name of it Jehovah Nissi, for he said: the hand of the Lord is on the synners of the Lord, that the Lord will haue warre with Amalech throughout all generacions.

That is the lord is he that exalteth.

The.xviii. Chapter.

Jerthos counsel is receyued of Moses.

JERTHO the priest of Madyan Moses father in lawe herde of all that God had done to Moses and Israel his people, that the Lord had broughte Israel forth of Egypt. And he toke Ziphora Moses wife after she was sent backe, & her two sonnes, of whiche the one was called Gerson, for he sayde: I haue ben an alien in a strange lande. And the other was called Eliezer, for the god of my father was myne helpe, and deliuered me from the swerde of Pharaon. So Jertho Moses father in lawe came with his two sonnes and his wife to Moses in the wilderness: where he had pitched his tent by the mount of God. And he sent worde to Moses: I thy father in lawe Jertho am come to the, and thy wyfe also, and her two sonnes with her. And Moses went forth to mete his father in lawe, and dyd obeysaunce and kyssed hym, and they saluted eche other and came into the tent.

And Moses tolde his father in lawe all that the Lord had done vnto Pharaon and to the Egyptians for Israels sake, and all the traualle that hadde happened them by the waye, and howe the Lord hadde deliuered them. And Jertho reioysed ouer all the good whiche the Lord had done to Israel, and that he had deliuered them out of the hande of the Egyptians. And Jertho sayde: blessed be the Lord, whiche hath deliuered you out of the hand of the Egyptians, & out of the hand of Pharaon, and hath deliuered his people from the power of the Egyptians. Nowe I knowe that the Lord is greater then all Goddes, because they deale proude with them. And Jertho Moses father in lawe offered burnt offerings and sacrifices to God. And Aaron and all the elders of Israel come to eate bread with Moses father in lawe before God.

And it chanced on the morowe that Moses sate to iudge the people, and the people stood about Moses from mornynge til eue. When his father in lawe sawe all that he dyd vnto the people, he sayd: What is this that thou doest vnto the people? why sittest thou by thy selfe, and ledest all the people stand aboute the from mornynge vnto euen? And Moses said vnto his father in lawe, because the people came vnto me to seeke counsel of God. For when they haue a matter, they come to me, and I must iudge betwene euery man and his neighbour, and must shew them the ordynances of God and his lawes.

And his father in lawe sayde to hym: It is not well that thou doest. Thou dost weary thy selfe, and also this people that is with thee, because the thing is to greuous for thee, & thou art not able to do it thy selfe alone. But heare my voyce, and I will giue thee counsell, and God shall be with thee. Be thou vnto the people to * Godwarde

The. xix. Chapter.

The children of Israel come to the mounte Synay. The people of God are holy and aroyal priesthod. He that toucheth the hyl dyeth. God appeareth to Moses on the mount in thondre and lyghtenynge.

The thirde moneth after the chyldren of Israel were gone out of Egypte, the same day they came into the topderneffe of Synai. * For they were departed from Raphidim, and were come to the deserte of Synai, and had pitched theyr te-res in the wyldernes. And ther Israel pitched before the mount. And Moses wente vp to God, And the Lord called to hym oue of the mountayne, sayinge: thus say to the house of Jacob, and tel the chyldren of Israel: ye haue sene what I dyd to the Egi-ptians, and howe I toke you vp vpon egles wynges, and haue broughte you vnto my self. Now therfore if ye wil heare my voyce and kepe myne appoyntemente, ye shall be myne owne aboue all nacyns, for all the erth is myne. Ye shall be vnto me a kynge-dome of priestes, and an holre people, these are the wordes whych thou shalt say vnto the chyldren of Israel.

And Moses came and called for the elders of Israel, and layde before them all these wordes, whych the Lord had commaunded hym. And the people answered al togther and said: Al that the Lord hath said, we will doo. And Moses broughte the wordes of the people vnto the Lord. And the Lord said vnto Moses: Lo I wil com vnto the in a thicke cloude, that the people may heare when I talke wyth the, and also bilene the for euer. So Moses shewed the wordes of the people vnto the Lord. And the Lord sayd vnto Moses: Go vnto the people, and sanctifye them to daye and to morrowe, and let them washe theyr clothes, that they may be redye agaynst the thyrde daye. For the thyrde daye the Lord will come downe in the syght of al the people vpon mounte Synai. And sette marks round aboute the people, and saye: beware that ye go not vp into the mount, and that ye touche not the borders of it, for whosoeuer toucheth the mounte, shall surely dye.

There shall not an hand touch it, but that he shall either be stoned or els shot thow:
whether it be beast or man, it shall not lye; when the horne bloweth, then let the come vp into the mountayne.

And Moses went downe from the mounte to the people, and sanctified them, & they washed theyr clothes. And he sayd vnto people: be redye agaynst the thyrde daye, & se that ye come not at your wyues. And the thyrde day in the mornynge ther was thynder, and lyghtenynge, and a thicke cloude vpo the mount, and the voyce of the horne warred excedynge lowde, and all the people that was in the host was afrayed. And Moses brought the people out of the tēres to mete wyth God, and they stode vnder the hylle.

And mounte Synai was altogther on a smoke: because the Lord descended down vpon it in fyre. And the smoke therof ascēded vp, as it had bene the smoke of a kyl, and all the mounte was excedynge fearful.
And the voyce of the horne blew and war-red lowder, and lowder. Moses spake, and God answered him and that wyth a voyce.
And the Lord came downe vpon mounte Synai, even in the top of the hyl, and called Moses vp into the top of the hyl. And Moses wente vp.

And the Lord sayd vnto Moses: Go down and charge the people, that they please not vp vnto the Lord to se hym, least so many of them pearthe. And let the priestes also whych come to the Lords presence, sanctify the them selues, least the Lord smite them.
Then Moses sayed vnto the Lord: the people can not come vp into the mount Synai, for I chargedest vs, sayinge: set markes about the hyl, and sanctify it. And the Lord sayd vnto hym: away, and get the downe, and come vp agayne both thou and Aaron wyth the. But let not the priestes and the people presume to come vp vnto the Lord, least he smyte the. And Moses wet downe vnto the people, and tolde them.

Ps. xlv. a.

Thou shalt haue none other Gods in my sight. Thou shalt make the no grauen ymage, neither any similitude that is in heauen aboue, either in the earth beneath, or in the water that is beneath the earth. Set that thou neither bowe thy selfe vnto them, neyther serue them, for I am the Lord thy God, strong & gelous, and by synne the sinne of the fathers vpon the chyldren vnto the thirde and fourth generation of them that hate me, and yet shewe mercye vnto thousandes among them that loue me and kepe my commaundementes.

Thou shalt not take the name of the Lord thy God in vayne, for the Lord will not holde hym guilty that taketh his name in vayne. Remember the Saboth daye that thou sanctifye it. Sixe dayes thou shalt labour, and do all that thou hast to do, but the seventh day is the Saboth of the Lord thy God, in it thou shalt do no maner worke: neyther thou nor thy sonne nor thy daughter, neyther thy manne seruante nor thy mayde seruante, neyther thy cattell, neyther the stranger that is wythin thy gates. For in sixe dayes the Lord made both heauen and earth and the sea, and all that in them is, and rested the seventh daye: wherfore the Lord blessed the Saboth day, and halowed it. * Honour thy father and thy mother, that thy dayes may be longe in the lande whiche the Lord thy God giveth thee.

Thou shalt not kyll.

Thou shalt not breake wedlocke.

Thou shalt not steale.

Thou shalt bere no false witness against thy neyghboure.

Thou shalt not couet thy neyghbours house: neyther shalt thou covet thy neyghbours wyfe, his manne seruante, his mayde, his ox, his asse, or ought that is his.

* And all the people sawe the thunder and the lychtenyng, and the noyse of the horne, and howe the mountayne smoked. And when the people sawe it, they remooved and stode a farre off, and sayd vnto Moses: talke thou wyth vs, and we wyl hear, but let not God talke wyth vs leaste we die. And Moses said vnto the people, feare not, for god is come to proue you, and that his feare may be among you & ye sinne not.

And the people stode a farre off, and Moses wente into the thicke cloude, where God was. And the Lord sayd vnto Moses: thus thou shalt saye vnto the chyldren of Israel: ye haue sene howe I haue talked wyth you out of heauen: ye shall not make therefore wyth me Goddes of syluer, nor Goddes of golde: in no wyse shall ye do it.

* An altare of earthe thou shalt make me, and thereon offer thy burnt offerings, and thy peace offerings, and thy shepe, and thyne oxen. And in al places wher I shall put the remembraunce of my name, thither wyl I come to thee, and * blesse the. But if thou wilt make me an altare of stone set thou make it not of hewed stone, for if thou lyste by thy tole vpon it, thou shalt defyle it. Moreover thou shalt not go wyth steppes vnto myne altare, that thy fulnesse be not shewed thereon.

The.xxi. Chapter.

Temporal and cyple ordinaunces,

These are the lawes which thou shalt set before the. * If thou bye a seruante that is an Hebrue: syxe yeres he shall serue, and the seventh he shall go oute free, payinge nothyng. If he came alone, he shall go out alone: If he came maryed, his wyfe shall go out wyth him. And if his master haue gyuen hym a wyfe, and she haue borne him sonnes or daughters: then the wyfe and her chyldren shall be her masters, and he shall go out alone. But if the seruante saye, I loue my master, and my wyfe and my chyldren, I wyl not go oute free: Then let his master bryng hym to the Gods, and set him to the doore or the doorepost, and doze his eare thowme with a naule, and let him be bys seruante for euer.

If a man sell his daughter to be a seruante, she shall not go out as the seruantes do. If she please not her master, so that he hath gyuen her to no man to wyfe, then shall he let her go free: to sell her vnto a strange nacion shall he haue no power, because he despised her. If he haue promised her vnto his sonne to wyfe, he shall deale wyth her as men do wyth theyr daughters. If he take him an other wyfe, yet her sode, rayment, and duty of maryage shall be not mynysh. If he do not these thynges vnto her, then shall she go oute free and paye no money. * He that smyteth a man that he die shall be slaine for it. If a man lay not a waite but God be lyuer hym into his hand, then I wyl pounthe a place whither he shall flee. If a man come presumptuously vpon his neyghbour and slep him wyth gyle, thou shalt take him from myne altare that he dye. And he that smyteth bys father or bys mother shall dye for it.

He that stealeth a man and selleth hym (if it be proued him) he shall be slaine for it. * And he that curseth bys father or mother, shall be put to death for it. If men strue together, and one smyte another wyth a stone or wyth bys fyfte so that he dye not, but lieth in bed: if he rise againe, and walke wythoute vpon bys staffe, then shall he that smote hym go quyte, saue onely he shall beare bys charges whyle he laye in bed, and paye for bys healyng.

If a man smyte bys seruante or bys mayde wyth a staffe that they dye vnder bys hande, it shall be auenged. But if they continue a day or two, it shall not be auenged, for they are his money. When menne strue and smite a woman wyth chyldre, so that her frute depart from her, and yet no myfortune foloweth: then shall he be amerced accordyng as the womans husband wyl lay.

*That is Walt not

Thalt gve it me. Ye shall be holy people vnto me, & therfore thalt ye eate no fleshe, that is tasted of beastes in the fiede: But thalt cast it to dogges.

The. xxi. Chapter.

Dyuers lawes and polypque ordynances.

Thou shalt not receiue a vaine tale, neither shalt put thynne hand with þ wicked to be an vnrightuous wptnesse.

Thou shalt not folow a multitude to do euill: neither answere in a mater of plee, lest thou willing to folow manpe, turne asyde fro the truth, neither shalt þ paint a pooze mans cause. * When thou metest thine enemies ore or alle goynge astrape, thou shalt brynge them to him again. If thou se thynne enemies alle synke vnder his burthē, thou shalt not passe by & let him alone: but shalt helpe him to lifte him vp agayne.

Thou shalt not hyndre the righte of the pooze that are amonge you in theyr lute.

Kepe the farre from a false matter, and the innocent and rightuous se thou slep not, for I wil not iustifye þ wicked. Thou shalt take no gyftes, for gyftes blind the prudēt, and peruerthe the wordes of the rightuous.

Thou shalt not oppresse a straunger, for I know the heart of a straunger, because ye were straungers in Egypt. Sire peres thou shalt sowe thy land, and gather in the fruites therof: And the seventh pere thou shalt let it rest and lye styll, that the pooze of thy people may eate, and what they leaue, the beastes of the fiede shall eate: In lyke maner thou shalt do with thy byneparde and thynne olyue trees.

Sire dapes thou shalt do thy worcke, and the seventh day thou shalt kepe holy dape, that thynne ore and thynne asse may rest, and the sonne of thy mayde, and the straunger may be refreshed. And in all thinges that I haue sayd vnto you, be circumspect. And ye shal not sweate by the names of strange Gods, neither let any man heare them out of your mouthes.

Thre feastes thou shalt holde vnto me in a pere. * Thou shalt kepe the feast of swete bread, that thou eat vbleuend bread seven dapes longe, as I commaunded the in the tyme appoynted of the moneth of Abib, for in that moneth thou camest oute of Egypt: * and se that no man appeare before me emptye. And the feast of haruest, when thou repest thy firste fruytes of thy labou-res, whych thou haste sowe in the feld. And the feast of ingatherynge in the ende of the peare: when thou hast gathered in thy labours out of the fiede.

Thre times in a pere shal al thy men children appeare before the Lorde God.

* Thou shalt not offre the bloude of my sacrifice with leuend bread, neither shalt þ fat of my feast remayne tyll the mornynge.

* The first of the firste fruytes of thy lande thou shalt bring into the house of the Lorde thy God, thou shalt also not seth a * kyd in hys mothers mylke,

Behold I send myne aungel before the,
to kepe the in the way, and to brynge the in to þ place whych I haue prepared. Beware of him, and heare his voice, and angre him not, for he will not spare poure myldeades, pea & my name is in him. But if thou shalt herken vnto hys voyce, and kepe al that I shall tell the, then I wyl be an ennemy vnto thynne ennemys, and an aduersary vnto thynne aduersaries. When myne aungel goeth before the, and hath brought the vnto the Amorites, Bethites, Hethites, Cananytes, Hephites, and Jebusites, and I shal haue destroyed them, se thou worchip not theyr Gods, neither serue them, neyther do after the works of them, but ouerthrowe them, and breake downe the places of them. And se that ye serue the Lorde your God, and he shal blesse thy breade, and thy water, and I wyl take all sycknesses away from you.

Moreouer ther shal be no woman childlesse or vnfruitful in thy land, and the num-bre of thy daies I wil fulfil, I wil send my feare before the, and wil kill al the people, whycher thou shalt go. And I will make al thynne ennemys turne their backs vnto the,
and I will send * hornets before the, & they shal dyspue out the Hethites, the Cananites, and the Hethites before the. I wil not cast them out in one peare, lest the lande growe to a wyldernesse, and the beasts of the fiede multyply vpon the. But by litle and litle I wyl dyspue them out before the, tyl thou be encreased, that thou mayest enheryte the lande. And I wyl make thy coastes fro the red sea, vnto the sea of the Philistines, and from the desert vnto the ryuer. I wyl dely-uer the inhabitants of the lande into thynne hande, and thou shalt dyspue the out before the. * And thou shalt make none appoyntment with them, nor with their gods. Neither shal they dwelle in thy lande, lest they make the syn against me, for if thou serue theyr Goddes * it wyl surely be thy decap.

The. xxi. Chapter.

Moses goeth by to the mounte, and wyteth the wordes of the Lorde. The bloud of the couenante. The elders of Israel iudge the people.

And he said vnto Moses: come by to the lord, thou & Aaron, Nadab & Abihu, & the lxx. elders of Israel, & worship a farre of. And Moses went himself alone vnto the lorde, but they came not nye, neither came þ people by with him. * Moses then came & told the people al the wor-des of the Lorde, and al the lawes. And all the people answered with one voice & said: al the words which the Lorde hath sayd, we wil do. Then Moses wrote all the wor-des of the Lorde, and rose vp earlye, & made an alter vnder the hil, and. xii. pillers according to þ numbze of þ. xii. tribes of Israel, & sent pong men of the childze of Israel to sacrifice burnt offerings, & to offer peace of-frynges of open vnto the lord. And Moses the aulter.

And he toke the boke of the appointmēt, and red it in the audiēce of the people. And they sayd: All that the Lord hath sayd, we wil do and heare. And Moses toke þ bloud, and sprynckled it on the people, and sayd: behold, this is the bloud of the apointmēt, which the Lord hath made with you vpon all these wordes.

Then went Moses and Aaron, Nadab & Abihu, and the lxx. elders of Israel vp, & * sawe the God of Israel, and vnder his fete as it were a brick worke of Saphir, and as it were the fashion of heauē whē it is clere, and vpon the nobles of the children of Israell he set not hys hande. And when they had sene God, they ate and dronke.

And the Lorde sayed to Moses: come vp to me into the hyll, and be there, and I wil giue the * tables of stone, and a law & com-mandements which I haue wyttē to teach here tyll we come agayn vnto you: And be-holde here is Aaron and Hur with you. If any man haue any maters to do, lette hym come to them. When Moses was come vp to the mount, a cloud couered the hyll, and the * glorie of the lorde abode vpon mounte Sinai, and the cloud couered it sixe dayes.

And the seuenth day he called vnto Moses out of the cloude. And the fashion of þ glory of the Lord was like consuming fyre on the toppe of the hyll in the sight of the children of Israel. And Moses wente into the mountaine. And Moses was in the mount fourty dayes and fourty nyghtes.

The. xxv. Chapter.

The lord sheweth Moses the fashion of the holy place and the things pertaining therto.

And the lord talked with Moses sayinge: Speake to the children of Israel, that they giue me first fruits: of euerye man that gyueth it willingly wpth his hert, þe shal take it. And these thynges be they which þe shal take of them: gold, siluer and brasse: and Iacincte coloure, scarlet, purple, bysse, and goates heere: rammes skins that are red, and the skyns of taxus, and Sethim wod, oyle for lights, and spy-ces for anoyntynge oyle, and for swete cense.
Onyx stones, & set stones for the * Ephod, & for the brest lap.

And they shal make a sanctuary, that I may dwel amonge them. And I shal shewe the, the fashion of the habitaciō, and of all the ornamentes thereof, euen so se that þe make it in all thynges. And they shal make an arke of Sethim wood, two cubites and an halfe longe, a cubyte and a halfe brode, and a cubit and a halfe hpe. And thou shalt ouerlap it with pure gold, both within and wthout, and shalt make an hpe vpon it a crowne of golde roundaboute. And thou shalt caste foure rynges of golde for it, and put them in the foure corners thereof, two rynges on the one syde of it, and two on the other. And thou shalt make stauēs of Sethim wood, and couer them with gold, and put the stauēs of the rynges alonge by the sydes of the arcke to beare it wpthall. And the stauēs shall abyde in the rynges of the arcke, and shall not be taken awaye. And thou shalt put in the arke, þ wptnes which I shall giue the.

And thou shalt make a mercy seat of pure gold, two cubites and a halfe longe, and a cubyte & a halfe brode. And make two che-rubins of thycke gold on the two endes of the mercy seate, and set the one cherub on the one end, and the other on the other end of the mercy seat: so se that thou make the on the two ends therof. And the cherubins shall stretche their winges abroad ouer on high, and couer the mercy seat with theyr winges, and their faces shal loke one to another: to the mercy seatward, shal the faces of the cherubins be. And thou shalt put the mercy seat aboue vpon the arke, and in the arke thou shalt put the wptnes whiche I will giue the.

There I wil mete the, and will common with the vpon the mercy seat, betwene the two Cherubins, whiche are vpon the arke of wptnesse, of all thing whiche I wll giue the in commaundement vnto the children of Israel.

Thou shalt also make a table of Sethim wood of two cubites long, and one cubyte brode, and a cubit and an halfe hpe. And couer it with pure golde, and make thereto a crowne of golde roundabout. And make vnto that an hoope of foure syngers broade, roundaboute. And make a golden crowne also to the hoope roundaboute. And make for it foure rynges of golde, and put them in the corners þ are on the foure fete thereof: hard vnder the hoope shal the rynges be,
to put in stauēs to beare the table wpthall.
And thou shalt make stauēs of Sethim wood, & ouerlape them wpth gold, that the table maye be bozne with them. And thou shalt make his dishes, spones, pottes, and flat peces to pour out withal, of fine gold.
And thou shalt set vpon the table shewbread before me alwaye.

And thou shalt make a candelsticke of pure thycke gold with his shaft, braunches, bolles, knoppes, and floures, procedynge there out. Sixe braunches shal procede out of the sydes of the candelsticke, thre oute of the one syde, and thre oute of the other.
And there shall be thre cuppes like vnto al-mondes, with knops and floures vpon e-uery one of the sixe braunches that procede out of the candelsticke, and in the candelsticke selfe, four cuppes like vnto almonds with their knoppes and floures: that there be a knoppe vnder euery two braunches of the sixe that procede out of the candelsticke. And the knoppes and thre braunches shal be all together

And thou shalt make vii. lampes, & put them an hye thereon, to geue lighte vnto þ other side þ is ouer against it, with snuffers and fyre pannes of pure golde. And a talent of fyne gold shall make it with al the apparel. * And se that thou make them after the fashion that was shewed the in the mount.

The xxvi. Chapter.

¶ This chapter also describeth the thynges pertainyng to the holy place.

And thou shalt make an habitacpon with ten curtaynes of twyned bysse * Jacincte, scarlet, and purple, and shalt make the with cherubins of brodyed worke. The length of a curtain shall be. xxviii cubites, and the bredth foure, & they shall be all of one measure. fyue curtaynes shall be coupled together one to another, and the other fyue likewise shall be coupled together one to another.

¶ Then shalt thou make loupes of Jacint colour, along by þ edge of the one curtaine euen in the seluege of þ couplyng curtain. And likewise shalt thou make in þ edge of the vttermost curtayn, that is coupled therewith on the other syde. Fiftye loupes shalt thou make in the one curtaine, & fyfthe in the edge of the other, þ is coupled therewith on the other syde: so that the loupes be one ouer against another. And thou shalt make fifty buttons of golde, and couple the curtaynes together wyth the buttons, that it maye be an habitacion.

B And thou shalt make eleuen curtaynes of gores heere, to be a tente to couer the habitacion. The length of a curtain shall be. xxx. cubites, and the bredth foure, and they shall be all eleue of one measure. And thou shalt couple fyue by them selues, and the other sixe by them selues, & shalt double the sprte in the fore fronte of the tabernacle. And thou shalt make fifty loupes in the edge of the vttermost curtayne on the one side, eue in the couplynge curtayne: and as manye in the edge of the couplyng curtaine on the other syde. And thou shalt make fyfthe buttons of brafse, and put them on the loupes, and couple the tent together withall, that there maye be one couerynge.

And thou shalt make another couerynge for the tente of rammes skynnes dyed red, and yet another aboue all of taxus skyns.

And thou shalt make bordes for the habitacion of Sethimwood to stande vpright, ten cubytes longe shall euery bord be, and a cubite and a halfe brode. Two feete shall one bord haue to couple the together with and so thou shalt make vnto all the bordes of the tabernacle.

And thou shalt make twenty bordes for the habitacion on the south syde, and thou shalt make. xl. sockettes of syluer, and put them vnder the twenty bordes, two sockettes vnder euery borde for the two feete. In lyke maner in the north syde of the habitacion, thou shalt make twenty bordes and. xl. sockettes of syluer: two sockettes vnder euery borde.

And for the west ende of the habitacion shalt thou make fyre bordes, and two bordes mo for the two West corners of the habitacion: so that these two bordes be coupled together beneth, and likewise aboue with clampes. And so shall it be in both the corners. And so ther shall be eight bordes in all, and sixtene sockettes of syluer, two sockettes vnder euery borde.

And thou shalt make barres of Sethimwood, fyue for the bordes of the one syde of the tabernacle, and fyue for the other side, and fyue for the bordes of the west ende. And the myddle barre shall go along thow the middes of the bordes, & barre them together from the one ende vnto the other. And thou shalt couer the bordes with gold, and make golden rynges for them to putte the barres thow, and shalt couer the barres with golde also. And reue by the habitacion accordinge to the fashion thereof þ was shewed the in the mounte.

¶ And thou shalt make a vayle of Jacint, of scarlet, purple, and twyned bysse, & shalt make it of brodyed worke, and ful of cherubins. And hange it vpon foure pylles of Sethimwoodde couered with golde, and that their knoppes be couered with golde also, and stand vpon foure sockettes of syluer. And thou shalt hange by the vaile with rynges, and shalt byng in within the vaile the arke of wytnes. And the vaile shall de-uode the holy from the * mooste holpe. And thou shalt put the mercy seat vpon the arke of wytnesse in the holpest place. And thou shalt put the table wythout the vayle, and candelltycke ouer agaynst the table vpon the south syde of the habitacion, and put the table on the north syde.

And thou shalt make an hanging for the doze of the tabernacle, of Jacincte, of scarlet, of purple & of twyned bysse wroughte with needle worke. And thou shalt make for the hanging, fyue pylles of Sethimwood, and couer both them and their knoppes, with gold, and shalt caste fyue sockettes of brafse for them.

The xxvii. Chapter.

And thou shalt make an altare of Sethimwood: fyue cubites log, and fyue cubites brode, that it be four square, and thre cubites hygh. And make it hornes procedyng oute in the foure corners of it, and couer it wyth brafse. And make hyes of þ altare as hepannes, shouels, basens, fleshhokes, hornes.

fyrepannes, and all the appertenances, of brafse, and thou shalt make a grediern also lyke a net, of brafse: vpon whose foure corners, shalbe foure brasen rings: and the grediern shall reache vnto the myddes of the altare. And thou shalt make stauies for the altare of Sethim woode, and couer the with brafse, and let them be put in rynges alonge by the sydes of the altare to beare it with, and make the auter holowe wpth bordes: as it was shewed the in the mount, so let them make it.

B And thou shalt make * a court vnto the habitacion, whiche shall haue in the south syde, hangyns of twined bysse, beyng an .x. cubytes long, and .xx. pillers therof, with their .xx. sockettes of brafse: but the knoppes of the pylers & their howpes shalbe siluer. In lyke wyse on the north syde, ther shall be hangyns of an .x. cubytes longe, & .xx. pillers with their sockettes of brafse, and the knops and the howpes of syluer. And in the bredth of the court westward, there shal be hangyns of fyfte cubytes long, and ten pillers, with their ten sockettes. And in the bredth of the courte eastwarde, toward the ryng of the sunne, shalbe hangings of .i. cubites.

C So ther shalbe hangyns of .xx. cubites in the one syde of it, with thre pillers, and thre sockettes: and likewise on the other side shal be hangyns of fyftene cubites, wpth thre pillers, and .iii. sockettes.

And in the gate of the court shalbe a baile of twenty cubites: of Iacincte, scarlet, purpul, and twined bysse wrought with needle worke, & .iiii. pillers with their .iiii. sockettes. Al the pylers roundabout the courte, shall be howped wpth siluer, & their knops of siluer, and their sockettes of brafse. The length of the court shalbe an hundred cubytes, and the bredth .i. and the heighth fyue, and the hangyns shalbe of twined bysse, and the sockettes of brafse. And all the vessels of the habitacion to al maner seruike, and the pyennes thereof: pea and the pinnes also of the court shalbe brafse.

D And commaunde the chyldren of Israel that they gyue the pure oyle olyue beaten for the lyghtes, to powre alwaye into the lampes, in the tabernacle of wytnesse: without the baile which is before the wytnesse: & Aaron and hys sonnes shall dresse it both euene and moynynge before the lord: and it shalbe a dewtie for euer vnto your generations after you, to be gyuen of the chyldren of Israel.

The .xxviii. Chapter.

Aarons apparell, and his sonnes.

A And take thou vnto the Aaron thy brother and his sons with him, forth of the chyldre of Israel, that he may minister vnto me, both Aaron, Nadab, Abihu, Eleazar, and Jthamar, Aarons sonnes. And thou shalt make holy raiment for Aaron thy brother, bothe honourable and glorious. Moreover speke vnto al that are wyse hearted, which I haue fylled with the spirit of wisdom: that they make Aarons raimente to consecrate him with, that he may minister vnto me.

These are the garmentes which they shall make: a brestlapp, Ephod, a tuncle, a strapt cote, a mypter and a gyrdell. And they shall make holpe garmentes for Aaron thy brother, and hys sonnes, that he may minister vnto me.

And they shall take thereto gold, Iacinct, scarlet, purpul & bysse. And they shall make the Ephod of gold, iacincte, scarlet, purple and white twined bysse with broderdwork. The two sydes shall come together, closed vp in the edges thereof. And the gyrdell of the Ephod shalbe of the same workeman-ship and of the same stuffe, euen of gold, iacinct, scarlet, purpul and twined bysse.

And thou shalt take two Onix stonnes, and graue them in the names of the chyldre of Israel: sixe in the one stone, & the other sixe in the other stone, according to the order of theyr byrth. After the worke of a stone grauer, euen as signettes are grauen, shalt thou graue the two stonnes with the names of the chyldren of Israel, and shalt make them to be set in ouches of golde. And thou shalt put the two stonnes vpon the two shulders of the Ephod, and they shalbe stonnes of remembraunce vnto the chyldren of Israel. And Aaron shal beare their names before the Lord vpon his two shoulers for a remembrance. And thou shalt make hokes of golde, and two cheynes of fyne golde: lynkeworke and wrethed, and fasten the wrethed cheynes to the hokes.

And thou shalt make the brestlap of iudgement with broderd worke: euen after the worke of the Ephod, shalt thou make it: of gold, iacincte, scarlet, purple and twined bysse shalt thou make it. Four square it shalbe, and double, an hand bred long, & an hand bred brode. And thou shalt fyl it wpth .iiii. rowes of stonnes. In the fyrst rowe shalbe a Sardios, a Topas, and an Emeraud. The second rowe, a Rubye, Saphir and Diamonde. The thyrde Ligurios, an Achat and Amatist. The fourth: a Turcas, Onix, and Jaspis. And they shal be set in gold in their inclosers. And the stonnes shalbe grauen, as signets be grauen: with the names of the chyldren of Israel eue with twelue names, euerye one wpth hys name accordynge to the twelue trybes.

And thou shalt make vpon the brestlap, two fastenynge cheynes of pure gold & wrethen worke. And thou shalt make likewise vpon the brestlapp two rynges of golde, & put them on the edges of the brestlap, and putte the two wrethen cheynes of golde, in the two rynges, whiche are in the edges of the brestlapp. And the two endes of the two cheynes, thou shalt fasten in the two rynges, and putte them vpon the shoulers of the Ephod on the foresyde of it. And thou shalt yet make .ii. rynges of gold, * Brestlap or brestflap is such a flap, as is in the breste of a cope.

Four rowes of stonnes. * Some rede a care bundle.

and put them in the two edges of the brest lap even in the borders thereof toward the insyde of the Ephod that is ouer agaynst it. And yet two other rynges of golde thou shalte make, and putt them on the two sy-des of the Ephod, beneth ouer agaynst the brestlap, alowe where the sydes are ioyned together vpon the bordered gyrdell of the Ephod. And they shall bynde the brestlap by hye rynges, vnto the rynges of the Ephod, wpth a lace of Iacincte, that it may lye close vnto the bordered gyrdell of the Ephod, that the brestlap be not losed from the Ephod.

And Aaron shall beare the names of the chyl dren of Israell, in the brestlap of iud-gemente, vpon his herte, when he goeth in to the holy place, for a remembraunce, before the lorde alwaye. And thou shalt put in the brestlap of iudgemente * Tzypm and Thumin: that they be vpon Aarons herte, when he goeth in before the Lorde, and Aaron shall beare the ensauple of þ childre of Israell, vpon his hert, before the lord alway.

And thou shalt make the tunicle vnto the Ephod, al together of Jacincte. And there shall be an hole for the head, in the middes of it, and let there be a bond of wouen worke rounde about the coler of it, (as it were the coler of a partlet) þat it rent not. And beneth vpon the hem, thou shalt make pomgranats of Jacinet, of scarlet, of purple, round aboute the hem, & belles of golde betwene them round about: that ther be euer a golden bell and a pomgranate, round aboute vpon the hem of the tunicle. And Aaron shall haue it vpon him when he ministrcth, that the sound may be herd, when he goethly into the holpe place, before the Lorde, and when he commeth out, that he dye not.

And thou shalt make a plate of pure gold, and graue thereon, (as signettes are graued) the holynesse of the Lorde, and put it on a lace of Iacincte, and tye it vnto the mitre, vpon the forefront of it, that it be vpon Aarons forehead: that Aaron beare the signe of holy thynges which the chyldre of Israell haue halowed in all their holpe gptes. And it shalbe alwayes vpon Aarons forehead, & they may be accepted before the lord. And thou shalt make an albe of bysse, and thou shalt make a mitre of bisse, and a gyrdle of needle worke.

And thou shalt make for Aarons sons also coates, gyrdels and bonettes honourable & glorious, & thou shalt put the upon Aarons thy brother, and on hys sons with him and shalt annoint them, and fyll theyr hands, & consecrate them that they may ministrate vnto me. And thou shalt make them linen breeches to couer their priuities: from the loynes vnto the thies that they reach. And thou shalt be vpon Aaron and his sons, when they go into the tabernacle of wytnesse, or when they go vnto the altar to minister in holines that they beate no synne, and so die. And it shall be a lawe for euer vnto Aaron and hys Seed after him.

The. xxix. Chapter.

The consecration of Aaron and his sonnes.

Thyis is the thyng that thou shalt do vnto the when thou halowest them to be my priestes. Take one ore and two rammes that are without blemish, and vn-leuended bred, & cakes of swete bred tempered with oyle, and wafers of swet bred, anointed with oyle (of wheten flour shalt thou make them) and put the in a maunde and bringe thein in the maunde wpth the ore, and the two rammes.

And bringe Aaron and hys sonnes vnto the doore of the tabernacle of witnes, & wash them wyth water, and take the garments, & put vpon Aaron the strapte cote & the tunicle of the Ephod, & the Ephod, and the brestlap: and gyrdethē to him, with the brodered gyrdel of the Ephod. And put the mytre vpon his head, & put the holy crown vpon the mytre. Then take the annointing oyle, and powre it vpon his head & anoynte him. And bring his sons, and put albes vpon them, and girde them with gyrdels: as wel Aaron as his sons. And put the bonettes on them: that the prestes offyce may be theirs for a perpetual lawe.

And lay the hands of Aaron & of his sonnes, & bringe the ore before the tabernacle of witnes. * And let Aaron and his sonnes put their hands vpon his head, and kil him before the lord in the dore of the tabernacle of wytnesse. And take of the blood of þ ore & put it vpon the hornes of the alter wpth thy fpyngar and powre all the bloude vpon the botome of the alter, and take al the fat that couereth the inwardes, and the kyll that is on the lpuer, and the twoo kydneis with the fat that is vpon them: and burne them vpon the alter: But the fleshe of the ore & hys skyn and hys donge shalte thou burne with fyre wythout the host, For it is a syn offerynge.

Then take one of the rammes, and let Aaron and his sonnes put theyr handes vpon the head of the ram, & cause him to be slayn and take of his bloud, & smenkel it rounde aboute vpon the alter, and cut the ram in peces, and washe the inwaroes of him and hys legges, and put theym vnto the peces, and vnto hys head, and burne the hole ram vpon the alter. For it is a burnt offering to the Lord and a swete sauour of the Lordes sacrifice.

And take the other ram, and let Aaron & his sons put their handes vpon his head, & let him thus be killed. And take of his blood and put it vpon the top of the right eare of Aaron and of his sons, & vpon the thombe of their right handes, and vpon the great toe of their right fete, and sprenkel the blood vpon the alter round about.

Then take of the bloud, that is vpon the alter, and of the annoynting oyle, & burn

The xxxi. Chapter.

The callinge of Bezaleel and Aholiab the worke men. The Sabbath is commaunded. The tables of stone are geuen Moyses.

And the Lord spake vnto Moyses, say- ing: Behold<sup>e</sup> I haue called by name Bezaleel, the sonne of Ahy, sonne to Hur, of the tyebe of Iuda. And I haue spled hym with the spirite of God, with wisdom, vnderstandyng, and knowledge euen in al maner of worke to fynd out sotle feaptes, to worke in gold, siluer, and brasse and wyth the crafte to graue stones, to set and to carue in timber, and to worke in all maner workmanshyy. And behold, I haue geuen hym to be companion, Aholiab, the sonne of Ahisamach of the tyebe of Dan, and in the hertes of all that are wyse harted, I haue put wysdome to make all that I haue commaunded the: the tabernacle of wytnesse, and the arcke of wytnes, & the mercy seate that is therevpon al the ordna- mentes of the tabernacle, & the table wyth his ordinaunce, & the pure candelstike with al his apparel, and the alter of incens, and the alter of burnt offerings, with al his vessels, & the lauer with hys fote, and the vestimentes to minister in, and the holy garmen- tes for Aaron the pnt, and the garments of hys sons to minister in, and the annoin- tyng oyle, and the swete cense for the sanc- tuary: according to al that I haue coma- ded the, shal they do.

And the lord spake vnto Moyses saying: speake vnto the chyldre of Israell, and say: In any wise, se that pe kepe my Sabbath: for it shal be a signe betwene me and you, in your generacions, for to knowe, p the Lord do sanctifie you. Kepe my Sabbath therfore, that it be an holy thing vnto you. He that defileth it shalbe slayne therfore. For whosoever worketh therein, the same soule shalbe rote out from his people.

For it shalbe a sygne betwene me and the chyldre of Israell for euer. For in syxe dayes the lord made heauen & earth and the seuenth daie he rested and was re- freshed.

A And when the people saw that it was longe of Moyses came downe of the mountayne, they gathered them selues together, and came vnto Aaron, & said vnto hym. * Arise and make vs a God to go before vs: for of this Moyses thy felowe that brought vs oute of the land of Egypt, we wote not what is become.

And Aaron sayd vnto them: plucke of the golden earyngs, whych are in the eares of your wyues, your sons and of your daughters: and bring them vnto me. And all the people plucked of the golden earynges, that were in their eares, and brought them vnto Aaron. And he receiued them of their handes, and fashyoned it wth a grauer, and made it a calfe of molten metall. And they sayde: * This is thy God O Israel, whych broughte the oute of the lande of Egypte.

B And when Aaron sawe that, he made an altare before it, and made a proclamation, sayinge: Tomorowe shall be holy daie vnto the Lord. And they rose vp in the morninge & offered burnt offerings, & brought offerings of attonement also. * And than they sat them downe to eate and drinke, & rose vp agayne to playe.

Then the Lord sayd vnto Moyses: * go get the downe, for thy people whych thou broughtest out of the lande of Egypte haue marred all, they are turned at once oute of the waye, whych I commaunded them: * & haue made them a calfe of molten metall, & haue worshipped it, and haue offered there- to, and haue sayed: This is thy God thou Israel, which hath brought the oute of the lande of Egypte. And the Lord sayd vnto Moyses: beholde, * I see this people & it is a stiffnecked people, & nowe therefore suffre me & my wrath may waxe hote vpon them, and that I maye consume them: and then will I make of the a myghty people.

C Then Moyses besought the Lord his god and sayd: O Lord, Why should thy wrath waxe hoate vpon thy people whych thou hast brought out of the land of Egypt with great power and with a myghty hande? * wherefore shulde & Egyptians speake & say: For a mischefe dyd he bring them out: euen to slea them in the mountaynes, and to consume them from the face of the earth? Turne fro thy farse wrath, and haue compassion ouer the wyckednesse of thy people. Remembre Abraham, Isaac and Israel thy seruautes, to whom thou swarest by thine owne selfe, and saydest vnto the:

* I will multiplye your sede as the starres of heauen, and all this land whych I haue sayd: I will geue vnto your sede, and they shall inheret it for euer. And the Lord refrayned him selfe from that euill, whych he sayde, he wolde do vnto hys people.

D And Moyses turned his backe, and wente downe from the hyl, and the two tables of wytnesse in hys hand: which were writtten on both the leaues, and were the worke of God, and the wytyng was the wytyng of God, grauen vpon the tables. And whē Moyses hearde the noyse of the people as they shouted, he said vnto Moyses: ther is a noyse of warre in the hoste. And he sayed: it is not the crye of them that haue the mastre, nor of them that haue the worke: but I do hear the noyse of synngng.

E And asone as he came nigh vnto the host and sawe the calfe and the daunsyng, hys wrath waxed hote, and he caste the tables out of hys hand, and brake the euen at the hyl fote. And he toke the calfe whiche they had made, and burned it with fire, & stampit vnto powder, & strawed it in the water, & made the chyldren of Israel dryncke. And than Moyses sayde vnto Aaron: What dyd thys people vnto the, & thou hast broughte so great a synne vpon them?

And Aaron sayde: let not the wrath of my Lorde waxe farse, thou knowest the people, that they are euen set on mischefe: they sayd vnto me: Make vs a God to go before vs, for we wote not what is become of Moyses thy felow, that broughte vs oute of the lande of Egypte. And I sayed vnto them: Let them that haue gold, take and byngge it me: And I cast it into the fyre, and ther- of came out thys calfe.

F When Moyses saw that the people were naked (for Aaron hadde made them naked vnto theyr shame, when they made insur- reccion) he wente and stode at the gate of the hoste, and sayed: If anye man pertaine vnto the Lorde, let hym come to me. And all the sons of Leui gathered themselves to- gyther, & came vnto him. And he sayd vnto the: Thus sayth the Lord god of Israel: * Put euerye man hys swerde by hys syde, & go in and out from gate to gate thorowout the host: and slea euerye man hys brother, euerye man hys frende, and euerye man hys neighbour. And the chyldre of Leui did as Moyses had said. * And there were slaine of the people the same day, aboute thre thou- sand men. Then Moyses said: fyll your han- des vnto the Lord this daie, euerye man v- pon hys sonne & vpon hys brother: to bring vpon you a blessing thys daie.

And on the morow, Moyses sayed vnto the people: Ye haue synned a greatesynne. But now I will goo vp vnto the Lorde, to wpt whether I can make an attonement for your synne.

And Moyses went again vnto the Lord, & sayd: Oh, thys people haue sinned a great synne, and haue made them a God of gold: yet forgyue them their synne I praye the: If not (a) wyse me out of thy boke, whiche thou hast writtten. And the lorde sayd vnto Moyses: I wyll put hym oute of my boke & hath sinned against me. But go & bring the people vnto the land whiche I sayed vnto the: behold, myne aungell shall goo before the. The lord sendeth an angel before his people. The lord denpeth to go up with his people. The people lament they synne. Moyses talketh wth the lord, and desyeth to se his face: & is commaunded to stande vpon the rocke.

And the Lord sayd vnto Moyses: departe and go hence: bathe thou & the people, which thou hast brought out of the land of Egypt, vnto the land whych I swore vnto Abraham, Isaac and Jacob, saying: vnto thy seede I wyl gyue it. And I will sende an angell before the, and wyl cast oute the Cananites, the Amorites, the Hethytes, the Pherezites, the Heuites, & the Jebusytes: that thou mayest go into a land that floweth with milke & hony. But I will not go amonge you my selfe, for ye are a stifnecked people: lest I consume you by the way. And whē the people heard this euill tidinges, they sorowed: and no man dyd put on hys best rayment.

And the Lord spake vnto Moyses: Saye vnto the children of Israel: ye are a stifnecked people, I must come once sodenly vpon you, & make an end of you. But now putte your goodly rayment from you, that I may wete what to do vnto you. And the chyldre of Israel layde their goodly rayment from them euen vnder the mount Horeb.

And Moyses toke the tabernacle & pitched it without the host a farre of from the host, & called it the tabernacle of witnesse. And all that wold aske any question of the lord, went out vnto the tabernacle of witnesse, which was without the host. And whē Moyses wente oute vnto the tabernacle, all the people rose vp, and stode euery man in hys tent doze, and looked after Moyses, vntill he was gone into the tabernacle. And as soon as Moyses was entred into the tabernacle, the clouden pillar descended, and stode in the doore of the tabernacle, and he talked wth Moyses. And when all the people saw the clouden pillar stande in the tabernacle doze, they rose vp and worshipped: euery man in his tent doze.

And the Lord spake vnto Moyses: face to face, as a man speketh vnto his frend. And when Moyses turned agayne into the host, the lad Josua his seruaunt the sonne of Nun departed not oute of the tabernacle.

And Moyses sayd vnto the Lord: Se, thou saidest vnto me: lead this people forth, but thou shewest me not whom thou wilt send with me. And hast said mozeouer: I knowe the by name, & thou hast also founde grace in my syght: Now therefore, if I haue found fauour in thy sight, the shew me thy wape, and let me knowe the: that I maye fynde grace in thy sighte. And loke on this also, how that thys nacpon is thy people.

And he sayde: my presence shall go wth the, and I will gyue the rest. And he sayed: If thy presence goo not with me, carpe vs not hence, for how shall it be knowne now that both I and thy people haue found fauour in thy syghte, but in that thou goest with vs: that both I and thy people haue a preeminence before all the people that are vpon the face of the earth. And the lord saied vnto Moyses: I will do thys also that thou hast sayde, for thou hast found grace in my sighte, and I knowe the by name.

And he sayd: I beseeche the, shewe me thy glorie. And he sayd: I wil make at my good goo before the, and I will be called in thys name Jehouah before the, and wyl shewe mercy to whom I shewe mercede, and wyl haue compassyon on whom I haue copassyon. And he sayde furthermore: thou maiest not se my face, for ther shall no man se me and lyue.

And the Lord sayed: Beholde, there is a place by me, and thou shalt stande vpon a rocke, and whyle my glorie goeth forth, I wyl put the in a clyfte of the rocke, & wyl put myne hand vpon the whyle I passe by. And then I wyl take awaye myne hande, and thou shalt se my backepartes: but my face shall not be sene.

The xxxiiii. Chapter.
The tables are renewed. The mercy of god. To haue felowshyp wth the gentyles is forbydden, and theyr ydolatre also. The feaste of twete bread. The fyrst begottē. The Sabboth. The feaste of thre weekes. The fyrst fruytes. Moyses fast. Moyses face glystereth.

And the Lord said vnto Moyses: hewe the two tables of stone, like vnto the fyrste, that I maye write in them the wordes which were in the first two tables, whych thou brakest. And be redy agaynst the mornynge, that thou mayest come vperly vnto the mount of Sinai, & stand by me ther vpon the top of the mount. But let no man come vp with the, neyther let any man be sene thorow out all the mount, neyther let thepe noz oren fede before the hyl.

And Moyses hewed two tables of stone lyke vnto the fyrst, and rose vp early in the mornynge, and went vp vnto the mount of Sinai as the Lord commaunded him, and toke in hys hande the two tables of stone. And the Lord descended in the cloude, and stode with him there: and he called vpon the name of the Lord. And when the Lord walked before him, he cryed: Lord: Lord god, ful of compassion and mercy, whych arte not lightly angrey, but abundant in mercy and truth, and kepest mercy in store for thousands, & forguest wyckednesse, trespass, and synne (for there is no man innocent before the) and visitest the wickednesse of the fathers vpon the children, & vpon chyldrens chyldren, euen vnto the thyrde and fourth generaciōs. And Moyses bowed him selfe to the earth quickly, and worshipped & sayd: If I haue found grace in thy sight, O Lord, then let my Lord go with vs (for it is a stubburne people) and haue mercy vpon our wyckednes and our synne, and let vs be thyne enheritaunce.

* There shall no man se my face & lyue. Not the face of God whych is the face of lyfe, is the cause of death to the that se it: for the saints are in hea- uen do in dede se it. But none that liueth in the bodye can se noz co-wrote in the tables the wordes of the connaunt: euen ten verses.

And Moses came downe from mounte Sinai, and the two tables of wytnesse in his hande, and wist not that his face shone wpth beames of hys commenyng with the Lorde.

And when Aaron and al the children of Israel looked vpon Moyses, and sawe that the skinne of his face shone with beames, they were afrayed to come nighe him. But he called them to him, & then Aaron & al the chiefe of the company came vnto hym, and Moyses talked with them.

And at last all the children of Israel came vnto him, and he gaue commandement vnto them of al that the Lorde had sayd vnto him in mount Sinai. And as sone as he had made an ende of talkynge wpth theym, he put a couerynge vpon hys face. But when he wente befoze the Lorde to speake wpth him, he toke the couering of, vntyl he came out. And he came out and spake vnto þ children of Israel, that which he was comaunded. And the childre of Israell saw the face of Moyses, that the skyn of hys face shone with beames, but Moyses put a couerynge vpon hys face, tyll he wente in to commen with hym.

The. xxxv. Chapter.

The Sabbath. The fyfte fruytes are re-guyed. The readines of the people to offer.
Bezaleel and Ahaliab are prayesd of Gosses and set to worke.

AND Moyses gathered al the company of the chyldren of ysrael togyther, & sayde vnto theim, these are the thynges which the Lord hath commaunded to doo. Sixe dayes ye shall worke, but the seuenth day shall be vnto you the holy Sab-both of the Lords reste, so that whosoever doeth anye worke therein, shall dye. More-ouer ye shall kinde no fyre thowowe out al your habitacions, vpon the Sabboth day.

And Moses spake vnto al the multitude of the children of Israel, saying: * this is the thing which the Lorde commaunded, saying: Byue from among you first fruits vnto the Lorde.

All that are wplyng in their hartes, Chalbryng fyrst fruytes vnto the Lord: gold, siluer, brasse, Jacinct, scarlet, purple, bysse, & goates herre: rammes skynnes red, & starus skynnes, and Sethimwoode: and oyle for lyghtes and spices, for the anointynge oyle and for the swete encense: and Onixstones, and stones to be set for the Ephod and for the brestlappe.

And let all thepim that are wyse harted amonge you, come and make all that the Lord hath commaunded: the habitacyon, and the tente thereof with his couertynge & hys ringes, bordes, barres, pylers, and soc kettes, the arke and the stauess therof with the mercy seate, and the baile that couered it, the table and his stauess, wyth all that pertayneth thereto and the shewbread, the candel-

candelsticke of light with his furnyng and his lampes, and the oyle for the lightes, the incense alter and his staves, the anointyng oyle, and the swete incense, and the hangyng before the tabernacle doore, the altare of burnt sacrifices, and hys brasen gredyon that longeth therto with his staves and all his ordynaunce, and the laver & hys fote: the hangyngs of the courte with his pillars and their sockets, and the hangyng to the doore of the court: the pyennes of the habitacon, and the pyennes of the courte with their borders: the ministring garments to minstre with in holynes, and the holy vestmentes of Aaron the prieste, and the vestments of his sonnes, to minister in.

And al the company of the chylzen of Israel departed from the presence of Moyses. And thei went (as many as their harts cou-raged them, and as many as they sprytes made them willinge) & brought heueoffringes vnto the lord, to the makinge of the tabernacle of wyrtnesse, and for all his vles, & for the holy vestments. And the men came with the women (eue as many as wer willing herted) and brought bracelets, earpynges, rynges and gyrdels, & all maner Jewels of golde. And all the menne that waue-d offryngs of gold vnto the Lord & euery man with whom was founde Jacincte, Scarlet, purple & bysse or goates heare or red skynnes of kammes or sayus skyns, brought it. And al þ houe by gold or brasse, brought an heueoffryng vnto the Lord. And al me with whom was found Sethim woode mete for anye maner worke, or serupce, brought it.

And al the women that were wise herted to worke with their hands, span & brought the sponne worke, both of Jacinct, scarlet purple and bysse. And all the women that excelled in wysdome of herte, span the goates harye. And the lordes brought Onyx stones and set stones for the Ephod, and for the brestlappe, and sppe and oyle, both for the lightes and for the anointyng oyle and for the swete incense. And the chylzen of Israel brought wyllyng offerynges vnto the Lord, both men and womenne, as many as their hertes made them wyllyng to byngge, for all maner workes whiche the lord had commaunded to make by the hande of Moyses.

Exo. xxxi. a And Moyses sayd vnto the chylzen of Israel, behold, * the Lord hath call by name Bezaleel the son of Uri the sonne of Hur of the trybe of Juda, and hath fylled hym with the spyt of God, wth wysdome, vnderstanding and knowledge, euen in al maner worke, & to fynd out curpous workes, to worke in golde, syluer and brasse, & with grauing of stones to set, and with keruing in wood, and to worke in al maner of sotle workes. And he hath putte in hys herte the grace to teache, both hym and Ahaliab the son of Ahisamach of the tribe of Dan hath he fylled wth wysdome of hert, to worke al maner of graue worke, they are also broderers and workers with nedle. In Jacinct Scarlet, purple and Bisse, and at weuers that can make all maner worke, and can deuple luttel workes.

The xxxvi. Chapter.

The thynges that Bezaleel and Ahalyab made for the holy place of the Lord.

And Bezaleel wrought and Ahaliab & al wylse herted men, to whō the lord had gyuen wysdome and vnderstandyng, to knowe howe to worke all maner worke for the holpe serupce, in all that the Lord commaunded.

And Moyses called for Bezaleel, Ahaliab, and al the wise herted men, in whose herts the lord had put wysdome, euen as many as their herts were encouraged to come vnto the worke to worke it. And they receiued of Moyses all the heueoffryngs, whiche the chylze of Israel had brought for the work of the holy serupce, to make it withal. And they brought besyde that wyllyng offerynges euery moornyng.

And al the wylse men that wrought all the holy worke, came euery man fro his worke whiche they made, and spake vnto Moyses, sayyng: the people bring to much, & aboue that is ynough to serue for the work whiche the Lord hath commaunded to make. And then Moyses gaue a commaundement, and they caused it to be proclaimed thorow out the host sayyng, se that neither manne nor woman ptepare any more worke for the holy heueoffryng, & so the people were forbydden to byngge, for the stuffe they hadde was sufficient for them vnto al the worke, to make it, and to much.

And al the wylse herted men among them þ wrought in the worke of the habitacion, made euen ten curtynes of twyned bysse, Jacincte, Scarlet, and purple, and made the full of Cherubins with broderd worke. The length of one curtayne was. xxviii. cubytes, and the bredth foure, and were al of one spse. And they coupled fyue curtaynes by the selues, and other fyue by the selues. And they made .l. loupes of Jacinct alonge by the edge of the furdest curtayne, euen in the seluege of the couplyng curtayne. And likewise they made on the spde of the furdest couplyng curtayne on the other spde, fifty loupes they made in the one curtaine, and fyfty in the edge of the couplyng curtayne on the other spde, so that the loupes were one ouer agaynst another.

And they made fyfty ryngs of gold, and coupled the curtaynes one to another with the rynges, and so was it made a dwelling place.

And they made .xi. curtayns of goates harye to be a tent ouer the tabernacle, thyrty cubytes long a pece, and foure cubites brode, and they al .xi. of one spse. And they coupled fyue by the selues, and fyue by the selues, & they made fyfty loupes a long by the Bysse is fine whete whether it be spke or linnen.

The border of the furdest couplyng curtaine on the one syde, & l. in the edge of the couplyng curtaine on the other syde. And they made .l. ringes of brasse to couple the tente togyther that it myghte be one. And they made a couering vnto the tente of rammes skyns red, and yet another of Taurus skynnes aboute all.

And they made bordes for the dwellinge place of Sethim woode, that stode vpright euery borde ten cubites longe, and a cubyte and a halfe brode. And they made two fete to euery borde of the dwellinge place ioyntynge one to another. And they made twenty bordes for the southsyde of the habytacyon, and .xl. sockettes of syluer vnder the .xx. bordes two sockettes vnder euery borde, euen for the two fete of theim. And for the other syde of the dwellinge toward the North, they made other twenty bordes with fourty sockettes of syluer, two sockettes vnder euery borde. And behynde in the end of the tabernacle toward the west, they made sixe bordes and two other bordes for the corners of the habitacyon behynde, and they were ioined closte both beneth and also aboute with clampes, and thus they dyd to both the corners: so they were in al eight bordes and .xvi. sockettes, vnder euery borde two sockettes.

And they made barres of Sethim woode .v. for the bordes of the one syde of the habitacion, and fiue for the other, and .v. for the bordes of the west ende of the habitacyon. And they made the myddel barre to spote thorow the boordes: from the one ende to the other, and ouerlayde the bordes wth gold, & made them rynges of gold to thrust the barres thorow, and couered the barres with gold. And they made an hangynge of Iacinct, of Scarlet, purple & twyned bilbe with Cherubins of broderd worke. And made therunto foure pillers of Sethim woode, & ouerlaide them with golde. Their knoppes were also of gold, and they cast for the .iii. sockettes of syluer. And they made an hangynge for the tabernacle dore: of Iacincte, Scarlet, purple and twyned bilbe, of needleworke, and the pillers of it were spue wth their knoppes, and ouerlayd the heades of them and the hopes with golde, wth their spue sockettes of brasse.

The xxxvii. Chapter.

The arche of wytnesse. The mercy seate. The table. The candellsticke. The lyghtes. The altare and the incense.

And Bezaleel made the arke of Sethim wood two cubites and an halfe longe, and a cubite and a halfe brode, and a cubite and an halfe hygh: and ouerlayd it with fyne gold both within & without, and made a crowne of golde to it round aboute, and cast for it foure rynges of gold for the foure corners of it: two rynges for the one syde, and two for the other, and made stauies of Sethim woode, and couered them wth golde, and put the stauies in the rynges alonge by the syde of the arcke to beare it with.

And he made the *mercy seat of pure gold, *The mercy seat, was vnto the arke fro whence God spake. It was a figure of Christ. two cubites and a halfe longe & one cubyte & a halfe brode, and made two Cherubins of thicke golde vpon the two endes of the mercy seat: One cherub on the one ende, & an other Cherub on the other ende of the mercy seat. And the Cherubins spread out their winges aboute an highe, and couered the mercy seate therewith. And their faces were one to another: towardes the mercy seate, were the faces of the Cherubins.

And he made the table of Sethim wood two cubytes long and a cubyt brode, and a cubyte and a halfe hygh, and ouerlayde it with fyne gold, and made therto a crowne of gold roundaboute, and made thereto an hope of an hande bredth roundaboute, and made vnto the hope a crowne of gold round aboute, and caste for it foure rings of gold, and put the rynges in the foure corners by the fete: euen vnder the hope to put stauies in to beare the table with. And he made stauies of Sethim woode, and couered them with golde to beare the table with, & made the vesselles that were on the table of pure golde, the dishes, spones, flatpeces & pottes to poure with.

And he made the candellstick of pure thicke golde: both the candellsticke and his shaft: with branches, bolles, knops & floures proceeding out of it. Sixe braunches proceeding out of the sides therof, thre out of the one side, & thre out of the other. And on euery braunche were thre cups lyke vnto almondes with knoppes and floures thorowout the sixe braunches that proceded out of the candellstick. And vpon the candellstick selfe were foure cuppes, after the fashion of almondes with knops & floures: vnder euery two braunches a knoppe. And the knops, and the braunches proceded out of it, & were al one peece of pure thicke gold. And he made seven lampes therto, & the snuffers therof, and firepannes of pure golde. An hundred weight of pure golde made both it and all that belonged thereto.

And he made the altare of incense, of Sethim wood of a cubyte longe, and a cubyte brode: euen foure square, and two cubites hygh wth hornes proceeding out of it. And he couered it with pure golde, both the top and the sydes roundabout, and the hornes of it, and made vnto it a crowne of golde roundabout.

And he made two rings of gold vnto it, euen vnder the crowne vpon epyther syde of it, to put the stauies in for to beare it with: & made stauies of Sethim woode, & ouerlaide them wth gold. And he made the holy anoyntynge oyle and the swete pure incense after the Apothecaries crafte.

The xxxviii. Chapter.

The alter of burntofferings. The brasse lare. The summe of that the people offered to the buyldynge of the habitacyon of the Lorde.

And

And he made the burnt offering altare of Setim wood, fyue cubytes longe, and fyue cubytes brode: even, thre square and thre cubytes hyghe. And he made hoynes in the foure corners of it pro-ceedynge out of it, and overlaid it wth brasse. And he made all the vessels of the altare: the cauldrons, shouels, basyns, fleshhookes, and colepannes, all of brasse.

And he made a brasen gredyon of networke into the altare rounde about Alow beneith under the compasse of the altare: so that it reached vnto halfe the altare, a cast fourcynge of brasse, for the foure ends of the gredyon to put staves in. And he made staves of Setim wood, and couered them wth brasse, and put the staves in the cyn-ges alonge by the altare syde to beare it, and made the altare halowe wth bordes.
And he made all the lauer of brasse and the fore of it also of brasse, in the sighte of them that apperchaunce before the doore of the tabernacle of wytnesse.

And he made the court with hangynge of twyned Wyse, of an hundred cubytes longe vpon the southside, and twenty pyl-lers wth twenty sockettes of brasse: but the knoppes of the pylers, and the hoopes wer syluer. And on the Northside the han-gynge were an hundred cubytes long wth twenty pylers, and twenty sockettes of brasse, but the knoppes and the hoopes of the pylers were of syluer. And on the westsyde, were hangynge of fyfthe cubytes longe, and .x. pylers wth their tenne sockettes, and the knoppes and the hoopes of the pylers were syluer. And on the eastsyde towarde the sunne rysynge, were hangynge of fyfthe cubytes: þ hang-ynge of the one syde of the gate were fyftene cubytes long, and thre pylers thre wth their thre sockettes. And of the other syde of the court gate were hangynge also of .x. cubytes longe, and thre pylers thre wth thre sockettes. Now all the han-gynge of the court roundabout, were of twyned Wyse, and the sockettes of the pylers wer brasse: but þ knops & the hoopes of the pylers syluer, and the beades were o-uerlayde wth syluer, and all the pylers of the court were hooped aboute wth syluer.
And the hangynge of the gate of the court was nebleworke, of Jacynthe, Scarlette, Purple, and twyned Wyse, twenty cubytes longe, and fyue in the bredth, accordyng to the hangynge of the court. And the py-lers were foure wth foure sockettes of bras, and the knoppes of syluer, and the bea-des overlaid wth syluer, and hooped about wth syluer, and all the pylnes of the tabernacle and of the court rounde-about were brasse.

This is the summe of the habytacyon of wytnesse, whiche was counted at the commandement of Moyses, and was the office of the Leuytes by the hande of Ahamar sonne to Aaron the prest. And Bezai leelonne of Uri, sonne to Bur of the tribe of Juda, made all that the Lorde commanded Moyses, and wth hym Ahalyab sonne of Ahysamache of the tribe of Dan, a cunninge grauer, and a worker of nebleworke in Jacynthe, Scarlette, Purple and Wyse.

All the golde that was occupied vpon al the worke of the holpe place (whiche was the golde of the waueofferinge) was .xxxv. hundred weyghte, and seven hundred and thirtysydes, accordyng to the holpe syde. And the summe of syluer that came of the multitude was fyue score hundred weyghte, and a thousand seven hundred and .lxxv. sydes of the holpe syde. Eue-ry manne offeringe halfe a sicke after the weyghte of the holpe syde amonge them that were to be numbred from twentys yeare olde and aboue, amonge nyne hundred thousand and thre thousand, and fyue hundred and fyfthe men.

And the fyue score hundred weyghte of syluer went to the castinge of the sockettes of þ sanctuary & the sockettes of the bayle: an hundred sockettes of the fyue score hundred weyghte, an hundred weight to euery sockette. And the thousande seven hundred and .lxxv. sydes, made knops to the pylers and overlaid the beades and hooped the.

And the brasse of the waueofferinge was
lxx. hundred weighte, and two thousande, and foure hundred sydes. And therewyth he made the sockettes to the doore of the tabernacle of wytnesse, and the brasen altare, and the brasen gredyon that longeth thereto, and all the vessels of the altare, and the sockettes of the court roundabout, and the sockettes of the court gate, and all the pylnes of the habytacyon, and all the pylnes of the court rounde aboute.

The xxxix. Chapter.

The makinge of Aaron and his sonnes apparel. At that the Lorde commaunded was offered.

And of the Jacynthe, Scarlet, Purple, and twyned Wyse, they made the vestiments of ministracion to do seruice in the holpe place, and made the holpe garmentes that pertayned to Aaron, as the Lorde commaunded Moyses.

And they made the Ephod of golde, Ja-cynthe, Scarlet, Purple, and twyned Wyse.
And they beate the golde into thynne plates, and cut it into wyres: to worke it in þ Jacynthe, Scarlet, Purple, and the Wyse, wth bordered worke. And they made the spdes come togyther, and closed them up by the .ii. edges. And the byderynge of the gyrdelle that was vpon it, was of the same stuffe, and after the same worke of Golde, Jacynthe, Scarlette, Purple and twyned Wyse, as the Lorde commanded Moyses.

And they brought Onix stones closed in ouches of golde, and graued as sygnettes are grauen with the names of the chyldren of Israel, and put them on the shoulders of the Ephod that they shoulde be a remembrance of the chyldren of Israel, as the Lord commaunded Moses.

C And they made the brestlappe of conyng worke, after the worke of the Ephod: even of Gold, Iacynthe, Scarlet, Purple & twyned Wyll. And they made it foure square and double, an hande breadth long and an hande breadth broad. And they fylled it with four rowes of stones: the firste rowe Sardios, a Topas, and a Smaragdus: the seconde rowe, a Rubre, a Saphir and a Diamonde: the thyrde rowe, a Iagurios, an Achat, and an Amatyne: the fourth rowe, a Turcas, an Onix and a Iaspys) closed in ouches of golde in their inclosers. And the .xii. stones were grauen as sygnettes with the names of the chyldren of Israel, euery stone with his name, accordinge to the .xii. tribes.

D And they made vpon the brestlappe, two fastenynge cheynes of wyrtwen worke and pure gold. And they made .ii. hokes of gold and two golde rynges, and put the two rynges vpon the two corners of the brestlappe. And they put the two cheynes of golde in the two rynges, in the corners of the brestlappe. And the two endes of the two chapnes they fastened in the two hokes, and put them on the shoulders of the Ephod vpon the forefront of it.

And they made two other rynges of golde, and put them on the two other corners of the brestlappe longe vpon the edge toward the insyde of the Ephode that is ouer agaynst it. And they made yet two other golden rynges, and put them on the two sydes of the Ephod, beneth on the fore syde of it, euery where the sydes goe together, aboue vpon the brestynge of the Ephod, and they straped the brestlappe by his rynges vnto the rynges of the Ephod, with a lace of Iacynthe, that it myghte ly faste vpon the brestynge of the Ephod, and shoulde not be loosened from of the Ephod, as the Lord commaunded Moses.

E And he made the Tynycle vnto the Ephod of wouen worke, and all together of Iacynthe, and the head of the Tynycle was in the myddest of it as the collar of a partlet, with a bond round aboute the collar that it shuld not rente. And they made beneath vpon the hemme of the Tynycle, Pommegranettes of Iacynthe, Scarlet, purple and twyned Wyll. And they made lytle belles of pure goulde, and put them amonge the Pommegranates rounde aboute vpon the edge of the Tynycle a belle and a Pommegranate, a belle and a Pommegranate rounde aboute the hemmes of the Tynycle, to mynster in, as the Lord had commaunded Moses.

And they made coates of wyll of wouen worke for Aaron and his sons, and a mytre of Wyll, and goodly bonettes of Wyll, and linnen breeches of twyned Wyll, and a gyrdell of twyned Wyll, Iacynthe, Scarlet and purple, even of needleworke, as the Lord commaunded Moses.

And they made the plate of the holpe crowne of fyne gold, and wrought it with grauen worke, the volutes of the Lord, and tyled it to a lace of Iacynthe to fasten it an hygher vpon the myter, as the Lord commaunded Moses.

Thus was all the worke of the habytacion of the tabernacle of witness finished. And the chyldren of Israel dyd accordinge to all that the Lord hadde commaunded Moses.

And they broughre the habytacion vnto Moses, the tente and all the furniture thereof, the buttens, boordes, barres, pylles and sockettes, and the couerynge of Rammes skynnes red, and the couerynge of Tarus skynnes, and the hangynge bayle, and the arcke of wytnesse with the staues thereof, and mercy seate: and the table and all the ordynance thereof, and the shewbread, and the pure candelstykke, and the lampes prepared thereto, with all the vessels thereof, and the oyle for lyghtes, the golden altare, and the annointynge oyle and the sweet incense, and the hanging of the tabernacle doore, and the brasen altare, and the gredyon of brasen longynge ther vnto with his bars and all his vessels, and the lauer with his sore, and the hangynge of the court with his pylles and sockettes, and the hangynge to the court gate, his boordes and pinnes, and all the ordynance that serueth to the habytacion of the tabernacle of wytnesse, and the mynsterynge vestimentes to serue in the holy place, and the holy vestimentes of Aaron the ppeste, and his sonnes raymentes to mynster in, accordinge to all that the Lord commaunded Moses, even so the chyldren of Israel made all the worke. And Moses behelde all the worke, and see, they hadde done it euery as the Lord commaunded, and then Moses blessed them.

The. xl. Chapter.

G The tabernacle is reared vp, The gloire of the Lord appeareth in a cloude coueryng the tabernacle.

A And the Lord spake vnto Moses, sayinge: In the fyrste daye of the firste moneth shalt thou sette vp the habytacion of the tabernacle of witness, and put therein the arcke of witness, and couer the arcke with the bayle, and bring in the table and apparelle it, and bring in the candelstykke and put on his lampes, and set the cense altare of golde before the arcke of wytnesse, and put the hangynge of the doore vnto the habytacion. And set the burnt offeringe altare before the doore of the tabernacle of wytnesse, and set the lauer betwene the tabernacle of wytnesse and

and the altare, and put water therein, and make the court rounde aboute, and set vp the hangynge of the court gate.

Exod. xxx. c.

* And take annopntynge oyle and anoint the habitacion, and all þ is therein, and halowe it, and all that belongeth thereto: that it may be holy. And anoint the altare of the burntofferings, and all hys vessels, and sanctifye the altare that it maye be moste holie. And annopnte also the laver and hys fore, and sanctifye it.

¶ Then brynge Aaron and his sonnes vnto the doore of the tabernacle of wytnesse, and washe them with water. And put vpon Aaron the holy vestments, and annoint hym and sanctifye hym that he may myntster vnto me, that they annointynge may be an euertasting priesthode vnto the thowowe oute theyr generacions. * And Moses dyd accordyng to al that the Lord commaunded hym.

Num. vii. a

¶ Thus was the tabernacle reared vp the first day, in the first moneth, in the seconde yere. And Moses reared vp the tabernacle and fastened his sockettes, and set vp the bordes, and put in theyr barres, and reared vp the pillers, and spread abroad the tente ouer the habytacyon, and put the couerynge of the tente on hyghe aboue it: as the Lord commaunded Moses.

¶ And he toke and put the testimony in þe arcke, and set the stauess to the arcke, and put the mercepe seate on hyghe vpon the arcke, and brought the arcke into the habytacion, & hanged vpon the vaile and couered the arcke of wytnesse, as the Lord commaunded Moses.

¶ And he put the table in the Tabernacle of wytnesse in the Northsyde of the habytacyon wythoute the vaile, and sette the breade in order before the Lord, euen as the Lord had commaunded Moses.

¶ And he put the candelstycke in the tabernacle of wytnesse ouer againste the table in the Southsyde of the habytacion, and set vp the lampes before the Lord: as the Lord commaunded Moses.

¶ And he put the golden altare in the tabernacle of wytnesse before the vaile, and brennt sweete incense thereon as the Lord commaunded Moses.

¶ And set vp the hangynge in the doore of the habytacion, and set the burnt offering altare before the doore of the tabernacle of wytnesse, and offered burnt offerings and meat offerings thereon: as the Lord commaunded Moses.

Exod. xxx. c.

* And he sette the laver betwene the tabernacle of wytnesse and the altare, & poured water therein to washe wyth. And both Moses, Aaron and his sonnes washed theyr handes and theyr feete therat: both when they went into the tabernacle of wytnesse, and when they went to the altare, as the Lord commaunded Moses.

¶ And he reared vp the court roundabout the habytacyon and the altare, and sette vp the hangynge of the court gate: and so Moses synished the worke.

* And the cloude couered the tabernacle of wytnesse, and the glorie of the Lord fylled the habytacyon, so that Moses coulde not entre into the tabernacle of wytnesse, because they could not abide therein, & the glorie of the Lord fylled the habytacyon.

¶ When the cloude was taken vp from of the habytacyon, the chyldren of Israell toker their iourneyes as ofte as they had iourneyed. And if the cloude departed not, they iourneyed not, till it deliuer them from theyr shadowes and clowdes lyghte and the heathen oute of theyr deade slepe of darke blynde ignoraunce. And as the Madowe vanysheth awaye at the comynge of the lyghte, euen so do the ceremonies and Sacry-fices at the comynge of Christ, and are henceforth no more necessarie then a token lefte in re-membraunce of a bargayne, is necessary when the bargayn is fulfilled. And though they seme playne chyldyshe, yet they bee not altogether crutelesse: as the popes and xx. maner of tryfles whiche mothers permytte vnto theyr yonge chyliden be not al in vaine. For albeit that such phantasies be permitted to satisfye the chyldes lustes, yet in that they are y mothers gift, and be done in place and tyme at hys commaundement, they keepe the chyliden in awe, and make them know the mother and also make them more apt agaynste a more stronger age, to obeye in theyrges of a greater earnestte.

And more ouer though the sacryfices and ceremonies can be no ground of foundatō to build vpon: that is, though we can proue nought with them: yet when we haue once founde out Christ and hys mysterie, then we maye bozowe figures, that is to say allegories, symplytudes or en-samples to open Christ and the secretes of god hyd in Christ euen vnto the quicke, & to declare them more lyuelye and sensibly wyth them, then wyth all the wordes of the worlde.

For similitude haue more vertue and power wyth them then bare wordes, and lead a mans wyttes further into the pythe and marpe, and spirituall vnderstandynge of the thyng, then all the wordes that can be imagined. And though also that all the ceremonies and sacryfices haue as it were a starrelyght of Christ, yet some ther-be that haue as it were the lyghte of the broade daye a litle before the sunne rysynge, and expresse hym, and the circumstances and vertue of hys deathe, so playnly as if we shoulde playe his passion on a scaffold or in a stage play opens ly before the eyes of y people. As the scape gote the brazen serpent, the ore burnte wythoute the holste, the pasche lambe, &c. In so muche that I am fully perswaded, and can not but beleue that God hath shewed Moyses the secretes of Christe and the very maner of hys deathe before hande, and commaunded hym to ordayne them for the confymacion of our faithes whiche are now in the cleare day lyght. And I beleue also, that the Prophetes whiche folowed Moyses to conferme hys prophesies and to maynetayne hys doctryne vnto Christes comynge, were moued by suche thynges to search further of Christes secretes. And though God would not haue the secretes of Christ generallye knowen, saue vnto a fewe familie frendes whiche in that infancy he made of mans wytt to helpe the other babes: yet as they had a generall promyse that one of the seede of Abraham shoulde come and blesse the, euen so they had a generall faith, that God would by the same man saue them, though they wylt not by what meanes, as the very apostles whē it was oft told the yet they coulde neuer cōprehend it, til it was fulfilled in dede.

And beyond all this their sacryfices and ceremonies as farforth as the promyses annexed vnto them extende, so farforth they saued them and iustified theym, and stode them in the same steade as our Sacramentes doo vs: not by the power of the Sacryfice or dede it selfe, but by the vertue in the sayeth, in the promyse whiche the sacrifice or ceremonies preached and where of it was a token or sygne. For the ceremonies

The prologe

and sacryfices were lefte wyth them and comamaunded them to kepe the promyse in remembraunce, and to wake vp theyr sayeth. As it is not enough to send manye on errandes and to tel them what they shal doo: but they must haue a remembraunce wyth them, and it be but a ring of a rish aboute one of theyr fyngers. And as it is not ynough to make a bargayne wyth wordes only, but we muste put thereto an oth and gyue earnest to confirme the faith of the person with whom it is made. And in like maner if a manne promyse, whatsoeuer trifull it be, it is not beleued excepte he holde vpon hys fynger also, suche is the weakenes of y world. And therfore Christ hym selfe vled of tymes dyuerse ceremonies in curynge the synke, to sturre vp their faith with all. As for an ensample, it was not the bloude of the lams that saued them in Egypt when the angell smote the Egyptians: but the mercy of god and hys trueth wherof that bloude was a token and remembraunce to stur vp theyr saythes wythall. For though God make a promyse, yet it sauerh none synallye, but them that longe for it, and pray God wyth a stronge sayth to fulfill it for hys mercye and truth onely, and knowe-ledge theyr vnworthynesse. And euen so oure sacramentes (if they be trulye ministered) preache Christ vnto vs and lead our faiths vnto Christ by which sayth oure synnes are done away, and not by the dede or worke of the Sacramente.
For as it was impossible that the bloude of cal-ues shoulde put away synne: euen so is it impossible that the water of the ryuer shoulde wash our hartes. Neuerthelesse the sacraments cleanse vs and absolue vs of oure synnes, as the pyestes do in preachynge of repentaunce and sayeth, for whych cause ether other of them were ordeined: but if they preach not, whether it be the pyeste or the sacramente, so profyte they not.

And if a man allegge Christ Johan in the .iij. chapter, sayng: Except a man be bozne agayne of water and the holyc gooste he can not se the kyngdome of God, and wylt therfore that the holyc goft is presente in the water and therfore the very dede or worke doeth put away synne, then I wylt send hym vnto Paule whych arieth his Galathians whether they receyued the holy goost by the deed of the law or by preachynge of sayth, and there concludeth that the holyc goft acōpanieth the preachynge of faith, & wh the word of sayth, entereth the harte and purgeth it whithe thou mayst also vnderstand by saint Paule sayng: ye are bozne a new out of the water tho-row the word. So now if baptym preache me y washynge in Christes bloude, so dothe the holyc goost accompayne it, and that dede of preachynge thow sayth doth put away my synnes. For the holyc gooste is no dūme God no: no God y goeth a mummyng. If a manne say of the sacrament of Christes body, & bloud, that it is a sacrifice, as well for the dead as for the quicke, and therfore the very dede it selfe iustifyeth and put-teth away synne, I answer that a sacryfice is the sleynge of the body of a beast or a mā: wherfore if it be a sacryfice, then is Christes bodye there slayne and hys bloud there shed: but that is not so. And therfore it is properlye no sacryfice, but a sacramente and a memorypalle of that euerylastynge sacryfice once for all whiche he offered vpon the crosse nowe vpon a fiftene hundred yeres ago, and preascheth onely vnto them that are alpye. And as for them that be deade, it is as profytable to them as is a candell in a lantern wythoute lyghte, vnto them that walke by the waye in a darke

darke nyght, and as the gospel song in latine is vnto them that vnderstand none at all, and as a sermon preached to him that is dead and heareth it not. It preacheth vnto them that are a lyue only: for they that be deade, if they dyed in the fayth whych that sacrament preacheth, they be safe and are passe all leopardie. For when they were a lyue they hartes loued the lawe of God and therefore synned not, and were soye that their members synned, and wer moued to synne, and therefore thozow fayth it was forgeuen them. And now they synnefull members be dead, so that they can now synne no more, wherfore it is vnto them that be dead nether sacrament nor sacrifice: But vnder the pretence of theyr soule health, it is a seruant vnto our spyritualtyes holye couctousnesse, and an excozoner, and a bylder of Abayes, Colleges Chantries & cathedrall churches w false gotten good, a pikpurs, a pollar, & a bottomlesse bag.

Some man wold hapely say, þ the prayers of the made helpe muche: not they purgynge onely, but also the de ad. Of the hote fyre of their faultent prayer whych consumeth faster then al the worlde is a lie to byngne sacrifice, I haue saide sufficientely in other places. Howe be it it is not possible to byngne me in beleue that the prayer whych helpeth her owne master vnto no vertue, should purchesse me the forgyuenesse of my synnes. If I saw that they prayers had obtained them grace to lyue such a lyfe as goddes worde dyd not rebuke, them coulde I tone be borne in hande that what soeuer they axed of God they prayers should not be in vayne. But now, what good can be wythe me in hys prayers that enuyeth me Christ the fode and the life of my soule? What good can he wishe me whole herte cleauerth a sounde for payne when I am taught to repent of my euyl?

Furthermore because that fewe knowe the vse of the olde testament, and the mooste parte thinke it nothyng necessarye, but to make allegories, whych they sayne euery man after his own byngne & wyl, at al aduenture without any certayne rule: therefore (though I haue spoken of the in another place) yet lest þ boke come not to al mens hnds that shal read this, I wil speke of them here also a worde or twayne.

We haue nede to take hede euery where that we be not begyled w false allegories, whether they be drawne out of þ new testamente, or the old, either out of any other stowe, or of the creatures of the world, but namely in thys booke. Here a man had nede to put on al his spectacles & to arme hym selfe agaynst inuisible spirites.

First allegories proue nothyng, and by allegories vnderstande examples or symyltyudes borrowed of straunge matters, and of an other thyng than that thou entrest of. As though circumcyssion be a fygure of baptysme, yet thou canst not proue baptysme by circumcyssion. For thys argument were very feble, the Israelytes were circumcised, therefore we must be baptised. And in lyke maner though the offerpuge of Isaac were a fygure or ensample of the resurreccyon, yet is thys argumente noughte, Abrahams would haue offered Isaac, but god delpyered him fro deeth, therefore we shal rise agayne, and so forth in al other.

But the very vse of allegories is to declare and open a terte that it maye be the better perceyued and vnderstande. As when I haue a cleare terte of Christ and of the Apostles, that I must be baptised, then I maye borrowe an ensample of circumcyssion to expresse the nature power and frute or effecte of baptysme. For as circumcyssion was vnto them a comen badg, signyfyinge that they were al lowdyars of God to war hys war, and to paratynge them from al other nacyns dylobed vnto God: euen so baptysme is our comen badg & sure earnest and perpetuall memoypalle that we pertayne vnto Christ, and are separated from all that are not Christes. And as circumcyssion was a toke certifyinge them that they were receyued vnto the fauour of God and theyr synnes forgyuen them: euen so baptysme certifieth vs that we are washed in the bloude of Christ, and receyued to fauoure for hys sake, and as circumcyssion signyfied vnto them the cutting away of theyr own lustes and sleayng of theyr free wyl as they cal it, to folow þ wyl of God: euen so baptysme signyfied vnto vs repentaunce, and the mortifyinge of our vnruly members & body of synne, to walke in a newe lyfe and so forth.

And lykewylse though the sauynge of Noe and of them that were wyth hym in the ship, thozowe water, is a fygure, that is to saye an exemple and likenesse of baptysme, as Peter maketh it, i. Pe. iii. Yet I can not proue baptysme ther w, I haue describe it only. For as þ ship saued the in þ water thozow fayth, in that they beleued God, and as the other that wold not be liue Noe perished, euen so baptysme saueyth vs thozow the word of faythe, whych it preacheth when all the world of þ vnbeleuyng perissheth. And Paul. i. Cor. maketh the sea and the cloude a fygure of baptysme, by whych and a thousand mo I myght declare it but not proue it. Paule also in the sayed place maketh the rocke oute of whych Moyses broughte water vnto the chyldren of Israel, a fygure or exemple of Christe not to proue Christ (for that were impossible) but to describe Christ only: euen as Christ hym selfe. Joh. iii. borroweth a similitude or fygure of the brasen serpente to lead Nichodemus fro hys earthy imaginacion into the spirituall vnderstandynge of Christ, sayynge. As Moyses liued by a serpent in the wyldernes, so muste the sonne of manne be lyfted vp, that none that be lyue in hym perish, but haue euerylastynge lyfe: by whych the similitude the vertue of Christes deeth is better described then thou couldeste declare it wyth a thousand words. For as those murmurers agaynst god as sone as they repented were healed of their deadly wounds thozow lokynge on the brasen serpent only, wythout medicine or any other helpe, yea, and wythout any other resson, but that god had said it shuld be so, & not to murmure agayne, but to leaue theyr murmuring: euen so all that repente and beleue in Christe are saued from euerylastynge deeth of pure grace wythout and before theyr good works, and not to sinne agayne, but to fyghte agaynst synne, & henceforth to synne no more.

Euen so wyth the ceremonies of thys boke thou canste proue nothyng saue describe and declare onely the puttyng away of our synnes thozow the deeth of Christ. For Christ is Aarons sonnis and al that offer the sacrifice to purge synne. And Christe is all manner offerpuge that is offered: he is the ore, the shepe, the gode, the hydde, & the lambe: he is the ore that is burnte wythout the holte, and the scapegoate that carped all the synne of the people away in to the wyldernesse, for as they poured the people fro their worldly vncleannes thozow bloude of the sacrifices, euen so doeth Christe purge vs from the vncleannes of euerylastynge deathe wyth his owne bloude, & as theyr worldlye syn-

The prologe

us coulde none otherwyle be purged then by bloude of sacrifice, euen so can oure synnes be no otherwyle forgiven then thowwe the bloud of Christe. All the deedes in the worlde, save the bloude of Christe, can purchase no forgiveness of synnes: for oure deedes do but healpe oure neyghboure, and moztifye the flesh, and helpe that we sinne no more, but and if we haue synned, it must be frely forgiven thoww þe bloud of Christe or remaine euer.

And in lyke maner of the lepers thou canste proue nothyng: thou canste neuer confesse oute confession thence, how be it thou haste an handsome example there to open the byndynge and lewysynge of our priestes wth the keye of goddes wordes: for as they made no man a lepre, euen so oures haue no power to commaunde anye man to bee in synne, or to go to purgatorie or hel. And therefore (in as muche as byndynge and lewysynge is one power.) As those priestes healed no man, euen so oures can not of their inuisible and domine power dryue anye mannes synnes awaye, or delyuer hym from hell or fayne purgatorie: howe be it, if they preached gods word purely which is the authoryte that Christe gaue them, then they shoulde bynde and leuse, byl and make alpye agayne, make vncleane and cleane agayne, and sende to hell and fette thence agayne, so myghty is Gods word: for if they preached the lawe of God, they shoulde bynde the consciences of sinners with the bonds of the paynes of hell, and bynne them vnto repentance. And then if they preached them the mercye that is in Christe, they shoulde leuse them and quiet theyr ragynge consciences and certify them of the fauoure of God, and that theyr synnes be forgiven.

Finally beware of allegories, for there is not a more handsome or apte thyng to begyle wythal then an allegory, nor a more subtle and pestylente thyng in the worlde to perswade a false matter then an allegory. And contrarie wyle, there is not a better, behemeter, or myghtyer thyng to make a manne vnderstand withall then an allegory. For allegories make a manne quicke wytted and prynte wysedome in hym, and make it to abyde, where bare wordes goo but in at the one eare, and oute at the other. As thys wth such lyke saynges: put salte to all your sacrifices, in steade of thys sentence, do al your deedes wth dyscretion, graterly and byteth (if it be vnderstande) more then playne wordes. And whā I saye in steede of these wordes boht not your selfe of your good deedes, eate neyther bloud nor the fatte of your sacrifice, there is as greute differēce betwene them as there is distaunce betwene heauen and earth. For the lyfe and beauty of all good deedes is of God, and we are but the caren leane, we are only the instrumente wherby god worketh onely, but the power is hys. As god created Dauid a newe, poured hys wysedome into him, gaue him myghte, and prompyed hym that his grace shuld neuer faile hym, &c. and al with out deservynge, excepte that murtherynge the sayntes and mahynge theym curse and rayle on Christe be meritorious. Howe as it is deathe to eat the bloud or fatte of any sacrifice, is it not (thyngke ye) damnable to robbe God of his honour, and to glorify my selfe with his honoure?

The thirde booke of Moyses called Leviticus.

The first Chapter.

The order of burnt offeringes, whether it be of smal or great catel or fowles.

And the Lorde called Moyses, and spake vnto him oute of the tabernacle of wytnes, sayinge: Speke to the chyldren of Israel, and saye vnto them: whoso euer of you shall bynne a gyfte vnto the Lorde, shal bynne it of the catel: euen of the oren & of the shepe.

If he bynne a burnt offering of the oren, he shal bynne a male withoute blemyshe, and shal bynne hym to the doore of the tabernacle of wytnes, that he maye be accepted before the Lorde. And let hym put hys hande vpon the heade of the burnt sacrifice, and fauoure shal be geuen hym to make an attonement for him, and let him kil the oren before the Lorde. And let the priestes Aarons sonnes bynne the bloud, and let them sprynkle it rounde aboute vpon the alter, that is before the doore of the tabernacle of wytnes. And let the burnt offerings be stripped and bewed in peces. And then let the sonnes of Aaron the priest put fyre vpon the alter, and put wood vpon the fyre, and let them laye the peces wth the head and the fat vpon the wood that is on the fyre in the aultrare. But the intrayles and the legs they shal washe in water, and the pryeste shal burne all togyther vpon the aulter, that it be a burnt sacrifice, and an offering of a swete odour vnto the Lorde.

If he wyl offer a burnt sacrifice of the shepe, whether it be of lābes or of the goates he shal offer a male without blemyshe. And let hym kil it on the north syde of the aulter before the Lorde. And let the priestes, Aarons sonnes sprynkle the bloud of it rounde aboute vpon the aulter. And let it be cutte in peces, euen wth his head and hys fat, and lette the pryeste put them vpon the woode that lyeth vpon the fyre in the aulter. But lette him washe the intrayles and the legges wth water, and then bring all togyther and burne it vpon the alter: that is a burnt offering, and a sacrifice of swete sauoure vnto the Lorde.

If he wyl offer a burnt offering of the fowles, he shal offer epyther of the turtle doves, or of the pounge pygeons. And the pryeste shal bynne it vnto the aulter, and bynne the necke a soulder, and burne it on the aultrare, and lette the bloude runne oute vpon the sydes of the aulter, and plucke awaye his croppe and hys feathers thers, and caste them besyde the aulter on the East parte vppon the heape of ashes, and breake hys wynges, but pluckethem not a sonder. And then let the priest burne it vpon the aulter: euen vpon the wood that lyeth vppon the fyre, a burnt sacrifice, and an offeringe of a sweete sauoure vnto the Lorde.

The .ii. Chapter.

The order of meateofferings, of sweete cakes, of fyne flower, of frankensence &c. wythoute leuen, and wythoute honye, but not wythoute salte.

If any soule will offer a meate offeringe vnto the Lorde, his offeringe shalbe fyne flour, and he shal poure therto oyle, and putte frankensence thereon, and shall brynge it vnto Aarons sonnes the priestes, And one of them shall take thereoute hys handfull of the flour, and of the oyle with all the frankensence, and burne it for a remembraunce vpon the aulter: an offeringe of a sweete sauoure vnto the Lord. And the remaunte of the meateoffring shalbe Aarons and his sonnes, as a thing most holy of the sacrifices of the Lorde.

If anye man brynge a meate offeringe that is baken in the ouen, lette hym brynge sweete cakes of fyne flour mingled with oyle and unleuended wafers anointed with oyle. If thy meateoffering be baken in the frynginge panne, then it shall be of sweete flour mingled with oyle. And thou shalt mynce it small, and poure oyle thereon: and so it is a meate offeringe.

If thy meateofferinge be a thynge broyled vppon the gredyon, of flour mingled with oyle it shalbe. And thou shalt brynge the meate offeringe that is made of these thynge vnto the Lorde, and shalt deliuer it to the prieste, and he shall brynge it vnto the aulter, and shall heue vppon part of the meate offeringe for a memorial, and shall burne it vpon the aulter: an offeringe of a sweete sauoure vnto the Lorde. And that is left of the meateofferinge shalbe Aarons, and his sonnes, as a thinge that is moste holy of the offeringes of the Lorde.

Al the meateofferings which ye shall bring vnto the Lord, shalbe made without leuen. For ye shal nether burne leuen nor hony in any offeringe of the Lord: notwithstanding ye shal brynge the firste frutes of them vnto the Lord: but they shall not come vpon the aulter, to make a sweete sauoure.

Al thy meateofferings thou shalt salt with salt: nether shalt thou suffer the salt of the couenaunt of thy god to be lacking frothi meateoffring: but vpon all thine offeringes thou shalt brynge salte.

If thou offer a meateoffring of the fyrry ripe frutes vnto the Lorde, then take that whiche is yet grene, and drye it by fyre, and beate it small, and so offer the meateofferinge of thy fyrry ripe frutes, And thou poure oyle therto, and putte frankensence thereon: and so it is a meateofferinge. And the prieste shall burne parte of the beaten corne, and parte of that oyle with all the frankensence, for a remembraunce, that is an offeringe vnto the Lorde.

The thyrde Chapter.

The order of peaceofferinges, which wer offered for the keepynge of peace, made of oxen, shepe, lambes and goates.

If anye man brynge a peaceofferinge of the oxen: whether it be male or female, he shall brynge suche as is withoute blemyshe before the Lorde, and let hym putte hys hande vpon the heade of his offeringe and kyll it before the doore of the tabernacle of witnessse. And Aarons sonnes the priestes shall sprynkle the bloude vpon the aulter rounde aboute. And they shall offer of the peace offeringe to be a sacrifice vnto the Lorde: the fatte that couereth the inwardes, and al the fat that is vpon the inwardes: and the two kydneyes, with the fat that lyeth vpon the loynes: and the kyll that is on the lyuer they shall take awaye with the kidneys. And Aarons sonnes shall burne them vpon the aulter with the burnt sacrifice which is vpon the wood on the fyre: that is a sacrifice of a sweete sauoure vnto the Lorde.

If a man brynge a peace offeringe vnto the Lorde frome the flocke, whether it be male or female, it shalbe without blemish. If he offer a lambe, he shall brynge it before the Lorde, and put his hande vpon his offeringes head, and kyll it in the doore of the tabernacle of witnessse, and Aarons sonnes shall sprynkle the bloude thereof rounde aboute the aulter.

And of the peace offeringe they shall brynge a sacrifice vnto the Lord: the fatte therof and the rompy altogether which they shal take of, harde by the backe bone: and the fat that couereth the inwardes, and al the fat that is vpon the inwardes, and the two kidneys with the fat that lyeth vpon them, and vpon the loynes, and the kyll that is vpon the lyuer, he shall take awaye with the kidneys. And the priest shal burne them vpon the aulter, to fede the Lords of ferynge with.

If the offeringe be a goate, he shall brynge it before the Lord, and put his hand vpon the head of it, and kyll it before the tabernacle of witnessse, and the sonnes of Aaron shal sprynkle the bloude therof vpon the aulter rounde aboute. And he shal brynge thereof his offeringe vnto the Lordes sacrifice: the fatte that couereth the inwardes, and all the fatte that is vpon the inwardes, and the two kidneys, and the fat that lyeth vpon them, and vpon the loines, and the kyll that is vpon the lyuer, he shal take awaye with the kidneys. And the priest shal burne them vpon the aulter, to fede the Lordes sacrifice with, and to make a sweete sauoure. And thus shall all the fatte be the Lordes, and it shalbe a law foreuer among your generacions after you in your dwelling.

The .iiii. Chapter.

The offeringe made for synnes done of ig-noraunce.

And the Lord spake vnto Moses, sayinge: Speke vnto the children of Israel and saye, when a soule synneth thorowe ignoraunce, and hath done anye of those thynges whiche the Lord hath forbydden in hys commaundements to be done: If the priest that is anoynted, syn-and make the people to do amysse, he shall brynge for hys synne whiche he hath done: an Oxe withoute blemyshe vnto the Lord for a synne offeringe. And he shall brynge the Oxe vnto the doore of the tabernacle of witness, before the Lord, and shall putte hys hande vpon the Oxe head, and kyll him before the Lord.

W And the priest that is * anoynted shall *Leuit. i. b take of the Oxe bloude, and brynge it into the tabernacle of witness, and shall dyppe hys synger in the bloud, and sprinkle ther-of seuen tymes before the Lord: euen before the hangynge of the holie place. And he shall put some of the bloud vpon the hor-nes of the aultare of sweete incense before the Lord, whiche is in the tabernacle of witness, and shall poure all the bloude of the Oxe vpon the bottome of the aultare of burnt offeringes, whiche is by the doore of the tabernacle of witness. And he shall take awaye all the fatte of the Oxe that is the synne offeringe: the fatte that couereth the inuayles, and all the fat that is aboute them, and the two kidneis with the fat that lyeth vpon them and vpon the lounes, and the kyll vpon the luer lette them take awaye also wth the kydneyes, as it was taken from the Oxe of the peace offeringe, and let the priest burne them vpon the aultare of burnt offeringes. But the skyn of the Oxe, and all hys fleshe with his heade, his legges, his inuayles with his donge, shall he carrie al together oute of the host vnto a cleane place: where the ashes are poured out, and burne him on woode with fyre: euen vpon the heape of ashes.

If the hole communitie of the chyldren bloude: and sprinkle it .vii. tymes before the Lord, euen before the vail. And shall put of the bloude vpon the hornes of the alter, whiche is before the Lord in the tabernacle of witness, and shall poure al the bloude vpon the bottome of the alter of burnt offeringes, whiche is by the doore of the tabernacle of witness, and shall take all his fat from hym, and burn it vpon the aultare, and shall do with his ox as he did with the sinne offeringe ore. And the priest shall make an attonement for them, and so it shall be forgeuen them. And he shall brynge the Oxe without the hooste, and burne hym as he burned the fyre: so is this the synne offering of the communitie.

When a Lord synneth, and commit-teth thorowe ignoraunce any of these thin-ges whiche the Lord hys God hath forbydden to be done in his commaundements and hath so offended: when hys synne is shewed vnto hym whiche he hath synned he shall brynge for hys offeringe, an hee goote withoute blemyshe, and lay his hand vpon the heade of it, and kyll it in the place where the burnt offeringes are kyll'd before the Lord: this is a synne offeringe.
Then let the priest take of the bloude of the synne offeringe wth hys synger, and put it vpon the hornes of the burnt offeringe aultare, and poure hys bloude vpon the bot-tome of the burnt offeringe aultare, and burne all hys fatte vpon the aultare, as he dothe the fat of the peace offeringes. And the priest shall make an attonement for hym as concernynge hys synne, and so it shall be forgeuen hym.

If one of the common people of the land synne thorowe ignoraunce, and committe any of the thynges whiche the Lord hath forbydden in hys commaundementes to be done, and so hath trespassed, when hys synne whiche he hath synned is come to hys knowledge, he shall brynge for hys offering a she goate withoute blemyshe for hys synne whiche he hath synned, and lay hys hande vpon the heade of the synne offering, and kyll it in the place of burnt offeringes. * And the priest shall take of the bloude wth hys synger, and put it vpon the hornes of the burnt offeringe aultare, and poure al the bloude vpon the bottome of the aultare, and shall take awaye all hys fat as the fat of the peace offeringes is taken away. And the priest shall burn it vpon the alter for a sweete sauour vnto the Lord, and the priest shall make an attonement for hym: and it shall be forgeuen hym.

If he brynge a lambe, and offer it for a synne offering, he shall brynge a femal without blemyshe, and lay his hande vpon the heade of the synne offering, and kyll it in the place where the burnt offeringes are kyl'd. And the priest shall take of the bloud of the synne offering wth hys synger, and put it vpon the hornes of the burnt offering aultare, and shall poure al the bloud thereof vnto the bottome of the alter. And he shall take awaye all the fatte thereof, as

as the fatte of the sheepe of the peace offerings was taken awaye. And the priest shall burne it vpon the aulter of the Lordes sacrifice, and the priest shall make an attonement for hys synne, and it shall be forgiven hym.

The .v. Chapter.

Of othes. The clensing of him that toucheth vncleane things. The purgation of an othe of synne done by ignorance.

Vhen the soule hath synned, and heard the voyce of cursynge, and is a wyllesse, whether he hath sene or knowen of it, if he haue not vttered it, he shall beate hys synne. Epyther when a man toucheth anye vncleane thyng: whether it be the carion of an vncleane beast, or of vncleane cattell or vncleane worme, and is not ware of it, he is also vncleane, and hath offended. Epyther when he toucheth anye vncleanness of man (whatsoeuer vncleanness it be, that a man is defiled with) and is not ware of it, and after cometh to the knowledge of it, he is a trespasser.

Either when a soule sweareth, so that he pronounceth with his lippes to do euyl, or to do good (whatsoeuer it be that a manne pronounceth wpyth an othe) and the thyng be oute of hys mynde, and afterwarde cometh to the knowledge of it then he hath offended in one of these. Then when hee hath synned in one of these thynges, hee shall confesse that wherein he hath synned, and shall bringe hys trespass offering vnto the Lord for hys synne which he hath synned. A female from the stocke, whether it be a lambe, or a she goate, for a synne offering. And the priest shall make an attonement for hym for hys synne. * But if he be not hable to bringe a sheepe, then let hym bringe for hys trespass whych he hath synned, two turtle Doves, or two ponge pignons to the Lord, one for a synne offering, and an other for a burnt offering. And he shall bringe them vnto the priest, whiche shall offer the synne offering fyrst, and wpynge the necke a sonder of it, but plucke it not cleane of. And let him spynckle of the bloude of the synne offering vpon the side of the aulter, and lette the reste of the bloude blede vpon the bottoome of the aulter, and then it is a synne offering. And let him offer the second for a burnt offering as the maner is: and so shall the priest make an attonement for hym for the synne which he hath synned, and it shall be forgiven hym.

And yet if he be not hable to bringe two turtle Doves or two ponge pyngons, then lette him bringe hys offering for hys synne: * the tenth part of an Ephah of fine flour for a synne offering, but put none oyle thereto, neyther putte anye frankincense thereon, for it is a synne offering. And lette hym bringe it to the priest, and the priest shall take hys handfull of it, and burne it vpon the aulter for a remembraunce, to be a sacrifice for the Lord: that is a synne offering. And let the priest make an attonement for hym for his synne (whatsoeuer of these he hath synned) & it shall be forgiven. And s remaunt shall be the priestes as it is in the meat offering.

And the Lord communed with Moses, sayinge: When a soule trespasseth and synneth thowowe ignorance in anye of the holie thynges of the Lord, he shall bringe for hys trespass vnto the Lord a ramme wpythoute blempe the oute of the stocke valued at two cycles, after the cycle of the sanctuary, for a trespass offering. And he shall make amendes for the harme that he hath doone in the holie thyng, and put the fyfte parte more too, and gyue it vnto the priest. And the priest shall make an attonement for hym wpyth the ramme of the trespass offering, and it shall be forgiven hym.

When a soule synneth and committeth anye of these thynges whych are forbydden to be done by the commaundementes of the Lord, though he wpyte it not, he hath yet offended and is in synne, and shall bringe a ramme wpythoute blempe the oute of the stocke that is esteemed to be worthe a synne offering, vnto the priest. And the priest shall make an attonement for hym for the ignorance whych he did, and was not ware, and it shall be forgiven hym. This is a trespass offering, for he trespassed agaynst the Lord.

The .vi. Chapter.

The offerings for synnes whych are don wpyllngly. The law of burnt offerings. The fyre must abide euermore vpon the alter. The offerings of Aaron and his sonnes.

And the Lord commaunded Moses sayinge: When a soule synneth, and trespasseth agaynst the Lord, and denyed vnto hys neyghboure that whych was taken hym to kepe, or that was putte vnder hys hande, or that whych he hath violently taken awaye, or that whych he deceyued hys neyghboure, or wpyth subteltye, or hath founde that whiche was losse and denyeth it, and sweareth falsly in whatsoeuer thyng, it be that a man dothe, and synneth therein.

Then when he hath synned or trespassed, he shall restore agayne that he toke violently awaye, or the wronge whych he did, or that whych was deluyered him to kepe, or the losse whych he founde, or whatsoeuer it be aboute whych he hath sworn falsely, he shall * restore it againe in the hole summe, and adde the fyfte parte more thereto, and gyue it vnto hym to whome it pertayneth, the same daye that he offereth for hys trespass, and shall bringe for hys trespass offering vnto the Lord a ramme without blempe the oute of the stock that is esteemed worthe a trespass offering vnto the priest. And the priest shall make an attonement for hym before the Lord.

Restitucion muste be made vnto our neyghbour by satisfaction, and vnto god by reparation.

Exod. xxi.

Lord, and it shall be forgiven him, in whatsoeuer thing it be that a manne doth and trespasseth therein.

B And the Lord spake vnto Moses saying: Commaunde Aaron and his sonnes, saying: this is the lawe of the burnt offering. The burnt offering shall be vpon the hearth of the altar all vnght vnto the morning, and the fyre of the altar shall burne therein. And the priest shall putte on his linnen albe, and his linnen breeches vpon his fleshe, and take awaye the ashes whiche the fyre of the burnt sacrifice in the altar hath made, and putte them besyde the altar, and then put of his raimente, and put on other, and carpe the ashes wth out the hooke vnto a cleane place.

The fyre that is vpon the altar shall burne therein, and not go out. And the priest shall put wood on the fyre every morning, and put the burnt sacrifice vpon it, and he shall burne thereon the fatte of the peace offerings. The fyre shall euer burne vpon the altar, and neuer go oute.

This is the lawe of the meate offering: Aarons sonnes shall bringe it before the Lord, vnto the altar: and one of them shall take his handfull of the flour of the meate offering and of the oyle wth al the frankincense whiche is thereon, and shall burne it for a remembrance vpon the altar, to be a sweete sauoure of the memorie of it vnto the Lord. And the residue thereof, Aaron and his sonnes shall eat vnto the offering: it shall be eaten in the holpe place: euen in the court of the tabernacle of witness they shall eat it. The parte whiche I haue geuen them of my sacrifice shall not be baken with leuen, for it is mooste holpe, as is the synne offering, and trespase offering. All the males amonge the chyldren of Aaron shall eat of it: and it shall be a duty for euer vnto your generations of the sacrifices of the Lord: neyther shall any man touche it, but he that is halowed.

And the Lord spake vnto Moses, saying: this is the offering of Aaron and of his sonnes whiche he shall offer vnto the Lord in the daye when they are anointed, the tenth parte of an epha of flour: whiche is a dayly meate offering perpetual: halfe in the morning and halfe at nyght: and in the fyinge panne it shall be made with oyle. And when it is fyled, thou shalt bringe it in as a baken meate offering mynsed small, and shalt offer it for a sweete sauoure vnto the Lord. And that priest of his sonnes that is annointed in his steade shall offer it: and it shall be the Lordes duty for euer, and it shall be burnt altogether. For all the meate offerings of the priests shall be burnt altogether, and shall not be eaten.

And the Lord talked with Moses, saying: speake vnto Aaron and vnto his sonnes and saye. This is the lawe of the synne offering. In the place where the burnt offering is kylled, shall the sinne offering be killed also before the Lord, for it is most holpe. The priest that offereth it, shall eat it in the holpe place: euen in the court of the tabernacle of witness. No man shall touche the fleshe thereof save he that is halowed. And if any raimente be sprynckled therewith, it shall be washed in the holpe place, and the earthen pottle that it is sodden in, shall be broken. If it be sodden in brasse, then the pottle shall be scoured and rynsed in water. All the males amonge the priests shall eat thereof, for it is mooste holpe. Notwithstandinge no sinne offering that hath the his blood brought into the tabernacle of witness to reconple wth in the holpe place, shall be eaten: but shall be burnt in the fyre.

The. vii. Chapter.

Trespase offerings, sinne offerings and peace offerings. The fatte and the blonde maye not be eaten.

This is the lawe of the trespase offering whiche is mooste holpe. In the place where the burnt offering is killed, the trespase offering shall be kylled also, and his blood shall be sprynckled round aboute vpon the altar. And al the fat that couered the inwardes and the two kidneis wth the fatte that lyeth on them and vpon the lynes, and the kalle on the lyuer, shall be taken awaye wth the kidneis: and the priest shall burne them vpon the altar, to be an offering vnto the Lord: this is a trespase offering.

All the males amonge the priests shall eat thereof in the holpe place, for it is most holpe. As the synne offering is, so is the trespase offering, one lawe serueth for bothe. And it shall be the priests that reconple therewith. And the priest that offered a mannes burnt offering shall haue a skynne of the burnt offering whiche he hath offered. And all the meate offerings that are baken in the oven, and all that is dressed vpon the gridiron and in the fyinge pan, shall be the priests that offereth them. And al the meate offerings that are mingled with oyle or dyne, shall pertayne vnto al the sons of Aaron, and one shall haue as much as an other.

This is the lawe of the peace offerings whiche shall be offered vnto the Lord. If he offer to geue thanks, he shall bring vnto his thanke offering, swete cakes mingled wth oyle and swete wafers annointed with oyle, and cakes mingled with oyle of fyne flower fyled, and he shall bring his offering vpon cakes made of leuend bread vnto the thank offering of his peace offering and of them all, he shall offer one too be an heaue offering vnto the Lord, and it shall be the priests that sprynckleth the bloude of the peace offerings. And the fleshe of the thanke offering of his peace offerings shall be eaten the same daye that it

That is appointed to minister.

And that priest of his sonnes that is annointed in his steade shall offer it: and it shall be the Lordes duty for euer, and it shall be burnt altogether. For all the meate offerings of the priests shall be burnt altogether, and shall not be eaten.

A trespas offering is that whiche was made for the peoples trespasses & sinnes as well against god, as against neyghboure.

is offered, and there shall none of it be laid vp vnto the morninge.

That is a If it be a * howe of a fre wpll offeringe gyfte accu- that he byngeth, that same daye that he of stomed to be ferethit, it shalbe eaten, & that remayneth offered to maye be eaten on the morowe, but as much god bi some of the offered fleshe as remayneth vnto the outward ce thyrde daye, shall be burnt wth fyre. For remunye, if anye of the fleshe of the peace offeringes be eaten in the thyrde daye, then shalbe p offe red it obtayn no fauour, neither shal it be re-kened vnto him, but shalbe an abhomination, and the soule that eateth of it, shal bear the synne thereof.

C The fleshe that toucheth anye vnclene thyng, shall not be eaten, but burnt wth fyre: and al that be cleane in thei flesch, mai eate fleshe. If anye soule eate of the fleshe of the peace offeringes that pertayne vnto to the Lorde, and hys vnclennesse yett vp-on hym, the same soule shall perishe oute of hys people. Moreover if a soule toucheth anye vnclene thyng, whether it be the vn-clennes of man, or if anye vnclene beast, or anye abhominacion that is vnclene, and then eate of the fleshe of the peace offerings which pertayne vnto the Lorde, that soule shall perishe from hys people.

And the Lorde spake vnto Moyses, sayinge: speake vnto the chyldren of Israell, and saye: ye shall eate no manner fatte of oren, shepe, or gootes: yett the fatte of the beaste that dyeth alone, and the fat of that whiche is toarne wth wylde beastes, mai be occupped in all manner vles: but ye shal in no wyse eate of it. For whosoever ea-teth the fatte of the beaste of whiche men bynge an offeringe vnto the Lord, that soule that eateth it, shall perishe frome hys people.

Ren. xlii. d. Moreover ye shall eate no manner of bloude wheresoever ye dwell, whether it be of foule or of beaste. What soeuer soule it be that eateth any maner bloude, shal perishe from hys people.

And the Lorde talked wth Moyses, sayinge: speake vnto the chyldren of Israell, and saye: He that offereth hys peaceofferyng vnto the Lorde, shall bynge his gyfte vnto the Lorde of his peaceoffering: his owne handes shall bynge the offeringe of the Lorde: euen the fatte vpon the brest he shall bynge wth the brest, to waue it a waue offeringe before the Lorde. And the priest shal burne the fatte vpon the altier, and the brest shalbe Aarons and hys sons.
And the ryghte shoulde they shal geue vnto the prieste, to be an heue offeringe, of thei peace offerings. And the same that offereth the bloud of the peace offerings & the fat amonge the sonnes of Aaron, shall haue the ryghte shulder vnto his part, for wauebrest & p heue shulder I haue take of p chyldre of Israell, eue of thei peaceoffe-rings, & haue geue it vnto Aaron the priest, and vnto his sonnes: to be a dutye for euer of the chyldren of Israell.

This is the annointyng of Aaron, and of the sacryfices of the Lorde, in the daye when they were offered to the prestes vnto the Lorde, whiche the Lorde commaunded to be geuen them in the daye when he annoynted them, of the chyldren of Israell, and to be a dutye for euer among thei generacions. This is the lawe of burnte-offerings, of meate offerings, of sinne offerings, of trespass offerings, of full offerings, of peace offerings, whiche the Lorde commaunded Moyses in the mount Sinai, in the day when he commaunded the chyldren of Israell to offer thei offerings vnto the Lorde in the wylernes of Sinai.

The. viii. Chapter.

The annointyng and consecracion of Aaron and hys sonnes.

AND the Lorde spake vnto Moyses, A sayinge: take Aaron and his sonnes wth hym, and the vestures and the annointyng oyle, and an Ore for a synneoffering, and two rammes, and a baskette of swete breade: and gather al the commentye together vnto the doore of the tabernacle of witnessse. And Moyses dydde as the Lorde commaunded him, and the people gathered them selues together, vnto the doore of the tabernacle of witnessse. And Moyses sayde vnto the people: this is the thing whiche the Lorde commaunded to do.

And Moyses broughte Aaron and hys sonnes and washed the m with water, and putte vpon hym the albe, and girded hym wth a gyrdell, and put vpon hym the tu-nicle, and put the Ephod thereon, and girded hym wth the brodyed Byrdle of the Ephod, and bounde it vnto hym therewith.
And he putte the brestlap thereon, and put in the brestlap Urim and thummim. And he put the miter vpon hys head, and put it vp-on the myter, euen vpon the forefront of it the golden plate of the holy crown, as the Lorde commaunded Moyses.

And Moyses toke the annointyng oyle, and annoynted the habitacyon and all that was therein, and Sanctified thepm, and sprynckled thereof vpon the altier seuen tymes, and annoynted the altier and al hys vessels, and the lauer with the fote, to sanc-tifie them. And he poured of the annointyng oyle vpon Aarons head, and annoynted him to sanctify him. And he brought Aarons sonnes, and put albes vpon the, and girded them wth gyrdles, and putte bo-nettes vpon thei heades: as the Lorde commaunded Moyses.

C And the synne offeringe was broughte, And Aaron and his sonnes put their hands vpon the heade of the Ore of the synneof-fering. And when it was slayne, Moyses toke of the bloude, and put it vpon the hor-nes of the altier round about wth his finger, and purified it, and poured the bloude vpon

vppon the bottome of the aulter, and sanctified it, and reconceled it. And he toke all the fatte that was vpon the inwardes, and the kail that was on the luer, and the two kynednes wylth thep: fatte, and bourned it vppon the aulter. But the Ore, the hysde, hys fleshe and hys Dange, he burnt wylth fye wylthoute the hooite, as the Lorde commaunded Moyses.

And he brought the ramme of the burnt offering, and Aaron and his sonnes putte they: handes vpon the heade of the ram and it was kyled. And Moyses spynckled the bloude vpon the aulter rounde aboute and caste the Ramme in peaces, and burnt the heade, the peeces and the fatte, and washed the inwardes and the legges in water and burnt the ramme euery whyt vpon the alter. That was a burnt sacrifice of a sweet sauoure, and an offering vnto the Lorde, as the Lorde commaunded Moyses.

And he brought the other ram that was the full offering, and Aaron and hys sons putte they: handes vpon the heade of the Ramme. and when it was slayne, Moyses tooke of the bloude of it, and putte it vpon the tpype of Aarons rpyghte eare, and vpon the thombe of hys rpyghte hande, and vpon the greates toe of his rpyghte foote.

Then wer Aarons sons brought: and Moses putte of the bloude on the tpype of the rpyghte eare of them, and vpon the thombs of they: rpyghte handes, and vpon the great toes of they: rpyghte feete, and spynckled
the bloude vpon the aulter rounde aboute.

And he toke the fatte and the rompe, and all the fat that was vpon the inward-des, and the kail of the luer, and the two kynednes wylth thep: fatte, and they: right shoulde. And oute of the basket of sweete bread that was before the Lorde, he toke one swete cake of oyled breade and one wafer, and put them on the fatte, and vpon the rpyghte shoulde: and put altogether vpon Aarons handes, and vpon hys sonnes handes and waued it a waue offering before the Lorde.

And then Moyses toke them from they:
handes again, and burnt them vpon the aulter, even vpon the burnt offering: these ar the full offerings of a sweete sauoure, and a sacrifice vnto the Lorde. And Moyses toke þ best, and waued it a waue offering before the Lorde: of the Ramme of the full offerings: and it was Moyses part, as the Lorde commaunded Moyses.

And Moyses toke of the anoynting oyl, and of the bloude whiche was vpon the alter and spynckled it vpon Aaron, and vpon hys vestimentes, and vpon his sons and on they: vestimentes, wylth hym, & sanctified Aaron and his vestures, and his sons & hys sonnes vestures also. Then Moyses sayed vnto Aaron and hys sonnes: boyl the flesch in the doore of the tabernacle of wytnesse, and there eate it wylth the breade, that is in the baskette of full offerings, as the Lorde commaunded, sayinge: Aaron and his sonnes shall eate it: and that whiche remaineth of the fleshe and of the breade, burne it wylth fye.

And se þe departe not from the doore of the Tabernacle of wytnesse seven dayes longe, vntill the dayes of your full offerings be at an ende. For seven dayes mulle your handes be spyled, as they were thys dayes: then to the Lorde hath commaunded to do, to thintent to reconceile you. Se therefore þear þyde in the doore of þ tabernacle of wytnesse day & night seven dayes long: and kepe the watche of the Lorde that þe dye not, for so þam commaunded. And Aaron & hys sons doyd al that the Lorde commaunded by the handes of Moyses.

The. ix. Chapter.
The fyfte offeringes of Aaron, for hym self and for the people. Aaron blest the people the glory of the Lorde is shewed. The fyre comyng fro above cōsumeth the sacrifice.

And the epyghte daye, Moyses called Aaron and hys sonnes, and the elders of Israel, and sayde to Aaron: take a calfe for a synne offering, a ramme for a burnt offering: both wylthoute blemish, and bynge them before the Lorde. And vnto the chyldren of Israel he spake, sayinge: take þe an he goate for a synne offering, and a calfe and a lambe bothe two of a yere old and without blemish for a burnt sacrifice, and an ore and a ram for a peace offering to offer before the Lorde, and a meate offeryng mingled wylth oyle, for to daye the Lorde wyl appere vnto you.

And they brought that whiche Moyses commaunded vnto the tabernacle of wytnesse, and al the people came and stode before the Lorde. And Moyses sayde: thys is that the Lorde commaunded þe should do:
and then the glorie of the Lorde shall ap-peare vnto you. And Moyses sayde vnto Aaron: Go vnto the aulter, and offer thy synoffering, and make an attonement for þ and the people, and reconceile them also, as the Lorde commaunded Moyses.

And Aaron went to the alter, and slewe the calfe that was hys synne offering.
And the sonnes of Aaron brought the blond vnto hym, and he dypte hys synger in the bloude, and put it vpon the hornes of the aulter, and poured the bloude vnto the bot-tome of the aulter. And the fat and the two kynednes wylth the kail of the luer of the synne offering he burnt vpon the aulter as the Lorde commaunded Moyses: but the fleshe and the hysde, he burnt wylth fye wylthoute the hooite. Afterwarde he slewe the burnt offering, and Aarons sonnes brought the blond vnto him, and he spynk-led it rounde aboute vpon the aulter. And they brought the burnt offering vnto him in peeces, and the heade also and he burnt it vpon the aulter, and doyde washe the inwardes, and the legs, and burnt them also vpon

upon the burnt offering in the aulter.

And then he brought the peoples offering and toke the gote that was þ peoples sin-offering, and slewe it, and offered it for a synoffering: as he dyd the fyrst. And then brought the burnt offering, & offered it as the maner was, & brought the meatoffring and filled his hand therof, and burnt it vp on the aulter, beside the burnt sacrifice in the morning.

Then he slewe the ore and the ram that were the peoples peace offerings, & Aarons sonnes broughte the bloude vnto him, and he spryckled it vpon the aulter rounde about, and toke the fat of the ore and of the ram: the rompe and the fat that couereth the inwardes and the kydneyes and the kyll of the luer, & put them vpon the brestes, and burnt it vpon the aulter: but the brestes and the ryghte shoulders Aaron waied before the Lorde, as the Lorde commaunded Moyses. And Aaron lyfte vp hys hand ouer the people and blessed them, and came downe fro offering of synofferinges burnt offeringes and peace offerings. The Moyses and Aaron went into the tabernacle of wytnesse, and came out agayne and blessed the people, and the glory of the lord appeared vnto al þ people. And there came a fyre out from the lord, and consumed vpon the alter, the burnt offering and the fat. And all the people sawe it, and woted, and fel on their faces.

Then Moyses sayd vnto Aaron: this is that the lord spake saying: I wyl be sanctified in them that come npe me, and before al the people I wyl be glorified. And Aaron helde hys peace. And Moyses called Misael and Elisaphan the sons of Dziell the vncle of Aaron, and sayd to them: Go and carpe your brethren from the holpe place out of the host. And they went to them and carried them in theyr albes out of the hoste as Moyses bad.

And Moyses sayd vnto Aaron and Eliazar and Jthamar hys eldest sonnes, vncouer not your head, neither rent your clothes, lest ye die, and wraath come vpon al the people, let your brethren the hole house of Israel be wepe the burninge whiche the Lorde hath burnt. But go ye not out by the doze of the tabernacle of witnes, lest ye dye: for the anoyntynge oyle of the lord is vpon you. And they did as Moyses bad.

And the Lord spake vnto Aaron, saying: Drynke no wyne ne stronge drynke, neither thou nor thy sons with the when ye go in to the tabernacle of witnes, lest ye die. And let it be a lawe for euer vnto poure children after you, that ye maye put dyfference betwene holy and vnholy, betwene vncleane and cleane, and that ye may teach the children of Israel al the ordinaunces whych þ Lord hath commaunded them by the handes of Moyses.

And Moyses sayd vnto Aaron, and vnto Eliazar and Jthamar his sonnes that wer left. Take þ meatoffering that remayneth of the sacrifices of the lord, and eat it with out leuen besyde the aulter, for it is moste holy: eate it therfore in the holy place, because it is thy dutye and thy sons dutye of the sacrifice of the Lord: for so I am commaunded. And the wauebrest & heue shoul- der eat in a cleane place: both thou and thy sons, and thy daughters with the. For it is thy dutye, and thy sons dutye wyth the, of the peace offerings of the chyldren of Israel. But these shal ye not eate of the that chewe cud and haue hofes. The Camell, for he che weth cud, but he deuiddeth not the hofe into two clauies, therfore he is vncleane vnto you. And the cony, for he cheweth the cud, but deuiddeth not the hofe into two clauies, therfore he is vncleane to you. These shall ye eate, of al that are in the waters: whatsoever haue finnes and scales in the waters, seas & riuers, that shall ye eate. And al that haue not finnes and scales in the seas and riuers of al that moue & lue in the waters shall ye abhorre. Se ye eate not of their flesh, and also that ye abhorre theyr carkasses: for all that haue no finnes nor scales in the waters, shall be abhominacion vnto you. These are þ fowles which ye shall abhorre, and which shall not be eaten, for they are abominacion. The Eagle, the goshauke the cormozant, the kite, the vultur and al his kind, and al kind of rauens, the estrich the nightcrow, the cockowe, the sparrow-hauke and al the kynde: & the litle oule, the storcke, the great oule, the backe, the pelli-cane, the ppe, the heron, the iape wpyth the kind, the lapwpyng, and the swallowe. leppe is to the body.

If ther be but a white plectke in the skin of hye flesh, and seme not to be lower then the other skin, nor the herre thereof is turned vnto whyte, then let the priest shut him vp seven daies. And let the priest loke vpon him the seventh day: if the soze seme to him to abyde still, & to go no further in the skin, then let the priest shut him vp yet. vii. daies mo. And let the priest loke on him again the seventh day. When if the soze be waxed blackish, & is not growen abrode in the skinne, let the priest make him cleane, for it is but a skirf. And let him wash his clothes, & then he is cleane: But if the scab grow in the skin after that he is sene of the prieste againe: if the priest se that the scab be growen abrode in the skin, let him make him vncleane: for it is surely a leprosy.

If the plage of leprosy be in a mā, let him be brought vnto the priest, & let the priest se him. If the rising appere whyte in the skin, & haue also made the herre whyte, and there be rawe flesh in the soze also, then it is an old leprosy in the skin of his flesh. And the priest shal iudge him vncleane, and shal not shut him vp, for he is vncleane.

If a leprosy breake out in the skin, & couer al the skin from the head to the fote ouer all, whersoever the priest loketh, the let the priest loke vpon him. If the leprosy haue couered al his flesh, let him iudge & disease him cleane, for in as muche as he is altogither whyte, he is cleane. But if there be raw flesh on hym when he is sene, then he shal be vncleane. Therefore when the priest seeth the rawe flesh, lette him iudge hym vncleane.

* Cleane because the humour is come out of the flesh, & resteth on the skynne.

If in as muche as his flesh is rawe, he is vncleane: and it is surely a true leprosy. But if the rawe flesh depart againe & chaunge in to whyte, then let him come to the prieste, & let the priest se him. If the soze be changed vnto whyte, let the priest iudge the disease cleane, and then he is cleane.

When ther is a blye in the skynne of any mans flesh, and is healed, and after in the place of the blye there appere a whyte ry-ping, epyther a shynnyng whyte, somewhat re-dysh, let him be sene of the prieste. If when the priest seeth him, it appere lower then the other skin, and the herre thereof be chaunged vnto whyte, let the priest iudge hym vncleane: for it is a very leprosy, that is broke oute in the place of the blye. But if when the priest loketh on it, ther be no whyte her-res therein, neither the scab lower then the other skin, and be somewhat blackish, then the priest shal shut him apart seven daies.
If it spred abrode in the meane season, the let the priest iudge him vncleane: for it is a leprosy. But if the glittering whyte abide still in one place, and go no further, then it is but the pynnt of the blye, and the prieste shal iudge hym cleane.

When the skin of any mans flesh is burnt with fyre that it be raw, and ther appere in the burning a glittering whyte that is som-what redyshe or altogither whyte, let the priest loke vpon it. If the herre in & bright-nesse be chaunged to whyte, & it also appere lower then the other skin, then it is a leprosy that is broken oute of the place of the burning. And the priest shal iudge hym vncleane, for it is a leprosy. But if (when the priest loketh on it) he see there is no whyte herre in the brightnes, & that it is no lower then the other skin, and that it is also blackish, then let the prieste shut him vp seven daies. And if (when the prieste loketh on him the seventh day) it be growen abrode in the skin, let him iudge him vncleane: for it is a leprosy. But if that brightnesse abyde still in one place, and go no further in the skin, and be blackish, then it is but a ryping in the place of the burning, and the priest shal make him cleane: for it is but the pynnt of the burning onely.

When epyther man or woman hath a bre-king out vpon the head or the beard, let the priest se it. And if it appeare lower then the other skin, and there be therein golden her-res and thynne, let the priest iudge him vncleane, for it is a breakynge out of leprosy vpon the head or beard. If (when the priest lokethe on the breakynge oute) he se it is no lower then the other skinne, and that there are blacke herres therein, let hym shut hym vp seven daies. And let the priest looke on the disease the seventh day: and if the brea-kynge out be gone no further, neyther be any golde herres therein, neither the scab be lower then the other skin, then let hym be shauen, but let him not haue the scab: and let the priest shut him vp. vii. daies mo. And
m. ii. let

hym for a trespase offering, and the logge of oyle: and waue them befoze the Lorde. And then let them sle the lamb in the place where the synneoffring and the burnt offering were slayne: euē in the holy place. For as the synoffring is, euē so is the trespase offering of the priestes, for it is most holy.

E Then let the priest take of the bloud of the trespase offering, & put it vpon the tpp of the right eare of him that is clesed, & vpon the tombe of his right hand, and vpon the great toe of his right fote. The let the priest take of the logge of oyle, and poure it into the palme of his left hād, and dip his right synger in the oyle that is in the palme of his left hand, & let him sprynckle it with his finger seuen times befoze the Lorde. And of the rest of the oyle that is in his hand, shall the priest put vpon the tip of the ryght eare of him that is clesed, & vpon the thomb of his ryght hande, and vpon the great toe of hys ryght fote: euē vpon the bloud of the trespaseoffring. And the rest of the oyle þ is in the priestes hand, he shall poure vpon the head of hym that is clesed: and so shall the priest make an attonement for him befoze the Lorde.

Then let the priest offre the synoffering, & make an attonement for him that is clesed for hys vncleynesse. And then let the burnt offering be slaine, and let the priest put both the burnt offering and the meatoffring vpon the aulter: and make an attonement for him and then he shall be cleane. If he be poore & can not get so much, then let him bring one lamb for a trespase offering to waue it, and to make an attonement for him, & a tenth deale of fine floure mingled with oile for a meatoffring, and a logge of oyle, and two turtle doues or two yonge pignons which he is able to get, and let thone be a synoffring, and thother a burnt offering. And lette hym bringe them the righte dape for hys cleansing vnto the priest to the dore of the tabernacle of wytnesse befoze the Lorde.

D And let the priest take the lamb that is the trespase offering, and the logge of the oyle, and waue them befoze the Lorde. And when the lambe of the trespaseoffring is kyllied, the priest shall take of the bloud of the trespaseoffring, and put it vpon the tpp of his ryghte eare that is clesed, and vpon the thombe of his right hand, & vpon the great toe of hys ryghte fote. And the prieste shall poure of the oile into his ryght hand, & shall sprynckle with his synger of the oyle that is in hys left hand seuen tymes befoze the Lorde.

And the priest shall put on the oyle that is in hys hande (vpon the tip of the right eare of him that is clesed, and vpon the thomb of his right hand, and vpon the greute toe of his right fote: euē in the place where the bloud of the trespaseoffring was put. And the reste of the oyle that is in his hande, he shall poure vpon the head of him that is clesed: to make an attonement for him befoze the lord. And he shall offre one of the turtle doues, or of the yonge pygions, such as he can get: the one for a synoffering, and thother for a burnt offering vpon the alter. And so shall the priest make an attonement for him that is clesed befoze the lord. This is the law of him that hath the plage of leprosy, whose hand is not able to get that belongeth to hys cleansing.

And the lord spake vnto Moyses & Aaron, saying: whē ye become vnto the land of Canaā, whych I gyue you to possesse: if I put the plage of leprosy in the house of the lāde of your possesiō, let him þ oweth the house go & tell the priest, saying: me thynke that ther is as it were a leprosy in þ house. And the priest shall commaund them to rydde all thyng forth of the house, befoze the priest, enter to see the plage: that he make not all that is in the house vncleane, and then the priest shall go in, and se the house.

If the priest se that the plage is in þ walles of the house, & that ther be holow strakes pale or red, whych seme to be lower the the other partes of the wall, then lette the priest go out at the house doores, and shutte vp the house for vii. dapes. And let þ prieste come again the seuenth dape and se it, if the plage be increased in the wals of þ house, let the priest command them to take away the stones in which the plage is, and let the cast them in a foule place wpythout the cty, & scrape the house wpythin roundabout: and poure out the dust without the cty in a foule place. And let them take other stones, and put them in the places of these stones, and other mortar, & plaster the house wpyth. If now the plage come agayne, and breake out in þ house, after that they haue taken awaye the stoones, and scraped the house, and after that the house is plastered anewe: lette the priest come and se it. And if then he percepue that the plage hath eaten further in the house, it is a fretting leprosy that is in the house, & it is vncleane. Then they shall breake doune the house: both stones, timbre, and al the mortar of the house, and carpe it forth of the ctye vnto a foule place. Mozeouer he that goeth into the house all the whyle it is shut vp, shall be vncleane tll nyghte. And he that slepeth in the house, shall washe hys clothes, and he also that eateth in the house, shall wash his clothes.

But if the prieste come and see that the plage hath spred no further in the house after it is new plastered, then let him make it cleane, for the plage is healed. And let hym take to clesse the house with: two byrdes, cedar wood, and purple cloth, & psope. And let hym kyl one of the byrdes in an earthen vessell wpyth runninge water: and take the cedar woode, the psope, the purple, and the lpyng byrde, and dippe them in the bloud of the slayne byrde, and in the running water, and sprynckle vpon the house seuentymes, and clesse the house wpyth the bloude of the byrde, and with the runnyng water, and with the lypunge byrde, and with the cedar wood, and the pſope, and the purple cloth. And he ſhall let the lypunge byrde fle forth of the towne into the wylde felde, & ſo make an attonement for the houſe, and it ſhall be cleane. This is the law for al manner plage of leproſy and breaking out, and of the leproſie of cloth and houſe, and of riſinges, ſcabbes, and gliſteringe whyte, to teache when a thing is vncleane or cleane. Thys is the law of leproſye.

The .xv. Chapter.

The maner of purgynge the vncleannes both of men and women.

AND the Lorde ſpake vnto Moſes & Aaron, ſaying: Speake vnto the chyldre of Iſrael, & ſay vnto them: euery man that hath a runnyng pſſue in his fleſh, is vncleane by reaſon of his pſſue. And hereafter ſhall it be knowen when he is vncleane. If his fleſh runne, or if his fleſh congele by the reaſon of his pſſue, then he is vncleane. Euery couche wheron he lyeth, and euery thyng wheron he ſytteth, ſhall be vncleane. He that toucheth hys couche, ſhall waſhe his clothes, and bath him ſelfe with water, and be vncleane tyll the euen.

He that ſytteth on that wheron he ſate, ſhall waſhe hys clothes, and bath hym ſelfe wth water, & be vncleane vntill the euenyng. And he that toucheth hys fleſh, ſhall waſh hys clothes, and bath him ſelfe in water, and be vncleane vnto the euen. If any ſuch ſpyt vpon him that is cleane, he muſte waſhe his clothes, and bath hym ſelfe in water, and be vncleane vntyll euen.

W And whatſoever ſadel that he rydeth vpon ſhall be vncleane. And whoſoever toucheth any thyng that was vnder hym, ſhall be vncleane vnto the euen. And he þ beareth any ſuch thynges, ſhall waſhe his clothes, and bath hym ſelfe in water, and be vncleane vnto the euen: & whatſoever he toucheth (if he haue not fyrſt waſhed hys handes in water) muſt waſhe his clothes, and bathe hym ſelfe in water, and be vncleane vnto þ euenyng. And if he touche a veſſel of earth, it ſhall be broken: and al veſſels of woode, ſhall be rpyſed in water.

When he that hath an pſſue is clenſed of his pſſue, let him numbre ſeven daies after he is cleane, and waſhe his clothes, & bathe hys fleſhe in runnyng water, and then he is cleane. And the eyght dape let hym take two turtle doves, or two ponge pygpons, and come before the Lorde vnto the doore of the tabernacle of wptneſſe, and giue the vnto the prieſte. And the prieſte ſhall offer them: the one for a ſpyne offerynge, and the other for a burnt offerynge: and make an attonement for him before the Lorde concernyng his pſſue.

If any mans ſede departe from him in his ſlepe, he ſhall waſh hys fleſh in water, and be vncleane vntyll euen. And al the clothes of furre, wheron ſuch ſede chanceth, ſhall be waſhed with water, and be vncleane vnto the euen. And if a woman lye wth ſuch perſon, they ſhall waſhe themſelues wth water, and be vncleane tyll euen.

When a womans natural courſe of blood runneth, ſhe ſhall be put aparte .vii. dapes: & whoſoever toucheth hys, ſhall be vncleane vnto the euen. And all that ſhe lyeth or ſitteth vpon as long as ſhe is put apart, ſhall be vncleane. And whoſoever toucheth hys couche, ſhall waſhe hys clothes, & bath him ſelfe with water, & be vncleane vnto the eue. And whoſoever toucheth any thyng þ ſhe ſate vpon, ſhall waſhe hys clothes, & waſhe him ſelfe alſo in water, and be vncleane vnto the euen: ſo þ whether he touch hys couche or any thyng wheron ſhe hath ſytten, he ſhall be vncleane vnto the euen: and if a man lye with hys in the meane tyme, he ſhall be put aparte as well as ſhe, and ſhall be vncleane ſeven dapes, & al hys couche where in he ſlepeth ſhall be vncleane.

When a womans bloude runneth longe tyme, beyond the tyme of hir natural curſe: as long as hys vncleannes runneth, ſhe ſhall be vncleane, after the maner as when ſhe is put aparte. Al hys couches wheron ſhe lyeth (as long as hir pſſue laſteth) ſhall be vnto hys as hir couche, when ſhe is put apart. And whatſoever ſhe ſitteth vpon, ſhall be vncleane as is hys vncleannes when ſhe is put apart. And whoſoever toucheth them, ſhall be vncleane, and ſhall waſhe his clothes, and bath him ſelfe in water, and be vncleane vnto euen.

But if ſhe be cleane of hys pſſue, lette hys count hys .vii. dapes, after that ſhe is cleane. And the eyght dape let hys take two turtles or two ponge pygpons, and byrnyng the vnto the prieſte vnto the doore of the tabernacle of witneſſe. And the prieſt ſhall offer the one for a ſpyne offerynge, and the other for burnt offerynge: and ſo make an attonement for hir before the Lorde, concernyng hys vncleane pſſue. Make the chyldren of Iſrael to kepe themſelues from theſe vncleannes, that they dye not in their vncleannes: when they haue deſpyled my habitacpon that is amonge them.

Thys is the law of hym that hath a runnyng ſore, and of hym whoſe ſede runneth from hym in hys ſlepe, and is deſpyled therewith, & of hys that hath an pſſue of bloude as long as ſhe is put aparte, and of whoſoever hath a runnyng ſore, whether it be mā or womanne, and of hym that ſlepeth with hys that is vncleane.

The .xvi. Chapter.

What Aaron muſte do or he entre into the holy place. The cleaſing of the ſanctuary or holy place. Of the feaſt of cleaſyng. Aaron confeſſeth the ſynnes of the chyldren of Iſrael ouer the lye gote and putteth them vpon hys heade.

AND the Lorde ſpake vnto Moſes after the death of the two ſons of Aaron, when they had offered before the Lorde

Lord and dyed: And he sayde vnto Moses: speake vnto Aaron thy brother, that he go not at all tymes into the holy place, that is within the vayle that hangeth before the mercy seat, which is vpon the arke that he dye not. For I will appeare in a cloude vpon the mercy seat.

But on thys maner shal Aaron go into the holy place: with a bullock for a synoffring and a ram for a burntoffring. And he shall put the holy linnen albe vpon him, and shall haue a linnen breeche vpon his fleshe, & shall gird hym wth a linnen gyrdel, and put the linnen mytre vpon his head: for they are holy raimentes. And he shall wash hys fleshe with water, and put them on. And he shall take of the multitude of the children of Israel two he goates for a synoffring and a ram for a burntoffring.

And Aaron shal offer the bullocke for hys synoffring, & make an attonement for him and for his house. And he shal take the two goates, and present them before the lord in the doore of the tabernacle of wytnesse. And Aaron shal caste lots ouer the two goates: one lot for the Lord, & an other for a scapegoate. And Aaron shal bynge the goate vpon which the Lords lot fel, and offer him for a synoffring. But the goate on whych the lot fell to escape, he shall set alpye before the Lord to reconple wth, and to let hym go fre into the wylde. And Aaron shall bynge the bullocke of his synoffring, and make attonement for him selfe and for his household, and kyll hym.

And then he shal take a censer full of burning coles out of the altare that is before the Lord, & his handfull of swete incense beaten smal and bring them within the vayle, and put the incense vpon the fyre before the Lord: that the cloude of the incense maye couer the mercy seat, that is vpon the wytnesse that he dye not. * And he shall take of the blood of the bullock, & sprinkle it with hys synger before the mercy seat eastward: euen seuen tymes.

Then shal he kyll the goate that is the peoples synoffring, & bynge his blood wth in the vayle, & do wth his bloude as he did with the blood of the bullock, and let hym sprinkle it toward the mercy seat, and before the mercy seat: and reconple the holy place from the vncleynesse of the chyldren of Israel, and from theyr trespasses and all their syns. And so let him doo also vnto the tabernacle of wytnesse that dwelleth wth them, euen among theyr vncleynesses.

* And ther shalbe no person in the tabernacle of wytnesse, when he goeth in to make an attonement in the holy place, till he come forth again. And he shal make an attonement for hym selfe and hys household, and al the multitude of Israel. Then he shal go forth vnto the altare that standeth before the Lord, and clense it, and shall take of the bloude of the bullock, and the goate, and put vpon the hornes of the altare roundabout, and sprinkle of the blood vpon it with his synger seuen tymes, and clense it, & hallow it from the vncleynesse of the chyldren of Israel.

And when he hath clensed the holy place & the tabernacle of wytnesse and the altare, let him bring the lyue goate, and let Aaron put both hys handes vpon the head of the lyue goate, and confes ouer him al the mysdedes of the children of Israel, & their trespasses and al their syns: and let him put the vpon the head of the goate, and send him away by the handes of one that is acquainted in the wilderness. And the goate shall beare vpon him al their mysdedes into the wilderness, and he shal let the goate go fre in the wilderness.

And let Aaron go into the tabernacle of wytnesse, and put of the linen clothes which he put on when he wet into the holy place, and leaue them ther. And let him wash hys fleshe wth water in the holy place, and put on his owne raiment, and then come out & offer his burnt offering & the burnt offering of the people, and praye for him selfe & the people, and the fat of the sinne offering let him burne vpon the altare. And let him that carryed forth the scapegoate, wash his clothes and bath his fleshe in water, and then come into the host agayne.

And the bullocke of the synoffring and the goate of the synoffring (whose bloude was brought in to make an attonement in the holy place) let one carpe forth wthout the host and burne with fyre: both theyr skynnes, their fleshe and their donge. And let him that burneth them, washe his clothes and bath his fleshe in water, and so come into the host agayne. And this shalbe an ordinaunce for euer vnto you. And eue in the tenth day of the seuenth moneth, ye shal humble your soules and shal do no worke at al: whether it be one of your selues or a straunger that sojourneth among you, for that dai shal an attonement be made for you to clense you from al your synnes before the Lord, and ye shal be cleane. It shal be a Sabbath of rest vnto you, and ye shal humble your soules, and it shal be an ordinaunce for euer. And the priest that is anoynted and whose hand was fylled to minister in hys fathers steede, shal make the attonement and shal put on the holy linnen clothes and holy vestmentes, and shal repourge the holpe sanc- tuary and the tabernacle of wytnesse and the altare, and shal make attonement also for the priestes and al the people of the congregation. And thys shal be an everlastyng ordinaunce vnto you to make attonement for the chyldren of Israel for all theyr synnes ones a yere, and it was done eue as the lord commaunded Moses.

AND the Lord talked with Moses, saying: speake to Aaron and hys sons, and vnto all the children of Israel, and tel them, this is the thing which I Lord charged, saying: whatsoeuer he be of the house of Israel, that killeth an ore, lambe or goat, in the host or out of the hoste, & bynggeth them not vnto the doze of the tabernacle of wptnes, to offre an offryng vnto the Lord, before the dwelling place of the Lord, bloude shall be imputed vnto that man, as though he had shedde blood, and that man shall perishe from his people.

Wherefore let the children of Israel bring their offerings, that they offre in the wild field, vnto the Lord: even vnto the doze of the tabernacle of wptnes, & vnto the priest, and offer them for the peaceoffryngs vnto the Lord. And the priest shall sprinkle the bloude vpon the aulter of the Lord in the dooze of the tabernacle of wptnes, & burne the fat to be a swete sauoure vnto the Lord. And let them no more offre theyr offryngs vnto deupls, after whom they go an horynge. And thys shall be an ordinaunce for euer vnto you, thowoweoute your generations.

*That is let no man offer to any other, or in any other sorte than scripture teacheth.

And thou shalt say vnto them: whatsoeuer man it be of the house of Israel, or of the strangers that soiourne amonge you, that offereth a burnt offering, or any other offering, and bynggeth it not vnto the doze of the tabernacle of wptnesse to offre vnto the Lord, the same shall perishe from hys people. And whatsoeuer man it be of the house of Israel, or of the strangers that soiourne amonge you that eateth any maner of bloud, I will set my face agaynst that soule that eateth bloude, and will destroye hym oute of hys people, for the lyfe of the fleshe is in the bloud, and I haue giuen it vnto you vpon the alter, to make attonement for poure soules, for bloude shall make attonement for the soule. And therefore I sayd vnto the chyldren of Israel: se no soule of you eate bloud, ne any stranger that soiourneth amonge you.

Whatsoeuer man it be of the chyldren of Israel, or of the strangers that soiourne amonge you: that hunteth and catcheth any beast or foule that may be eaten, he shall poure out the bloud and couer it with erth, for the lyfe of all fleshe is in the bloud, therefore I sayd vnto the chyldren of Israel: ye shall eat the bloude of no maner of fleshe, for the lyfe of all fleshe is in hys bloude, and whosoever therfore eateth it, shall perishe. And whatsoeuer soule it be that eateth that which died alone or that whiche was torne with wild beasts: whether it be one of your selues or a stranger, he shall wash hys clothes, and bathe him selfe in water and shall be vncleane vnto the euen, and then is he cleane. But if he washe them not, nor wash hys fleshe, he shall beare hys synne.

Thou shalt not lie with mankind as with a womankynd, for that is abhominacion.

Thou shalt lye with no maner of beast, to defile thy selfe therewith, neither shall any woman stande before a beast to lye downe therto, for that is abhominacion.

Defyle not your selues in any of these thyngs things, for with all these things are these nations defiled which I cast out before you, and the land is defiled, and I will visit the wickedness thereof upon it, and the land shall spewe out her inhabitants. * Leu. xx. d. Keepe ye therefore mine ordinances and iudgements: and se ye do none of these abominations: neither any of you nor any stranger that sojourneth among you (for all these abominations haue the men of the land done which were there before you, and the land is defiled) lest the land spewe you out when ye haue defiled it, as it spewed out the nations that were there before you. For whosoever shall commit any of these abominations the same soules that do thep in shall perishe from thep people. Therefore se ye keepe myne ordinances, that ye commit none of these abominable customes whiche were committed before you: that ye desyle not your selues therewith for I am the Lord your God.

The Notes.

Idoloch. (a) Under this name Idoloch, is forbidden all manner of Idolatry, specially the offeringe of children therunto for that was abominable before the Lord. Idoloch was an Idole of children of Ammon, whose Image was hollow, hauing in it vii. closettes. One was to offer there in fine flour, another for turtledoues, the third for a shepe, the fourth, for a ram, the fyfte for a calfe, the syxt for an ore. And for him that would offer his son, was opened the vii. closet. And the face of this Idole was like the face of a calfe, his hand made playne redye to receyue of them that stode by.

The xix. Chapter.

A repetition of certayne lawes pertaining to the ten commaundmentes. A consideration for the poore. How we ought to iudge righteously. How we ought not to be auenged: wylchecraft is forbidden.

Leu. xi. g. Deut. i. d. And the Lord spake vnto Moses, saying: speake to all the multitude of the children of Israell, and say vnto the: * We holp for I the Lord your God am holy. Se ye fear euery man his father and his mother, and that ye keepe my Sabbathes, for I am the Lord your God. Ye shall not turne vnto the ydolles nor make you gods of metal: I am the Lord your God.

When ye offer your peace offeringes vnto the Lord, ye shall offer them that ye maye be accepted. And it shall be eaten the same daye ye offer it and on the morow, but what soeuer is left on the third day shall be burnt in the fyre. If it be eaten the thyrde daye, it shall be vncleane and not accepted. And he that eateth it shall beare his sinne, because he hath defiled the halowed thinges of the Lord, and that soule shall not perishe from his people.

Le. xlii. d. * When ye reape downe the ripe corne of your land, ye shall not reape downe the vttermoste borders of your felde, neyther shall thou gather that is left behinde in the harvest. Thou shalt not plucke in all thy vinegarde cleane, ne gather in the grapes that are ouer scaped. But thou shalt leaue them for the poore and stranger. I am the Lord your God.

Ye shall not steale neyther lye, neyther deale falselye one with another. * Ye shall not sweare by my name falsely, that thou dearest not the name of thy God, I am the Lord. Thou shalt not begyle thy neyghbour with camillacions, neither rob him by violent lye, neyther shall the workemans labour abyde with thee vntill the morning. Thou shalt not curse the deafe, neyther put a stumblinge blocke before the blynde, but shalt feare thy God. I am the Lord. Ye shall do no vnrighuousnes in iudgemente. * Thou shalt not fauoure the poore nor honour the myghtye, but shalt iudge thy neyghbour righteously.

Thou shalt not go vp and downe a prerie accuser among people, neyther shalt thou helpe to shed the bloud of thy neyghbour: I am the Lord. * Thou shalt not hate thy brother in thine heart, but shalt in any wyse rebuke thy neyghbour, that thou be not synn for his sake. * Thou shalt not auenge thy selfe nor beare hate in mynde agaynst the children of thy people, but shalt loue thy neyghbour as thy selfe, I am the Lord.

Keepe mine ordinances. Let none of thy cattel gender with a contrary kind, neither sowe thy felde with mingled sowe, neither shalt thou put on any garment of linnen & wollen. If a man haue to do with a woman that is bound and hath bene medled withal of another man whiche neyther is boughte nor freedome gauen her, there shall be a payne vpon it, but they shall not dye, because she was not made free. And he shall bringe for his trespass offeringe vnto the Lord, euen vnto the doore of the tabernacle of witnessse, a Ramme for a trespass offeringe. And the prieste shall make attonement for hym with the Ramme of the trespass offeringe before the Lord, for his synne whiche he hath done, and it shall be forgiven hym, concerninge the synne whiche he hath done.

And when ye come to the lande, and haue planted all manner of trees wherof men eate ye shall hold them vncircumcised as conceyving their frate, euen thre yere shall they be vncircumcised vnto you & shall not be eaten of, and the fourth yere all the fruit of them shall be holy and acceptable to the Lord. And the fyft yere maye ye eate of the fruit of them and gather in the increase of them: I am the Lord your God. * Ye shall eate nothyng of the bloude, ye shall vse no wylchecraft, nor obserue dysmall dayes, ye shall not round the lockes of your heads neyther shalt thou mar the tuftes of thy bearde.

Ye shall not rent your fleshe for any soules sake, nor prunte any markes vpon you: I am the Lord. Thou shalt not pollute thy daughter, & thou woldest maintayne her to be an hoore: lest the lande fall to whoredome, and waye

They that g<sup>i</sup>ue of theyr s<sup>e</sup>de to Moloch shall dye therofore. Other goodly lawes necessary to be vsed in common wealthes.

And the lord talked with Moyses, saying: tel the children of Israel, whoeuer he be of y<sup>e</sup> children of Israel or of the strangers that dwel in Israel, that giueth of his s<sup>e</sup>de vnto Moloch he shall dye for it: the people of the land shall stone hym with stones. And I will set my face vpon y<sup>e</sup> felow, and wyl destroye him fro his people because he hath giuen of his s<sup>e</sup>de vnto Moloch, to defile my sanctuary & to pollute my holpe name. And though he the people of the land hide their eyes from that felow, when he giueth of his s<sup>e</sup>de vnto Moloch, so that they kyl him not: yet I wyl put my face vpon that man and vpon his generacion, and wyl destroye him and all that go a horpuge wth hym and commit horredom wth Moloch from their people.

Yf anye soule turne hym to enchanters or expounders of tokens and go a horing after them, I wil put my face vpon y<sup>e</sup> soule & wyl destroye him from his people. Sanctify your selues therfore, and be holy, for I am the lord your God. And se ye kepe mine ordinaunces and do them. For I am y<sup>e</sup> lord whych sanctifie you.

Whosoever curseth hys father or mother shall dye for it, his blud on his head, because he hath cursed his father or mother.

He that breaketh wedlocke with an other mans wife shall die for it, because he hathe broke wedlock wth his neighbours wife, and so shall she lykewise.

If a man lye wth his fathers wife, & vncouer his fathers secretes, they shall bothe dye for it, their bloud be vpon theyr heads.

If a man lye wth hys daughter in lawe they shall dy both of the: they haue brought abominacio, theyr bloud vpon their heads.

If a man lye wth mankynd after the maner as wth woman kynde, they haue both committed abhominacion and shall dye for it, theyr bloud be vpon their heads.

If a man take a wife and hir mother ther-to, it is wyckednes. Men shall burne wth fire both hym and them, that they be no wyckednesse among you.

If a man lye with a beast he shall dye, and ye shall slep the beast.

If a woman go vnto a beaste & lye downe therto: thou shalt kyl the woman and the beast also, they shall dye, and their bloud be vpon theyr heads.

If a mā take his sister, his fathers daughter or his mothers daughter, & se hir secretes and she see hys secretes also: it is a wycked thing. Therfore let them perish in the sight of their people, he hath sene hys sisters secretnes, he shall therfore beare hys spynne.

If a man lye with a woman in time of hir floures, and vncouer hir secretes and open hys fountayne, and she also open the fountayne of hys bloud, they shall both perishe from the people.

Thou shalt not vncouer the secretes of thy mothers sister, nor of thy fathers sister, for he that doth so, vncouereth hys nexte kyn:
and they shall beare theyr misdoynge.

If a man lye with his vncles wye, he hath vncouered hys vncles secretes, they shall beare theyr spynne, and shall dye chyldelesse.

If a man take hys brothers wyfe, it is an vncleane thyng, he hath vncouered his brothers secretes, they shall be chyldeles therefore.

Se ye kepe therfore al mine ordynaunces and al my iudgements, and that ye do them, that the land whither I bypunge you to dwel therein, spew you not out. And se ye waleke not in the manners of the nacions whych I cast out before you, for they comit-ted all these things, and I abhorred them.

But I haue sayed vnto you, that ye shall enioy theyr land, and that I wyl giue it vnto you to possesse it: a land that floweth wth mylke and hony. I am the lord your God, whych haue diuided you from other nacids ye shuld put difference betwene cleane beastes and vncleane, and betwene vncleane foules, and them that are cleane. Make not your soules therfore abhominable wth beastes and foules, and with all maner thyng that crepeth on the ground, whych I haue seuered vnto you to hold them vncleane. Be holy vnto me, for I the Lord am holy, and haue seuered you from other nacions: that ye shoulde be myne.

If there be a man or woman that worketh with a spyrte or that expoundeth tokens, they shall dye for it. Menne shall stone them wth stones, and theyr bloud shall be vpon them.

nor on the beard. The priestes wyfe must be a mayde. The priestes daughter maye not be an harlot.

*The priestes muste eend onely to theyr own vocasyon.

AND the Lorde sayed vnto Moyses: Ipeake vnto the priestes, the sonnes of Aaron, & say vnto the. A priest shal not defyle himselfe at the death of any of his people, but vpon his kyn that is nyghe vnto him: as his mother, father, son, doughter & brother: & on his sister as longe as she is a mayd and dwelleth nigh him, & was neuer gyuen to a man: on her he maye defyle himselfe. But he shal not make himselfe vncleane vpon a rular of his people to polute himselfe withall.

They shal make them no baldnesse vpon their heades, or shawe of the lockes of their beardes, nor make anye markes in theyr flesh. They shal be holy vnto their god, and not polute the name of their god, for the sacrifices of the lorde, & the breade of their God they do offer: therfore they must be holy.

They shal take no wife that is an hooze or polluted, or put from her husband: for a priest is holy vnto his God. Sanctifie hym therfore, for he offereth vp the bread of god: he shal therfore be holpe vnto the, for I the Lorde which sanctifye you, am holy.

If a priests daughter fall to play the hore she poluteth hyr father: therfore she shal be burnt with fire.

He that is the high priest among hys brethren, vpon whose head the anointing oyle was poured, and whose hand was filled to put on the vestiments, shal not vncouer his head, nor rent his cloths, neither shal go to any dead body, nor make himselfe vncleane: not on his father or mother, neither shal go out of the sanctuary, that he defyle not the holy place of his god, for the crowne of the anointinge oyle of God, is vpon him. I am the Lorde. He shal take a maide vnto hys wyfe: but no widow nor deuorced, nor defiled hooze. But he shal take a maide of his owne people to wyfe, that he defile not his sede vpon his people: for I am the Lorde which sanctifye hym.

AND the Lorde spake to Moyses, sayinge: Ipeake to Aaron, and saye: No man of thy sede in their generacions that hath any deformitie vpon him, shal preace to offer the bread of hys God: for none that hath anye blempe shal come neare: whether he be blind, lame, snotted, or that hath anye mishappen membre, or broken footed, or broken handed, or croke backed, or perleped, or gogeleped, or maungpe, or skaulde, or hath hys stones broken.

No man that is deformed of the sede of Aaron the priest, shal come nigh to offer the sacrifices of the Lorde. If he haue a deformyte, he shal not preace to offer the bread of his God. Notwithstanding he shall eat the breade of hys God: euen as well of the most holy, as of the holy: but shal not goe in vnto the vable, nor come nygh the altare, because he is deformed, that he polute not my sanctuary, for I am the Lorde that sanctifie the. And Moyses tolde it vnto Aaron, and to his sonnes, and vnto al the children of Israel.

The xxii. Chapter.

What maner persons oughte to abstayne from eatyng the thyngs that were offered. How what, and when they shulde be offered.

AND the Lorde comened with Moyses, sayinge: bid Aaron & his sonnes that they absteyne from the halowed thynges of the chyldren of Israel which they haue halowed vnto me, & they polute not my holy name: for I am the lorde. Say vnto them: whosoever he be of all poure sede among your generacion after you, that goeth vnto the halowed thynges whiche the chyldren of Israel shal haue halowed vnto the Lorde, his vncleannes shal be vpon him: & that soule shal perish forth of my sighte. I am the Lorde.

None of the sede of Aaron that is a leper or that hath a running soze, shal eat of the halowed thyngs tyll he be cleane. And whosoever toucheth any vncleane soule, or man whose sede runneth from him by nyght, or whosoever toucheth any worme that is vncleane to him, or man that is vncleane to him whatsoeuer vncleannesse he hath: the same soule that hath any such thyng, shal be vncleane vntyll euen, and shal not eate of the halowed thyngs vntyll he haue washed his fleche wpth water. And then when the sun is downe, he shal be cleane, and shal afterward eate of the halowed thynges: for they are hys fode. * Of a beast that dyeth alone or is rent wpth wylde beastes, he shal not eate, to defyle hym selfe therewyth: I am the Lorde. But let them kepe therfore mine ordynance, leaste they lade synne vpon them, and dye therein, when they haue defyled themselves: for I am the Lorde which sanctifye them.

There shal no straunger eate of the halowed thyngs, neither the priestes gest, or his hyred seruaunte. But if the priest bye anye person with money, he maye eate of it, and he also that is bozne in his house, maye eate of hys bread. If the priests daughter be maried vnto a straunger, she may not eate of the halowed heueoffryngs. Not wpthstanding if the priests daughter be a widowe or deuorced, and haue no child, but is returned vnto hyr fathers house againe, she shal eat of hir fathers bread as wel as she dyd in hir pouth. But ther shal no straunger eate therof. If a man eat of the halowed things vntwittingly, he shal put the fyfth part therunto, & make good vnto the priest the halowed thyng. And let the priestes se, that they defyle not the halowed thynges of the chyldren of Israel, whiche they haue offered vnto the Lorde, lest they lade themselves with mysdoyng and trespase in eatyng theyr halowed thynges, for I am the Lorde whiche halowe them.

And the Lorde spake vnto Moyses, sayinge: Ipeake

Exo. xxi. d. cxx. lxxiii. g

Speake to Aaron and his sonnes and to all the children of Israel and saye vnto them, whatsoeuer he be of the house of Israel or a stranger in Israel that will offer hys offering: whatsoeuer bowe or fre wyl offering it be whiche they will offer vnto the Lorde for a burnt offering to reconple them selues, it must be a male without blemishe of the oren, shepe, or goates, let them offer no thyng that is deformed, for they shall get no fauoure.

If a man wyl offer a peaceoffring vnto the Lorde, and seporate a bowe or a fre wyl offering of the oren or the flocke, it must be without deformitie, & it may be accepted.

There maye be no blemishe therein: whether it be blynde, broken, wounded, or haue a wenne, or be maungpe or scabbed, see ye offer no suche vnto the Lorde, nor put an offering of any such vpon the aultare vnto the Lorde.

An ore or a shepe that hath anye membre oute of propozcion, mayest thou offer for a fre wyl offering: but in a bowe it shall not be accepted. Thou shalt not offer vnto the Lorde that is brused, broken, plucked oute or cut awaye, neither shalt make anye suche in your land, neither of a strangers hand shall ye offer an offering to your God of anye suche. For they marre all in that they haue deformities in them, and therefore can not be accepted for you. And the lord spake vnto Moses, saying: when an ore, a shepe, or a goat is broughte forth, it shall be seuen dayes vnder the dame. And from the eighte daye forth, it shall be accepted vnto a gyfte in the sacrifice of the Lorde. And whether it be ore or shepe, ye shall not kyl it and hir yong both in one daye.

When ye will offer a *thankeoffering vnto the Lorde, ye shall so offer it, that ye maye be accepted. And the same day, it must be eaten vp, so that ye leaue none of it tyll the morowe. For I am the Lorde, kepe now my commaundementes and do them, for I am the lord. And polute not my holy name, that I maye be halowed amonge the chyldren of Israel. For I am the Lord whiche halowe you, and broughte you oute of the land of Egypte, to be your God: for I am the Lorde.

moneth at euen is the Lordes * passeouer. Exod. xlii. b. And the fyrstene daye of the same moneth is the feast of swete breade vnto the Lorde, seuen dayes ye must eate unleuened bread. The fyrst daye shall be an holpe feast vnto you, so that ye maye do no laboriouse worke therein. But ye shall offer sacrifices vnto the Lorde seuen dayes, and the seuenth daye also shall be an holy feast, so that ye maye do no laboriouse worke therein.

And the lord spake vnto Moses, saying: Speake vnto the chyldren of Israel, & saye vnto them: when ye be come in to the lande whiche I geue vnto you and reape downe your harvest, ye shall bringe a shefe of the *first frutes of your harvest vnto y priest, and he shall waue the shefe before the lord to be accepted for you: and euē the morowe after the Sabboth the priest shall waue it. And ye shall offer that day when he waueth the shefe, a lamb without blemish of a yere olde for a burnt offering vnto the Lorde: and the meat offering therof, two tenth deales of fyne floure mengled with oyle to be a sacrifice vnto the Lorde of a swete sauoure: and the drynke offering thereto, the fourth deale of an hynd of wyne. And ye shall eate neyther breade, nor parched corne, nor fymentye of new corne: vntyll the selfe same daye that ye haue brought an offering vnto your God. And thys shall be a lawe for euer vnto your chyldren after you, whersoever ye dwell.

And ye shall counte from the morowe after the Sabboth: euen from the daye that ye brought the shefe of the waueoffring, seuen wekes complete: euen vnto the morowe after the seuen wekes, ye shall number fyrte dayes. And then ye shall bringe a newe meat offering vnto the Lorde. And ye shall bringe out of your habitacions two waueloues made of two tenth deales of fyne floure leuened and baken, for first frutes vnto the Lorde. And ye shall bringe wth the bread seuen lambes wthout defformitye of one yere of age, and one yonge ore, and two rams, which shall serue for burnt offerings vnto the Lorde, with meat offerings, and drynke offerings longynge to the same, to be a sacrifice of a swete sauour vnto the Lorde.

And ye shall offre an he goate for a synoffering: and two lambes of one yere olde for peace offerings. And the priest shall waue them wth the bread of the fyrst frutes before the lord and with the two lambes. And they shall be holpe vnto the Lorde, and be the priestes. And ye shall make a proclamation the same daye, that it be an holy feast vnto you, & ye shall do no laboriouse worke therein: And it shall be a law for euer thow out all your habitacions vnto your chyldren after you.

*When ye reape doune your harvest, thou shalt not make clene riddance of thy felde, neyther shalt thou make anye aftergathering of thy harvest: but shalt leue the vnto the the poore and the straunger, I am the Lord your God.

And the Lord spake unto Moses, saying, speake unto the children of Israel and saye. The first daye of the seventh moneth shall be a rest of remembrance unto you, to blowe hornes in, an holy feast it shall be, and ye shall do no laborious worke therein, and ye shall offer sacrifice unto the Lord.

And the Lord spake unto Moses saying: also the tenth daye of the selfe seventh moneth, is a daye of attonement, and shall be an holy feast unto you, and ye shall humble your soules and offer sacrifice unto the Lord. Moreover ye shall do no worke the same daye, for it is a daye of attonement to make an attonement for you before the Lord your God. For what soever soule it be that humbleth not hymselfe that daye he shall be destroyed from bys people. And what soever soule doo anye maner worke that daye, the same I wyll destroye from his people. Se ye do no maner worke therfore. And it shall be a law for ever unto your generations after you in al your dwellings. A Sabbath of rest it shall be unto you and ye shall humble your soules. The .ix. daye of the moneth at even and so forth from even to even agayne, ye shall keepe your Sabbath.

*That is chastise thy body by abstinence and affliction

The feast of tabernacles of booths.

And the Lord spake unto Moses, saying: speake unto the children of Israel, and saye: the .xv. daye of the same seventh moneth, shall be the feast of tabernacles vii. dayes unto the Lord. The first daye shall be an holy feast, so that ye shall do no laborious worke therein. Seven dayes ye shall offer sacrifice unto the Lord, and the .viii. shall be an holy feast unto you, and ye shall offer sacrifice unto the Lord. It is the ende of the feast, and ye shall doo no laborious worke therein.

These are feastes of the Lord whiche ye shall proclayme holy feastes, for to offer sacrifice unto the Lord, burnt offerings meate offerings and drinke offerings euer ye daye: besyde the Sabbathes of the Lord, and besyde your gyftes, and al your vowes, and all your freewill offerings whiche ye shall gyue unto the Lord.

Moreover in the .xv. daye of the seventh moneth after ye haue gathered in the frutes of the lande, ye shall keepe holy daye unto the Lord seven dayes longe. The fyrste daye shall be a daye of rest, and the eighth daye shall be a daye of rest. And ye shall take you the first daye, the frutes of goodly trees, and the branches of palme trees, and the homes of thicke trees, and wyllowes of the brooke: and shall rejoyse before the Lord seven dayes. And ye shall keepe it holy daye unto the Lord seven dayes in the yere. And it shall be law for ever to your children after you, that ye keepe that feast in the seventh moneth. And ye shall dwelle in booths seven dayes: even all that are Israelytes borne shall dwell in booths that your children after you maye knowe howe I made the children of Israel dwell in booths, when I brought them out of the lande of Egypte: for I am the Lord your God. And Moses told al the feastes of the Lord unto the children of Israel.

The. xliii. Chapter.

The oil for the lampes and lyghtes of the brade of remembrance of shewbread. He that killeth must be stoned. He that killeth shall be killed, etc.

And the Lord spake unto Moses, saying: commaunde the children of Israel that they bringe unto the, pure oyle olyue beaten for lyghtes to put in to the lampes alwaye, withoute the vaile of wytnesse within the tabernacle of wytnesse. And Aaron shall dresse them both even and morning before the Lord alwayes. And it shall be a law for ever among your children after you. And he shall dresse the lampes upon the pure candelsicks before the Lord perpetually.

And thou shalt take fyne flour & bake twelve wafers thereof, two tenth dealles shall euer y wafer be. And make two rowes of them, sixe on a rowe upon the pure table before the Lord, and put pure frankensces upon the rowes. And it shall be bread of remembrance, and an offering to the Lord. Euer Sabbath he shall put them in rowes before the Lord euermore, giuen of the children of Israel, that it be an euerlasting covenante. And they shall be Aarons and bys sonnes, and they shall care them in the holy place. For they are most holye unto him of the offerings of the Lord, and shall be a duty for ever.

That is shewbread, or halowed loaves.

And the son of an Israelite the wyfe whose father was an Egyptian, went out among the children of Israel. And this sonne of Israelite his wyfe and a man of Israel stroue together in the host. And the Israelite the womans sonne blasphemed the name of the Lord and cursed, & they brought him unto Moses. And his mothers name was Salomit, the daughter of Dibzi of the tribe of Dan: and they put him in ward, that Moses shoulde declare unto the what the Lord laide there to. And the Lord spake unto Moses saying, bringe that blasphemed without the host, and let al the multitude stone him. And let al the multitude stone him. And speake unto the children of Israel saying, Whosoever curseth bys God, shall beare his sinne: And he that blasphemeth the name of the Lord, shall dye for it: al the multitude shall stone him to death. And the straunger as wel as the Israelite if he curse the name, shall dye for it.

That is blasphemy with a curse, sayeth bys lawes, cursing.

He that killeth any man, shall dye for it, but he that killeth a beast shall paye for it, beast for beast. If a man mayne bys neyghboure, even as he hath done, so shall it be done to hym agayne: broke for broke, eye for eye and to the for to the: euen as he hath maymed a manne, so shall he be maymed agayne. So now he that killeth a manne, shall dye for it. Ye shall haue one maner law amonge you: euen for the straunger as wel as for one of your selues for I am the Lord your God

And Moses tolde the chyldren of Israel that they should byrge hym that had cutted, out of the booste, and stoned hym wth stones. And the chyldren of Israel dyd as the Lord commanded Moses.

The. xlv. Chapter.

A The Sabbath of the seuen yeres and of yere of iubilee, otherwise called y fifty yere.

And the Lord spake vnto Moses in mount Sinai, sayinge: speake vnto children of Israel, and say to them. When ye be come into the land whych I gyue you let the lande rest a Sabbath vnto the Lord. Sixe yeres thou shalt sowe thy speld, and sixe yere thou shalt cut thy vyues and gather in thy frutes. But the seuenth yere shall be a Sabbath of rest vnto the lande. The Lordes Sabothe it shall be and thou shalt neither sowe thy speld, nor cut thy vyues.

B The corne that groweth by it selfe thou shalt not reape, neyther gather the grapes that growe wythout thy dressynge: but it shall be a Sabbath of reste vnto the lande. Reuerthelesse the Sabbath of the lande shall be meare for you: euen for the and thy seruaunte, and for thy mayde and for thy hyred seruaunte, and for the straunger that dwelleth with the: and for thy catel, and for the beastes that are in thy land, shall al the encrease thereof be meate. Then numbze seuen (a) wekes of yeres, that is, seuen times seuen yere: and the space of the seuen wekes of yeres wyll be vnto the. xlv. yere. And then thou shalt make an horne blowe: euen in the tenth day of the seventh moneth which is the day of attonement. And then shalt ye make the horne blow, euen thorow out all your lande, And ye shall halow the fyrst yere, and proclayme libertye thorow out the lande vnto all the inhabitants thereof. It shall be a yere of (b) iubely vnto you, and ye shall retourne: euery man vnto his possession, and euery man vnto his kinred agayne. A yere of iubely shall that fyrst yere be vnto you.

Ye shall not sowe neyther reape the corne that groweth by it selfe, nor gather y grapes that growe wythout thy labour, For it is a yere of iubelye and shall be holpe vnto you: howe be it, yet ye shall eate of the encrease of the selde. And in this yere of iubelye ye shall retourne, euery man vnto his possession agayne.

When thou sellest ought vnto thy neyghboure or byeste of thy neyghbours hand, ye shall not oppresse one an other: but accordynge to the number of yeres after the (c) iubely yere, thou shalt bye of thy neyghboure, and accordynge vnto the number of frute yeres, he shall sel vnto the. Accordynge vnto the multitude of yeres, thou shalt encrease the pryce thereof, and accordynge to the fewnesse of yeres, thou shalt mynyshe the pryce: for the number of the frute he shall sel vnto the. And let that no man oppresse his neyghboure, but feare thy God. For I am the Lord your God. Wherefore doo after myne ordynauces, and keepe my lawes, and doot herin, that ye maye dwelle in the lande in safetye. And the lande shall gyue her frute, and ye shall eate your fill and dwell therein in safetye.

It ye shall say: what shall we eate the seuenth yere, in as muche as we shall not sow nor gather in our encrease. I wyll sende my blessinge vpon you in the syxte yere, and it shall byrge forth frute for thre yeres: and ye shall sowe the eyght yere, and eate of olde frute vntyll the nynthe yere, and euen vntyll her frutes come, ye shall eate of olde stoor.

Wherefore the lande shall not be sold for euer, because that the lande is myne, and ye but straungers and sojourners with me and ye shall thorowe oute all the lande of your possession, let the lande goo home free agayne.

* When thy brother is wared pore, and hath solde of his possession: if anye of his kin come to redeme it, he shall bye out that whych his brother solde. And though he haue no man to redeme it for hym, yet if his hande can gette sufficient to bye it oute agayne, then lette hym counte howe longe it hath be solde, and deluyet the reste vnto hym to whome he solde it, and so he shall retourne vnto his possession agayne. But if his hande can not get sufficiente to restore it to hym agayne, then that whych is sold shall remayne in the hand of hym that hath bought it, tyl the Jubely: and in the yere of Jubely it shall come out, and he shall retourne vnto his possession agayne.

If a man sel a dwelling house in a walled cite, he maye bye it oute agayne anye tyme wythin a hole yere after it is solde: and that shall be the space in which he may redeme it agayne.

But if it be not bought oute agayne wth in the space of a full yere, then the house in the walled cite shall be stablyshed for euer vnto hym that boughte it, and to his successours after him, and shall not go out in the yere of Jubelye. But the houses in byllages whych haue noo walles rounde aboute theym shall be counted lyke vnto the felde of the countrey, and maye be boughte oute agayne at any season, and shall goo oute free in the yere of Jubelye.

Notwithstandynge the ctytes of the urtes and the houses in the cytyes of the p<sup>er</sup> possessions, the Leuytes maie redeme at al seasons. And if a man purchase oughte of the Leuytes: wherbet it be house or cytye that they possesse, the bargayne shall goo oute in the yere of Jubelpe: for the houses of the cytyes of the Leuytes, are they: possessions amonge the chyldren of Israel. But the felde that lye roundabout the cytyes, shall not be boughte: for they are they: possessions for euer.

If thy brother be waxed poore and fallen in decay w<sup>ith</sup> the, receyue hym as a stranger or a sojourner, and lette hym lyue by the. * And thou shalt take none vsurpe of hym nor gaine. But shalt feare thy God, that thy brother may liue with the. Thou shalt not lende hym thy money vpon vsury, nor lend him of thy sode to haue gaine by it: for I am the Lorde your God which haue brought you forth of the lande of Egypt, to geue you the land of Canaan and to be your God.

Exo. xxi. e
Deu. xxi. c
Eze. xviii. b

If thy brother that dwelleth by þ were poore and sell him selfe vnto the, thou shalt not let hym labour, as a bondseruaunte doeth: but as an hyred seruaunte, and as a sojourner he shall be w<sup>ith</sup> the, & shall serue the, vnto the yere of Jubelpe, and then shall he departe from the: both he and his chyldren w<sup>ith</sup> hym, and shall retourne vnto his owne kynred agayne and vnto the possessions of his fathers: for they are my seruantes whych I broughte oute of the lande of Egypt, and shall not be sold as bodme.

Seetherfore thou raygne not ouer hym cruellye, but feare thy God. If thou wylt haue bondseruautes and maydens, thou shalt bye them of the beathen that are rounde aboute you, and of the chyldren of the straungers that are sojourners among you and of they: generacions þ are w<sup>ith</sup> you, whych they begate in your land. And ye shall possesse them and geue them vnto your chyldren after you, to possesse them for euer: and they shall be your bondmenne. * But ouer your brethren the chyldren of Israel, ye shall not raygne one ouer another cruelly.

Millenage,
or bondage

When a straunger and a sojourner waxeth w<sup>ith</sup> by the, and thy brother that dwelleth by them waxeth poore and sel him selfe vnto the straunger that dwelleth by the, or to any of the straungers kynne: after that he is solde he may be redemed agayne: one of his brethren maye bye hym oute whether it be his vncle or his vncles sonne, or any that is nye of kynne vnto hym of his kynred: eyther yf his hand can get so much he may be loosed.

And he shall recken w<sup>ith</sup> hym þ boughte hym from the yere in whych he was sold, vnto the yere of Jubelpe, and the price of his bypunge shall be accordyng to the number of yeres, and he shall be w<sup>ith</sup> hym as a hyred seruaunte. If ther be yet many yerkes behynde, accordyng vnto them, he shall geue a gayne for þ s deluyeraunce, of the money that he was solde for.

If there remayne but fewe yeres vnto the yere of Jubelpe, he shall counte w<sup>ith</sup> hym, and accordyng vnto hys yeres geue hym agayne for his redempcion, and shall be w<sup>ith</sup> hym yere by yere as an hyred seruaunte, and the other shall not raygne cruelly ouer him in thy syghte. If he be not bought free in the mean tyme, then he shall go out in the yere of Jubelpe and hys chyldren w<sup>ith</sup> hym: for the chyldren of Israel all are my seruantes whych I broughte out of the land of Egypt.

The Notes.

(a) Sumtyme a weke is taken for the number of vii. dayes, as afore. xxi. c. Sumtyme for the number of vii. yeres, as here, & in Daniel the ix. f. and. g.

(b) Thys word Jubelpe cometh of this worde Jabel an hebreue word, which signifieth a true pet. And the word, Jubelpe signifieth an yere of singular mirth, ioy, and much reste, wherein all they: coine and frutes came forth withoute sowynge, tpyllynge, or anye other laboures.

(c) By thys Jubelpe was betokened þ restoring of al thyngs to hys perfection, whych shall be after the last Judgemente in that flouryng world when the chosen shall be admitted into lybertye, from all wretchednes, pouerty, angurth and oppression, when all shall be fully restored agayne in Christ that thowme the synne of hys first man was taken awaye.

The xxvi. Chapter.

Images are forbydden. Blessed are they þ kepe the thynges that God byddeth: & most cursed are they that kepe them not.

I am the Lorde your God. Ye shall make you no Idolles nor grauen ymage, neyther reare you vp any pylle, neyther ye shall set vp any ymage of stone in your lade to bowe your selues thereto: for I am the Lorde your God: kepe my Saboths and (a) feare my sanctuary for I am the Lorde.

If ye shall walk in mine ordinaunces & kepe my comaundements and do them, the I wyl send you rayne in the tyght season, & your land shall yeld her encrease, and the trees of the feld shall geue their frute. And the threshynge shall reache vnto wyne barre, and the wyneharuest shall reache vnto sowynge time, and ye shall eat your bread in plenteousnes, and shall dwel in your land peasably. And I wyl sende peace in your lande, that ye shall slepe, and no man shall make you asfayde.

And I will ryp euil beastes out of your land, and there shall no swearde go thowow out your lande: And ye shall chase your enemyes, and they shall fall before you vpp the swerde. And kynne of you shall chase an hundred, and an hundred of you shall put tenne thousand to flight, and your enemyes shall fall before you vpon the swerd. And I will toune vnto you and encrease you and multiplye you, and set vp my testamet w<sup>ith</sup> you. And ye shall eat olde store, and cast out the

olde for plenteousnes of the new * I wyl 11. Cor. v. d make my dwelling place among you, and Exo. xxix. g. my soule shall not lothe you. And I wyl walcke among you, and wyl be your God, and ye shall be my people. For I am the Lorde your God, which broughte you out of the Lande of the Egypcyans, that ye shoulde not be theyre bondmenne, and I brake the bowes of your pokes, and made you go wyghte.

De. xxviii b
 Mal. ii. a. But if ye wyl not hearken vnto me, nor wyl do all these my commaundements or if ye shall despyse my ordynaunces, ether if your soules refuse my lawes, so that ye wyl not doo all my commaundements but shall breake myne appoyntemente: then I wyl doo hys agayne vnto you: I wyl vsette you wth beracions, Swellyng and feuers, that shall make youre eyes Daseill, and wth sorowes of hearte.
 And ye shall sowe your seede in vayne, for your enemies shall eat it. And I wyl lette my face agaynst you, and ye shall fall before your enemies, and they that hate you shall ragyn ouer you, and ye shall be when no ma pursueth you.

(b) And if ye will not yet for all thys her-ken vnto me, then wyl I punyssh you seuen tymes moze for your synnes, and wyl breake the pyde of your strengthe. For I wyl make the heauen ouer you as harde as yron, and your Land as harde as brasse.
 And so your labour shall be spent in vaine.
 For your Land shall not geue her en-crease neyther the trees of the land shall geue theyr frutes.

And if he walke contrary vnto me, & wyl not hearken vnto me, I wil byngge seuen tymes moe plages vpon you according to your synnes. I wil send in wilde bestes vpon you, which shall spoyle you of your chyldren & destroy your catel, and make you so fewe in numbze that your high wayes shall grow to a wilderness.

And if ye wyl not be learned yet, for all this, but shall walke contrary vnto me, then wyl I also walke contrary vnto you, and wil punyssh you yet (c) vii. times, for your synnes. I wyl send a sword vpon you, that shall auenge my testamente wth you. And when ye are fled vnto your cyties, I wyl send the pestilence among you, ye shall be-ue into the handes of your enemies. And when I haue (d) broken the staffe of your bred, that x. wyues shall bake your bread in one oven and men shall deliuer you poore bread agayne by weight, then shall ye eate and shall not be filled.

And if ye wil not yet for all this hearken vnto me, but shall walke contrary vnto me, then I will walke contrary vnto you also, wrathfull ye and wyl also punyssh you seuen tymes for your synnes: so that ye shall eate the fleshe of your sonnes and the fleshe of your Daughters. And I wyl destroye your altars buylt vpon hygh hylls, and ouerthrowe your Images, and caste your carcases vpon the bodies of your Idols, and my soule shall abhorre you. And I wil make your cities desolate and byngge your sanctuaries vnto naughte, and wyl not smel the sauours of your swete odours.

And I wyl byngge the lande vnto a wyl-dernesse, so that your enemies which dwell therein, shall wondre at it. And I wil straw you amonge the heathen, and wyl drawe oute a sword after you, and your land shall be wast, and your cities desolate. Then the land shall reioyse in her sabbotthes, as long as it lyeth voide & ye in your enemies land, euen then shall the land keepe holpe daye and reioyse in her Sabbotthes. And as long as it lyeth vopde it shall reaste, for that it coude not reaste in your Sabbotthes, when ye dwelt therein.

And vpon them that are left of you I wyl sende a fayntnesse into theyr heartes in the lande of theyr ennemys: so that the sounde of a leafe that falleth shall chase them, and they shall see as though they stode a swearde, and shall fall, noo manne folowinge them. And they shall fall one vpon an other, as it wer before a sword no manne pursuynge them, and ye shall haue no power to stand before your en-mies. And ye shall perishe amonge the heathen, and the lande of your ennemys shall eate you vpp.

And they that are left of you, shall pine awaye in theyr myghteounesse, euen in theyr ennemys Lande, and also in the myfdeades of theyr fathers shall they consume. And they shall confesse theyr mys-dedes, and the mysdedes of theyr fathers in theyr trespasses whiche they haue trespassed agaynst me, and for that also that they haue walcked contrary vnto me.

Wherefore I also wil walke contrary vnto them, and wyl byngge them into the land of theyr ennemys. And then at lease wape their vncircumcised hertes shall be tamed, and then then they shall make an attemt for theyr mysdedes.

And I wil remember my bond with Jacob and my covenant with Isaac, and my testamente with Abraham, and wil thynke on the lande. For the Lande shall be left of them and shall haue pleasure in her Sabbotthes, whyle they lyeth waste wthoute them, and they shall make an attonemente for theyr mysdedes, because they despyed my Lawes and theyr soules refused my ordynaunces. And yet for all þ when they be in the Lande of theyr ennemye, I wil not so caste them away, nor my soule shall not so abhorre them, that I wyl utterly destroye them, and breake myne appoyntemente wth them, for I am the Lorde theyr God. I wyl therefore remembre vnto them the fyrste couenaunte made when I broughte them oute of the Lande of Egypte in the sight of the heathen to be theyr their God: for I am the Lord.

These are the ordynaunces, iudgements and lawes whiche the Lord made betwene hym and the chyldren of Israel in mount Synai, by the hande of Moyses.

The Notes.

(a) To feare the Sanctuary, is diligently to perfourme the true worshyppe and seruyce of God, to leaue of nothyng, to obserue and kepe the purenes both of bodye and mynde veyly and not hypocritically to beleue that he knoweth, beholdeth, doth and ruleth all thynges: to beware of offendynge hym, and wryth all feare and diligence to walke in the pathes of hys lawes.

(b) When men se that God punyssheth them for theyr iniquyte, and yet wyl not repente and seke hys merce, but be as menne fully agaynst God and his fatherly chastismentes: then wyl God encrease hys plagues, and at the length destroye them vtterly, that he maye be knowen to be the almyghty Lord agaynste whome none can preuaile.

The xxvii. Chapter.

Of dedycate bowes and redempcyng of the same. Of tythes. &c.

And the Lord spake vnto Moyses, sayenge, speake vnto the chyldren of Israel, and saye vnto them: If any man wyl gyue a synaguler bowe vnto the Lord accordyng to the value of hys soule then shall the male from twenty pere vnto lx. be set at .l. syles of syluer, after the stile of the Sanctuary, and the female of .xxx. syles. And from syue peres to twenty the male shall be set at .xx. syles, and the female at .x. syles. And from a moneth vnto .v. pere, the male shall be set at .v. syles of syluer, and the female at thre. And the man that is .lx. and aboue, shall be valued at .xx. syles, and the woman at .x. If he be to pore so to be set, the let hym come before the pypst: and let the pypst value him accordyng as the hande of hym that bowe ed is hable to gette.

Num. iii. g.

If it be of the beastes of which me bring an offering vnto the Lord: all that any man gyuerh of such vnto the Lord, shall be holpe. He may not alter it nor change it: a good for a bad or a bad for a good. If he change beaſt for beaſt, the both y same beaſt & it al so wherwith it was changed shall be holp. If it be any maner of vncleane beaſt of whiche me may not offer vnto the lord, let him bring the beaſt before the pypst and let the pypst value it. And whether it be good or bad as y pypst setteth it, so shall it be. And if he wyl bye it agayne, let hym gyue the fyſt part more to that it was set at.

If any man dedycate his house, it shall be holpynto the Lord. And the pypst shall set it whether it be good or badde, and as the pypst hath set it, so it shall be. If he that sanctified it, wyl redeme hys house, lette him gyue the fyſt parte of the moneys that it was iudged at thereto, and it shall be his.

If a man halow a pece of his enherited laud vnto the Lord, it shall be set according to that it beareth. If it beare an homer of barley, it shall be set at fyſtpe syles of syluer. If he vowe hys land forthwith from the pere of Jubely, it shall be woth the accorde as it is esteemed. But if he halowe hys feld after the trompet pette, the pypst shall recken the pryce wryth hym according to the peres that remayne vnto the troppet pere, and thereafter it shall be lower set.

If he that sanctified y feld wil redeme it agayne, let hym put the fyſte part of the pryce that it was set at therunto, & it shall be his, if he wil not, it shall be redemed no more. But when the feld goeth oute in the pere of Jubelye, it shall be holpe vnto the Lord: euen as a thyng dedycated, and it shall be the pypstes possession.

If a man sanctify vnto the Lord a feld, which he hath bought, and is not of hys enherytaunce, then the pypst shall reaken wryth hym what it is worth vnto the pere of Jubely, and he shall gyue the pryce that it is set at y same day, & it shall be holpynto the Lord. But in the pere of Jubely, y feld shall retorne vnto him of whom he bought it, whose enheritaunce of land it was.

And all setting shall be accordyng to the holy cycle. One cycle maketh .xx. yeras.

But the fyſte borne of beastes that payne vnto the Lord, maye no man sanctify: whether it be ore or shepe, for they are the Lordes alreadye. If it be an vncleane beaſt, then let him redeme it as it is set, & gyue the fyſt part more thereto. If it be not redemed the let it be sold as it is rated.

Notwithstandyng no dedycated thyng that man dedicateth vnto the Lord of all hys good, whether it be manne or beaſt or land of his enherytaunce, shall be sold, or redemed: for al dedycate thynges are most holy vnto the Lord. No dedycate thyng therefore that is dedycate of man, may be redemed, but must nedes dye.

All these tythes of the lande, whether it be of the corne of the feld or frute of the trees, shall be holpe vnto the Lord. If anye man wyl redeme ought of his tythes, lette him adde the fyſte parte more thereto. And the tythes of oxen and shepe and of al that goth vnder the berde mans keeppe, shall be holy tythes vnto the Lord. Men shall not looke if it be good or badde nor shall chaunge it. If anye man chaunge it then both it and that it was chaunged wrythall shall be holpe, and maye not be redemed.

If a man halow a pece of his enherited laud vnto the Lord, it shall be set accordyng to that it beareth. If it beare an homer of barley, it shall be set at fyfte syles of syluer. If he vowe hys land forthwith from the pere of Jubely, it shall be woth the accorde as it is esteemed. But if he halowe hys feld after the trompet pette, the pypst shall recken the pryce wryth hym accordyng to the peres that remayne vnto the tropt pere, and thereafter it shall be lower set.

If he that sanctified y feld wyl redeme it agayne, let hym put the fyfte part of the pryce that it was set at therunto, & it shall be his, if he wyl not, it shall be redemed no more. But when the feld goeth oute in the pere of Jubelye, it shall be holpe vnto the Lord: euen as a thyng dedycate, and it shall be the pypstes posselson.

If a man sanctify vnto the Lord a feld, which he hath bought, and is not of hys enherytaunce, then the pypst shall reaken wryth hym what it is worth vnto the pere of Jubely, and he shall gyue the pryce that it is set at y same day, & it shall be holpynto the Lord. But in the pere of Jubely, y felde shall retorne vnto him of whom he bought it, whose enheritaunce of land it was.

And all settyng shall be accordyng to the holy cycle. One cycle maketh .xx. yeras.

But the fyfte borne of beastes that per rayne vnto the Lord, maye no man sanctify: whether it be ore or shepe, for they are the Lordes alreadye. If it be an vncleane beas, then let him redeme it as it is set, & gyue the fyft part more thereto. If it be not redemed the let it be sold as it is rated.

Notwithstandyng no dedycate thyng that man dedicateth vnto the Lord of all hys good, whether it be manne or beas or land of his enherytaunce, shall be sold, or redemed: for al dedycate thynges are most holy vnto the Lord. No dedycate thyng therefore that is dedycate of man, may be redemed, but must nedes dye.

All these tythes of the lande, whether it be of the corne of the feld or frute of the trees, shall be holpe vnto the Lord. If anye man wyl redeme ought of his tythes, lette him adde the fyfte parte more thereto. And the tythes of oxen and shepe and of al that goth vnder the berde mans keeppe, shall be holy tythes vnto the Lord. Men shall not looke if it be good or badde nor shall chaunge it. If anye man chaunge it then both it and that it was chaunged wrythall shall be holpe, and maye not be redemed.

These are the comaundemets which the Lord gaue Moyses in charge to gyue vnto the chyldren of

The Prologe

A prologe in to the fourth booke of Moses called Nu merpe.

In the second and thyrde booke they receyued the law.
And in thys .iiii.
they begynne to worke & to practyse. Of whiche practisynge ye see many good ensamples of vnbellef &
what freewyl do-
eth, when the taketh in hande to

kepe þ law of hir own power without helpe of fayth in the promyses of God: howe the leaueth hys masters carkasses by the waye in the wyldernes, and byngeth them not into the lande of reſte. Why coude they not enter in? Becauſe of theyr vnbellefe. Hebrues .iii. For had they beleued, ſo had they bene vnder grace, and theyr old ſynnes had bene forgiven them, and power ſhuld haue ben geuen them to haue fulfilled the lawe thenceforth and they ſhuld haue bene kept from al temptacions that had bene to ſtronge for theym. For it is wyrtten. Johan. i. He gaue them power to be the ſonnes of God, thow beleuyng in hys name.

Nowe to be the ſonne of God is to loue God and hys commaundementes and to walke in hys waye after the enſample of hys ſonne Chriſte. But theſe people toke vpon them to worke without fayeth as thou ſeeſt in the .xiii. of thys booke, where they woulde fyght and alſo did without þ word of promiſe: euen whē they were warned that they ſhoulde not. And in the .
xvi. agayne they woulde pleaſe god wyth theyr hol? faythleſſe workes (for where Gods worde is not, ther can be no fayth) but the tyte of God conſumed theyr holy workes, as it dyd Nadab Abihu. Leui. x. And fro theſe vnbelleuers turne thyne eyes vnto the Phariſees whiche befoze the comynge of Chriſte in hys fleſhe had layed the fundacyon of freewyll after the ſame example. Whercon they buylte holye workes after theyr owne imaginacion without fayeth of the worde, ſo ſeruentlye that for the greate zeale of them they ſlew the king of al holye workes, and the Lorde of freewyll whych onely thowwe hys grace maketh the wyll free and lewſeth hir from bondage of ſyn, and geueth hir loue and luſtes vnto the lawes of god, and power to ful-fyll them. And ſo thowwe theyr holye workes done by the power of freewyll, they excluded them ſelues out of the holi reſt of forgivenes of ſins by faith in þ bloud of Chriſt.

And then loke on our hypocrytes whiche in lyke maner folowynge the doctryne of Apyſto-le and other Heathen paganes, haue agaynſte all the ſcripture ſet vp free wyll agayne, vnto whoſe power they aſcrybe the keepynge of the comaundementes of God. For they haue ſette vp wyllfull pouertye of another maner then anye is comaunded of God. And the chaſtite of maſtermyon vnterly deſpyed, they haue ſet vp an other wyllful chaſtite not required of God, whiche they ſwear, vow and profeſſe to gyue god,

The Prologe

whether he wil giue them or no, and compele al their dyſcyples therunto, ſaying that it is in the power of euery mans freewyll to obſerue it, contrary to Chriſte to his Apoſtle Paule.

And the obedience of God and manne excluded, they haue bowed another wilful obedience cōdemned of al the ſcripture whych they wil yet gyue God whether he wil or wil not.

And what is become of theyr wilful pouerty? hath it not robbed the whole worlde, & brought all vnder them? Can there be eyther kynge or Emperoure or of whatſoever degre it be, except he wyll holde of them and be ſwozne vnto them to bee theyr ſeruaunte, to go and come at theyr luſte, and to defende theyr quarrelles bee they faſſe or true? Theyr wyllfull pouertye hath alreadye eaten vpp the whole worlde and is yet ſtyl greadyar then euer it was, in ſo muche that ten worldes mo were not inough to ſatyſ-fye the hunger thereof.

Moreouer beſides dayly corruptyng of other mens wiues and open whozdom, vnto what ab-hominacions to fylthy to be ſpoken of hath their voluntary chaſtity brought them?

And as for theyr wilful obedience, what is it, but the diſobeyence and the deſaunce, both of al the lawes of god and man: in ſo much that if any prince begynne to execute anye lawe of man vpon them, they curſe hym vnto the bottome of hel, and proclayme hym no ryght kynge, and that his lordſ ought no lenger to obey hym, & interdyte hys commune people as they were Heren turkes or Sarazyns. And if any man prech the Gods law, him they make an heretike & burne him to aſhes. And in ſtede of Gods law & mans, they haue ſet vp one of theyr owne imaginaciō whiche they obſerue with diſpenſacions.

And yet in theſe workes they haue ſo greate confydence that they not onely truſte to be ſaued therby, and to be higher in heauen then they that be ſaued thowwe Chriſte: but alſo promiſe to al other forgyuenes of theyr ſyns thowwe the merytes of the ſame. Wherin they reſte and teach other to reſte alſo, excludynge the whole worlde from the reſt of forgivenes of ſynnes thowwe fayth in Chriſtes bloud.

And now ſeynge that fayeth onely letteth a man in vnto reſt, and vnbellefe excludeth hym, what is the cauſe of hys vnbellefe? verely no ſynne that the worlde ſeeth, but a pope holynes and a ryghtuouſnes of their owne imaginaciō as Paule ſaith. Roma. x. They be ignorant of the righteouſnes wherwith God iuſtifieth and haue ſet vp a rightuouſnes of their owne makig thowwe whiche they be diſobedient, vnto the righ-tuouſnes of god. And chriſt rebuketh not þ þ ha-riles for groſſe ſins whiche the worlde ſawe, but for thoſe holy dedes whiche ſo bleared the eyes of the worlde that they wer taken as gods: euen for long prayers, for faſting, for tithing ſo diligently that they leſt not ſo much as theyr herbes vntithed: for theyr cleannelle in waſhyng befoze meate and for waſhyng of cuppes dyſhes, and all maner veſſels, for buyldynge the þrophets, ſepulchres, and for keepynge the holy daye, & for turnynge the heathen vnto the fayeth, and for geyng of almes.

For vnto ſuche holy dedes they aſcribed righ-tuouſnes, & therfore when the ryghtuouſnes of god was preached vnto them, they could not but perſecute it, the deuyl was ſo ſtronge in theym whiche thynge Chriſte well diſcribeth Luke, xi, ſayinge that after the deuyl is caſte oute, he commeth agayne and fyndeth hys houſe ſwepte and made gay, and then taketh ſeven worſe the hym

hym selfe, and dwelleth therein, and so is the end of that man worse then the begynnynge. That is, when they be a lytle cleansed frome Grosse synnes whiche the worlde seeth and then made gaye in theyr owne syghte wth the ryghtuousnes of tradicions, then cometh seuen that is to saye the whole power of the Deuyll, for seuen wth the Hebrewes signifieth a multitude wthoute number and the extremitie of a thing, and is a speache borrowed (I suppose) oute of Leuiticus where is so ofte mention made of seuen. Where I woulde saye: I wyll punishe the that all the worlde shall take an example of the: there the Jewe woulde saye, I wyll circumcise the or baptise the seuen tymes. And so here by seuen is mente all the deuylles of hell and all the myght and power of the Deuil. For vnto what further blyndnes coulde all the deuyls in hell bynge them, to make them beleue that they wer iustified thowge theyr owne good workes. For when they once beleued that they wer purged from theyr synnes and made rightuous, howe theyr owne holpe workes, what rowme was there left for the ryghteousnesse that is in Chyistes bloude Meddynge? And therefore whē they be fallen into thys blyndenes they can not but hate and persecute the lyghte. And the more cleare and euidently theyr deedes be rebuked, the furiouser and malyciouser blynde are they vntyl they breake out into open blasphemy and synnyng agaynste the holpe Ghoste, whiche is the malycious persecutyng of the clear trouth so manifestly proued that they can not once hysse agaynste it. As the Pharises persecuted Chyist because he rebuked theyr holpe deedes. And when he proued hys Doctryne wth the scrpyures and miracles, yet thoughte they coulde not improue him nor reaso against him they thought that the scripture must haue some other mening because hys interpretacyon vndermynded theyr foundacyon and plucked by by the rotes the sectes whiche they had planted, and they ascribed also hys myracles to the deuyl. And in lyke maner though oure Hypocrites canne not deny but thys is the scripture, yet because there can be none other sence gathered thereof, but that ouerthroweth theyr buydynge, therefore they euer thynke that it hath some other meanynge then as the woordes sounde and that no manne vnderstandeth it or did vnderstand it sence the tyme of the Apostles.

Or if they thynke the same that wrote vpon it sence the Apostles vnderstoode it: they yet thinke that we in lyke maner as we vnderstand not the text it self, so we vnderstand not the meaning of the wordes of the doctoure.

For when thou layeste the iustifyinge of holpe woordes, and denysthe the iustifyinge of saythe, howe canste thou vnderstande Saynte Paule, Peter, Ihon, and the Actes of the Apostles or anye scripture at all, seyng the iustifyinge of saythe is almoothe all that they entend to proue.

Finally, concernyng bowes whereof thou readeste Chapter. xix. there maye be many questions, whereunto I answere shortlye, that we oughte to putte salte to al oure offerynges: that is, we ought to minister knowledge in all oure workes, and to do nothyng whereof we coulde not geue a reason of gods worde.

We be nowe in the daye lyghte, and al the secretes of God and all hys counsaile and wyl is opened vnto vs, and he that was promysed shoulde come and blesse vs, is come already and hath Medde hys bloude for vs, and hath blessed vs wth all manner blessinges and hath obtained all grace for vs, and in hym we haue al. Wherefore God henceforth wyll receyue no more sacrifice of beastes on vs, as thou readest. Hebr. x. If thou burne vnto God the bloude or fatte of beastes, to obtaine forgiveness of syns thereby, or that God shoulde the better heare thy requeste, then thou doest wrong vnto hys bloude of Chyist, and Chyist vnto the is deade in vayne. For in him God hath promysed not forgiveness of synnes onelye, but also what soeuer we aske to kepe vs from synne and temptacyon wthal. And what if thou burne frankensence vnto him what if thou burne a candle, what if thou burne thy chastyte or byrgymyte vnto hym for the same purpose, doest thou not lyke rebuke vnto Chyistes bloude?

Moreouer, if thou offer golde, syluer or anye other good for the same entent, is there any difference? And eue so, if thou go in pilgrimage or fastyst, or goest wolwarde, or spykelest thy selfe wth holpe water or els whatsoeuer dede it is, or obseruest what soeuer ceremonye it be, for lyke meanynge, then it is lyke abhomyntation. We muste therefore bynge the salte of the knowledge of Goddes worde wth all oure sacrifices, or else we shall make no swete sauour vnto God thereof. Thou wylte aske me, shall I bowe nothyng at all: yes, Goddes commaundemente whiche thou hast bowed in thy baptism. For what entente: verely for the loue of Chyiste whiche hath boughte the wth hys bloude, and made the sonne and heyre of God wth hym, that thou shouldest wagt on his wyl and commaundementes and purify thy members accordyng to the same doctrine that hath purged thyne hearte, for if the knoweledge of gods worde haue not purified thyne hearte so that thou consenteste vnto the lawe of God that it is rightuous, and good, and loweste, that thy members moue the vnto the contrary, so hast thou no parte wth Chyist.

For if thou repente not of thy synne, so it is impossible that thou shouldest beleue that Chyist had deliuered the from the daunger thereof. If thou beleue not that Chyist hath delyuered the, so is it impossible that thou shouldest loue gods commaundementes.

If thou loue not the commaundementes, so is Chyistes Spyrte not in the, whiche is the eareneste of forgiveness of synne and of Saluacion.

For scripture teacheth, fyrste repentaunce then saythe in Chyiste, that for hys sake synne is forgiven to them that repente: then good workes, whiche are nothyng save the commaundemente of God onelye. And the commaundementes are nothyng elsse save the healyng of oure neyghbours at theyr neade and the taming of oure members that they myght be pure all as the hearte is pure thowge hate of vice and loue of vertue, as Goddes worde teacheth vs, whiche workes muste procede oute of sayth: that is I must do them for the loue whiche I haue too God for that greute mercye whiche he hath shewed me in Chyiste, or else I doo them not in the syght of God. And that I saynt not in the pain of the slepyng of the synne that is in my fleshe, myne healepe is the promyse of the assistance of the power of God, and the comfozte of the rewarde too come whiche rewarde I ascribe vnto the goodnesse, mercye, and truthe of the promysor that hath chose me, called me, taught me and geuen me the earnest thereof, and not vnto the merites of my doynges or sufferynge. For all that I do and suffer it but the way to the reward, and not the deservynge thereof. As if the kynges grace shoulde promysse me to defend me at home in myne owne realm: yet the waye thither is thowwe the sea, wherein I myghte happily suffer no litle trouble. And yet for al that, if I myghte lyue in reste when I come thither, I woulde thynke and so woulde other saye, that my paynes were well rewarded, whiche reward and benefite I woulde not proude ascribe vnto the merites of my paynes, taking by the way, but vnto the goodnes, mercifulnesse, and constant truthe of the kynges grace whose gyfte it is, and to whome the prayse, and thanke thereof belongeth of dutye and ryghte. So nowe a reward is a gyfte geuen frelye of the goodnes of the geuer, and not of the deservynge of the receyuer. Thus it appeareth, that if I vow what soeuer it be, for anye other purpose then to tame my members and to be an ensample of vertue & edyfyng vnto mine neighbour, my sacryfice is vnsauere and cleane wythoute salte, and my Lampe wythoute oyle, and I one of the folyshe byrgens, and shal be shutt oute from the feaste of the bydegrome when I thynke my selfe mooste sure to entre in.

The Prologe

If I vowe voluntarie povertie, this muste be my purpose, that I wyll be contente wyth a competent lyuynge whiche cometh vnto me eyther by succession of myne elders or whiche I gette truelye wyth my labour in mynistryng and doyng seruice vnto the commune wealthe in one offyce or in an other, or in one occupacyon or other, because that riches and honour shal not corrupte my mynde and drawe myne harte from God, and to geue an ensample of vertue & edyfyng to other, and that my neighbour may haue a lyving by me as wel as if I make a cloke of dissimulation of my vow, laying a net of synne and beggerie to catch a superfluouse abundance of ryches and hye degrees, and authoritye, and thowwe the estimation of false holynesse to feede and mayntayne my flouthfull idleness wyth the sweate, labour, landes, and rentes of other men (after the ensample of oure spiritualtye) robbing them of theyr saythe, and God of his honoure tournynge vnto myne hypocrisie that confydence whiche shoulde be geuen vnto the promyses of God onlye, am I not a wylye foxe, and rauenynge wolfe in a lambe skynne, and a painted sepulchre, saye wythoute and fylthy wythin? In lyke manner though I seke no wordly promotion thereby, yet if I do it to be iustified therewith & to get an hyer place in heauen, thynkyng that I do of myne owne natural strengthe and of the naturall power of my freewill and that euery man hathe myghte euen so to doo and that they doo it not is theyre faulte and negligence and so with the proud pharisee in comparison of my self, despyse the synful publicans: what other thyng doo I, then eate the bloude and fat of my sacryfice deuourynge that my selfe whiche shoulde be offered vnto God alone and his Christe. And shoulde whatsoeuer a man doeth of his natural gyftes or of his natural wit, wisdom, vnderstanding, reason, wyl, & good entent before he be otherwise & cleane contrary taught of gode spirit, and haue receiued other wytt, vnderstandynge, reason, and wyl, his selfe, worldly, and wrought in abominable byndenes, wyth whiche a man can but seke him self, his own profit, glory, and honour, euen in very spiritual matters. As if I were a lone in a wyldernesse wher no man were to seke profits or prayse of, yet if I woulde seke heauen of God there, I coulde of mine owne natural gyftes seeke it none other wayes then for the merites and deservynge of my good works and to enter therein by an other waye then by the doore Christe, whiche were verie theste, for Christe is Lord ouer al, and whatsoeuer any man wyll haue of God, he muste haue it geuen him frelye for Christes sake.

Nowe too haue heauen for myne owne deservynge, is myne owne prayse, and not Christes. For I canne not haue it by fauoure and grace in Christe and by myne owne merites also: for fre geuynge and deservynge, canne not stande together.

If thou wilt bow of thy goodes vnto God, thou must put salte vnto this sacryfice: that is, thou must minister knowedge in this deede as Peter teacheth. i. i. Thou must put oyle of Gods word in thy lampe, and do it according to the knowedge, if thou wayte for the coming of the bydegrome too enter in wyth hym into his reste. Thou wylte hange it aboute the Image to moue men to deuocyon. Deuocyon is a seruente loue vnto Goddes commaundementes and a desyre to be wyth God, and with his euerlastynge promises. Now shall the syght of such ryches as are shewed at saynte Thomas myne or at Walsingham moue a man to loue the commaundementes of God better, and to desyre to be losed frome his flesh and to be wyth God, or shall it not rather make his poze herte syghe because he hath no luche at home and too wythe parte of it in an other place.

The priest shall haue it in Gods steade.

Shall the priest haue it? If the priest be bought wyth Christes bloude, then he is Christes seruant, and not his own, and oughte therefore to fede Christes flocke with Christes doctrine, & to minister Christes sacraments vnto them purclise for very loue, & not for fylthy luccres sake, or too be Lord ouer the as Peter teacheth. i. i. Paul. act. x. Besides this Christe is oures & is a gyfte geuen vs, and wee be heyres of Christ, & of al that is Christes. Wherefore the priests doctrine is oures, & we heyres of it, it is the foode of oure soules. Therefore if he minister it not truly and frelye vnto vs wythoute sellynge, he is a thiefe and a soule murderer, and euen so is he if he take vpon him to feede vs & haue not wherewith. And for a lyke conclusion because we also wyth all that we haue be Christes, therefore is the priestes heyre wyth vs also, of all that we haue receiued of God, wherefore in as mouche as the priestes wayteth on the woorde of God, and is oure seruante therein, therefore of right we are detters and owe too hym a sufficiente lyuynge of oure goodes, and euen therto a wise of oure Doughter owe wee vnto hym if he requyre hyr. And nowe when we haue appoynted hym a sufficiente lyuynge, whether in thythes, rentes in perchy wages, he ought too be content to requyre no more, nor yet to receyue any more, but to be an example of sobernes & of despying worldly things to pensple of his parishioners.

Wylt thou bowe to offer vnto the poore people that is pleasaunte in the syghte of God, for they be left here to do oure almes vpon in Christes steed, & they be the righte heyres of all oure abundance and ouerplus. Moreover we muste haue a schole to teach Gods woode in (though it neded not to be so costly) and therefore it is lawfull to bowe vnto the buyldynge or mayntenance therof, & vnto helpynge of all good works. And we oughte to bowe too paye custome, tolle, rent & al manner of duties and whatsoeuer

We owe: for that is Gods commaundement.

If thou wilt vowe pylgrymage, thou muste put salte therto in like maner if it shal be accep- ted, if thou vowe to go and visite the poze or to heare Gods worde or whatsoeuer edifyeth thy soule vnto loue & good worke after knowledge, or whatsoeuer God commaundeth, it is wel done and a Sacryfice that sauoureth well: ye will happelye saye, that ye will goo to thys or that place bicause God hath chesen one place moze then another, and will heare poure petycon moze in one place then in another. As for poure prayer it muste be accordyng to Gods worde.

Ye maye not despye God to take vengeance on hym whom Gods worde teacheth you to pi- ty and to pray for. And as for that other glose that god will heare you moze in one place then in an other. I suppose it, Sal infatuum, salt vnsaucry, for if it were wysedome howe coulde we excuse the death of Steuen, Acte. vii. whiche dyed for the Artyle that God dwelleth not in temples made wth handes. We that beleue in god are the temple of god saith Paule, if a man loue God & kepe his worde he is the temple of God & hath presently dwellinge in hym, as wit- neth Christ. John. xiiii. sayinge: If a manne loue me he will kepe my word, & then my father will loue hym and we will come vnto hym and dwell with hym. And in the. xv. he sayeth: if ye a- bid in me and my wordes also abide in you, the- re what ye wil & ye shal haue it.

If thou beleue in Christ & hast the promyses whiche God hath made the in thyn herte, then go on pylgrymage vnto thyn owne herte and there pray, and God will heare the for his mer- cye and trouthes sake, and for hys lone, Chyilles sake, and not for a fewe stones, lakes. What careth God for the temple? The very beastes in that they haue lyfe in them be muche better, the- an heape of stones couched together.

To speake of chastite, it is a gyfte not geuen vnto al personnes, testyfyeth boeth Christe and also hys Apostle Paule, wherefore all persons may not vowe it. Moreouer ther be causes wher- fore manye persons may better liue chast at one tyme the at an other. Manye maye liue chaste at twety & thyrty for certayne cold diseases folow- inge theym, whiche at. xl. when they health is come, can not do so. Manye be occupied wth wyld phantasies in theyr youth, that they care not for marriage, which same when they be wax- en sad shal be greatly desierous, it is a daunge- rus thing to make synne where none is, and to forswear the benefyte of god and to bynde thy selfe vnder payne of damnacyon of thy soule. If thou wouldeste not vse the remedye that God hath created if nede requyred.

In other thynge is thys, beware that thou get the not a false sayned chastyte made wth the vngodly petycon of saynte Hierom or of Quide in hys fylthy boke of the remedye a- gainst loue, least when thou seestuche imagina- tions haste vnto thy despyed, defied, and abhor- red all woman kynde, thou come into suche case thou shalt see the scarce wyath of God, that thou calste neyther liue chast, nor fynd in thy herte to mary, & so to be compelled to fal into the abhomyne- on of the pope against nature and kynd.

Moreouer God is a wise father, & knoweth all the infymities of hys chyldren, and also mee- cyfull, and therfore hath created a remedy wth- out synne and geuen thereto hys fauoure and blessinge. Let vs not be wiser then God wth- out imagination, nor tempt hym, for as godly thastite is not euery mans gyfte: eue so he that hath, it to day hath not power to continue in it at hys owne pleasure, neyther hath God promy- sed to gyue it hym still & to cure hys infymy- ties wthoute hys naturall remedye, no moze then he hath promysed to sticke hys hong:er w- out meate, or thirst wthoute drynke.

Wherfore other let al thynge bide fre and as God hath created them, and nother vowe that whiche God required not, nor forswear that whiche God permitted the wth hys fauoure and blessinge also: or els if thou wilt neades vowe, then vowe Godly & vnder a condicio, that thou wilt continue that, so long as God geareth the that gyfte, and as longe as neyther thynne owne necessitye, neyther charyte toward the- neyghboure, nor the authoryte of them vnder whole power thou art due vnto the contrary.

The purpose of thy vowe muste be fasted al- so wth the wisdom of God. Thou mayste not vowe to be iustfyed thereby or to make saynt- faction for thy synnes or to wyne heauen nor an hyer place: for then didest thou wenge vnto the bloude of Christ & thy vowe were playne Idolatry & abhominable in the syghte of God.

Thy vowe must be only to the furtherance of ille comaundementes of god, whiche as I haue sayd nothing but the taming of thy members & the se- tyng of thy neyghboure: that is if thou thinke thy backe to weake for thy burthe of wedlocke, that thou canst not rule thy wyfe, chyldren seruants, & make prouysyon for them godly & wthout ouermuche busynge and vniquietynge thy selfe, and drownyng thy selfe in worldely busynesse vniquietly or that thou canst serue thy neygh- boure in some office better beyng chaste then maried. And then thy vowe is good and lawe- full. And euen so must thou vowe abstinence of meates and drynkes so far forth as it is profy- table vnto thy neyghbours and vnto taminge of thy selfe: But thou mayste vowe ney- ther of theym vnto the styng of thy bodye. As Paule commaundeth Timothe to drynke wine, and no moze water bycause of hys dyscales.

Thou wilt say that Timothe had not happe- lye forsworne wyne. I thynke the same and so the Apostles forswore not wedlocke (though manye of them lyued chaste) nother yet anye meate or drynke, though they abstayned from them, and that it were good for vs to folowe their ensample. Howe be it though I vowe and swere, and thinke on none excepcon, yet is the by- kyng of Gods comaundementes except, and al chaunces that hang of God. As if I swere to be in a certayne place, at a certayne houre to make a loue dape wthoute excepcon, yet if the- kynge in the meane tyme commaunde me an- other waye, I muste go by Gods commaunde- ment, and yet breake not mine oth. And in lyke case yf my father and mother be syche and re- quyre my presence, or if my wyfe, chyldrene or housholde be dyspyed that my assystance be re- quyred, or if my neyghbours house be a fyre at the same houre and a thousande suche chaun- ces: in whiche all I breake myne oth and am not forsworne and so forth. Read Gods word diligently & with a good herte and it shal teach y al thynge.

The fourth booke of Moyses called Numeri.

The fyrste Chapter.

¶ All that are apte for battell are numbred.
The tribe of Leuie is appoynted to minister to the tabernacle.

And the Lorde spake vnto Moyses in the wilderness of Sinai, in the tabernacle of witness, the first day of the second moneth and in the second yere after they were come out of the lande of Egypte, sayinge: * Take the summe of the hole multitude of the childre of Israell, in theyr kyndreds and howsholds of theyr fathers, and nūbre them by name all that are males, polle by polle, from .xx. yere and aboue: euen all that are hable to go forth to war in Israell, thou and Aaron shal numbre them in theyr armys, and with you shalbe of every trybe a headman in the house of hys father.

Exod. xxx. b.
Nu. xxi. a

And these are the names of the men that shal stande wpth you, of Ruben, Elizur the sonne of Sedeur, of Simeon, Selumiel the sonne of Suri Sadai, of the trybe of Iuda, Nahasson the sonne of Aminadab, of Issachar, Nathanael the sonne of Zuar, of Zabulon, Eliab the sonne of Helon.

Among the chyldren of Ioseph of Ephraim, Elisama the sonne of Amihud, of Manasse, Gamaliel the sonne of Phadazur of Beniamin, Abidan the son of Bedeoni, of Dan, Ahiezer the sonne of Ammi Sadai of Aser, * Dagiel the son of Ocran, of Gad, Elisaph the sonne of Deguell, of Rephthali, Ahira the sonne of Enan.

Of Ioseph

¶ These were the countaylers of the congregacion, & Lordes in the tribes of theyr fathers and captaynes ouer thousandes in Israell. And Moyses and Aaron tooke these men aboue named and gathered al the congregacion together, the fyrste daye of the seconde moneth, and reckened them after theyr byrthe and kyndredes and houses of theyr fathers by name from twenty yere & aboue, hed by hed, as the Lorde commaunded Moyses: euen so he numbred them in the wilderness of Sinai.

Of Ruben.

And the chyldren of Ruben Israels eldest sonne in theyr generacions, kyndreds and houses of theyr fathers, when they were numbred every man by name, al that were males from .xx. yere and aboue, as many as were hable to go forth in warre, were numbred in the tribe of Ruben .xlvi. thousande and .v. hundred.

Of Simeon

Amonge the chyldren of Simeon: theyr generation in theyr kyndreds and houses of theyr fathers (when euery mannes name was tolde) of all the males from .xx. yeres & aboue as many as were mete for the warres

The .i. Chapter:

were numbred in the tribe of Simeon .lix. thousande and three hundred.

Amonge the chyldren of Gad: theyr generation in theyr kyndredes and howsholds of theyr fathers, when they were tolde by name from twenty yere and aboue, all that were mete for the war: were numbred in the trybe of Gad .xlvi. thousande, fyve hundred, and fyfthe.

Amonge the chyldrene of Iuda: theyr generation in theyr kyndreds and houses of theyr fathers (by numbre of names) from .xx. yere and aboue, al that werhable to war were tolde in the tribe of Iuda .lxxiii. M. and fyve hundred.

Amonge the chyldren of Issachar, theyr generation in theyr kyndreds and houses of theyr fathers (when theyr names were accounted) from twenty yere and aboue, whatsoeuer was apte for warre, were numbred in the Trybe of Issachar .lxxi. M. and foure hundred.

Among the chyldren of Zabulon: their generation in theyr kyndreds & houses of their fathers (after the nūbre of names) .xx. yere & aboue, whosoever was mete for the warre were counted in the tribe of Zabulon .lxxi. M. and .iiii. hundred.

Amonge the chyldren of Ioseph: fyfthe amonge the chyldren of Ephraim: their generation in their kyndreds and houses of their fathers (when the names of all that were conueniente to the warre were told) from twenty yeres and aboue: were in number in the tribe of Ephraim fourtye thousand and sixe hundred.

Among the chyldren of Manasse: their generation, in their kyndreds & houses of their fathers (when the names of all that were fyfthe to warre were tolde from twenty and aboue were numbred in the trybe of Manasse xxxii. M. and two. C.

Among the chyldren of Beniamin their generation, in their kyndredes and houses of theyr fathers (by the tales of names) from twenty yere and aboue of al that were mete for warre, were numbred in the tribe of Beniamin fyue and thyrtye thousande and foure hundred.

Among the chyldre of Dan: theyr generation in their kyndreds and houses of their fathers in the summe of names) of al that was apte to warre from .xx. yere and aboue, were numbred in the tribe of Dan .lxiii. thousand and .vii. hundred.

Among the chyldren of Aser, theyr generation in theyr kyndreds and houses of their fathers (when they were summed by name from twenty yeres aboue, all that were apte too warre were numbred in the Tribe of Aser one and fourtye thousande, and fyve hundred.

Among the chyldren of Rephthali: theyr generation, in theyr kyndredes and houses of theyr fathers (when theyr names were tolde) from .xx. yeres and aboue, whatsoeuer was mete to warre: were numbred in the the tribe of Rephthali .iii. and fyfthe. ¶ and foure hundred.

These are the numbers whiche Moyses and Aaron numbred with the twelue princes of Israel: of eueri house of their fathers a manne. And all the numbers of the chyldren of Israel, in þ houses of theyr fathers frome twentye yere and aboue, what so euer was mete for the warre in Israel, drew vnto the summe of .vi. C. and .iii. thousand fyue hundred and fyfthe. But the Leuites in the tribe of theyr fathers, were not numbred amonge them.

And the Lorde spake vnto Moyses saying: onlpe se thou numbre not the trybe of Leui, ne take the summe of thepm amonge the chyldren of Israel. But thou shalt appointe the Leuites vnto the habytacpon of wptnes, and to al the garnysment therof, and vnto all that longeth thereto. For they shall beare the tabernacle, and all the ordinaunce therof, and they shall minister it and shall pitch theyr tentes round about it. And when the tabernacle goeth forth, the Leuites shall take it downe: and when the tabernacle is ppyched, they shall sette it vp: for if any straunger come nere, he shall dye. And the chyldrene of Israel shall ppyche theyr tentes euerpe man in his owne compagne, and euerpe man by hys owne standerd thowow out all theyr hostes. But þ Leuites shall pitch round aboute the habytacpon of witnes, that ther fal no wrath vpon the congregacion of the children of Israel and the Leuites shall wapte vpon the habytacion of wptnes. And the chyldren of Israel did accordynge too all that the Lorde commaunded Moyses.

The seconde Chapter.

The order of the ppychynge of the tentes round about the tabernacle of wptnes. The heades and chiefe Lordes of the kindredes of Israel are namyd.

And the Lord spake vnto Moyses and Aaron, saying: The children of Israel shall ppyche euerpe man by his owne standerd, with the armes of his fathers houses, away from the presence of the tabernacle of wptnesse.

On the east side toward the rysing of the sunne, shall they of the standerd of the host of Iuda pitch with their armies. And Rasseion the sonne of Aminadab shall be captayne ouer the sonnes of Iuda. And hys host and the numbre of them thre score and fourtene thousand, and fyue hundred. And nexte vnto hym, shall the trybe of Izacher ppyche, and Rathanael the son of zuer, captayne ouer the children of Izachar, his host and the number of them .liiii. thousande and foure hundred.

And then þ tribe of zabulon: with Eliab the son of Belon, captayne ouer the chyldren of zabulon, and his hoste in the numbre of them .lvi. thousand, and four hundred. So that al they that pertayne vnto the hoste of Iuda, ar an hundred thousand .lxxvi. thousande and foure hundred in theyr compaignes: and these shall goo in the forefront, when they iourne.

And on the south syde, the standerd of þ host of Ruben shall lye wpth theyr compaignes, and the captayne ouer the sonnes of Ruben, Elizur the son of Sedeur, and his host and the number of them .xvi. thousand, and fyue hundred.

And fast by him shall the tribe of Simeon pitch, and the captayne ouer the sonnes of Simeon, Salumiell the son of zuri Sadai and his hoste, and the number of thepm .lix. thousand, and thre hundred. And þ tribe of Gad also. And the captayne ouer the sonnes of Gad, Eliazaph the sonne of Deguell and his hoste, and the numbre of them .xlv. thousande, fyue hundred, and fyfthe. So that all the number that appertayne vnto host of Ruben, are an hundred and .li. thousand, four hundred and fyfthe, wpth theyr compaignes, and they shall be the seconde in the iourne.

And the tabernacle of witnes with þ host of the Leuites, shall go in the middes of the host, as they lye in theyr tentes, euē so shall they procede in the iourney: euerpe mā in his quarter aboute the standerdes.

On the west syde, the standerd & the hoste of Ephraim shall lye with their compaignes. And the captayne ouer the sonnes of Ephraim, Elisama the sonne of Amihud: and his host, and the numbre of them .xl. thousand and fyue hundred.

And fast by hym the tribe of Manasse, and the captayne ouer the sonnes of Manasse, Gamaleell the sonne of Beda zur and his host, and the numbre of them wer .xxii. thousande and two hundred. And the tribe of Ben Jamin also, and the Captayne ouer the sonnes of Ben Jamin, Abydan the sonne of Sedioni, and his hoste, and the uoumber of them .xxv. thousande, and foure. C. All the number that belonged vnto the host of Ephraim, were an hundred thousand, eyght thousand and an hundred in theyr hostes: and they shall be the thyrde in the iourne.

And the standerd and the hoste of Dan shall lye on the North syde wpth theyr compaignes: and the Captayne ouer the chyldren of Dan, Ahiezer the sonne of Ammi Sarai: and his hoste, and the number of them thre score and two thousande and seven hundred. And fast by hym shall the tribe of Aser ppyche: and the Captayne ouer the sonnes of Aser, Basiell the sonne of Ocran: and hys hoste, and the number of them .xli. thousande and fyue. C.

And the tribe of Rephthali also, and the Captayne ouer the children of Rephthali: Ahira the sonne of Enan, and hys hoste, and the numbre of them .liii. thousand and foure hundred. So that the hole number of al that pertained vnto the hoste of Dan, was an hundred .lvi. thousande and fyue hundred. And they shall be the last in that iourney.

The Armye Numery.

ioyned wpth thep standerdes.

These are the summes of the children of Israel in the houses of thep fathers: euen al the numbres of the hoostes wpth thep companies fyre hundred thousande, three thousande fyre hundred and fyftye. And yet the Leuytes were not numbred among the chyldrene of Israel as the Lorde commaunded Moyses. And the chyldren of Israel dyd accordynge too all that the Lorde commaunded Moyses, and pytched wpth thep standerdes, and they iourneyed eue ry man in hys kynred, and in the household of his father.

The.iii. Chapter.

The leuites are not numbred to go to batel, but to minister to the holpe place of sanctuary. They must also pitch thep tents next to the habitation.

These are the generacions of Aaron & Moyses, when the Lorde spake vnto Moyses in mounte Sinai. And these are the names of the sonnes of Aaron: Nadab the eldest sonne, and Abihu, Eleazer and Ithamar. These are the names of the sonnes of Aaron, whiche were priestes annoynted and thep hands filled to minister: but Nadab and Abihu died before the Lorde, as they brought straunge fyre before the Lorde in the wyldernesse of Sinai, and had no chyldren. And Eleazer and Ithamar ministered in the sight of Aaron thep father.

* Leuiti. x. a
Nu. xxi. 9

And the Lorde spake vnto Moyses, sayinge: brynge the tribe of Leui, and set them before Aaron the priest, and let them serue hym and wayte vpon him, and vpon al the multitude before the tabernacle of witnes to do the seruice of the habitaciō. And they shal wayte vpon al the garnymēte of the tabernacle of wptnesse, and vpon the chyldren of Israel, to do the seruice of the habytacpon. And thou shalte gyue the Leuytes vnto Aaron and hys Sonnes, for they are geuen vnto hym of the chyldrene of Israel. And thou shalte appoynte Aaron and hys sonnes to wayte on thep priestes office: and the straunger that commeth nye shal dye for it.

And the Lorde spake vnto Moyses, sayinge: Beholde * I haue taken Leuits of the chyldren of Israel for al the first borne that openeth the matrice among the chyldren of Israel, so that the * Leuytes shalbe myne: because all the first borne are mine: for the same daye that I smote all the first borne in the Lande of Egypte, I halowed vnto me al the first borne in Israel, bothe man and beaste: and mine they shal be: for I am the Lorde.

Leuiti. xxi. a Exod. xiii. a
Num. viii. c

And the Lorde spake vnto Moyses in the wilderness of Sinai, sayinge: Number the chyldren of Leui in the houses of thep fathers and kinreds, all that are males from a moneth olde and aboue. And Moyses numbred them at the worde of the Lorde, as he was commaunded. And these are the names of the chyldren of Leui, Gerson, Cahath,

The.iii. Chapter.

and Merari. And these are the names of the chyldren of Gerson in thep kinreds: Libna and Semei. And the Sonnes of Cahath in thep kinredes were: Amram, Jezehar, Hebron and Oziel. And the sonnes of Merari in thep kynreds were: Maheli and Mushi. These are the kynredes of Leui in the houses of thep fathers.

And of Gerson came the kynrede of the Libnites and the Gersonites, which are the kinreds of the Semeites. And the summe of them (when all the males were tolde) from a moneth olde and aboue were seven thousand and fyre. C. And the kynredes of the Gersonites pytched behynde the habytacion westwarde. And the captain of the most auncient house among the Gersonites, was Eliafaph the sonne of Lael.

And the offyce of the chyldren of Gerson in the tabernacle of wptnesse was to keepe the habytacpon, and the tente wpth the couerynge thereof, and the hangynge of the doze of the tabernacle of wptnes, and the hanginges of the courte, & the curtayne of the doze of the courte: which court wente, rounde about the dwelling, and the aulter, and cordes that perteyned vnto all the seruice therof.

And of Cahath came the kynred of the Amramytes and the kynred of the Jezeharytes and of the Hebronites, and of the Ozielites. And these are the kynredes of the Cahathites. And numbze of all the males from a moneth olde and aboue, was eight thousand and fyre hundred: whych wayted on the holpe place.

And kynred of the chyldren of Cahath pytched on the southsyde of the dwelling. And the captayn in the most auncient house of the kynreds of Cahathytes, was Eliafaph the son of Oziel, and thep office was to kepe the arcke, the table, & candlesticke, & the aulter, and the holpe vessels to mynyster wpth, and the vayne wpth all that serued thereto, and Eleazar the sonne of Aaron the priest, was Captayne ouer all the Captaynes of the Leuytes, and hadde the ouersyghte of them that wayted vpon the holpe thynge.

And of Merari came the kinreds of the Mahalites, and of the Mushites: and these are the kinreds of the Merarites. And the numbze of them (when al the males from a moneth old and aboue was tolde) drew vnto fyre thousand, and two hundred. And the captayn of the most auncient house among the kinreds of the Merarites, was Zuriel the son of Abihail whych pitched on the north syde of the dwelling.

And the office of the sonnes of Merari was to kepe the bordes of the dwelling, and the barres, pylers with the socketes therof, and al the instruments thereof, and al that serued thereto: and the pilers of the court rounde aboute, and thep sockettes wpth thep pylnes and cordes. But on the forefront of the habitacion, & before the tabernacle of of wytnesse eastwarde, shal Moyses & Aarō & hys sons pitch, & wayte on the sanctuary in stede of the chyldren of Israell. And the straunger that cometh nye, shal dye for it. And the hole sum of the Levites which Moyses & Aaron numbred, at the comaundmēte of the Lord thowwe out theyr kyndreds, & uē of al the males of a monethold & aboue was. xxi. thousand.

And the Lord said vnto Moyses: Numbze al the first borne that are males among the chyldren of Israell, from a monethold and aboue, and take the nūber of their names. And thou shalt appoynt the Levites to me the Lord, for al the first borne amonge the chyldren of Israell, and the cattel of the Levites for the firstborne of the chyldre of Israell. And Moyses numbred as the Lord commaunded him al the fyrst borne of the chyldren of Israell. And al the firstborne males in the summe of names, from a monethold and aboue, were numbred two and twenty thousand, two hundred, and thye scoze and thyrtyene.

And the Lord spake vnto Moyses, saying: Take the Leuytes for all the fyrste borne of the chyldren of Israell, and the cattel of the Levites for theyr catell: and the Levites shal be myne whych am the Lord. And for the redempcyng of the two hundred and thye scoze and thyrtyene, whych are mo then the Levites in the firstborne of the chyldren of Israell, take. v. sicles of euerp piece after the sicle of the holpe place, twentp geras the sicle. And giue the money wherw the od numbze of them is redemed, vnto Aaron and his sonnes.

* Ex. xxx. b.
Le. xxvii. d.
Ezer. xl. d.

And Moyses toke the redempcion money of the ouer plus that were mo then the Levites, among the fyrste borne of the chyldren of Israell, and it came to a thousande, thye hundred, and thye scoze and fiue sycles, of the holp sicle. And he gaue that redempcion money vnto Aaron and his sonnes at the word of the Lord, lyke as the Lord comaunded Moyses.

The. iiii. Chapter.

The offyce of the Levites, euerp one after the stocke that he came of.

And the Lord spake vnto Moyses and Aaron, & bad theym take the sum of the chyldren of Cahath fourth of the sones of Levi in theyr kyndreds & houses of theyr fathers from thyrtye yere and aboue vntyll fyftye all that were hable to warre to do the worke in the tabernacle of wytnes. This shal be the offyce of the chyldren of Cahath in the tabernacle of wytnes whych is most holy. And when the host remoueth, Aaron and his sonnes shal come and take down the bayle, and couer the arke of wytnes therewith, & shal put thereon a couering of tarus skynnes, and shal spred a cloth that is al togyther of Jacincte aboue all, and put the staves therof in. And vpon the shewe table they shal spred a brode a cloth of Jacincte and put thereon the dishes, spones, flat pie ces, and pottes to poure wyth, & the dayly bread shal be thereon: & they shal spred vpon the a couering of purple, and couer the same with a couering of tarus skynnes, and put the staves therof in.

And they shal take a cloth of Jacincte and couer the candelstapke of lyghte, and her lampes and her snuffers, and fyre pans, & al her oyle vessels which they occupy about it, and shal put vpon her and on al her instrumentes, a couering of tarus skynnes, & put it vpon staves. And vpon the golden aulter they shal spred a cloth of Jacinct, and put on her staves.

And they shal take all the thynges which they occuppe to minister wyth in the holpe place, & put a cloth of Jacinct vpon them & couer the wyth a coueryng of tarus skins, and put the on staves. And they shal take away the ashes out of the aulter, and spred a scarlet cloth thereon: and put about it, the fyre pannes, the fleshe hooks, the shouels, the blasens, & all that belongeth vnto the aulter, & they shal spred vpon it a couering of tarus skynnes, & put on the staves of it. And when Aaron and his sonnes haue made an ende of coueryng the sanctuary & al the thynges of the sanctuary, against that the host remoue, then the sons of Cahath shal come in to beare, and so let them not touch the sanctuary lest they die. And this is the charge of the sons of Cahath in the tabernacle of wytnes. And Eleazar the sonne of Aarō the priest, shal haue the charge to prepare oyle for the lights and swete sence, and the dayly meat offering and the amonting oyle, and the ouer syght of al the dwelling and of al that therin is, both ouer the sanctuary and of all that pertayneth thereto.

And the Lord spake to Moyses and Aarō, saying: destroy not the trybe of the the kyndreds of the Cahathites, frome a monge the Levites. But thus do vnto them that they maye lyue and not die, when they go vnto the most holy place. Aaron and hys sonnes shal go in and put them euerp man vnto his serupce and vnto hys burthen. But let them not go in, to se when they couer the sanctuary, lest they dye.

And the Lord spake to Moyses, saying: Take the sum of the chyldren of Berson, in the houses of theyr fathers and in theyr kynderreds: from thyrtye yere and aboue, til fiftie al that are able to go forth in war to do serupce in the tabernacle of wytnes. And this is the seruike of the kyndred of the Bersonites to serue and to beare. They shal beare the curtaynes of the tabernacle, & the roofe of the tabernacle of wytnes and hys couering, & the coueryng of tarus skynnes that is on high aboue vpon it, & the hanging of the dore of the tabernacle of wytnes & the hanginge of the court, & the hanging of the gate of the court that is rounde about the dwelling, and the aulter, and the cordes of them, and al the instrumentes that serue vnto theym, and all that is made for them

And at the mouth of Aarō and his sonnes, shall all the service of the chyldren of the Berfonites be done, in all their charges, & in all their scrupce, and ye shall appoynte them vnto all their charges, that they shall wayte vpon. And this is the scrupce of the kynred of the chyldren of the Berfonites in the tabernacle of witnes, and they shall be vnder the hand of Jthamar the sonne of Aaron the prieste.

And thou shalt numbre the sonnes of Merari in theyr kyndes, and in the houses of their fathers, from thyrty yeres & aboue vnto fiftie: euen all that is able to go forth in warre, to do the scrupce of the tabernacle of wptnesse.

D And this is the charge that they muste wayte vpon in al that they must serue in the tabernacle of wptnesse: The bordes of the tabernacle, and the barres, pylers and sockettes therof, and the pylers of the courte roundabout, and their sockettes, pinnes, and cordes, with all that pertapneth and serueth vnto them.

And by name ye shall reckon the thyngs that they must waite vpon to beare. This is the scrupce of the kynreds of the sonnes of Merari in all their service in the tabernacle of witnes vnder the hande of Jthamar the sonne of Aaron the priest.

And Moses and Aaron, and the prynces of the myltitude numbred the sons of the Cahathites in their kyndes and houses of theyr fathers, from thyrty yeres and aboue vnto fiftie, all that were able to go forth in the hoste, and to do service in the tabernacle of wptnes. And the numbre of the in their kyndes, were two thousande, seven hundred, and fiftie. These are the numbres of the kynreds of the Cahathites, of all that did service in the tabernacle of witnesse, which Moses and Aarō did numbre at the commaundement of the lorde by the hande of Moses.

And the sonnes of Berfon were numbred in their kyndes, and in the houses of their fathers, from thyrty yere vnto fiftie, al that were able to go forth in the hoste to do service in the tabernacle of wptnesse. And the numbre of them in their kyndes, & in the houses of their fathers, was two thousande, sixe hundred, and thyrtye. This is the numbre of the kynreds of the sonnes of Berfon, of all that dōd scrupce in the tabernacle of witnes, which Moses and Aaron dōd numbre at the commaundement of the lorde.

And the kynreds of the sonnes of Merari were numbred in their kyndes, and in the houses of their fathers, frō thyrty yere vnto fiftie, all that were able to go forth with the hoste, to do scrupce in the tabernacle of witnes. And the numbre of them was in their kyndes thre thousande and two. This is the nūbre of the kyndes of the sons of Merari, which Moses & Aarō numbred at the cōmaundement of the lord, by the hand of Moses.

The hole summe whiche Moses, Aaron & the lordes of Israell numbred amonge the Levites in their kyndes & houtholdes of their fathers, from xxx. yere vnto fiftie, euerpe man to do his office and service, & to beare his burthen in the tabernacle of witnes, was eight thousand, fiue hundred and foure scoze, which they numbred at the cōmaundement of the lord by the hand of Moses, euerpe man vnto his service and burthen: as the lord commaunded Moses.

The. v. Chapter.

Who they be that ought to be cast out of the host. The knowledgyng of syn. The clesynge of synne done of ignorance. The lawe of the fyfte feuytes, and of gelousye.

And the lord spake to Moses, saying: I commaunde the chyldren of Israell that they put forth of the host, al lepers, and al that haue pssues, & al that are defiled vpon the dead, whether they be males or females: ye shall put the out of the host, that they defyle not the tentes among which I dwell. And the chyldren of Israell dōd so, and put the out of the hoste, as the lorde commaunded Moses, so dōd the chyldren of Israell. And the lord spake to Moses, saying: Speake vnto the chyldren of Israell: whether it be man or woman, whē they haue sinned any man are syn which a mā doth, wherewith a man (a) trespasseth against the lord: so that the soule hath doone amisse: then they knowledge their synnes which they haue done, and restore againe the hurt that they haue done in the hole, and put the fyfte part of it moze therto, & giue it him whō he hath trespassed against. But if he that maketh the amends haue no man to do it to, then the amendes that is made shall be the lordes, and the priestes, besyde the ram of the attone-ment offryng, wherewith he maketh attone-ment for him selfe. And al the fyfte frutes whiche the chyldren of Israell bynge vnto the priest, shall be the priestes, & euerp mans halowed thynges shall be hys owne, but whatsoeuer any man gyueth the prieste, it shall be the priestes.

And the Lorde spake to Moses, saying: 15 Speake to the chyldren of Israell, & shewe them. If anye mannes wife goo asyde and trespase against him, so that another man lye with hir asyle, and the thinge be hēd from the eyes of hir husbāde, and is not come to light that she is defiled (forther is no witnes agaynst hir) in as muche as she was not taken wpth the maner, and (b) the spryt of gelousie cometh vpon him, and he is gelouse ouer his wife, and she defiled, or happely the spryt of gelousie cometh vpon him, and he is gelouse ouer his wife, & she yet vndefyled. Then let hir husband bynge hir vnto the priest, and bynge an offeringe for hir: the tenth part of an epha of barley meale, but he shall poure none oyle ther vnto, nor put frankensens theron: for it is an offryng of gelousie, and an offeringe that maketh remembraunce of synne.

And

And let the priest bring hyr and sette hir before the Lord, & let him take holpe water in an etthe vessel, & of the dust that is in the floure of the habitacio, and put it into the water. And the priest shall set þ wife before the lord, and uncover hir head, and put the memorial of the offering in hyr hands which is the gelouspe offering, and the priest shall haue bitter and cursing water in his hand, and he shall conuere hir, and shall saie vnto hir. If no man hath lpen with the, neither hast gone asyde and defiled thy self behind thy husbände, then haue thou no harme of this bytter cursing water.

But if thou hast gone asyde behind thine husband, and art defyled, and some other mā hath lpen with the besidethine husbād (let the priest conuere hir with the conuersion of the curse, & saie vnto hir) the lord make the a curse & a conuersion among thy people: so that the lord make thy thyghe rotte, & thy bely swell, and this bitter cursing water go into the bowels of the, that thy bely swell, and thy thygh rotte, & the wyfe shall saie: (c) Amen, Amen.

And the priest shall wyte this curse in a bill and waite it oute in the bitter water. And when the cursing water is in hir, then let the priest take the gelouspe offering out of þ wiues hand, and waite it before the Lord, and bringe it vnto the alter: & he shall take an handfull of the memorial offering, and burne it vpon the aulter, and then make hir drinke the water: If she be defiled, and haue trespassed against hyr husband, then shall the cursing water go into hir, & be so bytter that hir bely shall swelle, and hyr thygh shall rotte, and she shall be a curse among hir people: That if she be not defiled but is cleane, then she shall haue no harme, but that she maye conceiue.

This is the law of gelouspe, when a wife goeth asyde behind hir husband and is defiled, or when the spirit of gelouspe cometh vpon a man, so that he is gelouse ouer hys wife, then he shall bring hir before the lord, and the priest shall minstre al this law vnto hir, and the man shall be gilty, & the wife shall beare hyr synne.

The Notes.

Trespase. (a) Thys trespase is wherewith we hurt oure neyghboure in worldely goodes (as they call them) and therefore muste the hurte be restored and the fyft parte more thereto. If the party resmayned not, to whom the restitution was due, nor any of hys lawfull heyres: then muste it be the priestes wages, whych at that time had non other lyuelod.

Jealousye. (b) The whole lawe of gelouspe seemeth to be a feare and a certayne nurtoure of wyues, that they shoulde be obedyente to thei husbands, chaste, manerly, and saythfull, and such as giue none occasyon to be suspecte, and thereto serued thys lawe whyle it kepte theym vnder, and gaue theym no lyence to runne at large, wherby they myght haue come in some suspecte, and so haue come to thys great shame before the congregacion.

(c) Amen is an hebrue worde, and signyfeth euen so be it, or be it faste and sure, approuynge and allowynge the sentence goynge before: and when it is doubled, it augmenteth the confymacion, as in manye Psalmes, and John. v. and vi.

The vi. Chapter.

The law of the Nazarees that toke vpon them abstinence. The maner of blessing the people.

Nazaree signifieth an absteyner.

And the lord spake vnto Moses, saying: speake vnto the children of Israel, and say vnto them: when a man or woman appoynteth to* vowe a vow of abstinence for to absteyne vnto the lord, he shall absteyne from wine and strong drinke, & shall drynke no vinegre of wine or of strong drynke, nor shall drinke whatsoeuer is pressed out of grapes: & shall eat no freshe grapes, neither yet dried as long as his abstinence endureth. Moreover he shall eat nothing þ is made of the vine tre, not so much as the kernels or the huske of the grape.

And as long as the vowe of his abstinence endureth, there shall no rasure or sheeres come vpon hys head, vntil his daies be run out, which he fasted vnto the Lord, and he shall be holy, and shall let the lockes of his herre growe. As long as he absteyneth vnto the Lord, he shall come at no dead body: he shall not make hym self vncleane at the death of his father, mother, brother or sister: for the* abstinence of his God is vpon hys head. And therefore as long as his abstinence lasteth, he shall be holpe vnto the Lord.

And if it fortune that any mā by chaunce dye suddenly before him, & defyle the head of his abstinence, then must he haue his head the day of hys clensynge: euen the seuenth daye he shall haue it. And the eyght daye he shall bringe two turtles, or two pong pigeons to the priest, vnto the doze of the tabernacle of wytnesse. And the prieste shall offere thone for a synneoffering and thother for a burntoffering, and make attonemente for hym in that he sinned vpon the dead, & shall also halowe his head the same daye, & shall absteyne vnto the lord the tyme of hys abstinence, and shall bringe a lambe of a yere old for a trespaseoffering: but þ daies that were before are losse, because his abstinence was defiled.

This is the lawe of the absteyner, when the tyme of hys abstinence is runne out, he shall be brought vnto the doze of the tabernacle of wytnesse, and he shall bringe his offering vnto the Lord: an he lambe of a yere olde wpythout spotte for a burntoffering, and a she lamb of a yere old wpythout blemyshe for a synneoffering, a ram wpythout blemyshe also for a peaceoffering, and a baskette of swete bread of fyne flour myngled wpyth oyle and waters of swete bread, appoynted wpyth oyle, wpyth meateofferynges and drynkeofferynges that be longe thereto.

Here it appereth what a vowe is after the olde testamente, which was a figure of the vowe þ a Chyrtien man ought to doo, geuyng & dedycating hym self vnto god, as it is spoken. Rom. xlii. a.

To haue abstinence of god vpon his head, is a token of refusynge the care of bodily thynges by þ he seteth not by the herre of his head or by trimynge of hys bush or beard, which thing þ world so greatly esteemeth.

The offering. Numeri

And the priest shall bring him before the lord, and offer his synoffering & his burnt-offering, and shall offer that ramme for a peaceoffering vnto the Lord with a basket of swete bread, and the priest shall offer also his meatoffring, & his drinkeoffring. And the absteiner shall haue his head in the dore of the tabernacle of witnes, and shall take the herre of his sober head & putte it in that spere, which is vnder the peaceoffring.

Then the priest shall take the sodde shoulder, of the ramme and one swete cake oute of the basket, and one swete wafer also, & put them in the hande of the absteiner, after he hath shauen his abstinence of, and the priest shall waue them vnto the Lord, which offering shall be holy vnto the prieste, with the wauebest and heue shoulder: and then the absteiner maye dryncke wine.

D This is the lawe of the Nazaree, whiche hath bowed hys abstinence vnto the lord for his abstinence, besydes that hys hand can get. And accordyng to the vowe which he bowed, so he must do in the lawe of hys abstinence.

And the lord talked with Moyses, saying: speake to Aaron and his sons, sayinge: of this wise ye shall blesse the children of Israel, sayinge vnto them.

The Lord blesse the and kepe the.

The lord make his face shyne vpon the and be merciful vnto the.

The lord shal be countenaunce vpon the, and geue the peace. For ye shal put my name vpon the children of Israel, that I maye blesse them.

The vii. Chapter.

The offeringe of the lordes and heades of Israel, when the tabernacle was set vp.

A And when Moyses had full set vp the habitacion, and anointed it & sanctified it, and all the vessels therof, and had anointed and sanctified the altar also, and all the vessels therof: then the princes of Israel, heades ouer the houses of theyr fathers, which were the lords of the tribes that stode and numbred, offered & broughte their giftes before the lord. vi. covered charettes and. xii. oxen: two & two a charette and an oxen euerie man, and they broughte them before the habitacion.

And the lord spake vnto Moyses, sayinge: take it of them, and let the be to do the seruice of the tabernacle of witness, & geue them vnto the Levites, euerie man after his office. And Moyses toke the charettes & the oxen, and gaue them vnto the Levites, two charettes and foure oxen he gaue vnto the sons of Gerson, accordyng vnto their office. And foure charettes and eight oxen he gaue vnto the sons of Merari, accordyng vnto theyr offices, vnder the handes of Jethamar the sonne of Aaron the priest. But vnto the sonnes of Zabath, he gaue none, for the office that pertayned to them, was holpe: and therefore they muste beare vpon shoulders.

Chapter. vii.

And the princes offered vnto the dedycatynge of the altar in the day that it was anoynted, and brought their giftes before the altar. And the lord sayed vnto Moyses: let the princes bring theyr offerings, euerie daye one prince, vnto the dedycatynge of the altar.

piece. ix. and this was the dedication of the altar, after that it was anointed.

And when Moses was gone into the tabernacle of witness to speake with God, he heard the voyce of one speaking vnto him out of the mercurie seat that was vpon the arke of witness: euen betwen the two cherubins, he spake vnto him.

The. viii. Chapter.

The disposition and order of the lampes. The forme of the candlestick. The cleansing and offering of the Leuites. The age of the same.

AND the lord spake vnto Moses, saying: speake vnto Aaron, and say vnto him: when thou puttест on the lampes, let the light be al seven vpon the forefront of the candlestick. And Aaron did accordingly, & put the lampes vpon the forefront of the candlestick, as the Lord commanded Moses; and the worke of the candlestick was of masse golde, both the shaft and the floures thereof. And accordyng vnto the vision which the Lord hadde shewed Moses, so he made the candlestick.

And the Lord spake vnto Moses, saying: take the Leuites forth of the children of Israel, and cleanse them. And this do vnto them when thou dost cleanse them, sprinkle water of purifying vpon them, and make a rasure to rime along vpon all the fleshy of them, and let them washe their clothes, and then they shall be cleane. And let them take a bullock, and his meat offering, fine flour mingled with oile: and an other bullocke shalt thou take to be a syn offering.

Then bring the Leuites before the tabernacle of witness, and gather the hole multitude of the chylde of Israel together. And bring the Leuites before the Lord, & let the children of Israel put their hands vpon the Leuites. And let Aaron heue the Leuites before the Lord for an heue offering giuen of the children of Israel, and then let them be appoynted to waite vpon the seruice of the Lord.

And let the Leuites put their hands vpon the heads of the bullocks, & then offer the one for a syn offering, and the other for a burnt offering before the lord, to make attonement for the Leuites. And make the Leuites stand before Aaron and his sonnes, & heue them to be an heue offering vnto the Lord. And thou shalt separate the Leuites from among the children of Israel, that they be myne: & after that let them go and do the seruice of the tabernacle of witness. Cleanse them, & hallow them, for they are giuen me from among the chylde of Israel.

I have taken them vnto me for al the firstborne that open the matrice among the children of Israel.

For all the firstborne among the chylde of Israel are myne, both man & beast, because the same tyme that I smote the firstborne in the land of Egypte, I sanctified them for my selfe: and I have taken the Le uites for all the firstborne among the children of Israel, and haue giuen them vnto Aaron and his sonnes forth of the chylde of Israel, to do the seruice of the chylde of Israel in the tabernacle of witness, and to make an attonement for the children of Israel, that ther be no plage among the chylde of Israel, if they come nye vnto the sanctuary.

And Moses and Aaron and all the congregation of the chylde of Israel dyd vnto the Leuites, accordyng vnto all that the Lord commanded Moses. And the Leuites clenfed themselves, and washed theyr clothes. And Aaron offered them before the lord, and made an attonement for them to cleanse them. And after that, they went in to doo their seruice in the tabernacle of witness, before Aaron and his sonnes. And accordyng as the lord had commanded Moses concernyng the Leuites, euen so they dyd vnto them.

And the lord spake vnto Moses saying: this shall be the maner of the Leuites: fro the second peare vwarde, they shall go in, to waite vpon the seruice in the tabernacle of witness, and at fiftie they shall cease waityng vpon the seruice thereof, and shall labour no more, but shall minister vnto theyr brethren in the tabernacle of witness, & there waite, but shall do no more seruice. And see thou do after this maner vnto the Leuites, in theyr waityng tymes.

The. ix. Chapter.

The Easter or passeouer offering of the cleane and vncleane. A cloude couerage the tabernacle leaderly the hoste.

AND the lord spake vnto Moses in the wilderness of Sinai, in the first moneth of the second peare after they were come out of the land of Egypte, saying: let the chylde of Israel offer passeouer in his season, eue the. xiii. dape of this moneth at eue, they shall kepe it in his season, according to the ordinances & maners thereof. And Moses bad the chylde of Israel that they should offer passeouer, & they offered passeouer the. xiii. dape of the first moneth at eue in the wilderness of Sinai: and dyd accordyng to all that the lord commanded Moses.

And it chaunced that certayn men whiche were defyled with a dead corse, so that they myghte not offer passeouer the same dape, came before Moses & Aaron the same tyme & sayd: We are defiled vpon a dead corse, wherfore are we kepte backe that we maye not offer an offering vnto the lord in the due season, among the chylde of Israel? And Moses sayde vnto them: tarpe, that I maye heare what the lord wpll command you. And the lord spake vnto Moses, saying: speake vnto the children of Israel, & saye. If any man among you or your chylde after you, be vncleane by the reason of a corse, or is in the way farre of, then let hym offer passeouer vnto the Lord, the

fourtene day of the second moneth at euē and eat it with swete bread & soure herbes: let them leaue non of it vnto the morning, nor breake any bone of it. And accordyng to all the ordynaunce of the pascheouer lette them offre it.

But if a man be cleane and not let in a iourney, and yet was negligent to offer (a) pascheouer: the same soule shall perish from his people, bicause he brought not an offering vnto the lord in his due season: & he shall beare hys synne. And when a straunger dwelleth among you, & will offre pascheouer vnto the lord, accordyng to the ordynaunce of pascheouer & maner thereof shall he offre it. And ye shall haue one lawe both for the straunger, & for him that was borne at home in the land.

C And the same dape that the habitacio was reared vp, a cloude couered it on hye vpon the tabernacle of wytnes: and at euē ther was vpon the habitacion, as it were the likenes of fyre vntill the morning: And so it was alwaye, that the cloude couered it by day, & the similitude of fyre by night. And when the cloude was taken vp from the tabernacle, then the chyldren of Israel iourneyed, & where the cloude abode, ther the chyldren of Israel ppyched theyr tentes. At the mouth of the lord the chyldren of Israel iourneyed, & at the mouth of the lord they pitched. And as long as the cloude abode vpon the habitacion, they lape still, and when the cloude tarped still vpon the habitacion long tyme, the chyldren of Israel waped vpon the lord and iourneyed not.

D If it chaunced that the cloude abode any space of tyme vpon the habitacion, then they kept theyr tentes at the mouth of the lord: and they iourneyed also at the commaundement of the lord. And if it happened that the cloude was vpon the habitacion from euē vnto morning, and was taken vp in that morning, then they iourneyed. Whether it was by dape or by night that the cloude was taken vp, they iourneyed. But when the cloude tarped two dapes, or a moneth, or a longe season vpon the habitacion, as long as it tarped thereon, the chyldren of Israel kepte theyr tentes, and iourneyed not. And as sone as the cloude was taken vp, they iourneyed. At the mouth of the lord they rested, and at the commaundement of the lord they iourneyed. And thus they kepte the watche of the lord, at the commaundement of the lord by the hand of Moyses.

The Notes.

(a) As it was wyth the Jewes for theyr easter lambe whych was thys pascheouer: so is it wyth vs in oure spryтуall easter or pascheouer. Whoso euer doeth not reuerently beleue the redemption of mankynde, whiche was thorowly synned in offeringe of the true lambe Christe, and amendeth not hys lyfe, nor turneth from vice to vertue in the tyme of thys mortall lyfe: shall not belonge to the gloire of the resurrection, whiche shall be gyuen to the true worshypers

The x. Chapter.

The trompettes of syluer and the vse thereof. The Israelites departe from Sinai. The captaynes of the hoste are numbred. Hobab resuseth to go wyth Moyses.

A And the lord spake vnto Moyses, saying: Make the two trompettes of beaten syluer, that thou mayest vse them to call the company togpyther, and whē the host shall iourney. When they blowe wyth them, all the company shall resorte to the vnto the dore of the tabernacle of wytnes. If but (a) one tropet blow only, then the prynces which are heads ouer thousands of Israel shall come vnto the. And whē ye trump the first tyme, the hostes that lye on the east partes shall go forwarde.

And when ye trump the seconde tyme, then the hostes þ lye on the south syde shall take their iourney: for they shall trope whē they take their iourneies. And in gathering the congregacyō togpyther, ye shall (b) blow and not trompe. And the sonnes of Aaron, the priestes shall blow the trompettes, and shall haue them, and it shall be a lawe vnto you for euer, and among your chyldren after you.

And when ye shall go to warre in your lād agaynst poure ennemyes that be ye you, ye shall (c) trompe with the trompettes, and ye shall be remembred before the Lord poure god, and saued from poure ennemyes. Also when ye be merce in your feast dapes, and in the first dapes of your monethes, ye shall blowe the trompettes ouer your burnt sacrifices and peaceoffrynges, that it maye be a remembraunce of you before your God. I am the lord poure God.

And it came to passe the twentye dape of the second moneth in the second yere that the cloude was take vp from the tabernacle of witnesse. And the chyldren of Israel toke theyr iourney out of the wilderness of Sinai, and the cloude rested in the wilderness of pharan. And they firste toke their iourney at the mouth of the lord by the hand of Moyses: euē the standard of the hoste of Juda remoued with their armies, whose captayne was Nahalon sonne of Amindab. And ouer the hooste of the trybe of the chyldren of Isachar, was Nathanael the son of zuar. And ouer the host of the trybe of the chyldren of zabulon was Eliab the son of Helon. And the habitacio was take doune: and the sonnes of Bersen & Merari wente for the bearynge the tabernacle.

Then the standard of the hoste of Ruben went forth with their armies, whose captayne was Elizur the son of Sedeur. And ouer the host of the trybe of the chyldren of Symeon: was Samalie the sonne of Surisaddai. And ouer the host of the trybe of the chyldren of Gad: was Eliasaph the son of Deguel. Then the Cahathites went forwarde and bare the holy thynges, and the other dyd set by the habitation again their comynge.

Then the standard of the host of the children of Ephraim went forth with their armies, whose captain was Elisama the son of Amiad. And ouer the hoste of the tribe of the sonnes of Manasse, was Gamaliel the sonne of Jedazur. And ouer the host of the tribe of the sonnes of Ben Jamin, was Abidan the sonne of Gedeon.

And hindermost of al the hoost, came the standard of the host of the children of Dan with their armies whose capitayne was Ahiezer the sonne of Ammi Saddai. And ouer the hoste of the tribe of the children of Aser, was Haggel the sonne of Ochran. And ouer the hoste of the tribe of the children of Rephthali, was Ahira the sonne of Enan: In thys maner were the iourneies of the children of Israel with their armies when they remoued.

And Moyses sayd vnto (a) Hobab the son of Raguel & Madianyte, Moyses father in lawe: We go vnto the place of whiche the Lord sayd: I will gyue it you. Go with vs, and we wyl do the good: for the Lord hath promysed good vnto Israel. And he sayd vnto him: I will not, but wyl goo to myne owne lande, and to my kintred. And Moyses sayde: oh nape, leaue vs not, for thou knowest wher is best for vs to pitche in the wilderness, and thou shalt be our guide. And if thou go with vs, loke what goodnes the Lord sheweth vpon vs, the same we wyl shewe vpon the.

And they departed from the mount of the Lord the dayes iourneie, and the arke of the testament of the Lord went before the in the thre dayes iourneie, to searche oute a resting place for them. And the cloud of the Lord was ouer them by day when they wnt forth of the tentes.

And when the Arcke went forth, Moyses sayde: kysse by Lord, and let thynne enemies be scattered, and let them that hate the, flee before the. And when the Arcke rested, he sayd: returne (lord) vnto the many thousandes of Israel.

Hobab.

(d) Hobab is the same, that before is called Jetho. Euen as Salomon in some places is Jidai, and as Olyas is also Azarias. He was the sonne of Raguel the father of zephora, Moyses wyfe: albeit that in the .ii. of Exod. Raguel be called by father, not because he was so in dede, but because he was his fathers father, whiche maner of speakyng is not a fewe tymes vsed in the scripture.

The.xi. Chapter.

The people murmureth and is punished with fyre. They desire flesh. The loth Manna. The murmuring and waueryng sayth of Moyses. The Lord dyuydeth the burden of Moyses to seuentye of the auncientes, and they prophesye. Eldad and Medad do also prophesie in the hoost. It rayneth quayles. The flethe raueners are punished.

And the people complayned, and it displeased the eares of the Lord. And when the lord heard it, he was wroth, and the fire of the Lord burnt among the, & consumed the uttermost of the hoost. And the people cryed vnto Moyses, and he made sute vnto the Lord, and the fire quenched. And they called the name of the place, Thabarah, because the fyre of the Lord burnt amonge them.

And the common sort of people that was among them, fell a lustynge. And the children of Israel also went to, and wept, and sayd: who shal gyue vs flethe to eate? we remembre the fishe, whiche we should eate in Egypt for nought, and of the Cucumbres and melons, lekes, onyons, and garlyke. But nowe oure soules are dyed away, for our eyes loke on nothyng elles, saue vpon Manna.

The Manna was as it had bene Corian & der sede, and in apparaunce lyke Bedellion. And the people went about and gathered it, and ground it in mpyles, or beat it in morters and baked it in pannes, and made cakes of it. And the taste of it was lyke vnto the taste of an ople cake. And when the dewe fell aboute the hoost in the nyghte, the Manna fell therewyth.

And when Moyses heard the people wepe in theyr householdes, euery man in the doore of hys tente, then the wrathe of the Lord wared hote exceedingly: and it greued Moyses also. And Moyses sayd vnto the Lord: wherfore dealest thou so cruelly with thy seruant? wherfore do I not fynd fauoure thy syght, sythens thou puttest the wighte of thys people vpon me? Haue I conceyued all this people? or haue I begot them, that thou shouldest saye vnto me, carpe the in thy bosome (as a nurse beareth the suckyng chylde) vnto the land whiche thou swarest vnto theyr fathers? wher shulde I haue flethe to gyue vnto all this people? For they wepe vnto me, sayinge: gyue vs flethe that we may eate, I am not able to beare al this people alone, for it is heauy for me. Wherfore if thou deale thus with me, kyll me, I praye the, if I haue founde fauoure in thy syghte, and let me not se my wretchednes.

And the Lord sayd vnto Moyses: gather vnto me the scoze and ten of the elders of Israel, whiche thou knowest that they are the elders of the people, and offycers ouer them, and byng them vnto the tabernacle of wytnesse, & let them stand ther with the. And I wyl come doune and talke with the, & take of the spirit which is vpon the, and people, and so shalt thou not beare alone.

And say vnto the people: halow your sel ues agaynst to morowe, that ye maye eat flesh, for ye haue whined in the eares of the lord, saying: who shall geue vs flesh to eat?
for we were happy whē we were in Egypt, therefore the lord will giue you flesh, and ye shall eat. Ye shall not eat one day onely, e ther two or fūe daies, either ten or twenty daies: but euen a moneth long, and vntill it come out at the *nostrils of you, that ye be redde to perbake: because ye haue caste that Lord aspe, which is among you, and haue wepte before hym, saying: why came we out of Egypte?

And Moses sayde: sixe hundred thousand foote men are there of the people, amonge which I am. And thou hast said: I wil giue them flesh, and they shall eat a moneth longe. Shall the shepe and the ox be slaine for them to fynde them? Either shall al the fisch of the sea be gathered together to serue them? And the Lord sayd vnto Moses: As the Lordes hand wared short? Thou shalt se whether my worde shall come to passe v to the, or not.

And Moses went forth, and tolde the peo ple the saying of the Lord, and gathered the thre scoze and ten elders of the people, and set them round aboute the tabernacle.
And the Lord came downe in a cloud, and spake vnto him, and toke of the spirit that was vpon hym, & put it vpon the thre scoze and ten elders. And as the spirit rested v pon them, they (b) prophesied & dyd nought els. But there remayned two of the men in the hoste: the one called Eldad, and the o ther Medad. And the spirit rested vpon the for they were of them that were wyrtten, but they went not out vnto the tabernacle:
and they prophesied in the hoste.

And ther ran a yonge man and told Mo ses, and sayd: Eldad, and Medad doo pro phesie in the hoste. And Josua the sonne of Nun, the seruant of Moses, which he had chosen out, answered and sayd: Master Moses, forbyd them. And Moses sayd vn to him: enuieest thou for my sake? wold god that all the lordes people could prophesie, and that the Lord would put his spirite v pon them. And then bothe Moses and the elders of Israel, gat them in to the hoste.

And there wente forth a winde from the lord, and broughte quayles fro the sea, and let the fall about the host, eue a daies iour ney round about on euery side of the hoste.
And two cubites hie vpon the earthe. And the people stode vp al that day and all that night, and on the morow, & gathered quai les. And he that gathered least, gathered .x. homers full. And they killed them round a bout the hoste.

And while the flesh was yet betwene their teth, afore it was chewed vp, & wrath of the lord wared hoate vpon the people, and the Lord slewe of the people an exce ding mightie slaughter. And they called the name of the place *Kibzath Bathaiah: be cause they buried the people that lusted there.

And the people toke their iourney from

(b) To prophesie, is some tyme to preache the word to the people, as it is .i. Corinthy. xiii. a. or to shewe the wonderfull workes of God, or to shewe thynges to come. But to prophesie and do nought else, is here to rule the people of

The Notes.

Mouth to mouth.

(a) To speake mouth to mouth, is to shewe certenly by manifeste signes and tokens, so that thereby we be vndoubtedly assured of the wyll of God. As for the bodylpe mouthe, here is no mencyon therof.

To spyt in his face.

(b) If hyr father had spyt in hyr face, that is, if he hadde punyshed hyr, and caused hyr to see hyr offence. The Lorde is a father, and punysheth hyr chosen not to dampne them, but to correcte them and feare them, and to dyspue them to earnest repentaunce. After seuen dayes was the receyued agayne into the hooke: so after repentaunce had must we be receyued into the congregacion.

The. xiii. Chapter.

Certaine are sente to searche the lande of Canaan: whych brynge wyth them a cluster of grapes for a signe of fruitfulness.

And the Lord spake there vnto Moyses, saying: * Send me out to search the land of Canaan, whiche I gve vnto the chyldren of Israel: of every trybe of their fathers a man: and let them all be such as are rulers among them. And Moyses at the commaundemente of the lorde sent forth of the wilderness of Sharan, suche men as were al heades amonge the chyldre of Israel, whose names are these.

In the trybe of Ruben: Sammua the sonne of zacur: In the trybe of Simeon, Saphat the sonne of Hori: In the tribe of Iuda, Caleph the son of Iephune. In the tribe of Isachar, Igeal the son of Joseph. In the tribe of Ephraim, Hosea the sonne of Nun. In the trybe of Beniamin, Halthy the son of Raphu. In the trybe of Zabulon, Badiel the sonne of Sodi. In the tribe of Joseph & was of Manasse, Baddi the sonne of Suli. In the trybe of Dan, Amiel the sonne of Bemali. In the tribe of Aser, Sethur the sonne of Micheel. In the trybe of Rephthali, Rahebi the sonne of Uaphsi. In the tribe of Gad, Buel the son of Machi: These are the names of the men whych Moyses sent to espye out the lande. And Moyses called the name of * Hosea the sonne of Nun, Josua.

* Hosea or Osee, signifieth sauig or sauour. Josua or Jehosua, signifieth the saluacion of the Lorde.

And Moyses sent them forth to espye out the lande of Canaan, and said vnto them: get you Southward, & go vp into the hygh countrey, & se the land what maner thinge it is, and the people that dwell therein: whe ther they be stronge or weake, few or many and what the land is that thei dwel in, whe ther it be good or bad, and what maner of cities they dwelle in, whether in tentes or walled townes, and what maner of land it is: whether fat or leane, and whether there be trees therein or not. And be of good courage, and brynge of the frutes of the land. And it was about the tyme that grapes are fyrst ripe.

And they went vp & serched out the lande from the wilderness of zin vnto Rechob, as men goo to Demath, & they ascended vnto the south & came vnto Hebron, where Ahiman was and Sesai, & Thalmami the sons of * Enack. Hebron was buylt seuen yeare before * joan in Egypt. And they came vnto the ruer of Escol, and they cut downe ther a braunche with one cluster of grapes, and bare it vpon a staffe betwene twayne, & also of the pomegranates, & of the fygges of the place. The ruer was called * Rechel Escol, because of & cluster of grapes which the chyldren of Israel cut downe there.

That is to say, replentished w all plen:ie and comodities

And they turned backe agayn from searching the lande at fourty dayes end. And they went and came to Moyses and Aaron, and vnto all the companie of the chyldren of Israel, vnto the wylernes of Sharan, euen vnto Cades, and brought them word and also vnto all the congregacion, and shewed them the fruite of the lande. And they tolde him, sayinge: we came vnto the land whither thou sendest vs, and surely it is a land that * floweth with mylke and honye, and here is of the fruit of it. Neuer thelesse the people be stronge that dwell in the land, and the ctytes are walled and exceeding greate, and mozeouer we sawe the chyldren of Enack there.

The Amaleckes dwell in the south countrey, and the Hethytes, Jebusytes and the Amozites dwell in the mountayns, and the Cananytes dwell by the sea, and a long by the coaste of Jordan.

And Caleb stilled the murmure of the people agaynst Moyses, sayinge: let vs go & conquere it, for we be able to ouercome it. But the men that went vp with him, sayd: We be not able to go vp against & people, for they are stronger the we: And they brought vp an euil reaporthe of the land whych they had searched vnto the chyldren of Israel, sayinge: The land which we haue gone thorow to search it out, is a land that * eateth vp the inhabytauntes therof, and the people that we saw in it, are men of stature. And there we sawe also gyauntes, the chyldren of Enack, which are of the giauntes. And we seemed in our spght as it were grea hopppers, and so we did in their sight.

That is to saye, no straunger dwelleth there.

The. xiiii. Chapter.

The people despayre of conuynge to the land promysed, do murmure agaynst God, and would haue stoned Caleb and Josue. The searchers of the land dye. Amalech kylleth the Isrealytes.

And all the companie cryed out, & the people wept thozow out that night, & all the people of Israell murmured agaynst Moyses and Aaron, saying: Wold God we had dyed in the land of Egypt, either we wold we had dyed in this wilderness. Wherfore hath the lord broughte vs vnto this land to fal vpon the sword, that both our wyues, & also our chyldren shulde be a praye? is it not better that we returne to Egypte agayne? And they sayed one to another: let vs make a Capitayne, and returne to Egypte agayne.

And

W And Moses and Aaron hearing thys fell on their faces before al the multitude of the children of Israel. And Josua the sonne of Nun, & Caleb the son of Jephone whiche were of them that serched the lande, rente their clothes and spake vnto all the company of the children of Israel, saying: The land whych we walked thowow to serch it, is a very good land. Yf the lord haue lust to vs, he wil bring vs into this land, and giue it vs, which is a lande þ floweth w mpyke & hony. But in any wise rebel not agaynst þ Lord. More ouer feare ye not the people of the lande, for euen as bread, so maye we deuoure. Theyr chylde is departed fro them and the Lord is wth vs, feare theym not therfore.

E And all the people bad stone the with stones. But the glorie of the Lord appeared in the tabernacle of witness vnto al the children of Israel. And the Lord sayde vnto Moses. How long shal this people * ruple upon me, and how long wil it be er they beleue me? for al my signes which I haue thewed amonges them? I wyl smite the wth the pestilence and destroye theym, and will make of the a greater naciõ, and a mightier then they.

E And Moses sayd vnto the lord: then the Egyptians shal heare it, for thou broughtest this people with thy mighte fro them. And it wil be told to the inhabitants of thys land also, for they haue herd lyke wise that thou the lord art among this people, & that thou art sene face to face, and þ the cloude standeth ouer them, and that thou goest before them by day time in a piler of a cloud, and in a piler of fyre by nyght.

E Yf thou shalt kpl al thys people, as they were but one man, then the naciõs which haue herde the fame of the wyl speake, saying: because the Lord was not habile to bring in this people into the land which he sware vnto them, therfore he slew them in the wilderness.

E So now let the power of my lord be great accordyng as thou hast spoken, saying: the Lord is long er he be angry, and ful of mercy, and suffereth syn and trespase, and leaueyth no man innocent, and visiteth the vnryghtuousnes of the fathers vpon the children euen vpon the thyrde and fourth generation, be merciful I beseeche the therfore vnto the syn of this people, accordyng vnto thy great mercy, and accordyng as thou hast forgiven thys people from Egypt, euẽ vnto this place.

E And the Lord sayde: I haue forgiven it, accordyng to thy request. But as truly as I lyue, al the * earth shalbe fylled wth my glory. For of al those men which haue sene my glory, and my miracles whiche I did in Egypt, and in the wilderness, and yet haue tẽpted me now thys ten tymes, I haue not hearkened vnto my voice, there shal not one theowow out of the land whiche I sware vnto theyr fathers: neyther shal any of them that railed upon me, se it. But my seruaunt Caleb: by cause there is an other maner spytite wth hym, and because he hath folowed me: hym I will bring into the land whiche he hath walked in, and his sede shal conquere it, & also the Amaleckites and Cananites whiche dwel in the low countries. To morowe turne pou and get pou into the wilderness: euen the way toward the red see.

E And the Lord spake vnto Moses and Aaron, saying: how long shal thys euyl multitude murmur agaynst me: I haue heard the murmurings of the chylde of Israel whiche they murmur agaynst me. Wel the that the Lord sayth: as truly as I lyue, I wyl do vnto pou euen as ye haue spokẽ in mine eares. Your carcasses shal lye in the wilderness: neyther shal any of these nombres which wer numbred from twenty yere and aboue of pou which haue murmured agayst me come into the land ouer which I lyfted * mine hand to make pou dwel therein, saue Caleb the son of Jephone, and Josua the sonne of Nun.

E And your children which ye sayd shuld be a praye, them I wil bring in, and they shal know the land which ye haue refused, and your carcasses shal lye in this wilderness.

E And your children shal wander in this wilderness. xl. yeres & suffer for poure * whoredome vntyl your carcasses be wasted in the wilderness, after the nũber of the dayes in whych ye serched out the lande. xl. dayes, & euery day a yere: so þ they shal beare poure vnryghtuousnes. xl. yere, and ye shal fele my vengeance, I the lord haue sayde that I wil do it vnto al this euyl congregacion that are gathered together agaynst me: euẽ in thys wilderness ye shalbe consumed, and here ye shal dye.

E And the men which Moses set to serch the land, and whych (when they came agayne) made al the people to murmur agaynst it in that they brought vp a sclauder vpon the land: dyed for theyr bynging vp that euyl sclauder vpon it, and were plaged before þ Lord. But Josua the son of Nun and Caleb the son of Jephone whiche were of the men that went to enserch the lande, lyued apl. And Moses tolde these sayenges to al the chylde of Israel, & the people toke gret sorowe.

E And they rose vp early in the mornynge and gat theym into the top of the mountayne, saying: lo we be here, and wyl goo vp vnto the place of whych the lord sayed, for we haue sined. And Moses sayd: wherfore wil ye go on this maner beyond the word of the Lord? it wyl not come wel to passe, go not vp (for the Lord is not among you) least ye be slaine before your ennemies. For the Amalechites & the Cananites are ther before you, and ye wil fal vpon the sword, because ye are tourned away from the lord, & therfore the Lord wyl not be wth you.

The dymkeofferynges of them that enter into the land, the punishment of hym that synneth of arrogancy or pryde. The man is stoned that gathered styckes on the Sabbath. Gardes must be made vpon quarters of their garments.

And the Lord spake vnto Moses, saying: speake vnto the chyldren of Israel, and say vnto them: When ye be come into the land of your habitacion whiche I geue vnto you, and wyl offer an offering vpon the fyre vnto the Lord, whether it be a burntofferyng or a special bowe or frewyl offering, or if it be in your principal feastes to make a swete sauoure vnto the Lord, of the open or of the flocke.

Then let him that offered his offering vnto the Lord, bring also a meatoffering of a tenth deale of floure, mingled with a fourth part of an hin of oyle, and the fourth parte of an hin of wine for a drinkeoffering, & offer with the burntofferyng or any other offering when it is a lamb. And vnto a ram thou shalt offer a meatoffering of .ii. tenth deales of floure, mingled with the thyrde part of an hin of oyle, and to a dymkeofferyng thou shalt offer the thirde part of an hyne of wyne, to be a swete sauoure vnto the Lord.

When thou offerest an oxe to a burntofferyng or in any special bow or peaceofferyng vnto the Lord, then thou shalt bring vnto an oxe, a meatofferyng of thre tenth deales of floure mingled with half an hin of oyle. And thou shalt bring for a drinkeofferyng halfe an hin of wyne, that is an offering of a swete sauoure vnto the Lord. This is the maner that shalbe done vnto one oxe, one ramme a lambe or a kidde. And according to the numbze of such offeryngs, thou shalt encrease the meatofferyngs and the drinkeofferynges.

All that are of your selues shall do these thynges after thys maner, when he offereth an offeryng of swete sauoure vnto the Lord. And if ther be a straunger with you or be among you in your generacions, and wil offer an offering of a swete sauoure vnto the Lord: euen as ye do, so he shal do. * One ordynance shall serue both for you of the congregacion, and also for the straunger. And it shalbe an ordynance for euer among your chyldren after you, that the stranger and ye shalbe lyke before the Lord. One law and one maner shal serue, both for you and for the straunger, that dwelleth wth you.

And the Lord spake vnto Moses, saying: speake vnto the chyldren of Israel and say vnto them: When ye be come into the land whether I will bring you, then whē ye wil eate of the bread of the lande, ye shall geue an heueofferyng vnto the Lord. Ye shal geue a cake of the first of your dow vnto an heueofferyng: as ye do the heueofferyng of a barne euen so ye shal heue it. Of the first of your dowe ye muste geue vnto the Lord an heueofferyng, thowout your generacions.

If ye ouersee your selues and obserue not all these commaundementes, whiche the Lord hath spoken vnto Moses, and all that the Lord hath commaunded you by the hand of Moses, from the fyrst day forward that the Lord commaunded among your generacion: when oughte is commytted ignorantly before the eyes of the congregacion, then all the multitude shal offer a calfe for a burntofferyng to be a swete sauoure vnto the Lord, and the meatofferyng & drinkeofferyng thereto, accordyng to the maner: & an he gote for a synofferyng. And the priest shall make an attonement for al the multitude of the chyldren of Israel, and it shalbe forgiven them for it was ignorance. And they shall bring the giftes vnto the offering of the Lord, and they synoffringe before the Lord for their ignorance. And it shalbe forgiven vnto all the multitude of the chyldren of Israel, & vnto the straunger that dwelleth amongs you: for the ignorance pertayneth vnto al the people.

If anye one soule synne thowowe ignorance, he shall bring a she gote of a yere olde for a synneofferyng. And the priest shall make an attonement for the soule that sinned vniwittingly wth the synofferyng before the Lord, and make him at one, and it shalbe forgiven hym. And both thou that art borne one of the chyldren of Israel, and the straunger that dwelleth amonge you, shall haue both one lawe, if ye syn vniwittingly.

And the soule that doth ought presume tuously, whether he be an Israelite or a straunger, the same hath despyled the Lord.

And the soule shall be destroyed oute of hys people, because he hath despyled the worde of the Lord, and hath broken hys commaundementes, that soule therfore shal perish and his synne shalbe vpon hym.

And whyle the chyldren of Israel were in the wilderness, they found a man gathered styckes vpon the Sabbath daye. And they that founde him gatherynge styckes, brought hym vnto Moses and Aaron, and vnto all the congregacion: and they putte hym inward, for it was not declared what shoulde be done vnto hym. And the Lord sayde vnto Moses: the man shall dye: lette all the multitude stone hym wth stones forth of the hoste. And all the multitude brought hym without the host, and stoned hym with stones, and he dyed as the Lord commaunded Moses.

And the Lord spake vnto Moses, saying: speake to the chyldren of Israel, and byd them, they make theyn gardes on the quarters of their garmentes thowout the generacions, and lette theyn make the

And Moyses wared very angry and sayd vnto the Lord: Turne not vnto their offerin-Psal. cxv.

Deut. xi. a.

speake to Eleazar the sonne of Aaron the priest and let him take up the censers out of the burning and scatter the fyre here & ther, for the censers of these synners are allowed in the deathes: and let the be beaten into thyn plates and fastened vpon the alter. For they offered them before the lord, and therefore they are holy & they shal be a signe vnto the children of Israel.

And Eleazar the priest took the brasen censers, which they that were burnt had offered, and beat them & fastened the vpon the altare, to be a remembrance vnto the children of Israel, that no straunger which is not of the seide of Aaron, come nere to offer incense before the Lord, that he be not made lyke vnto Corah and his company: as the Lord sayd vnto hym by the hand of Moyses.

And on the morowe al the multitude of the children of Israel murmured agaynst Moyses & Aaron, saying: ye haue killed the people of the Lord. And when the multitude was gathered agaynst Moyses & Aaron, they looked toward the tabernacle of witness.

And beholde, the cloude had couered it and the glorie of the lord appeared. And Moyses and Aaron wente before the tabernacle of witness. And the lord spake vnto Moyses, saying: Get you from this congregacion, that I may consume them quickly. And they fel vpon their faces.

And Moyses sayde vnto Aaron: take a censer and put fyre therein out of the altare, & powre on incense, & go quickly vnto the congregacion & make an attonement for them: for ther is wrath gone out from the lord, & there is a plague begone. And Aaron took as Moyses commaunded hym, and ran vnto the congregacion, and beholde, the plague was begon amonge the people, and he put on incense, and made an attonement for the people. And he stode betwene the deade, & them that wer alpye, and the plague ceased: And the nombre of them that dyed in the plague, were. xiiii. thousande and seven hundred: besyde them that died about the busynesse of Corah. And Aaron went agayne vnto Moyses vnto the doore of the tabernacle of witness, and the plague ceased.

The xvii. Chapter.

Aarons rod buddeth and beareth blossomes

And the lord spake vnto Moyses, saying: speake to the chyldren of Israel and take of them, for euery principal house a rod, of their prynces ouer the houses of their fathers: euen. xii. rods, and wyte euery mans name vpon his rod. And wyte Aarons name vpon the staffe of Levi: for euerye hedman ouer the houses of their fathers shall haue a rod. And put them in the tabernacle of witness wher I wil meete you. And his rod wher I chole, shal blossom so I wyl make cease from me the grudgynge of the chyldren of Israel whiche they grudge agaynst you.

And Moyses spake vnto the children of Israel, and al the prynces gaue him for euery prynces ouer their fathers houses, a rod: euen. xii. rodde, & the rod of Aaron was amonge the rodde. And Moyses put the rodde before the Lord in the tabernacle of witness. And on the morowe, Moyses went into the tabernacle: & beholde the rod of Aaron of the house of Levi was budded & bare blossomes and almondes. So Moyses broughte out al the rodde which wer before the lord vnto al the children of Israel, and they looked vpon them, and tooke euerye man hys rod.

And the Lord sayde vnto Moyses: bring Aarons rod agayne before the witness to be kept for a token vnto the children of rebellion, & their murmurings may cease from me, that they dye not. And Moyses did as the lord commaunded him. And the children of Israel spake vnto Moyses, saying: beholde we are destroyed and al come to nought: for whosoeuer commeth nigh the dwelling of the Lord, dyeth. Shal we utterly consume awaye.

The xviii. Chapter.
The office of the Levites. The tythes and byrte frutes must be geuen them, Aarons heretage.

And the lord sayd vnto Aaron. Thou and thy sons and thy fathers house with the shal beare the faute of that which is done a mysse in the holy place. And thou and thy sons with the, shal beare the faute of that which is done a mysse in your priesthode. And thy brethren also the tribe of Levi, the tribe of thy father take w the and let them be ioyned vnto the and minister vnto the. And thou & thy sons with the shal minister before the tabernacle of witness. And let them wyte vpon the and vpon all the tabernacle: onelye let them not come nigh the holy vessels and the altare that both they and ye also dye not. And let them be by the, and wait on the tabernacle of witness, and on al the scrupce of the tabernacle, and let no straunger come nigh vnto you.

Waite therefore vpon the holy place and vpon the altar, that ther fal no more wrath vpon the chyldre of Israel: beholde, I haue taken your brethren the Levites fourth of the children of Israel, to be yours, as giftes gyuen vnto the lord to do the seruice of the tabernacle of witness. And se that both thou and thy sonnes with the take hede vnto your priestes office in al thinges that pertayne vnto the altare and wthin the veyle. And se ye serue, for I haue gyuen pouce priestes office vnto you for a gifte to do seruice: and the straunger that commeth nigh shal dye.

And the lord spake vnto Aaron: beholde I haue gyuen the, the keeping of myne heue offerings in al the halowed thinges of the chyldre of Israel. And vnto the I haue geue the vnto a noyntynge and to thy sonnes: to be a dutye for ever. This shal be thynne of moost holy sacrifices. Al their giftes, tharow out al their meat offerings, syn offerings, and trespasses.

* It is said that the censers were halowed in the death of these synners because that by their death all other were put in feare to presume to the office of the censyr: contrary to expresse the commaundement of god who appointed the office & hys seide only.

And the Levites shal do the seruyce in þ tabernacle of witness, and beare they syn, and it shal be a law for ever vnto poure chyldren after you: But among the chyldre of Israel they shal enherete none enheritaunce. For the tythes of the chyldre of Israel, whych they heue vnto the lorde, I haue gyuen the Levites to enheret. Wherefore I haue said vnto them: Among the chyldren of Israel, ye shal enheret none enherytaunce.

De. xviii. a

And the Lorde spake to Moses, sayinge: speake vnto the Levites, and say vnto the: when ye take of the chyldren of Israel the tythes, whych I haue gyuen you of the to your enheritaunce, ye shal take an heueoffring of þ same for the lorde: even the tenth of the tyth. And it shalbe rekened vnto you

And in this maner ye shal heue an heueoffring vnto the lorde, of al your tythes which ye receiue of the chyldren of Israel, and ye shal giue therof the lorde heueoffring vnto Aaron the priest. Of all your gistes, ye shal take out the Lordes heueoffring: euen the fat of al their halowed thinges.

And thou shalt say vnto them: when ye haue take away the fat of it from it, it shal be counted vnto the Levites, as I encrease of corne and wine. And ye shal eat it in all places, both ye and your households, for it is your reward for your seruyce in the tabernacle of witness. And ye shal beare no syn by the reason of it, when ye haue taken from it the fat of it: neither shal ye vnhalow the halowed thinges of the chyldren of Israel, and so shal ye not dye.

And he shal cause the kowe to be burnt in his sight: both skinne, fleshe and bloude, with the dounge also. And lette the priest take Cedar woode, and scope and purple clothe, and cast it vpon the kowe as she burneth. And let the priest washe his clothes, and bath hys fleshe in water, & then come into the hoste, and the priest shalbe vncleane vnto the euen.

And he that burneth hir, shal wash hys clothes in water, and bath hys fleshe also in water, and be vncleane vntill euen. And one that is cleane, shal go and take by the ashes of the kowe, and put them withoute the hoste in a cleane place, where they shal be kept to make sprinklyng water for the multitude of the chyldre of Israel: for it is a synneoffryng. And let him that gathered the ashes of the kowe, washe his clothes, & remaine vncleane vntill euen. A And the hole multitude of the childre of Israel, came into y<sup>e</sup> deserte of Sin in y<sup>e</sup> first moneth, & the people dwelte at Cades. And ther dyed Mary, & was buryed ther. Moreover ther was no water for the multytude, wherfore they gathered the selues together against Moyses and Aaron. And the people chode with Moyses & spake, sayinge: woulde God we hadde perished, when our brethren perished before the lord. Why haue ye broughte the congregacion of the Lorde vnto thys wilderness, that both we and oure cattell shoulde dye here? Wherfore brought ye vs out of Egypte to bring vs into this vngacious place, which is no place of sede nor of fygge, nor vines nor of pomgranates, neyther is there anye water to drynke?

D And Moyses and Aaron went from the congregacio vnto the doore of the tabernacle of wytnes, & fell on theyr faces. And the glory of the lord appeared vnto them. And the lord spake vnto Moyses, sayinge: Take the staffe, and gather thou and thy brother Aaron the congregacion together, & say vnto the rocke before their eyes, & he gyue forth hys water. And thou shalt byng them water out of the rocke, and shalt gyue the company drinke and their beastes also.

And Moyses toke the staffe from before the Lord, as he commaunded him. And Moyses and Aaron gathered the congregacion together before the rocke, and he sayed vnto them, heare ye rebellions, must we fet you water out of thys rocke? And Moyses lyfte vp hys hand with hys staffe, and smote the rocke two tymes, and the water came out abundantly, and the multitude dranke, and theyr beastes also.

And the lord spake vnto Moyses & Aaron because ye beleued me not, to sanctifye me in the eyes of the childre of Israel, therfore ye shal not bringe thys congregacion into the lande, whiche I haue gyuen them. This is the water of strepe, because the childre of Israel stroue wth the Lorde, and he was sanctified vpon them.

And Moyses sent messengers from Cades vnto the kyng of Edom. Thus sayth thy brother Israel: Thou knowest all the trauele I hath happened vs, how our fathers wente downe into Egypte, & how we haue dwelt in Egypt a long tyme, and how the Egyptians vexed both vs and our fathers. Then we cryed vnto the Lorde, and he heard our voyces, and sent an angel, and hath sette vs out of Egypt. And behold, we are in Cades a ctype hard by the borders of thy countrey, let vs go, we pray the thorow thy countrey, we will not go thorow the fieldes, nor thorow y<sup>e</sup> vineyardes, nether wil we drinke of the water of the fountaynes, but we wil go by the hys wape, and nether turne vnto the right hand nor to the left, vntill we be past thy countrey. And Edom answered hym: Se thou come not by me, lest I come out agaynst the wth the swearde. And the childre of Israel sayde vnto him: we wyl go by the beaten wape: and if epyther we or our cattel drinke of thy water, we will pay for it, we wyl do no more but passe thorow by fote onely. And he sayd: ye shall not goo thorow. And Edom came out agaynst hym wth muche people & with a myghty power. And thus Edom denyed to gyue Israel passage thorow his countrey. And Israel turned away from him.

And the childre of Israel remoued from Cades, and went vnto mount Hor wth al the companie. And the Lorde spake vnto Moyses and Aaron in mount Hor, whych is vpon the borders of the land of Edom, saying: let Aarō be put vnto his people, for he shal not come into the land whiche I haue gyue vnto the childre of Israel: because ye disobeyed my mouth at the water of strepe. And Israel smote him with the edge of the sword and conquered his land, from Arnon vnto Jaboek: eue vnto the children of Ammon. For the borders of the childre of Ammon, are stronge. And Israel toke al these cities & dwelt in al the cities of the Amozites in Hesbon & in al the townes that log thereto. For Hesbon was the citie of Sehon king of the Amozites whych Sehon had fought before with the king of the Moabites, and had taken al his land out of his hand, euen vnto Arnon. Wherefore it is a prouerbe, go to Hesbon & let the citie of Sehon be built and made readi, for ther is a fire gon out of Hesbon & a flame from the citie of Sehon hath consumed Ar of the Moabites, and y me of the hilles of Arnon. The. xxi. Chapter.

Kyng Balac sendeth for Balam, to the intent he wold curse Israel: but Bala can do nothing agaynst the will of the Lord. Balas alle speaketh to hym in the waye.

And Balac the sonne of ziphor sawe all that Israel had done to the Amorytes, and the Moabytes were sore afraped of the people, because they were many, and abhorred the children of Israel. And Moab sayd vnto the elders of Madia, now shall this compaigne lycke vp all that are rounde aboute vs, as an oxe lycketh vp the grasses of the field. And Balac the son of ziphor was kynge of the Moabites at that tyme.

B And he sente messengers vnto Bala the sonne of Beor, the interpreter which dwelt vpon the riuier of the land of the chyldre of hys folke, to call him, saying: behold, there is a people come out of Egypt, which couereth the face of the earth, & lyeth even hard by me. Come now a fellowshippe and curse me thys people. For they are to myghty for me, so peraduenture I might be able to smite them, & to driue the out of the lande. For I wote that whō thou blestest shalbe blessed, and whom thou curstest shalbe cursed.

And the elders of Moab went with the elders of Madian, & the reward of the soth saying in their hands. And they came vnto Balam, and told him the wordes of Balac. And he said vnto them: tary here al nyght, and I will bringe you worde, euen as the Lord shal saye vnto me. And the Lordes of Moab abode with Balam.

And God came vnto Balam & said: what men are these whych are with the? And Balam sayd vnto God: Balac the sonne of ziphor, kynge of Moab, hath sente vnto me, sayinge: behold, there is a people come out of Egypt, and couereth the face of the earth: come nowe therefore and curse me them, that so peraduenture I maye be able to ouercome them in battell, and to driue them out. And God said vnto Balam: thou shalt not go with them, neither curse the people, for they are blessed.

And Bala rose vp in the morning, and said vnto the lordes of Balac: get you vnto your land, for the Lord wil not suffer me to go with you. And the lordes of Moab rose vp, and went vnto Balac and sayd. Bala wold not come with vs. And Balac sent again a greater compaigne of lordes & more honourable then they. And they came to Balam & tolde hym. Thus sayeth Balac the sonne of ziphor: oh, let nothynge let the to come vnto me, for I will greatly promote the vnto great honour, and wil do whatsoeuer thou sayest vnto me, come therefore I praye the curse me thys people.

And Balam answered and sayed vnto the seruants of Balac. If Balac wold geue me hys house full of syluer and gold, I can go no further then the worde of the Lord my God, to do lesse or more. Neuer theles tarpe ye here al nyght: that I maye wete, what the Lord wil say vnto me once more. And god came vnto Balam by nyght and sayd vnto him: If the men come to fet the, ryse vp and go wpth them: but what I say vnto the, that onely thou shalt do.

And Balam rose vp earlye and saddled his asse, and wente with the Lordes of Moab. But God was angry because he went. And the angel of the lord stode in the waye agaynst him. And he ryd vpon his asse, & two seruants with him. And whē the asse saw the aungell of the lord stand in the way, & hys sweard drawn in his hand, he turned a syde out of the waye, and wente out into the field. And Bala smote the asse, to turne him into the waye.

And the aungell of the Lord wente and stode in a path betwene vineyards, wher was a wall on the one side, and another on the other. When the asse sawe the aungell of the Lord, he wrenched vnto the wall & thruste Balams fore vnto the wall, and he smote hyr agayne. And the aungell of the Lord went further and stode in a narrow place, wher was no waye to turne, epyther to the right hande or to the lyft. And when the asse sawe the aungell of the Lord, he fell downe vnder Balam: and Balam was wroth and smote the asse with a staffe. And the lord opened the mouth of the asse, & he sayd vnto Balam: what haue I done vnto the, that thou smitest me thus. iii. tymes? And Bala sayd vnto the asse: because thou hast mocked me, I wold he I had a swearde in myne hande, that I might now kill the. And the asse saied vnto Balam, am I not thine asse, which thou hast ridde vpo, sence thou wast borne vnto this day? was I euer wont to do so vnto the? And he sayd, naye.

And the Lord opened the eyes of Balam, & that he sawe the angel of the lord standing in the waye, wpth hys swearde drawn in hys hand. And he bowed hymselfe, and fell flat on hys face. And the aungell of the lord sayed vnto him. Wherefore smitest thou thine asse thus thre tymes? behold I came out to respite the, for the waye is contrarie vnto me, and the asse sawe me and auoided me thre tymes: or else (had he not tourned fro me) I had surely slayne the, and saued hyr a lyue. And Balam sayd vnto the aungell of the Lord: I haue sinned, for I wist not that thou stodest in the waye agaynst me. Now therefore if it displease thine eyes, I wyl turne agayne. And the angel sayd vnto Balam, go with the me: but in any wise, what I saye vnto the, that saye. And Bala went with the lordes of Balac.

And when Balac heard that Bala was come, he went out agaynst him vnto a cty of Moab that stode in the border of Arnon, whiche which was the vtmost part of his country. And Balac said vnto Balam: did I not send for the, to call the? wherefore camest thou not vnto me? thinkest thou that I am not able to promote the vnto honoure. And Balam sayd vnto Balac: loo, I am come vnto the. But I can say nothing at all saue what god putteth into my mouth & muste I speake. And Balam went with Balac, & they came vnto the large citi. And Balac offered oxen and shepe & sent for Balam & for the lordes that were with hym.

And Balac and Balam offered on euery aulter a bullocke and a ram.

And Balam sayd vnto Balac: stand by the sacrifice while I go to wete whether the Lord wil come and mete me, & what soeuer he sheweth me, I wil tel the, & he wet forth wpyth. And Balac sayed vnto hym: Come I pray the with me to another place whēce thou shalt se them, & shalt se but the vtmost parte of them, and shal not se them al, and curse me them ther. And he toke vp his parable and sayd: rise vp Balac and heare, & herke vnto me thou sonne of yphoz. The Lord is not a man, that he can lie, neither the son of man that he can repent: should he say and not do, or should he speake and not make it good? behold, I haue begon to blesse and haue blesed, and cannot go backe therefro. He beheld (b) no wickednes in Jacob, nor saw ydolatry in Israel: the Lord his god is with him, and the triumphe of a kyng is among them. numbred in the fields of Moab, fast by Jordanie to Jericho. And among these there was not a man of the numbre of the children of Israel, which Moyses & Aaron told in the wilderness of Sinai. For the lord said vnto them, & they should dye in the wilderness, and that there should not be left a man of them: saue Caleb the sonne of Jephunc and Josua the sonne of Nun.

The xxvi. Chapter.

The lawe of the herpage of the daughters of zelaphead. The lande of promise is shewed vnto Moyses: in whose stead is appointed Josue.

And the daughters of *zelaphead the son of Heber, the son of Bilead, the son of Machir the sonne of Manasse of the kindredes of Manasse, the son of Joseph (whose names were Mahela, Roha, Hagla, Melcha, & Thyza) came & stode before Moyses and Eleazar the priest, and before the lords, and all the multitude in the doore of the tabernacle of witness, sayinge: our father dyed in the wilderness, and * was not amonge the compaigne of thep that gathered themselves together agaynst the Lorde in the congregacion of Corah: But dyed in hys owne synne, and had no sonnes. Wherefore should the name of our fathers be taken away from among hys kindred, because he hadde no sonne? & shal be geuen vnto vs a possession among the brethren of oure father. And Moyses broughte thep cause before the Lorde.

And the Lorde spake vnto Moyses, saying: The daughters of zelaphead speake ryght thou shalt geue them a possession to enherit among thep fathers brethren, and shalt turne the enheritaunce of thep father vnto them. And speake vnto the children of Israel, sayinge: If a man dye, and haue no sonne, ye shall turne his enheritaunce vnto hys daughter. If he haue no daughter, ye shall geue hys enheritaunce vnto hys brethren. If he haue no brethren, ye shall geue hys enheritaunce vnto hys fathers brethren. If he haue no fathers brethren, ye shall geue hys enheritaunce vnto him that is nexte to hym of hys kindred, and let hym possesse it. And thys shall be vnto the children of Israel an ordinance, & a lawe, as the Lorde hath commaunded Moyses.

And the Lorde sayed vnto Moyses: get the vp into thys mounte Abarim, and beholde the land which I haue giuen vnto the children of Israel. And when thou hast sene it, thou shalt be gathered vnto thy people also, as Aaron thy brother was gathered vnto hys people. For ye were disobedyent vnto my mouth in the deserte of Sin, in the strepe of the congregacion that ye sanctified me not in the water before their eyes. That is the water of strepe in Cades in the wilderness of zin. And Moyses spake vnto the Lorde, saying: let the Lorde God of the spirites of all fleche, sette a manne over the

What must be offered on euery feast daye.

AND the Lorde spake vnto Moyses, saying: gyue the chyldren of Israel a charge and saye vnto them, that they take hede to offer vnto the offeringe of my breade in the sacryfice of swete sauoure, in hys due season. And saye vnto the. Whys is the offeringe, whiche ye shall offer vnto the Lorde two lambes of a yere old without spotte, daye by daye to be a burnt offeringe perpetuallpe. One Lamb thou shalt offer in the morninge, and the other at eue. And thereto the tenth parte of an Eph of floure for a meate offeringe myngled with beaten oyle, the fourth part of an Hin: whiche is a dayly offeringe, ordeyned in the mounte Sinai vnto a swete sauoure in the sacryfice of the Lorde. And the drynke offeringe of the same the. iiii. part of an Hin vnto one lambe, and poure the drynke offeringe in the holy place, to be good drynke vnto the Lorde. And the other lamb thou shalt offer at euen, wth the meate offeringe, and the drynke offeringe after the maner of the morninge: a sacryfice of a swete sauoure vnto the Lorde. And on the Sabbath daye. ii. Lambes of a yere old a piece, and without spot, and two tenth deales of floure, for a meate offeringe mingled with oyle, and the drynke offeringe therto. This is the burnt offeringe of euery Saboth, besydes the dayly burnt offeringe, and hys drynke offeringe.

And in the firste daye of poure moneth, ye shall offer a burnt offeringe vnto the Lorde two yonge bullockes, and a ram, and seuen Lambes of a yere olde without spot, and. iiii. tenth deales of floure for a meate offeringe, myngled with oyle vnto one bullocke, and two tenth deales of floure for a meate offeringe myngled wth oyle vnto one ram. And euer more a tenth deale of floure myngled wth oyle, for a meate offeringe vnto one lambe. That is a burnt offeringe of a swete sauoure in the sacrifice of the Lorde. And their drynke offeringes shall be halfe an Hin of wine vnto one bullocke, and y third part of an Hin of wine vnto a ram, and the fourth part of an hin vnto a lambe. This is the burnt offeringe of euery moneth thowow out all the monethes of the yere, and one he gothe for a syn offeringe vnto the Lorde, whiche shall be offered with the daily burnt offeringe and hys drynke offeringe. * And the. xiiii. daye of the fyrste moneth shall be passed ouer vnto the Lorde. And the. xv. daye of the same moneth shall be a feast, in which seuen dayes menne muste eate vnto leuended bread. The fyrste daye shall be an holy feast, so that ye shall doo no maner of laborious worke therein. And ye shall offer a burnt offeringe vnto the lord two yonge bullockes, one ramme, and. vii. lambes of a yere olde without spot, and their meate offeringe of floure myngled with oyle. iiii. tenth deales vnto a bullocke, and two tenth deales vnto a ram, and euer more one tenth deale vnto a lambe, thowow out the. vii. lambes: and an he gothe for a syn offeringe to make an attouement for you.

And ye shall offer these, besyde the burnt offeringe in the morning that is alway offered. And after this maner ye shall offer thowow out the. vii. dayes, the fode of the sacryfice of a swete sauoure vnto the lord. And it shall be done beside the daily burnt offeringe and hys drynke offeringe. And the seuenth day shall be an holy feast vnto you, so that ye shall doo no laborious worke therein. And the daye of your first fruits, when ye bring a new meate offeringe vnto the Lorde in your weekes shall be an holpe feast vnto you: so that ye shall doo no laborious worke therein. And ye shall offer a burnt offeringe of a swete sauoure vnto the Lorde, two yonge bullockes, and a ram, and. vii. lambes of a yere olde a piece, with their meate offeringes of flour myngled with oyle. iiii. tenth deales vnto a bullocke two tenth deales to a ram, & euer more one tenth deale vnto a lab thowow out the. vii. lambes, and an he goote to make an attouement for you. And this ye shall do besydes the dayly burnt offeringe, & his meate offeringe: and they shall be withoute spot, with their drynke offeringes.

And an he gotte for a sin offering, besyde the dayly burnt offering, & hys meat and drinke offerings.

And the eight day shalbe the conclusion of the feast vnto you, and ye shal doo no manner laborious worke therein. And ye shal offer a burnt offering of a swete sauour vnto the Lorde: one bullocke, one ramme, and seuen pearelyng lambes without spotte. And the meate and drinke offerings vnto the bullocke, ramme and lambes, accordynge to theyr numbzes, and accordynge to the maner. And an he gotte for a synne offering, besyde the dayly burnt offering, and hys meate and drinke offerings.

These thynges ye shal do vnto the lord in your feastes: beside your bowes and frewill offerings, in your burnt offerings meat offerings, drinke offerings and peace offerings. And Moses tolde the chyldren of Israel, accordynge to all that the Lord commaunded him.

The. xxx. Chapter.

Of bowes when they shalbe kepte & when not.

AND Moses spake vnto the heades of the trybes of the chyldren of Israel, sayinge: this is the thyng whych the lord commaundeth. (a) If a mā bowe vnto the Lorde, or swere an oth, and bynde hys soule, he shal not go backe with hys worde: but shal fulfill al that proceadeth out of hys mouth.

If a damsell bow a vowe vnto the lord, and bynde hys selfe beyng in hys fathers house and vnmarrped. If hys father heare hys vowe, and bonde whiche she hath made vpon hir soule, and holde hys peace therto: then all hir bowes and bondes, whych she hath made vpon hir soule shal stande in effecte. But and if hir father forbyd hys the same day, þ he heareth hit, none of hys bowes nor bonds, whiche she hath made vpon hys soule shalbe of value, and the Lorde shal for forgeue her, because her father forbade her.

If she had an husbando when she vowed or pronounced oughte oute of her lyps wherewith she bound her soule, & her husband heard it, and helde his peace thereat the same day he heard it, then her bowes and her bondes wherewith she bound her soule shall stand in effecte. But and if her husband forbade her the same day that he heard it, then hath he made her vowe wherewith she had upon her of none effecte, and that also which she pronounced with her lyps wherewith she bound her soule, and the lord shall forgeue her.

C The vowe of a wyddow and of her that is deuorced, & al that shei haue bound their soules with, shall stand in effect with them.

If she vowed in her husbandes house or bound her soule with an oth, & her husband heard it and held his peace, and forbade her not: then al her bowes & bondes wherewith she bound her soule, shall stand. But if her husband disanulled them the same day that he heard them, then nothyng & proceeded out of her lippes in bowes & bondes wherewith she bound her soule shall stand in effect: for her husband hath loused the. And the lord shall forgeue her.

D All bowes and othes that bynd to humble the soule, may her husbande stablyshe or breake. But if her husbande holde his peace from one day vnto another, then he stablysheth al her bowes and bondes wherewith she had upon her, because he held his peace the same day that he heard them. And if he after ward breake them, he shall beate her nine tymes.

These are the ordynances whiche the lord commaunded Moyses, betwene a man and his wife, and betwene the father and his daughter, beyng a damsel in her fathers house.

The Notes.

If a manne (a) This vowe here, is that wherewith a man maketh for a certen space, whether it be to faste or to chastite the body or any other thyng, as it is sayed Leuit. vii. d. But marke this allwaye, gentle reader, that as it was not lawefull for the Jewes to vow the bykyng of goddes commaundementes in any condicion, so was it not lawefull for them, nor is yet lawfull for vs, to breake goddes commaundement for any vowe sake.

The. xxxi. Chapter.

C The Madianites & Balaam are slaine. The pray was broughte to Moyses and equally deuoyded. A present geuen of Israel because none of their men were slaine.

A And the lord spake vnto Moyses, sayinge: auenge the children of Israel of the Madianites, and after ward bee gathered vnto thy people. And Moyses spake vnto the folke, sayinge: Garnesse some of you vnto warre, and lette them go vpon the Madianites & auenge the lord of the Madianites. Ye shall sende vnto the war a thousand of euery tribe thorow out al the tribes of Israel. And there were taken out of the thousandes of Israel. xii.

thousand prepared vnto warre, of euery tribe a thousand. And Moyses sent them a thousand of euery tribe, with byrnes the sonne of Eleazar the priest to warre, and the holy vessels and the trumpets to blow in his hande.

* And they warred agaynst the Madianites, as the lord commaunded Moyses, and slawe al the males. And they slawe the kinges of Madian amonge the other that were slaine: Eui, Rekem, Zur, Hur & Reba: syue kinges of Madian. And they slew Balaam the sonne of Beor with the sword. And the chyldren of Israel toke al the women of Madian prisoners and their chyldren, and spoyled all theyr catelle, their substance and their goods. And they burnt all their cities wherin they dwelte, and al their castels with fyre. And they toke all the spoyl and all theyr coulde reache, both of men and beastes. And they broughte the captaynes and that wherewith they had taken and al the spoyl vnto Moyses and Eleazar the priest and vnto the company of the chyldren of Israel, euen vnto the host, in the fieldes of Moab by Iordan nye to Iericho.

And Moyses and Eleazar the priest and al the lordes of the congregacion wente out of the host agaynst them. And Moyses was angry with the officers of the hoste, with the captaynes ouer thousandes and ouer hundredes, whiche came from warre and battel, and said vnto the: haue ye slayed & wemen alyue: beholde these caused & chyldren of Israel thow Balaam, to commit trespase agaynst the lord, by the reson of Beor, & ther folowed a plage amonge the congregacion of the lord. Nowe therfore * see al the men chyldren and the women that haue lien with men fleshy: But al the women chyldren & haue not lie with me, kepe a lyue for your selues. And lodge withoute the host seuen dayes al that haue kyled any person & al that haue touched any dead body, & purify both your selues & your prisoners the. xii. day and the. vii. And sprynkle al your raimentes and all that is made of skynnes, and al worcke of gootes here, and al thyngs made of wood.

And Eleazar the priest sayd vnto all the men of war which went out to battel: this is the ordynance of the law which the lord commaunded Moyses: Gold, syluer, brasse, yron, tin and lead, and al that may abyde the fyre, ye shall make it go thorow the fyre, & then it is cleane. Reuerbelesse, it shall be sprynkled with sprynklynge water. And al that sufferech not the fyre, ye shall make go thorow the water, And wash your clothes the seuench day, and then ye are cleane. And after ward come into the host.

And the lord spake vnto Moyses, sayinge take the summe of the pray that was take, both of the women & of catel, thou & Eleazar the priest and the auncient heads of the congregacion. And deuoyde it into two partes, betwene them that toke the war vpon them and went out to battel and al the con-gregacio.

gregaciō. And take a porcion vnto þ lozde of the men of warre which wēt out to bat tel: one of siue hūdyed, of the womē and of the oren and of the asses and of the shepe: and ye shal take of theire halfe and geue it vnto Eleazar the priest, an heaueoffryng vnto the Lozde. And of the halfe of the chyldzen of Israel, take one offpsty, of the women, of the oren, of the asses and of the shepe, & of al maner of bestes, & geue them vnto the leuites which wait vpon the habi racyon of the Lozde.

And Moyses and Eleazar the priest dyd as the Lozde commaunded Moyses. And the bory and the pray which the men of warre had caught was. vi. hūdyed thousande and lxxv. thousand shepe: & lxxii. thousand oren. lxxii. thousand asses: and. xxxii. thousand women that had lpen by no man.

And the halfe whiche was the parte of them þ went out to warre, was. iiii. hūdyed thousande and. xxxvii. thousande, and syue hūdyed shepe: And the Lozdes partie of the shepe was. vi. hūdyed and. lxxv. And the oren were. xxxvi. thousande, of whych þ Lozdes part was. lxxii. And the asses were. xxx thousand and syue hundred, of whych the Lozdes parte was. lxi. And the women were xvi. thousande, of whych the Lozdes part was. xxxii. soules. And Moyses gaue that summe which was the lozdes heaueoffryng vnto Eleazar the priest: as the Lozde commaunded Moyses. And the other halfe of þ chyldzen of Israel which Moyses separated from the men of warre (that is to were, the halfe þ pertayned vnto the congregaci on) was. iiii. hūdyed thousand & xxxvii. thou sand and syue hūdyed shepe: & xxxvi. thou sand oren: and. xxx. thousande asses & syue hundred: & xvi. thousande women. And Moyses toke of thys halfe that pertayned vnto the chyldzen of Israel: one of every fyfpe, both of the women and of the catel, & gaue them vnto the Leuites whych way ted vpon the habitaciō of the Lozde, as the Lozde chmaūded Moyses. And the officers of thousandes of the booke, the captains ouer the thousandes & the captaines ouer þ hun dreds came forth & said vnto Moyses: Thy seruautes haue taken the summe of the mē of war, which were vnder oure band, & there lacked, not one man of the. We haue therefore brought a present vnto the Lozde what every man found of Jewels of gold, cheynes, braceletes, rynges, earyngs and spangles, to make an attonement for oure soules before the Lozde.

And Moyses and Eleazar toke the golde of them: Jewels of al maner facions. And al the gold of the heaueoffryng of þ Lozde the captaines ouer thousandes & hundreds was xvi. thousand. vii. hūdyed and. l. sicles for the mē of warre had spoyled, euerye mā for him selfe. And Moyses & Eleazar þ priest toke the gold of the captaines ouer þ thou sands and ouer the hundreds, and brought it into the tabernacle of wytnesse: to be a memoziall vnto the chyldzen of Israel, be fore the Lozde.

The xxxii. Chapter.

To Ruben and gad and to halfe the tribe of Manasses, is promised the possession be yond Jordan eastward: if they bynge their brethren into the land of promes.

The chyldzen of Ruben and the chyldzen of Gad, had an excreadyng grete multitude of catel. And whē they saw the land of Jazer and the land of Galaad that it was an apte place for catell, they came and spake vnto Moyses and Eleazar the priest and vnto the Lozdes of the congregacion, sayinge: The lande of Aroth and Dibon and Jazer, and Remoth and Hesbon and Elealeh and Sabam and Bebo and Beon, whych country the lord smote before the congregacyon of Israel: is a land for catel, and we thy seruautes haue catell wherfore (said they) if we haue found grace in thy syght, let thys lande be geuen vnto thy seruautes to possesse, and bynge vs not ouer Jordan.

And Moyses sayed vnto the chyldzen of Gad of & Ruben: Hal your brethren go to war & ye tary here: Wherfore discourage ye the hertes of the chyldzen of Israel for to ouer into the land which the Lozde hath ge uen them*. This did your father, when I sent the fro Cades barne to se þ land. And they went vp euen vnto the ryuer of Escol and sawe the lande, and dyscourage the hertes of the chyldzen of Israel, that they shoulde not go into the land which þ Lozde had geuen them.

And the Lozde was wroth the same time and sware sayinge. * None of the mē that came out of Egypte from twenty yere old and aboue, shal se the land which I swate vnto Abraham, Isaac and Jacob, because they haue not continually folowed me: saue Caleb the sonne of Jephune the Kenesite and Josua the sonne of Nun, for they haue folowed me continuallye. And the Lozde was angry wth Israel, and made them wander in the wilderness. xl. yere, vntyl al the generacyon that had done euell in the syght of the Lozde were consumed.

And behold, ye are rysen vp in youre fa thers steade, to the encrease of synful men, and to augment the fearle wraoth of þ Lozde to Israel warde. For if ye tourne a waye from after him, he wil yet agayn leaue the people in the wyldernesse, so shal ye destroy al thys folke. And they went nere him, and sayd: we wyl burye thei foldes here for our shepe and for oure catel, and citles for our chyldzen. But we our selues wil go re dy armed before the chyldzen of Israel, vntyl we haue brought them vnto their place And oure chyldzen shal dwell in the fenced ctyes, because of the inhabyters of þ land And we wyl not retourne vnto oure houses, vntyl the chyldzen of Israel haue ende reted: euery man bys enheritance. Josu. i. c.

And Moses sayed vnto them: * If ye wyl do this thyng, þe wyl go al harnessed before the Lord to warre, and wil go al of you in harnesse ouer Jordan before þe Lord vntyll he haue cast out hys enemies before him, and vntyll the land be subdued before the lord, then ye shal retourne and be without sinne agaynst the Lord & agaynst Israel, & this land shalbe your possession before the Lord. But and if ye wyl not do so, beholde, ye synne agaynst the Lord: & be sure your sinne wil fynd you out. Wild your eyes for your children and sluds for your shepe, and se ye do that ye haue spoke. And the children of Gad and of Ruben spake vnto Moses, sayinge: thy seruants wyl do as my Lord commaundet. Our children our wyues substance and all oure catelle shal remayne here in the ciues of Galaad. But * we thy seruantes wyl go al harnessed for the war vnto battel before the Lord as my Lord hath said.

Josu. iii. e.

And Moses commaunded Eleazar the High Priest: and Josua the sonne of Nun and auncient heades of the tribes of the children of Israel, and said vnto them: If the children of Gad and Ruben wyl go wyth you ouer Jordan, al prepared to fight before the Lord then when the land is subdued vnto you geue, the lande of Galaad to possesse, but and if they wyl not go ouer wyth you in harnesse, then they shal haue their possessions among you in the land of Canaan. And the children of Gad & Ruben answered, saying: þe whiche the Lord hath said vnto the seruantes we wyl do. We wyl go harnessed before the Lord into the land of Canaan, and the possession of our enheritaunce shalbe on this syde Jordan.

Josu. xii. a.

And Moses gaue vnto the children of Gad and of Ruben and vnto halfe the tribe of Manasse the sonne of Joseph, the kingdome of Sebon king of the Amoytes, & the kingdome of Og king of Basan, the lande that longed vnto the ciues thereof in the costes of the court round about the. And children of Gad built Didon, Ataroth, Aroer, Arroth Sophan, Jacsee, Hegabaa, Bethnimra & Betharan fenced ciues, and they buylt foldes for þe shepe. And the children of Ruben buylt Hesbon, Eleale, Kiriatbaym, Nebo, Baal Meon, and turned they names and Sybama also and gaue names vnto the ciues whiche they buylte.

dren of Galaad the sonne of Machir the sonne of Manasse of the kyned of the chyldren of Joseph came forth and spake before Moyses & the princes whiche were auncient heades amonge the chyldren of Israell, and sayed: * The Lorde commaunded my Lorde to geue the lande to enherit by lotte to the chyldren of Israell.
And then my Lorde commaunded in the name of the Lorde to geue the enheritaunce of Zelaphead our brother vnto his daughters. Nowe when any of the sonnes of the tribes of Israell take them to wyues, the shall their enheritaunce be taken from the enheritaunce of our fathers, and shalbe put to the enheritaunce of tribe in the whiche they are, and shalbe taken from the lotte of our enheritaunce. And when the yere of iubilee cometh vnto the chyldren of Israell, the shall their enheritaunce be put vnto the enheritaunce of the tribe wher in they are and so shall their enheritaunce be taken awaye from the enheritaunce of the tribe of our fathers.

And Moyses commaunded the chyldren of Israell at the mouth of the Lorde, saying: the tribe of the chyldren of Joseph haue sayde well. Whys therfore doth the Lorde commaunde the daughters of Zelaphead, sayinge: * let them be wyues to whiche they them selfe thynke beste, but in the kyned of the tribe of their father that they maye, that the enheritaunce of the chyldren of Israell role not from tribe to tribe. But that the chyldren of Israell maye abyde, every man in the enheritaunce of the tribe of his fathers. And every daughter that posses-seth any enheritaunce among the tribes of the chyldren of Israell, shalbe wyfe vnto one of the kyned of the tribe of her father, & the chyldren of Israell maye enjoy every man the enheritaunce of his father, and that the enheritaunce goe not from one tribe to another: but that the tribes of the chyldren of Israell, maye abyde euery man in his owne enheritaunce.

And as the Lorde commaunded Moyses euen so dyd the daughters of Zelaphead: Mahela, Tirza, Hagla, Milcha and Noa and were maryed vnto their fathers brothers sonnes, of the kyned of the chyldren of Manasse the sonne of Joseph: and so they had their enheritaunce in the tribe of the kyned of their father.

These are the commaundementes and lawes whiche the Lorde commaunded thowhe Moyses, vnto the chyldren of Israell in the fieldes of Moab vpon Mo-
dan nye vnto Jericho.

fusioun, and at necessity, yet if they repente and turne, he promyseth them that God shall remember his mercy and receyue them to grace agayne.

In the last he repeterh the. x. commaundemen-tes and that they myghte se a cause to doo them of loue, he byddeth them remembre that they were bounde in Egypt and how God deliuered red them with a myghty hand & a stretched out arm to serue him and to kepe his commaundemen-tes: as Paul sayeth that we are boughte with Christes

Christes bloude, and therefore are his seruantes and not our own, and oughte to seeke his will and honoure only, and to loue and serue one another for his sake.

In the lytthe he setteth oute the fountayne of all commaundementes: that is, that they beleue howe that there is but one God that doeth all, and therefore oughte only to be loued wth all the harte, all the soule, and all the myghte. For loue onlye is the fulfillinge of the commaundementes, as Paul also sayth vnto the Romaynes and Galathians likewise. He warneth them also that they forget not the commaundments but teach them the children and to shew their children also howe God deliuered them oute of the bondage of the Egyptians to serue him and his commaundementes, that the children myghte be a cause to worke of loue, lyke wyse.

The seventh, is altogether of fayth the remooueth all occasions that myght wthdrawe them from the fayth, and pulleth them also from all confidence in them selues, and strereth them vp to trust in God boldly, and onelye.

Of the eighth chapter, thou seest howe that the cause of all temptacion is, that a man mighte se his owne hert. For when I am brought in to that extremite that I must either suffer or forsake god, than I shal feele howe muche I beleue and trust in him, and howe much I loue him. In like maner if my brother do me euill for my good then if I loue him when there is no cause in him I se that my loue was of god, & euery so if I then hate him, I fele and perceiue that my loue was but wordly. And finallye he strereth them to the fayth and loue of god, and dreyeth them from all confidence of theyr owne selues.

In the ninth also, he moueth the vnto fayth and to put theyr trust in God, and draweth the from confidence of them selues by rehersynge all the wyckednesse whiche they had wroughte from the fyrste daye he knewe theim vnto that same daye. And in the ende he repeteth howe he confured God in hope and ouercame hym wth prayer, where thou mayest learn the ryght manner to praye.

In the tenth: he rekeneth vp the pith of all lawes and the keepynge of the law in the harte: whiche is too feare God, loue and serue hym, wth all theyr harte, soule and myghte and kepe hys commaundementes of loue. And he sheweth a reason whye they shoulde that doo: such be cause God is Lord of heauen and erth and hath also done all for them of hys owne goodnesse wthoute theyr deservynge. And then out of the loue vnto God, he bringeth the loue vnto a mans neyghboure, sayinge: God is Lord a-oue all Lordes and loueth all hys seruantes indifferentlye, as well the poore feble, and the straunger, as the ryche and myghtye, and therefore wyl that we loue the poore and the straunger. And he addeth a cause, for ye were straungers and God deliuered you and hath brought you vnto a lande where ye be at home. Loue the straunger therefore: for hys sake.

In the xi. he exhorteth them to loue and feare God, and reherseth the terrible deades of God vpon hys ennemyes, and on them that rebelled agaynste hym. And he testifieth vnto the both what wyl folowe if they loue and feare God. And what also if they dispise him & breake his commaundementes.

In the xii. he commaundeth to put out of thy way all that myghte be an occasion to hurte the faythe, and forbyddeth to doo oughte after their owne myndes, or to alter the worde of God.

In the xiii. he forbyddeth to herke vnto oughte saue vnto gods word: no though he which counseleth contrary shuld come wth miracle, as paul doth vnto the Galathians.

In the xiiii. the beastes are forbydden, parte lye for the vncleynesse of them, and partelye to cause hate betwene the heathen and them, that they haue no consuetudyn together, in that one abhorreth what the other eateth. Vnto thys. xv.

Chapter al pertayne vnto fayth and Loue chief lye. And in this. xv. he begynneth too entreate moze spyciallye of thynges pertaynyng vnto the common wealthe and equyte and exhorteth vnto the loue of a mans neyghboure. And in the xvi. amonge other he forgetteth not the same.

And in the xvii. he entreteyth of right and equite chief lye, in so muche that when he looketh vnto fayth and vnto the punishment of idolaters, he yettendeth in a lawe of loue and equite: forbyddynge to condemne any man vnder les then two wytnesses at the treste and commaundeth too bynng the trespassers vnto the open gate of the cite where al men go in and oute, that all men myghte heare the cause and se that he hadde but ryghte. But the pope hath founde a better waye such to appose hym wthoute anye accusar, and that secretlye, that no man knowe whether hee hatte ryghte or no: either here his articles or answers: for feare leaste the people shoulde see the whether it were so or no.

In the xviii. he forbyddeth all false & deuylsh craftes that hurte true fayth. Wherby because the people could not heare the voyce of a lawe spoken to the in tyme, he promyseth them another prophet to bring the better tidings whiche was spoken of Christ our sauoure.

The. xix. and so forth vnto the end of the. xxvii. is almost altogether of loue vnto our neibours and of lawes of equite, and honestly with nowe and then a respecte vnto faythe.

The. xxviii. is a terrible chap, and to betrembled at: A chrysten mans heart might wel bleue for sorowe at the readynge of it, for feare of the wrath that is lyke to come vpon vs accordynge vnto al the curses whiche thou ther readest. For accordynge vnto these curses hath God deale wth al natyons, after they wer fallen into the abhominacions of blyndnesse.

The. xix. is lyke terrible, wth a godly lesse in the ende that we shuld leaue seerching of gods secretes and geue diligence to walch accordynge to that he hath opened vnto vs. For the keepynge of the commaundementes of God teacheth wyl dome as thou mayest see in the same Chapter, where Moyses saythe, kepe the commaundementes, that ye maye vnderstand what ye oughte too doo. But too searche Goddes secretes blyndeth a manne as it wel proued by the swarmes of oure sophisters, whose wyse bookes are nowe when we looke in the scripture, founde but full of folyshnesse.

Deutronomium.

The fyrste Chapter.

A brief rehearfall of thynges doone before, from the pytchyng at Horeb vntill they came to Cades barne.

These be the wordes whiche Moyses spake vnto al Israel on the other side Jordan in the wilderness and in the feldes by the red see, betwene pharan & thophell, Laban, Hazereth, and Disahab. xi. daies iourney from Horeb vnto Cades barne, by the waye that leadeth to mount Seir. And it happened the fyrst day of the xi. moneth, in the xi. yere that Moyses spake to the chyldren of Israel accor- dyng vnto al that the Lord had geuen him in commaundemente vnto them after that he had smitten Sehon the king of the Amorites which dwelt in Hesbon & og kinge of Basan, which dwelt at Ashtoreth in Edrai.

Num. xxi. 2.

On the otherside Jordan in the lande of Moab, Moyses began to declare this lawe, sayinge: the Lord our God spake vnto vs in Horeb, sayinge: ye haue dwelte long y nough in this mount: departe therefore and take youre iourneye and goo vnto the hylles of the Amorites, and vnto all places nye there vnto: boote the fieldes, hylles and dales: and vnto the south and vnto the sea syde of the lande of Canaan, and vnto the banon euen vnto the great riuier Euphrates. Beholde, I haue set the lande before you, goo in therfore and possesse the lande which the Lord sware vnto your fathers. Abraham, Isaac and Iacob, to geue vnto the and theyr seede after them.

Horeb and Sinai are both one.

And I sayd vnto you the same season: I am not hable too beare my selfe alone. For the Lord your God hath multiplied you so that ye are this day as the sterres of hea- uen in number (the Lord God of your fa- thers make you a thousand tymes so ma- ny mo as ye are, and blesse you as he hath prompted you (howe) sayde I) can I my self alone beare the accumbraunce, charge & strafe that is amonges you: bringe therfore men of wysdome and of vnderstanding and of experiente, knowne among your trybes that I may make the rulers ouer you. And ye answered me and said, that whiche thou hast spoken is good to be done. And then I toke the heades of your tribes, men of wis- dom and experiente, and made them rulers ouer you: capitaines ouer thousandes, and ouer hundredes, ouer fyfthe, and ouer x. and officers amonge your trybes.

The .i. Chapter.

And I charged your Iudges the same time, saying: heare your brethzen, and iudge righteously betwene euerye man and his brother and the straunger that is with him. Se ye knowe no mans personage in iudg- mente, * but heare the small as well as the greate, and bee a frayde of noo manne, for the iudgemente is Goddes. And the cause that is to hard for you, bring vnto me, and I wyl heare it. And I commaunded you the same season all thynges whiche ye shulde doo. And then wee departed from Horeb, and walcked thorowe all that greate and terrible wilderness as ye haue sene along by the waye that leadeth vnto the hilles of the Amorites, as the Lord our God com- manded vs, and came to Cades Barn. And there I said vnto you: Ye are come vnto the hilles of the Amorites which the Lord oure God dothe geue vs.

Leul. xxi. c. Pro. xxi. 1. Eccl. xli. 2.

Beholde, the Lord thy God hath set the lande before, go vp and conquere it, as the Lord God of thy fathers saythe vnto the: feare not: neyther be discouraged. And then ye came vnto me euerye one, and said, Let vs send men before vs, to insearch out the land, and to bringe vs woordes agayne, boote what waye we shall goo vp by, and vnto what ctytes we shall come. And the saying pleased me well, and I toke twelue men of you, of euery trybe one. And they de- parted and went vp into the hyghe coun- trye, and came vnto the rpuer Escoll, and serched it oute, and toke of the fruite of the land in theyr handes, and brought it down vnto vs: and brought vs word agayne and said: It is a good land which the Lord our God dothe geue vs.

Notwithstanding ye wold not consente to goo vp, but were disobediente vnto the mouth of Lord your god, and murmured in your tentes, and sayd: because the Lord hateth vs, therfore he hath brought vs out of the lande of Egypte, too delpue vs in to the hands of the Amorites, and to destroy vs. Howe shal we goo vp? Oure brethzen haue discouraged our herts, sayinge: The people is greater and taller then we, and the ctyes are great and walled, euen vp to heauen, & moreouer we haue sene the sonnes of the Enakims there.

And I sayd vnto you: dred not, nether be afraid of them. The Lord your God which goth before you, he shal fight for you accor- ding to al that he did vnto you in Egypt, be- fore your eis in the wilderness, as thou hast sene how the Lord thy God bare the as a man shuld beare his sonne thorowe oute all the waye whiche ye haue gone, tll ye came vnto this place. And yet for al this, ye did not beleue the Lord your God, whiche goeth the waye before you, to searche you oute a place too pytche your tentes in, * fyre be- night, that ye might se what waite to go, and in a cloude by daye.

And the Lord hearde the voyce of youre woordes, and was wroothe and sware, sayinge:

Num. xiii. d sayinge, there shall not one of these menne of thys frowarde generacion se that good lande which I swaue to geue vnto your fathers, saue Caleb the sonne of Iephune he shall se it, and to him wil I geue the lande whiche he hath walked in, and to his chyldren because he hath continuallye folowed the Lorde. Num. xxi. b I pke wylse the Lorde was angry wth me: for your sakes, sayinge: thou also shalt not goo in thither. But Josua the sonne of Nun, whiche standeth before the, he shall go in thither. Bolden him therefore for he shall deuyde the heritage vnto Israell.

Num. xlii. f. *Moreouer your chyldrene whiche ye sayde shoulde be a praye, and your sonnes whiche knowe neyther good nor bad thys day, they shal go in thither, and vnto them I wyl geue it, and they shall enioye it. But as for you, turne backe and take your iourne into the wilderness: euen the waye to the redde sea. Then ye answered & sayde vnto me: We haue sinned against the lord we wil go vp and fight, accordynge too all that the Lord our God commaunded vs. And when ye had gyde on every manne in weapons of war, and were redye to goo vp into the hylles, the Lord sayd vnto me: say vnto the, se ye go not vp, and that ye fight not, for I am not amog you: lest ye be scoutged before your enemies. *And whē I told you, ye woulde not heare: but disobeyed the mouth of the Lord, and wente presumptuously vp into hilles.

Then the Amozites which dwelt in these hilles, came out against you and chased you as bees do, & hewed you in Seir, euen vnto Horma. And ye came again and wept before the Lord: but the Lord wold not heare your voice, nor giue you audiece. And so ye abode in Cades alonge season.

The.ii. Chapter.

Deuter. i. A rehersall of that whiche was done from the tyme that they departed frome Cades barnē, vnto the battell againste the kynges Sehon and Og.

Deuter. ii. Then we turned and toke our iourne into the wilderness, euen the way to the red sea as the Lorde commaunded me. And we compassed the mountaynes of Seir a longe time. Then the Lorde spake vnto me, sayinge: Ye haue compassed thys mountaynes long ynough, turn you northwarde. And warne the people, sayinge: Ye shall go thorow the costes of your brethren the chyldren of Esau, whiche dwel in Seir, and they shall be a frapde of you: But take good heede vnto your selues, that ye prouoke them not, for I wyl not geue you of theyr land, no not so much as a fote bread: because I haue geuen mount Seir vnto Esau to possesse. Ye shall by meate of theym for monye to eate, and ye shall by water of them for monye to dryncke. For the Lorde thy God hath blessed the in all thy workes of thynne hande, and knew the as thou wentest thorow his greate wilderness.

Moreouer the Lorde thy God hath bene with the this fourti yeres, so that thou hast lacked nothyng.

And when wee were departed from our brethren the chyldren of Esau which dwelt in Seir by the feilde waye from Elath and Ezion Gaber, we tourned and wente the waye to the wilderness of Moab. Then the Lorde saide vnto me, se that thou bere not the Moabites, nether prouoke them to batel, for I wil not geue the of theyr lande to possesse: because I haue geuen Ar vnto the chyldren of Loth to possesse. The Emmites dwelt therein in tymes past, a people great, many and tall, as the Enakims: which also were taken for gyautes as the Enakims. And the Moabites called them Emmites.

In lyke maner the Horims dwelt in Seir before them whiche the chyldrene of Esau caste oute, and destroyed them before them, and dwelte therein theyr steade: as Israhel dyd in the lande of his possession which the Lorde gaue them. Nowe tyme by (sayd I) and get you ouer the riuer zared, and we wente ouer the riuer zared. The space in whiche we came from Cades Barne, vntill we were come ouer the riuer zared was xxxviii. yeres, vntill all the generacion of me of warre were wasted oute of the hooite as the Lorde swaue vnto theym. For in dede the hande of the Lorde was againste them to destroye them oute of the hooite, till they were consumed.

And as soone as all the men of war were consumed and dead forth of the people, then the Lorde spake vnto me, sayinge: Thou shalt go thorow Ar the cost of Moab this day, and shalt come nere vnto the chyldren of Ammon: se that thou bere them not, nor yet prouoke them. For I wil not geue the of the lande of the chyldren of Ammon too possesse, because I haue geuen it vnto the chyldre of Loth to possesse. That also was taken for a lande of Gyautes, and Gyautes dwelte there in olde tyme, and the Ammonites called them zanzumims. A people that was greate, manye and tall, as the Enakims. But the Lorde destroyed theym before the Ammonites, and they cast them oute, and they dwelte there in theyr steade as he dyd for the chyldrene of Esau, which dwell in Seir: euen as he destroyed the Horims before them, and they caste them oute and dwel in their steade vnto this day. And the Aums whiche dwelte in Hazerim euen vnto Aza, the Caphthorims which came of Caphthor, destroyed them and dwelte in theyr rowmes.

Aske ye, take your iourne and goo ouer the riuer Arnon. Behold. *I haue geuen into thy hand Sehon the Amozit, king of Desbon and his Lande. Goo and conquere and prouoke him to battayle. Thys day I wil begin to send the feare and dread of the vpon al nacions that ar vnder al portes of the heauen, so that when they heare speake of the, they shal tremble and quake for feare of the.

Emm a kynd of Gyautes so called because they were terrible & cruell, for Emm signifieth terriblenes.

Num. xxi. d.

Then I sente messengers out of the wylternesse of the east vnto Sehon kyng of Heshbon wpth wordes of peace, sayinge: * Let me go thowowe thy lande. I wpll go alwayes alonge by the hye wape, and will neyther tourne vnto the ryghte hande nor to the left. Sel me meate for mony to eate, and geue me drynke for mony to drynke. I wpll goo thowowe by fote onelye) as the children of Esau did vnto me whiche dwell in Seir, and the Moabites whiche dwell in Ar) vntyll I be come ouer Iordan into the land whiche the Lord our God geueth vs.

But Sehon the kyng of Heshbon wold not let vs pas by him, for the Lord thy god had hardned his spirite, & made his hert toughe because he wold deliuer him into thy hand as it is come to passe this dape.

And the Lord sayde vnto me, behold, I haue begon too set Sehon and hys Lande before the: go to and conquere, that thou mayest possesse hys lande. Then bothe Sehon and al his people came out againste vs vnto batayle at Jahaza. And the Lord set him before vs, and wee smote him and his sonnes and al his people.

And we tooke all his cities the same season and destroyed al hys ctytes, wpth men womenne and chyldrene, and let nothinge remayne saue the castell onelye we caught vnto oure selues, and the spople of the ctytes whiche we tooke, frome Aroer vppon the brynke of the ryuer of Arnon, and the ctyte in the ryuer, vnto Galaad: there was not one ctyte to stronge for vs. The Lord oure God deliuered all vnto vs: onelye vnto the lande of the chyldrene of Ammon ye came not, nor vnto al the coste of the ryuer Iabocke, nor vnto the ctytes in the mountaynes, nor vnto whatsoever the Lord our God forbade vs.

The.iii. Chapter

A rehearsal of thyngs that chaunced from the victory of the.ii. kings Sehon & Og, vnto the institution of Iosua in Mossesteade.

Then we turned and went by the way to Basan: * And Og the kyng of Basan came oute agaynst vs, bothe he and al his people to batel at Edrai. And the Lord sayde vnto me: feare him not: for I haue deliuered him and all hys people and his lad into thy hande, and thou shalt deale with him as thou dealest with Sehon kyng of the Amozites which dwelte at Heshbon. And so the Lord our God deliuered in to our handes, Og also the kyng of Basan, and all his folcke. And we smote hym, tply noughte was left hym.

And we toke al his citis the same season (for ther was not a ctyte whiche we toke not fro them, euē thre score cities, al the region of Argob, the kyngdom of Og in Basan. Al these cities were made strong wpth hye walles, Gates and barres, besyde walled townes a greate manepe. And wee utterly destroyed them as we played with Sehon kyng of Heshbon, brynging to nau- ghte al the cities with menne, women, and children. But al the catel and the spople of the ctytes, we preserued for oure selues.

And thus we toke the same season: the lande oute of the hande of the two kynges of the Amozites on the other syde Iordan from the ryuer of Arnon vnto mounte Hermon, (whiche Hermon the Sidons cal Sirion, but the Amozites call it Senyr) al the ctytes in the playne, and all Galaad, and all Basan vnto Salecha and Edrai, cityes of the kyngdome of Og in Basan. For on- ly Og kyng of Basan remained of the rest of the giaunts, behold his pryson bed is yet at Rabah among the children of Ammon. ix. cubites longe, and. iiii. cubites brode, of the cubites of a manne.

And when we had conquered thys lande the same tyme, I gaue from Aroer, whiche is vpon the ryuer of Arnon, and half mount Galaad, and the cities therof vnto the Rubenites, and Gadites. And the rest of Galaad and all Basan, the kyngdome of Og, I gaue vnto the halfe tribe of Manasse, al the region of Argob withal. Basan was called the Lande of gyautes. Jair the sonne of Manasse tooke all the regyon of Argob vnto the coastes of Besuri and Maachati, and called them after his owne name: Basan* Bauoth Jair vnto thys dape. And I gaue half Galaad vnto Machir. And vnto Ruben and Gad I gaue from Galaad vnto the ryuer of Arnon, and half the valley and the cost, even vnto the ryuer Iabocke, which is the border of the children of Ammon, and the felde & Iordan with the cost from Ceneroth vnto þ sea in the feld, whiche is the salt sea vnder þ springs of phas- gah eastwarde.

And I commaunded you the same tyme (ye Ruben and Gad) sayinge: the Lord your God hath geuen you this land to enioy it: se you go harnessed befor your brethren the chyldren of Israel all that are men of war amonges you. Your wyues only, your chyldren and your catel (for I wot that pehaue much catel) shal abide in your cities which I haue geuen you, vntil the Lord haue ge- uen rest vntyl your brethren as wel as vnto you, and vntil thei also haue conquered the land which the Lord your God hath geuen them beyond Iordan: and then retorne agayn every man vnto his possession which I haue geuen you.

And I warned Iosua the same time, say- inge: thyne eies haue sene al that the Lord your God hath done vnto these two kyn- ges, even soo the Lord wpll doo vnto all kyngdomes whither thou goeste. Feare them not, for the Lord your God it is, that fygtheth for you.

And I besought the Lord the same time sayinge: O Lord thy God, thou haste be- gon to shewe thy seruauit thy greatnes & thy myghte hande, for there is no God in heauen

And nowe herken Israel vnto the or-dinaunces and lawes which I teach you for to do them, that ye may lyue and go and conquire the lande whiche the God of your fathers geueth you. Ye shall putte nothyng vnto the worde whiche I commaunde you, neyther doo oughte there from, that ye may kepe the commaunde-mentes of the Lorde your God, whiche I commaunde you. * Your eyes haue seene what the Lord did to Baal peor: for al the men þ folowed Baal peor, the Lorde your God hath destroyed amonge you. But ye ye that claue vnto the Lord your God, are aloue euerpe one of you thys dape. Behold I haue taught you ordynaunces and lawes suche as the Lorde my God commaunded me that ye shuld do in the land whether ye go to possesse it.

Kepe them therefore and do them, * for that is your wysdome and vnderstandyng in the syghte of the nacions: whiche when they haue hearde all theese ordynaunces, shall saye: What a wyse and vnderstandyng people is thys greater nacyon. For what nacyon is so greute that hath the God so nye vnto hym: as the Lorde our God is nye vnto vs in all thinges, when we cal vnto hym: Yea, and what nacyon is so great that hath the ordynaunces and lawes so righ-teouse as all thys lawe whiche I set before you this dape.

Take heede to thy selfe therefore onelye, and keepe thy soule dyligently, that thou forgette not the thynges whiche thine eyes haue seene, and that they departe not oute of thine hearte, all the dayes of thy lyfe: but teachethem thy sonnes, and thy sons sonnes. The dape that I stode before the Lorde your God in Horeb when he sayde vnto me, gather me the people together, þ I maye make them heare my woordes to thintent they myght learne to feare me as longe as they liue vpon the earth, and that they may teach thy chylidren: ye came and stode also vnder the hyl, and the hyl burnte with fire euen vnto the midsof heauen and ther was darknes, clouds and mist. And the Lord spake vnto you out of the fire, and ye herde the voyce of the wordes: but saw no image, saue herde a voyce onelye.

And he declared vnto you his couenaunt whiche he commaunded you to do, euen ten sayings, & wrot them in two tables of stone.
And the Lorde commaunded me that same season to teach you ordynaunces and lawes, for to do them in the land whether ye go to possesse it.

Take hede vnto your selues dyligent-lye concernyng your soules, for ye saw no manner of image the dape when the Lorde spake vnto you in Horeb oute of the fyre, leaste you marre your selves: and make you grauen ymages after whatsoeuer lykenes it be: whether after the likenesse of man or womanne, or any manner beaste that is on the earthe, or of any manner fethered fowle that flieth in þ ayre, or of any maner wor-me that crepeth on the earth, or of anye maner fische is in the water beneth the earthe: ye and leaste thou lyft vp thine eyes vnto heauen, and when thou seest the sonne and the mone and the sters, and what soeuer is contained in heuen, shuldest be discouered, & shuldest bow thy selfe vnto them, & serue thin-ges which the Lord thy God hath distributed vnto al nacions, that are vnder al quarters of heauen.

For the Lorde toke you and broughte you oute of the pryncedome of Egypte, to be vnto him a people of enheritaunce, as it is come to passe thys dape. Furthermore, the Lorde was angry wyth me for your sakes and swaie, that I shuld not go ouer Jordan, and that I shoulde not goo vnto that good Lande, whiche the Lorde thy God geueth the to enheritaunce. For I must dye in this lande, and shall not go ouer Jordan. But ye shal go ouer and conquer that good lande.

Take hede vnto your selfe therefore that ye forget not the apoyntment of the Lord your God whiche he made with you, and that ye make you no graue image of what soeuer it be þ the Lorde thy God hath for-biddyn the. For the Lord thy God is a consuming fire and a gelous God.

If after thou hast gotten chylidren, and chylidrens chylidren, and haste dwelt longe in the Lande, ye shall marre your selues and make Grauen Images after the lykenesse of whatsoeuer it be, and shalt worke wyckednesse in the syghte of the Lorde thy God, to prouoke hym, I cal heauen and earthe too recorde vnto you thys dape, that ye shall shortlye perishe forthe of the Lande whether ye goo ouer Jordan to possesse it: ye shal not prolong your dayes therein, but shall shortlye be destroyed.
And the Lord shal scatter you amonges na-cions, and ye shall be lefte fewe in numbre amonge

amonge the people whpther the Lord shal brynge you: and there pe shal serue goddes whiche are the workes of mannes handes, wodde and stone whpche neyther see, nor hear, nor eate, nor smell. Neuerthelesse, ye shal seke the Lorde your God euen there, and shal finde him, if thou seke him with al thine hert, and with al thy soule. In thy tri-bulacion: and when all theese thynges are come vpon the euen in the later daies, thou shalte tourne vnto the Lorde thy God, and shalte herken vnto hys voyce. For the Lord thy god is a pitiful god: he wil not forsake the, nether destroy the, nor forgette the ap-poyntment made with thy fathers whiche he swore vnto them.

For aske I praye the, of the dayes that are passe whpche were befoze the, from the day that God created man vpon the earth and from the one syde of heauen vnto the other, whether anpe thyng hathe ben like vnto thys greates thyng, or whether anpe suche thyng hathe bene hearde as it is, that a nacyon hathe harde the voyce of god speakinge oute of fyre as thou haste heard and yet lyued. Either whether God assaid to go and take him a peple among nacions thorow temptacions and signes and wonders and thorow war and wpth a myghtye hand and a stretched out arme, and wpth myghtye terrible lighes, accordyng vnto al that the Lord your God did in Egypte be-foze your eyes.

Vnto the it was shewed, that thou migh-test know, that the Lord is God, and that there is none but he. * Oute of heauen he made the heare hys voyce too nourter the,
and vpon earth he shewed the his great fyre, and thou heardest hys wordes oute of the fyre. And because he loued thy fathers, therefore he chose the; seede after theym, and brought the out with his presence, and with his myghty power of Egypt: to thrust out nacions greter and mightier then thou before the, to brynge the in, and to geue the theyr land to enheritaunce as it is come to passe thys daye.

Understand therefore this day and turne it to thine hert, that the Lord he is God in heauen aboue, and on the earth beneth, ther is no mo: kepe therefore his ordinaunces, his commaundments whiche I commaund the thys daye, that it maye goo well wpth the and wpth thy childrene after the, and that thou mayste prolonge thy dayes vpon the earth whiche the Lorde thy God geueth the thy lyfe longe.

Then Moses seuered thre cities on the othersyde Jordan toward the son risinge that he shuld flie thither whiche had kyled his neighbour vnwares, and hated him not in time past, and therefore shuld be vnto one of the same cities and liue: Bezer in the wil-dernesse, in the playne contray amonge the Rubenites: and Ramoth in Galaad among the Gadites, and Solon in Balan amongs the Manassites.

This is the lawe whiche Moses set be-foze the children of Israel, and these ar the wyttnesses, ordinaunces and statuts whiche Moses told the childre of Israel, after thei came out of Egypte, on the otherside Jordan in the vally belyde Beth sheor in the land of Sehon kynge of the Amorytes whiche dwelt at Hesbon: whom Moses and the children of Israel, * smot after they were come forth of Egypt, and coquered his lad, and the land of Og king of Basa two kinges of the Amorytes on the other syde Jordan toward the sonne rysinge: from Aroer vpon the bancke of the ryuer Arnon, vnto mount Sion which is called Hermon, and al the felde on the othersyde Jordan eastward: to the sea in the field vnder the springes of Jhalgath.

The. vi. Chapter.

The law must be earnestly printed in theyr hartes, & to kepe it in memoery they must wyte it on the doores and postes of theyr houses: And teache it vnto theyr chyliden.

These are the commaundementes, ordinaunces & lawes, which þ lord your God commaunded to teach you, that ye might do the in the land whether ye goo to possesse it: that thou mightest feare the Lord thy God, to kepe al his ordinaunces, and his commaundementes whiche I commaund the, both thou and thy son, and thy sonnes sonne al dayes of thy lyfe, that thy dayes may be prolonged. Heare therfore Israel, & take hede that thou do thereafter, þ it maye go well with the, and that ye maye encrease mightely, even as the lord God of thy fathers hath promysed the, a land that floweth with milke and hony.

Heare Israel, the lord thy God is lord only, and thou shalt loue the lord thy God with all thyne hart, with al thy soule, and with all thy might. And these words which I commaund the this daye, shalbe in thine herte, & thou shalt whet them on thy children, and shalt talke of them whē thou art at home in thyne house, & as thou walkest by the waye, and when thou lpest downe, and when thou risest vp: and thou shalt bynde them for a sygne vpon thyne hande. And they shalbe papers of remembraunce betwene thyne eyes, and shalt wyte them vpon the postes of thy house & vpon thy gates.

And when the lord thy God hath brought the into the land, which he swaue vnto thy fathers Abraham, Isaac and Jacob, to geue the: with great & goodly cities which thou buildest not, and houses ful of al goodes, whiche thou filledest not, and welles dygged, which thou diggedst not, & vines & oliue trees, which thou plantedst not, and when thou hast eaten and arte full: then beware lest thou forget the Lord, whiche brought the out of the land of Egypte, the house of bondage. But feare the lord thy god and serue him, and swere by his name, and se ye waleke not after straunge Goddes of the nacions which are aboute you. For the lord thy God is a gelouse God among you, least the wrath of the lord thy god ware hooted vpon the, and destroye the from the earth.

Ye shall not tempte the lord your god, as ye dyd at * Malā. Thou shalt say vnto thy sonne: We were bounden men vnto pharaon in Egypt, but the Lord brought vs out of Egypt with a mighty hand. And the lord shewed signes and wonders both great and euil vpon Egypt, pharaon and vpon all his household, before our eyes, and brought vs from thence: to bring vs in, & to giue vs the land which he sware vnto our fathers. And therfore commaunded vs to do all these ordinances, & to feare the lord our god, for our welth alwaies, & that he might saue vs, as it is come to passe this daye. Moreouer it shal be righteousness vnto vs before the lord our God, if we take hede to kepe all these commaundementes, as he hath commaunded vs.

The Israelites may make no leage or covenannt wth the gentils. They must destroye theyr Idols. Them þ kepe the commaundementes doth God loue and blesse, and the contrarie hateth & punyssheth. Idolaters must be slayne.

Also thou shalt make no marriages with the, ne giue thy daughter vnto his sonne, nor take his daughter vnto thy son. For they will make your sons departe from me, and serue straunge goddes, & the will the wrath of the lord be hote vpon you, and destroye you shortly.

But thus ye shall deale with them: ouerthrowe their altares, breake downe theyr pillars, cut downe their groves, and burne their ymages with fire. For thou art an holy nacpō vnto the lord thy god, the lord thy god hath chosen the, to be a seueral people vnto him selfe, of al nations that are vpon the earth. It was not because of the multitude of you aboue al nacpōns that þ Lord had lust vnto you, & chose you. For ye were fewest of all nations. But because the lord loued you, and because he wold kepe þ oth which he hadde sworne vnto your fathers, therfore he brought you out of Egypt with a mighty hand, and deliuered you forth of the house of bondage: even from the hand of pharaon, kpng of Egypt.

Understand therfore, that the lord thy God is God, and that a true God, whyche kepeth appointment and mercy vnto them that loue hym, & kepe hys commaundements, even thourow out a thousand generacions, & rewardeth the that hate him before his face, so that he bringeth them to nought, & will not differ þ time vnto him that hateth him: but will rewarde him before his face. is re- therfore the commaundementes, ordinances and laws, whyche I commaunde you this daye, that ye do them.

If ye shal herken vnto these laws & shall fulfil and do them, then shall the lord thy God kepe appointment with the & the mercy which he sware vnto thy fathers, & will loue the, blesse the, and multiply the: he will blesse the fruit of thy wombe, & the fruit of thy fildes, thy corne, thy wine, & thine oyle, the fruite of thine oren, and the flockes of thy shepe in the land, which he sware vnto thy fathers to giue the. Thou shalt be blessed aboue all nacions, there shalbe neither man nor womā vnfruitful among you, nor any thyng vnfruitfull amonges your cattel. Moreouer the Lord will turne fro the all maner infirmities, and will put none of the euill dysceases of Egypt (which thou knowest) vpon the, but will sende them vpon them that hate the.

Exo. ix. a.

Thou shalt bring to nought all nacpōns, which þ lord thy God deliuereth the, thine eye shall haue no pitie vpon them, neyther shalt thou serue their goddes, for that shall be thy decaye. If thou shalt saye in thine hert, these nacions are mo than I, howe can I cast them out? Feare them not, but remembre, what the lord thy God did vnto pharaon, and vnto al Egypt, and the great tem- tacions which thine eyes sawe, and the signes and wonders, and mightie hand & stretched arme, wherewith the Lord thy God, brought the out: even so shall the Lord thy God do vnto al the nacpōns of which thou art afrayde.

Wherto, the lord thy God will send hornettes among them, vntill they that are left and hide the selues from the, be destroyed. Se thou feare them not, for the Lord thy god is among you, a mighty god and a terrible. The Lord thy god wil put out these nations before the by lytle and lytle, thou mayest not consume them at ones, least the beastes of the field encrease vpon the. And the lord thy God shall deliuer the vnto the and styre vp a mighty tempest among the vntill they be broughte to nought. And he shall deliuer theyr kynges into thine hand, & thou shalt destroye theyr names away vnder heauen. Ther shall no man stand before the, vntill thou haue destroyed them. The ymages of their goddes thou shalt burne with fire, and se thou couet not the silver or gold, that is on the, nor take it vnto the, least thou be charred therewith. For it is an abhominacyō vnto the lord thy god. xl. pers

xl. yere, whiche they were in the wilderness.

All the commandementes, whiche I commaunde the this daye, ye shall kepe to do them, that ye maye lue & multiply, and go & possesse the land which the Lord swaue vnto your fathers. And thinke on all the waye, which the Lord thy God led the this xl. yere in the wilderness, for to humble the and to proue the, to wete what was in thine hert, whether thou woldest kepe his commandementes or no. He humbled the and made the hongry, & fed the with Manna, which neither thou, nor thy father knewe of, to make the knowe, that a man must not liue by bread only: but by all that proceedeth out of the mouth of the Lord must a man lue. The rapmet warred not olde vpon the, neither didde thy fete swell this xl. yere.

Understand therfore in thine hert, that as a man noureteth his sonne, euen so the Lord thy God noureteth the. Keep therfore the commandements of the Lord thy God, that thou walcke in his waies, & that thou feare him. For the Lord thy God bringeth the into a good lande, a lande of riuers of water, of fountaines, and of springs, that spraye oute bothe in baleies and hilles: a land of whete and of barley, of vines, figge trees and pomgranates, a lande of olyue trees of oyle, and of honie: a lande wherein thou shalt not eat bread in scarcenes, and where thou shalt lacke nothinge, a lande whose founnes are prou, and oute of whose hilles thou shalt digge brasie. When thou hast eaten therfore and filled thy selfe, the blesse the Lord for the good lande, which he hath giuen the.

But beware thou forget not the Lord thy God, that thou woldest kepe his commandements, lawes and ordinaunces which I commaunde the this daye: yea and when thou hast eaten and filled thy selfe, and hast buylte goodly houses, and dwelt therein, and when thy beastes and thy shepe are waxed many, and thy siluer & gold is multiplied, and all that thou hast encreased, then beware lest thine hert ryle, and thou forgette the Lord thy God, which brought the out of the lande of Egypt the house of bondage, and which led the in the wilderness, both great & terrible with fyre serpentes and Scorpions, & drouth wher was no water, which brought the water out of the rocke of flint: whiche fed the in the wilderness with Manna, wherof thy fathers knew not, for to humble the and to proue the, that he mighte do good at thy latter ende.

And beware thou saye not in thine hert, my power & the might of mine owne hande hath done me all these actes: But remembre the Lord thy God, that it is he whiche gaue the power to doo manfullye, for to make good the promise which he swaue vnto thy fathers, as it is come to passe this daye.

For if thou shalt forget the Lord thy God, and shalt walke after straunge Gods and serue them and worship them. I testify vnto you this day, that ye shall surely perishe. As the nations whiche the Lord destroyeth before the, so ye shall perishe, because ye woulde not hearken vnto the voyce of the Lord your God.

The. ix. Chapter.

They are forbidden to trust in theyr owne strength. A rehearsal of certayne thinges that were done after the lawe was giuen, vnto the murmuring at the graues of the laste.

Heare Israel, thou goest ouer Jordan this day, to go & conquere nations greater and mightier then thy selfe, and cities great and walled vp to heauen, & people great and tall, euen the children of the Anakims, which thou knowest & of whom thou hast heard say, who is able to stand before the children of Enack? But understand this day, that the Lord thy God whiche goeth before the, a consuming fire, he shall destroy them, and shall subdue them before the. And thou shalt cast them out, & bynge them forth, and destroy quickly as the Lord hath sayd vnto the.

Speake not in thine herte, after that the Lord thy God hath cast the out before the, saying: for my righteousness the Lord hath brought me in, to possesse this land. Naue, for the wickednes of these nations, & Lord doth cast them out before the. It is not for thy righteousness and right hert, that thou goest to possesse the land: But partly for the wickednesse of these nations, the Lord thy God doth cast them out before the, and partly to performe that the Lord thy God swaue vnto thy fathers, Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob.

Understand therfore, that it is not for thy righteousness, that the Lord thy God doth giue the this good land to possesse, for thou art a stiffnecked people. Remembre & forget not, how thou prouokedst the Lord thy God in the wilderness: for sythen the day that thou camest out of the land of Egypt vntill ye came vnto this place, ye haue rebelled agaynst the Lord. * Also in Horeb ye angred the Lord, so that the Lord was wroth with you, eue to haue destroyed you, after that I was gone vp into the mount, to fet the tables of stone, the tables of appointment, whiche the Lord made wth you. And I abode in the hill xl. dayes, and xl. nyghtes, & neither ate bread nor drank water. * And the Lord deliuered me two tables of stonne wyrtten wth the synger of God, and in them was contayned, accordyng to all the wordes, whiche the Lord sayd vnto you in the mount, out of the fire in the day, when the people were gathered together.

And when xl. daies, and xl. nyghtes were ended, the Lord gaue me the two tables of stone, the tables of the testament, and said vnto me. * Arise, and get the downe quickly from hence, for thy people which I haue brought out of Egypte, haue married them selues. Thei are touned attonce out of the wape, which I commaunded them, & haue made them a God of metall. Furthermore the lord spake vnto me, sayinge: I se thys people, how it is a stifnecked people, lette me alone, that I maye destroyethem, and putte out the name of them vnder heauen, and I will make of the, a nacion both greater and mo than they.

And I turned away and came downe fro the hyl (and the hyl burnt wth fyre) and had the two tables of the appointmente in my handes. And when I looked and sawe that pe had sinned against the lord your god, and had made pou a calfe of metall, & had turned altogether out of þ way which the lord had commaunded pou. * Then I toke the two tables, and cast them oute of my two handes, and brake the before your eyes. * And I fell before the Lord: euen as at the first time. xl. dayes and. xl. nightes, & neither ate bread nor dranke water, ouer al your sinnes, which pe had sinned, in doing wickedly in the sight of the Lord, and in prouokinge him. For I was afrayed of the wrath and fearfnesse, wherwith the Lord was angry with you, euen for to haue destroyed you. But the lord heard my peticion at the tyme also.

The lord was very angry with Aaron also, euen for to haue destroyed him: But I made intercession for Aaron also the same tyme. And I toke your syn, the calf whych whiche pe had made, & burnt him with fyre, and stamped him and ground him a good, euen vnto small dust. And I caste the duste therof in the broke that descended oute of the mount. Also at * Chaberah, and at * Sah, and at the sepulchres of lust pe displeased the Lord, pe and when the Lord sente you from Cades Barne, sayinge: go vp and conquere the lande whiche I haue gauen you, pe disobeyed the mouth of þ lord your God, and neyther beleued him, nor herkened vnto his voice. Thus pe haue bene disobedient vnto the Lord, sythen the day that I knewe you.

And I fell before the lord. xl. dayes and. xl. nyghtes, whych I lape ther, for the lord was minded to haue destroyed you. But I made intercession vnto the Lord, & sayde: * O Lord God, destroy not thy people and thine enheritaunce, which thou hast deliuered thow we thy greatnesse, and whych thou hast broughte oute of Egypte wth a myghty hande. Remembre thy seruaunts Abraham, Isaac and Jacob, and loke not vnto the stubburnesse of thys people, nor vnto their wickednes and synne: leaste the lande whence thou broughtest them, sape: Because the Lord was not able to brynge them into the lande, whych he promysed them, and because he hated them, therefore he carped them oute to destroye them in the wilderness. Moreover they are thy people, and thine enheritaunce, whiche thou broughtest forth with thy myghty power, and wth thy stretched arme.

The. x. Chapter.

A repetytyon of some of the journeyes of þ Israelites. The renuyng of the tables. An exhortacion to geue hede to the lawe.

In the same season þ lord saied vnto me: Hewe the two tables of stone like vnto the first, & come vp vnto me into the mount and make the an arcke of wood, and I will wyte in the tables, the wordes that were in the first tables whiche thou brakest, & thou shalt put them in the arcke. And I made an arcke of Setim woode, and hewed two tables of stone lyke vnto the first, and wente vp into the mountaine, and the two tables in myne hande.

And he wrote in the tables, according to the first writing (the ten wordes which the Lord spake vnto you in the mounte of the fire) in the daye when the people gathered together, and gaue the vnto me. And I departed and came downe from the hyl, and put the tables in the arcke, whych I hadde made: and there they remayned, as the lord commaunded me.

And the chylzen of Israel toke their iourney from Beroth of the chylzen of Jakan to Mosera, where Aaron died, and wher he was buried, and Eleazar his sonne became prieske in his steade. And from thence they departed vnto * Gadgad: and from Gadgad to Jathbath a land of riuers of water. And the same season the Lord seuered the tribe of Levi to beare the arcke of the appointment of the lord, and to stande before the Lord, and to minstre vnto hym, & to blesse in his name vnto this day. Wherfore the Levites haue no parte nor enheritaunce with their brethren. The lord, he is their enheritaunce, as the lord thy god hath promysed them.

And I staid in the mount, euen as at the first time. xl. dayes and. xl. nightes, and the lord herkened vnto me at that time also, so þ the lord woulde not destroy the. And the lord said vnto me: Arise and go forth in the iourney before the people, and let them go in, and conquere the lande, which I sware vnto their fathers to geue them.

And now Israel, what is it that the lord thy God requyeth of the, but to feare the Lord thy God, & to walke in all his waies, and to * loue him, and to serue the lord thy God with all thine herte, and with all thy soule, that thou kepe the comaundements of the lord and his ordinaunces, whiche I commaunde the this daye, for thy wealth. Behold, heauen and the heauen of heauens, is the Lordes thy God, and the earth with all that therin is: only the lord had a luste vnto thy fathers to loue the, and therefore chose pou their sede after them of all nacyns, as it is come to passe this daye.

Circumcise therefore the foreskin of your herts, and be no longer stifnecked. For the lord your God, he is God of Goddes, and lord of lordes, a great God, a myghty, and or vnto the iudge, shall dye, & so thou shalt put away euyl from Israel. And all the people shall heare and shall feare, and shall do no more presumptuously.

When thou art come vnto the land whiche the lord thy God giveth thee, and enioyest it and dwellest therein: Yf thou shalt say, I wil set a kyng ouer me: lyke vnto all the nations that are about me: Then thou shalt make hym kyng ouer the whom the Lord thy God shall chuse. And when he is set vpon the seate of hys kyngdome, he shall wite him forth this second law in a booke, takinge a coppe of the priests the Levites. And it shall be w hym, & he shall reade therein all dayes of his life that he may learne to feare the lord hys god to kepe al the wordes of thys law, & these ordinaunces to do them: & his hert arpe not aboue hys brethren & that he turne not fro the commaundemet: either to the right hand or to the left, that both he and hys children may prolong their dayes in his kyngdome in Israel.

The xviii. Chapter

The Levites mighte haue no possessions. Idolatry must be fled. The prophet Christ is promised. A false prophet must be slayne, and howe he may be knowne.

The priests, the Levites, all the tribe of Leuy shall haue no part nor inheritance with Israel. The offrings of the Lord & his inheritance they shall eate, but shall haue inheritance amonge the brethren: the lord is their inheritance, as he hath sayd vnto them. And this is the duety of the priests of the people and of the that offer, whether it be ore or shepe: They must giue vnto the priest, the shoulder and the two chekes and the mawe, the first frutes of the corne, wine and oyle, and a porci on of wol of the shepe wherynge muste thou giue him. For the Lord thy God hath chosen him out of all the tribes to stand, and to minister in the name of the lord: bothe hym and his sonnes for ever. Yf a Leuyte come forth of any of the cities or any place of Israel, wher he is a sojourner, and come with all the lust of his hert vnto the place whiche the lord hath chosen: he shall there minister in the name of Lord hys God, as all hys brethren the Leuytes do whych stand ther before the lord. And they shall haue like porci ons to eate, besyde that cometh to hym of the patrimony of his auncestours.

When thou art come into the land whych the lord thy god giveth thee, see thou learne not to do after the abominacions of these nations. Let there not be found among you that maketh hys son or daughter to go thowhe the fyre, or that vseth wylchcraft, or a choler out of dayes or that regardeth the spinge of foules, or a sorcerer, or a charmar, or that counseleth wth spirites, or a prophciar, or that aske th the aduyl of y deade. For al that do such thynges are abominacion vnto the Lord: and because of these abominacions the Lord thy God both cast them out before the, & puteth therfore wth the Lord thy God. For these nations which thou shalt conquer, hearken vnto chosers out of dayes and prophciars. But the Lord thy God prympteth not that to the.

The Lord thy God wyl sterre vp a prophci amonge you: ouen of thy brethren like vnto me: and vnto hym pe shall hearken accordyng to al that thoudest predest of the Lord thy God in Horeb in the day when the people were gathered, sayinge: Let me heare the voyce of my Lord God no more, nor se thys greate fyre anye more, that I dye not. And the Lord sayde vnto me: they haue well spoken, I wyl rase theym vp a prophete frome the myddes of their brethren vnto the, and wyl put my wordes into hys mouth, and he shall commaunde hym. And whosoever wil not herken vnto that wordes whiche he shall speake in my name, I wyl requyre it of him.

But the prophet which shall presume to speake ought in my name which I commaunded not to speake, and he that speaketh in the name of straunge gods, shall dye. And if thou saye in thynne herte how shall I knowe the whych the Lord hath not spoken? When a prophete speaketh in the name of the lord, if the thyng folowe not nor come to passe, that is the thyng which the Lord hath not spoken, but the prophet hath spoken it presumptuously: be not aferde therfore of hym.

And we cryed vnto the Lord God of oure fathers, and the Lord heard our voice and looked on oure aduersitie, labour, and oppression. And the Lord broughte vs out of Egypte wpth a myghty hand and a stretched oute arme, and with greate terribleness, and wpth signes and wonders. And hee hath broughte vs into thys place, and hath geuen vs thys Lande that floweth wpth mylke and honye.

And now lo, I haue broughte the frutes of the lande whiche the Lord hath geuen me. And set it before the lord thy god and worship before the Lord thy God, and reioyce ouer all the good thinges which the Lord thy God hath geuen vnto the, and vnto thynne house, both thou, the Leuite, and the stranger that is amonge you.

When thou hast made an ende of tithing all the tithes of thynne encrease the thyrde yere, the yere of tithynge: thou shalt geue it vnto the Leuite, the stranger, the fatherlesse and the wydowe that they maye eate in thy gates, and fyll themselves. Then say before the Lord thy God. I haue brought all that is halowed out of thine house, and haue geuen them vnto the Leuite the stranger, the fatherlesse and the wydowe accordinge to all the commaundementes whiche thou commaundeste me: I haue not ouetfokpped thy commaundementes, nor forgotten them. I haue not eaten thereof in my mournynge, nor taken awaye thereof vnto anye vncleynesse, nor spent thereof a houte anye deade corse, but haue hearkened vnto the voice of the Lord our God, & haue done after al that he commaunded me, loke howne frome thy holye habitation of heauen, and blesse thy people Israel, and the lande whiche thou hast geuen vs (as thou swauest vnto oure fathers) a lande that floweth wpth mylke and honye.

Thys daye the Lord thy God hath commaunded the to do these ordynances and lawes. Keepe them therefore and doo them wpth all thynne hearte, and all thy soule. * Thou hast chosen the Lord this dai to be thy God, and to walke in his waies, and to

The. xxviii. Chapter.

An alter must be buylded. The blessings in the hyl Garzani. The curses in p hyl Eball.

And Moses with the elders of Israel commaunded the people, sayinge: kepe all the commandementes whiche I commaunde you this daye. And when ye be come ouer Jordan vnto the land whiche the Lord thy God giueth thee, sette by greute stones and playster them with plaster, & write vpon them al the wordes of this law, when thou art come ouer: that thy mayeste come into the land whiche the Lord thy God giueth thee: a land that floweth with mylke & honey: as the Lord thy God hath promysed the.

When ye be come ouer Jordan, se ye sette by these stones to which I commaund you this daye vpon mount Eball, and playster the with plaster. And ther buyld vnto p the Lord thy God an alter of stones, and se thou sette vp no yron vpon them. But thou shalt make the alter of the Lord thy God of rough stones, and offer burnt offerings there on vnto the Lord thy God. And thou shalt offer peace offerings, and shalt eate there, and reioyce before the Lord thy God. And thou shalt write vpon the stones all the wordes of this lawe well and playnely.

And Moses with the preestes, the Leuytes spake vnto al Israel, sayinge: take hede and here Israel, this day thou art become the people of the Lord thy God. Hearken therefore vnto the voyce of the Lord thy God, & to his commandementes and his ordynances whiche I commaunde you this day.

And Moses charged the people the same day, sayinge. These shall stand vpon mount Garzani, to blesse the people wher ye are come ouer Jordan: Simeon, Leui, Iuda, Issachar, Joseph and Beniamin. And these shall stand vpon mount Eball to curse: Ruben, Gad, Aser, Zabulon, Dan, and Nephthalyme. And the Leuytes shall begynne and saye vnto all the menne of Israel with a lowe voyce.

* Cursed be he that maketh any carved ymage, or ymage of metal (an abhominacion vnto the Lord, the worke of the handes of the craftesman) and putteth it in a secret place, And al the people shall answer and saye Amen.

* Cursed be he that despyseth his father, or his mother. And al the people shall saye Amen.

Cursed be he that remoueth his neighbours merestone. And all the people shall saye Amen.

Cursed be he that maketh the blinde go out of his waye. And al the people shall saye Amen.

* Cursed be he that byndeth the eyght of the straunger, fatherlesse and widow, and al the people shall saye. Amen.

Cursed be he that lieth with his fathers wyfe, because he hath vncouered his fathers bed, & al the people shall saye. Amen.

Cursed be he that lyeth vnto any maner beast. And al the people shall saye. Amen.

Cursed be he that lyeth with his sister, whether she be the doughter of his father, or of his mother, & al the people shall saye Amen.

Cursed be he that lieth with his wyues mother. And al the people shall saye. Amen.

Cursed be he that smyteth his neighbour priuely, and al the people shall saye. Amen.

* Cursed be he that taketh a rewarde to slea innocēt bloude. And al the people shall saye. Amen.

Cursed be he that slepeth with his neighbours wyfe. And al the people shall saye Amen.

Cursed be he that contynueth not in all the wordes of this law to do the, and al the people shall saye Amen.

The. xxviii. Chapter.

The promyses of the blessinges vnto them that regarde the commandementes: and the curses to the contrary.

If thou shalt hearken diligently vnto the voyce of the Lord thy God, to obserue and do al his commandementes whiche I commaunde thee this daye, the Lord wil set the aboue all nacjons of the earth. Al these blessinges shall come on the and ouertake the, if thou shalt hearken vnto the voyce of the Lord thy God. Blessed shalt thou be in the towne, and blessed in the felde, blessed shall be the fruite of thy bodye, the fruite of thy grounde, and the fruite of thy catel, the fruite of thyne oxen, and thy flockes of sheepe, blessed shall thy barnes be and thy store. Blessed shalt thou be, bothe when thou goest out, and blessed when thou comest in. The Lord shall smyte thyne ennemys that rise against the before thy face. They shall come out against the one way, & shynke before the seuē wayes. The Lord shall commaund the blessing to be with the in thy store houses, and in al that thou settest thyne hande to, and wyl blesse the in the land whiche the Lord thy God giueth thee.

The Lord shall make the an holy people vnto hym selfe, as he hath sworne vnto the if thou shalt kepe the commandementes of the Lord thy God, and in his wayes.

And al nacjons of the earth shall see that the name of the Lord is called vpon and ges you, & they shall be afeard of the. And the Lord shall make the plentypous in goods

And thou shalt lende vnto many nacpons, but shalt not neede to borow thy selfe. And the Lord shall set the before, & not behind, & thou shalt be aboue onely, and not beneath: if thou herken vnto the commaundementes of the Lord thy God whych I commaunde the this daye to kepe and to doo. And se thou howe not from any of these wordes whych I commaunde the this daye, eyther to the ryght hande or to the lefte, that thou woldest goe after straunge Godds to serue them.

Deut. lxi. a. and .xviii. e. But if thou wylte not herken vnto the voyce of the Lord thy God to kepe and to doo all bys commaundementes and ordynances whych I commaunde the this daye: then *al these curses shall come vpon the and ouertake the: Cursed shalt thou be in the towne, and cursed in the felde, cursed shall thy barne be, and thy store. Cursed shall the fruite of thy bodye, and the fruite of thy lande bee, and the fruite of thyne oxen, and the flockes of thy sheepe. And cursed shalt thou be when thou goest in, and when thou goest out. And the Lord shall sende vpon the cursynge, destruction, and complaynyng in all that thou setteste thyne hande to, whatsoeuer thou doest, vntill thou be destroyed & brought to naught quickly, because of the wickednes of thine owne deuises in that thou hast forsaken the Lord. And the Lord shall make the pestilence cleaue vnto the, butylle he hath consumed the from the land whither thou goest to enioy it. *And the Lord shall smite the with swellynge, with seuers heat, with thynge with thynge, with smytynge, and with blastynge. And they shall folowe the tyll thou perishe.

Deut. xxi. b. *And the heauen that is ouer thy heade shall be brasse. And the erthe that is vnder the, yron. And the Lord shall turne þe capne of the lande vnto powder and duste: eue fro heuen ashes shall come downe vpon me, buttill thou be broughte to naughte. And the Lord shall plage the before thyne enemies. Thou shalt come oute one waye agaynst them, and see seuen wayes before theym, and shalt be scattered among al the kyngdomes of the earth. And thy carkasse shall be meat vnto al maner soules of the ayre, and vnto the bestes of the earthe, and no man shall fraie them away.

Deut. lxi. b. *And the Lord shall smyte the with the botches of Egypte, and emerodes, scalle & maungnesse, that thou shalt not be healed thereof. And the Lord shall smyte the with madnes, byndnes, & dasyng of heart.

And thou shalt grope at none dayes as the bynde gropeth in darkenesse, and shalt not come to the ryght way. And thou shalt suffer wronge onely and be oppressed euer more, and no manne shall sucker thee, thou shalt marrye a wyfe, and an other shall lie with her. *Thou shalt buyde an house, and an other shall dwell therein. Thou shalt plante a vyneyard, and shalt not gather the fruite thereof. Thyne ore shall be layne before thyne eyes, & thou shalt not eate thereof. Thyne asse shall be violentlye taken away, euen before thy face, and shalt not be restored the agayne. Thy shepe shall be gyuen vnto thyne enemies, and no man shall healse thee. Thy sonnes and thy daughters shall bee gyuen vnto an other nacpon, and thyne eyes shall se and dase vpon them all daye longe, but shalt haue no myghte in thyne hande. The fruite of thy land and al thy laboures shall a nacpon whych thou knoweste not eate, and thou shalt still suffer violence, and be oppressed alwaye: that thou shalt be cleane helpde thy selfe, for the spghte of suche thynges as thou shalt se.

The Lord shall smyte the with a myschecuous botch in the knees and legges, so that thou canst not be healed: euen fro the soule of the fore vnto the top of the head.

*The Lord shall byynge bothe the, and thy king whych thou hast set ouer the vnto a nacio whych nether thou nor thy fathers haue knowen, and there thou shalt serue strange Godds: euen wodde and stone. And thou shalt goo to waste, and be made a prouerbe, and a testyng stocke vnto al nacions whycher the Lord shall cary. Thou shalt cary muche seede oute into the feld, and shalt gather but lytle in, for the grete hoppers shall destroy it. Thou shalt plante a vyneyard and dresse it, but shalt nether drynke of the wyne, ne gather of þe grapes, for the wormes shall eate it. Thou shalt haue olyue trees in all thy costes, but shalt not bee annointed with the oyle, for thyne olyue trees shall be rooted out. Thou shalt get sonnes and daughters, but shalt not haue them: for they shall be caryed away prisoners. Al thy trees and frut of thy land shall be marred with blasting.

The straungers that are amonge youn shall clyme aboue the, and thou shalt come downe a lowe. He shall lende the, and thou shalt not lende him, he shall be before, and thou behynd.

Moreouer al these curses shall come vpon the, and shalt folow the, and embrace the, till thou bee destroyed: because thou hast not hearkened vnto the voyce of the Lord thy God, to kepe bys commaundementes and ordynances whych he commaunded the, and they shall be vpon the as the metuayles and wonders, and vpon thy seede for euer. And because thou seruedst not the Lord thy God with thyne eyes, and with a good hearte for the aboundance of al thinges therfore thou shalt serue thyne enemye whiche the Lorde shall sende vpon the: in hunger & thyrst, in nakednes, and in nede of al thing. And he shall put a yoke of yron vpon thy necke, tyl he haue broughte the to naughte.

The. xxi. Chapter

The worde of God is not farre from them that seeke for it, but in theyr mouthes and heartes.

When al these wordes are come vpon the whether it be the blessing or the curse whiche I haue set before the, yet if thou turne vnto thine hearte among al the nacions whither the Lord thy God hath trusted the, and come agayne vnto the Lord thy God and herken vnto his voyce accordynge to all that I commaunde the thys dape: booe thou and thy chyldrene wth all thynne herte and all thy soule: Then the Lord thy God wil turne thy captiuitie and haue compassion vpon the, and go and fet the agayne from al the nacions, amonge which the Lord thy God shal haue scatered the, though thou wast cast vnto extreme partes of heauen: euen from thence wyl the Lord thy God gether and frome thence fet the and brynge the into the lande which thy fathers possessed, & thou shalt enioye it, And he wyl shew the kyndnesse and multiplie the aboue thy fathers. * And the Lord thy God wyl circumsise thine hert & the herte of thy seede for to loue the Lord thy God wth all thynne hearte and all thy soule, that thou mayest lyeue. * And the Lord thy God wyl put al these curles vpon thynne enemyes and on them that hate and persecute the.

But thou shalt tourne and herken vnto the voyce of the Lord and do all his commaundementes which I commaunded the thys dape. And the Lord thy God wyl make the plenteous in all thy worckes of thynne hande and in the frute of thy bodie, in the frute of thy cattell and frute of thy lande, and in thy ches. For the Lord wil turne agayne and reioyce ouer the to do the goodd as he reioised ouer thy fathers: If thou herken vnto the voyce of the Lord thy God to kepe his commaundements and ordinaunces whiche are wrytten in the boke of thys lawe, if thou turne vnto the Lord thy God with al thine hert, and al thy soule.

* For the commaundement which I commaund the this dape, is not separated from the, neyther far of. The xxxii. Chapter.

The song of Moses. He goth vp to the top of Abarim to se the lande of promyse.

Heare O (a) heuen, what I shal speak and heare O earthe, the woordes of my mouth. My doctrine droppes as doth the rain, and my speech flowe as doth the dewe, as the miseling vpon the herbes, and as the droppes vpon the grasse. For I wil cal on the name of the Lorde: Magnify the myghte of oure God.

He is a (b) rocke and perfect at hys dedes for al his waies ar with descrepon. God is faithful, and withoute wickednes, booth righteouse and iust is he.

The frowarde and ouerthwart generation hath marred them selues to himward, and are not his sonnes for theyr deformityes sake. Dost thou so rewarde the Lord O folyshe nacpon and vnwyse. Is not he thy father and thynne owner? hath he not made the and ordeined the? Remember the dapes that are past: consider the peres from tyme too tyme. Aske thy father, and he wpll shewe the, thy elders and they wpll tell the. When the mooste higheste gaue the nacions an enheritaunce, and deuided the sonnes of Adam, he put the borders of the nations, fast by the multitud of the children of Israell,

For the Lordes part is his folke & c. Jacob is the porcion of his enheritaunce.

He found him in a desert land, in a voide ground, and a roing wildernes. He led him aboute, and gaue him vnderstandinge: and kepte him as the apple of hys eye.

As an Eagle that steareth vp her neste and flutereth over the pounge, he stretched out hys wynges and tooke him vppe, and bare him on his shoulders. The Lorde alone was hys guyde, & ther was no straunge God wpth him.

He set him vpon an hys lande: and he ate the encrease of the fieldes. And he gaue him honp to sucke oute of the rocke, & oyle out of the hard stone. With butter of kine and milke of the shepe, with fat of y lābes and fat rammes and he gotes with fat sidneis with wheate. And of the bloude of grapes thou dronkest wine.

And Israel waxed fat and kycked. Thou wast fat, thicke and smothe. And he let god go that made him & despised the rocke that saued him. Thei angered him with straunge Gods, and with abhominations prouoked him. They offered vnto fiede deuils & not to God, and to Goddesses whiche they knew not: and two newe Goddesthat came newe lye vp whiche they fathers feared not. Of the rocke y begat the, thou art vnmyndful and haste forgote God that made the. And when the Lorde sawe it, he was angry because of the prouokynge of hys sonnes and daughters.

And he sayde: I wpll hide my face from them and wpll see what theyr ende shal be. For they are a frowarde generacion and chylidrene in whom is no fapth. They haue angered me wpth that whiche is no God, and prouoked me wpth theyr vanities.

* And I agayn wil anger them wpth them whiche are no people, and wpll prouoke them wpth a folyshe nacpon. * For fyre is kindledde in my wrathe, and shal burne vnto the bottome of hell. And shal consume the earth with hye encrease and set a fyre y bottomes of the mountaynes. I wpll heape mischeues vpon them and wpll spende all myne arrowes at them.

Furnt with hunger and consumed with heate and wpth bytter pestilence. * I wpll also sende the teethe of beastes vpon them and popson serpentes. Without forth, the swearde shal robbe them of theyr chylidren and wpthin in the chamber, feare: bothe ponge menne and ponge womenne, and the suckelynges wpth the menne of grape heades. I haue determyned too scatter them thorowoute the world, and to make awaye the remembraunce of them frome amonge menne. Were it not that I feared the raylynge of oure ennemys, least theyr aduersaries woulde be proude and say: our hys hande hath done all these workes and not the Lorde.

For it is a nacion that hath an vnhappy forcast, and hath no vnderstanding in them, wold they were wise and vnderstod thys, and woulde consider this later ende.

Howe it cometh that one shal chace a thousande, and two putte tenne thousande of them to flight, except theyr rocke had solde them, and because the Lorde had deliuered them.

For oure rocke is not theyr rocke, no thoughte oure ennemys be iudge. But theyr bynes are of the bynes of Sodome, and of the fieldes of Gomorra. Theyr grapes are grapes of Gall, and theyr clusters be bitter.

And the Lord spake vnto Moses the selfe same day, saying: get the vp into this mountaine Abarim vnto mount Mebo, which is in the lande of Moab ouer against Iericho. And behold the land of Canaan whych I giue vnto the children of Israell to possesse. And dye in the mount whiche thou goest vpo and be gathered vnto thy people: As Aar thy brother dyed in mount Hor & was gathered to his people. For ye trespassed against me among the child: of Israell at the waters of strese, at Cades in the wyldernesse of zin, because ye sanctified me not among p children of Israell. Thou shalt se the land before the, but shalt not go thither vnto the land whych I giue the chyld: of Israell.

The xxxiii. Chapter.

Moses dying blesseth al the tribes of Israell

This is the blessinge wherewith Moses Goddes man blessed the childrene of Israell before his deathe, sayinge: The Lorde came frome Sinai, and shewed hys beames from Seir vnto them, and appeared gloriousse from mounte pharan, and came wth thousandes of saintes and in hys righte hand a lawe of fyre for them. ## The first Chapter.

The Lorde courageth Iosua to intade the land of promes, & commaundeth him continually to read Deuteronomie.

After the death of Moyses the seruant of the Lorde, the Lorde spake to Iosua the sonne of Nun Moyses mynister, sayyng: Moyses my seruant is deade. Nowe therefore vppe and go ouer Jordan, boothe thou and all this people, vnto the lande the which I geue vnto the chyldren of Israell. All the places that the sooles of your feete shall tread vpon, haue I geuen you as (I sayde vnto Moyses) fro the wylernes and this Libanon, to the gret riuier Euphrates: and * all the land of the Bethites, euen vnto the great sea, towarde the gopng downe of the sunne shall be your coastes. There shall not a man be able to withstand the all the dayes of thy lyfe. For as I was with Moyses, so wll I be with the * and wll neither leaue the nor forsake the. * Be strong and bold: for vnto this people shalt thou deuide the land whypche I swaie vnto thy fathers to geue them.

Above all thypng be stronge and harden thy selfe, to obserue and to do accordyng to al the lawes which Moyses my seruant commaunded the. * Tourne there from, nether to the right hand nor to the lefte: that thou mayest haue vnderstandyng in all thou takest in hande * let not the boke of this lawe departe out of thy mouth: But recorde therein daye and nyght, that thou mayest be circumspecte to doo accordyng to all that is witten therein.

For then shalt thou make thy waye prosperouse, and thou shalt haue vnderstandyng. Beholde I haue sayd vnto the, be strong and bolde: nether feare, nor dreade. For the Lord thy God is with the, whither so euer thou goest. Then Iosua commaunded the offycers of the people, sayyng: Go thorough the myddest of the hoste & commaunde the people sayyng, prepare you vnto this daye, for after three dayes ye shal passe ouer this Jordan, to go & eniope the land which the Lorde your God geueth you to possesse it.

And vnto the Rubenites, Gadites, and halfe the tribe of Manasses spake Iosua sayyng: Remember that whypche Moyses the seruant of the Lord commaunded you sayyng. The Lorde your god hath geuen you rest, and hath geuen you this land.

Let your wyues, your chyldren, and your castell remain in the lande whypche Moyses gaue you in thys syde Jordan:

The.ii. Chapter.

Fol. ii.

* But go ye before your brethren armed all that be men of warre, and helpe them vntill the Lorde haue geuen your brethren rest, as he hath you, and vntill they also haue obtayned the lande whypch the lorde your God geueth them. And then retorne vnto the land of your possessio and eniope it, whypche lande Moyses the Lordes seruant gaue you on thys syde Jordan toward the sunne rysyng. And they answered Iosua, sayyng: * All that thou biddest vs, we wll do, and whypther so euer thou sendest vs, we wll go. Accordyng as we obeyed Moyses in all thynge, so we wll obey the, onely the Lord thy god be wth the as he was wth Moyses. And whoso euer disobey thy mouth, and wll not hearken vnto thy wordes in all that thou commaundest hym, let hym dye. Only be stronge and of good courage.

The.ii. Chapter.

Iosua sendeth serchers or spies to Jericho, which were hyd of Rahab, and so escaped the handes of the pursuers. Rahab beleueth, and confelleth the God of Israell.

Then Iosua the sonne of Nun sent out of Settim two spyes secretely, sayyng: go and vewe the land and also Jericho. And they went and came into a harlots house named Rahab, and lodged there. And it was told the king of Jericho, sayyng: Behold, there came me in hither to night of the chyldre of Israel, to spy out the countrey. And the king of Jericho sent vnto Rahab, sayyng: bryng forth the men that are come to the, whypche are entered into thyne house: for they be come to searche out all the land. And the woman toke the two men and hyd them, and sayed: in dede there came men vnto me but I wote not whence they were. And aboute the tyme of the shuttyng of the gate, when it was dark, they went out, whither they went I wote not: but folowe after them quickly, and ye shall take them. And she brought them vpon the roofo of the house, and hidde them vnder flate (yet in the stalkes) whiche shee had laynge abroad vpon the roofo. And the men pursued after them, the way to Jordan, euen vnto the passage. And as sone as they whiche pursued after them were gone oute, they shutte the gates immediatly. And of euer they were allepe, she came vpon them vpon the roofo, and sayd vnto the men. I knowe that the Lorde hath geuen you the land, both because that the fear of you is fallen vpon vs, and because that the enhabiters of the land saynt at your coming. For we haue heard how the Lorde dyed vpon the water of the red sea before you, when you came out of Egypt, and what you dyd vnto the two kynges of the Amorites on the other syde Jordan * Sehon, and Og, whypche be utterly destroyed. And she sayed: accordyng vnto your wordes, so be it: and so sent them away, and they departed. And she bound the purple coard in the wyndow. And they departed, and got them into the mountaynes, and there abode. iii. daies, vntill the pursuers were returned: and the pursuers sought throughout all the way, and found them not. And the two men returned and descended from the mountayne, and passed ouer, and came to Josua the sonne of Nun, and tolde hym all that had chaunced them. And they sayd vnto Josua: the Lorde had deliuered into our handes all the land, for the inhabitants of the contrey faynt for feare of vs.

The.iii. Chapter.

The water of Iordā is dyed vp, and Josue wpth the people passe ouer.

AND Josua rose earlye: and they remoued from Settim, and came to Iordan, boeth he and all the chyldren of Israel, and soiourned there before they wente ouer. And after thre dayes the officers wente thowse out the hoste, and commaunded the people, sayinge: when ye se the arcke of the testament of the Lorde your God, and the priestes that are Leuites bering it, then depart ye from your places, and folowe after it. So yet that there be a space betwene you and it, aboute a two thousand cubites by measure. And come not nye vnto it, that ye may knowe the waye by whiche ye muste goo: for ye haue not gone by it in tymes past. And Josua sayd vnto the people, * purifie your selues, for to morowe the Lorde shall shewe wonders amonge you.

Then Josua spake vnto the priestes, sayinge: Take vp the arcke of the testament, and go before the people. And they toke vp the arcke of the testamente, and wente before the people.

And the Lord sayed vnto Josua: Thys daye wil I begynne to * magnifie the, in the sight of Israel, that they maye knowe howe that * as I was wpth Moyses, so wil I be wpth the. And commaunde thou the priestes that beare the arcke of the testamente, sayinge: when ye are entred a lytle into the water of Iordan, the stande styl in it. Then spake Josua vnto the chyldren of Israel, sayinge: come hyther and heare the wordes of the Lord your God.

And Josua sayed: Hereby ye shall knowe that the lpyinge God is amonge you, and that he wyl withoute faple caste out before you, the Cananytes, the Hethytes, the Hemytes, the Cheretites, the Gergesites, the Amorytes, and the Jebusites. The.iii. Chapter.

Twelve stones are reared up for a remembrance that Jordan was dried, and it returneth agayne to hys course.

And as sone as the people were all gone ouer Jordan, the lord spake to Josua, sayinge. Take you twelve men out of the people, of every tribe a man. And commaund you theym sayinge: take you hence out of the myddeste of Jordan, even oute of the place where the priestes stood in redynesse, twelve stones. And take ye them awaye wth you, and put theym in the place where you lodge at nyght.

De. xlvii. a. And Josua called vnto the twelve men whiche he had prepared of the chyldren of Israell, of every tribe a man, and said vnto theym: *get you before the arcke of the Lord your God, even into the myds of Jordan, and take vp every man a stone vpon hys shoulder, accordynge vnto the numbrie of the tribes of the chyldrene of Israell, that this may be a spgne among you. And when your chyldren aske theym fathers in tyme to come, sayinge: what meane ye wth these stones? then say vnto theym, howe that the water of Jordan deuided at the presence of the arcke of the appoyntemente of the Lord: even whyle it wente ouer Jordan, the water of Jordā deuided. And these stones shal be a memoriall vnto the chyldren of Israell for euer.

iii. Re. xlii. And the chyldren of Israell dyd euen so as Josua commaunded, and toke vp. xii. stones oute of the myddes of Jordan, as the Lord sayed vnto Josua, accordynge to the numbrie of the tribes of the chyldren of Israell, and carped theym awaye with theim vnto the place where they lodged, and layed theym downe there. And therto Josua set vp twelve stones in the myddest of Jordan in the place where the fete of the priestes whiche bare the arcke of the testament, stode.

(a) These maners of speech vnto this present daye, and such like be therfore said, because the thynges wer so doen that they were not after chaunged by hym that did the noz in hys tyme that woute the hystorie of them. iii. Edia. ix. f. Act. xlii. a.

And there they be euen (a) vnto this day. For the priestes whiche bare the arcke stode in the myddest of Jordan, vntill all was dryed, that the Lord commaunded Josua to saye vnto the people, accordynge to all that Moyses charged Josua. And the people hastened and wente ouer. When all the people were cleane ouer, then wente ouer the Arcke of the Lord, and also the priestes before the people. And the chyldren of Ruben, and the chyldren of Gad, and the halfe tribe of Manasses went before the chyldren of Israell armed as Moyses charged theym. Upon a forty thousand trimmed for warre, went before the Lord vnto battell, euen vnto the wylde fylde of Jericho. That daye the Lord magnified Josua in the syght of all Israell, & they (b) feared hym as they feared Moyses all the dayes of hys lyfe.

(b) To fear here, is reueinge: commaunde the priestes that beate the arcke of wptnes to come out of Jordan. And Josua commanded the priestes sayinge: Ascende by oute of Jordan. And when the priestes that bare the Arcke of the appoyntemente of the Lord were ascended out of Jordan: as sone as the soles of the priestes fete were broughte to drye Lande, the water of Jordan returned agayne vnto hys place, and went ouer all hys bankes as he dyd before. And the people came out of Jordan the tenth daye of the fyrst moneth, and pitched in Balgal euē in the east borders of Jericho. And the. xii. stones whiche they toke oute of Jordan, Josua pitched in (c) Balgall. And spake to the chyldren of Israell sayinge: when your chyldre aske you in tyme to come sayinge: what meane these stones? shew your chyldren and say, Israell came ouer thys Jordan on drye lande. For by interprete the Lord your God dryed by the water of Jordan before you, vntill we were ouer, as the Lord your God did vnto the red sea, whiche he dryed by before vs till we were ouer: that all the people of the worlde may knowe the hande of the Lord how mighty it is, and that ye myghte feare the Lord your God for euer.

The. v. Chapter.

The Cananites are atryed. The second circumcison vnder Josua.

And when al the kinges of the Amorites wchare on this syde Jordan to the seaward, & all the kyngs of the Cananites which lye on the sea, heard howe the Lord had dryed by the water of Jordan before the chyldre of Israell, vntill they were ouer, their hertes faynted in the. And there was no spirite in them any more, for feare of the coming of the chyldre of Israel.

That same tyme the Lord sayd vnto Josua. Make the kniues * of stone, and go to agayne & circumcise the chyldren of Israel the second tyme. And Josua made hym kniues of stone and circumcised the chyldren of Israell in the hyll of foreskynnes. And thys is the cause why Josua circumcised them. All the people that came oute of Egypte that were males, all that were men of warre, dyed in the wylernes by the waye after they came out of Egypte. Howe all the people that came out were circumcised: But all the people that were borne in the wylernes by the waye after they came out of Egypt they circumcised not. For the chyldren of Israell walked forty yeres in the wylernes, till all the people of menne of warre that came oute of Egypte, were consumed, whiche herkened not vnto the voyce of God, so that the Lord sware, that he woulde not shewe theym the Lande whiche the Lord sware vnto theym fathers, that he woulde geue vs, euen a Land * that floweth with mylke and honye. And the chyldren he set by in theym steade. Then Josua their fores-

Josua circised the: for they were *uncirci-

And when all the people were ful circū-cised, they abode styll in theyr places in the

The. vi. Chapter.

The walles of Jericho fall, and it is taken.

AND Jericho shutte in her people, and was shut for feare of the children of Israell, so that no manne wente oute nor in. And the Lorde sayde vnto Josua: beholde, I haue geuen into thyne hande Jericho and her kyng, and the menne of warre. And ye shal compasse the whole citie, all that be menne of warre, and go rounde about it once: and so shal pou do fyve dapes. And the seven priestes shal beare seven trumpets of rammes hornes before the arke. And the *seuenth day ye shal compass the citie seuen times, and the priestes shal blowe wpth their trūpettes. And when there is a longe blaste blowne with the rammes horne, as soone as ye heare the sounde of the horne, lette all the people shoute a myghtye shoute.
And then shal the walles of the Cytie fall downe, and the people shal ascende vp e-uerie manne straghte before hym. And Josua the sonne of Nun called vnto the priestes, and sayde vnto them: take vp the arke of the appoyntemente, and lette seuen priestes beare seven trumpettes of rams hornes before the arke of the Lorde.
And he saide vnto the people, go and com-armes go before the Arcke of the Lorde.

And when Josua had spoken vnto the people, the seven priestes that bare the seuen trompettes of rammes hornes before the Arcke of the Lorde, wente forth and blewe wpth the hornes, and the Arcke of the Testamente of the Lorde folowed after them. And the men of armes wente before the priestes that blew with the horns, and the common people came after the Arcke: and as they wente, they blew with the hornes. And Josua commaunded the people, sayinge: shewt not, nor lette your voyce be hearde, or anye worde procede out of your mouthes, vntill the day I bid you shoute: and then shoute.

And so the Arcke of the Lorde compassed the citie, and went aboute it once, and then they retourned into the hooſte, and lodged there. And Josua rose earlye in the morninge, and the priestes toke vpp the Arcke of the Lorde, and seven priestes bare seven trompettes of rammes hornes before the Arcke of the Lorde: and as they wente, they blew wpth the hornes. And the menne of armes wente before them, & the common people came after the Arcke of the Lorde, and as they wente, they blew wpth the hornes. And the seconde dape they compassed the ctyte once, and retourned agayne into the hooſte, and so they did sixe dapes longe.

And the seuenth dape they arose earlye, euen wpth the dawninge of the dape and compassed the Citie after that same manner seuentymes onelye, so that they com-passed the citie seuentymes.

And at the seuenth tyme, the priestes blewe wpth the hornes, and Josua sayed vnto the people: shoute, for the Lord hath geuen pou the ctyte. But the citie shal be excommunicate, bothe it and all that is therein, vnto the Lorde: onelye Rahab the harlotte shal liue, bothe she and al that is wpth her in the house, because she * hid the messengers that we sent. And in anye wise beware of the excommunicate thyngs, least ye make your selues excommunicate. For if you take of the excommunicate thyngs, so shal you make the hooſte of Israell excommunicate, and shal trouble it. But of the siluer, Golde, vesselles of Brasse and iron shalbe holi vnto the Lord, and shal go into his treasure.

cate thynges: for *Acan the sonne of Carme, the sonne of Zabbe, the sonne of Zareh, of the trybe of Iuda, toke of the excommunicate thyngges. And the wrathe of the Lorde waxed whotte againste the chyliden of Israell.
Then Josua sente menne from Jericho to Ai, whych is besyde Bethauen, on the eastside of (a) Bethell, and spake vnto the sayng: get you vp and betwe the countrie.
And the men wente vp and spyed oute Ai.
And returned vnto Josua, and sayed vnto him, let not all the people go vp, but letie as it were a two or thre thousand menne go vp & destroy Ai, & make not al the people laboure thither, for they are but fewe.

And so there wente vp thytter aboute a thre thousande menne, whych fledde before the men of Ai. And the menne of Ai smote of them vpon a thirtie and sixe men and chased them before the gates, euen vnto Gabatim, and smote them in the goynge downe. And the hearts of the people were dyscouraged, and mealed lyke water. And Josua rente his clothes and fell to the earthe vpon his face before the Arcke of the Lorde vntyll the euen tye, bothe he, and the elders of Israel, and put earthe vpon theyr heades.

And Josua sayed: Ah, Lorde Jehouah, wherefore haste thou broughte this people ouer Iordan, to deliuer vs into the handes of the Amorites to destroye vs? woulde to God we had aduentured and dwelte on the other syde Iordan.
Oh Lorde what shall I saye, when Israell tourneth their backs before thyne enemys? Moreover the Cananites, and all the inhabiteres of the lande shall heare of it, & shal come about vs, and destroy the name of vs out of þ world. And the what wilt thou do vnto thy myghty name?

And the Lorde sayde vnto Josua: gette the vp, wherefore lvest thou thus vpon thy face? Israell hath synned and also transgressed myne appoyntemente, whych I commaunded them, and haue taken of the excommunicate thynges, and haue stolen and hydde them, and also put them vnto their owne stuffe: And therefore the chyliden of Israell cannot stande before their ennemys. They shall tourne theyr backes before their ennemys, because they be excommunicate. Neither wyl I be wth you anye more, excepte ye destroy the excommunicate from among you.

Up and *sanctifye the people and byd them to sanctifye them selves agaynst the morowe, for so sayeth the Lord god of Israel, the excommunicacyon is amonge you of Israell, and therfore ye canot stand before your ennemys, vntyll ye haue put the excommunicacyon from amonge you.
To morowe morynge ye shall come by your trybes. And the trybe whych the Lorde shal fynde gyltye, shal come by kin-redes. And the kyndred whych the Lorde shal fynde gyltye, shal come by houshol-des. And the household whych the Lorde shal fynde faultye, shal come manne by man. And he that is founde in the excom-municacyon shal bee burnt wth fyre, bothe he and al that pertaynerth vnto hym, because he hath transgressed the couenant of the Lord, and because he hath wrought folly in Israell.

And so Josua rose vp earlye in the mornyng, and broughte Israell by theyr trybes: and the trybe of Iuda was caughte.
Then he broughte the kyndredes of Iuda, and founde the kyndred of the Zarehites gyltye. And he broughte the kyndred of the Zarehites by householdes, and Zabbai was caught. And he brought his household man by man, and Acan the son of Carme, þ son of Zabbai, the sonne of Zareh in the tribe of Iuda was caughte.

And Josua saide vnto Acan: my sonne, they toke theym out of the myddest of hys tente, and broughte theym vnto Josua, and vnto all the chyldren of Israell, and powred theym oute before the Lorde. And Josua toke Acan the sonne of Zareth, and the splier, and the garmente, and the tog of golde, and hys sonnes and his daughters, hys open asses, sheepe, his tente and all that he had, and all Israell wpth hym, and broughte theym vnto the bayley of Acor. And Josua sayde: In as much as thou haste troubled vs, the Lorde shall trouble the thys dape. And all Israell stoned hym wpth stoanes, and burnt theym wpth fyre, and ouerwhelmed theym wpth stoanes. And they caste vpon hym a greate heape of stoanes that remapneth vnto thys dape. And so the Lorde tourned from them hys spere wrath.

Wherefore the name of the place is called the valley of Acor vnto thys dape.

The. viii. Chapter.

The siege and wynnynge of Ai. The kynge therof is hanged. Josua setteth vp an altar on whiche is written the boke of Deuteronomie. He blesseth the people.

And the Lorde sayed vnto Josua: feare not, nor dreade: but take all the menne of warre with the, and vp and get the to Ai. Beholde I haue geuen into thy hande, the kynge of Ai, and hys people, hys cite, and hys lande. And thou shalt do to Ai and hys kynge, as thou dydest vnto Jericho and hys kynge. Neuer theles the spole, and cattel therof, ye shal take pour selues. But lay a watch vnto the towne on the backeside thereof.

And then Josua arose, and all the men of warre to go vp to Ai. And Josua chose out xxx. thousand men of warre, and sente them by nyght. And he commaunded them sayynge. Se that ye lye awayte vnto the towne, on the backe syde thereof. So not farre from the cite, and se that ye be all readye. And I and all the people that are wpth me, wpll appoche vnto the cite.

And when they come oute agaynst vs, as at the fyrste tyme: then wpll we fle before theym. And they wpll come oute after vs, vntyll we haue plucked theym awaye from the cite. For they wpll saye: they fle before the fyrste tyme, for we wpll be before them. Then shal ye rylse vp from lpyng awayte, and destroy the cite: For the lorde your God wpll deliuer it into your hādes. Asone therefore as ye haue taken the cite, se that ye set it on fyre. Accordynge to the commaundement of the lord se that ye do, beholde I haue charged you.

And Josua sente theym soorth, and they wente to lye awayte, and laye betwene Bethell and Ai, on the westsyde of Ai. But Josua lodged that nyght among the people. And he rose vpearlye in the mornynge & numbred the people & wente vp boeth he and the elders of Israell before the people, to Ai. And all the men of war that wer wpth hym, wente vp and dwe nye, & came before the cite, and pitched on the north syde of Ai, a valey beyng betwene theym and Ai. And he toke vpon a fyue thousand men and put the to lye in wayte betwene Bethell and Ai, on the weaste syde of the cite. And he put the people euen all the host on the north syde of the cite, and the lyars awayte on the weste. And Josua wente the same nyght into the myddes of the waye.

And when the kynge of Ai sawe that they hasted and rose vpearlye, then the people of the cite wente out agaynst Israell to battel, boeth the kynge and all hys people, at a tyme appoynted, eauen before the plaine, & wist not that there were lyars awayte on the backside of the cite.

And Josua and Israell were put to the worse before theym, and fledde towarde the wyldernes. And all the people of the towne cried to folowe after theym. And they folowed after Josua tyll they were drawen awaye from the cite: So that there was not a man leste in Ai, or in Bethel, that wente not out after Israell. And they leste the cite open and folowed after Israell.

Then the Lorde sayed vnto Josua: stretch forth the buckeler that is in thy hande towarde Ai, for I haue geuen the it. And Josua stretched out the buckeler that was in hys hande toward the cite. And the lyars awayte rose vp quykelye out of theyr places, and ranne, asone as Josua had stretched out his hād, and they entred into the cite, and toke it, and hasted and set it on fyre. And when the men of Ai looked backe after theym and sawe, Beholde the smoke of the cite ascended vp to heauen. And they hadde no place to fle, epyther thys way or that, for the people fled to the wyldernes tourned backe agayne vpon the folowers.

And when Josua and all Israell sawe that the lyars awayte had taken the cite and that the smoke of it ascended, they turned agayne, and layed on the men of Ai. And the other issued out of the cite agaynst them. And so were they in the myddeste of Israell, these beyng on the one syde of theym, and the reste on the other. And they layed vpon theym, so that they leste none epyther remayne or scape. And the kynge of Ai they toke alyue, & brought hym to Josua. And when Israell hadde made an ende of sleapng all the enbapters of Ai in the fyeldes, and in the wyldernes, by whiche they chased them, and when they were all fallen on the edge of the swerde vntyll they were all wasted: Then all Israell retourned vnto Ai, and smote it wpth the swearde. And all that fell that dape boeth of men and women, were. xii. my. euen all the men of Ai.

And they sayd vnto Josua, we are thy seruautes. And Josua sayed vnto them, what are ye, and whence come ye? And they answered hym, Fro a very far countrey thy seruautes are come in the name of the LORD thy GOD, for we haue hearde the fame of hym, and al that he did in Egypte, and all that he dyd to the two kynges of the Amorites beyonde Jordan, Sehon kyng of Hesbon, and Ogge kyng of Basan, whych dwelte at Ashtarion. Wherefore oure elders, and all the inhabitants of the countrey spake to vs, sayinge: take wyttels wpyth you to serue by the wape, and go against them, and say vnto them, we are youre seruautes. And the chyldren of Israell slew them not, because the Lordes of the congregacion had sworne vnto them by the Lorde God of Israell. And therefore al the multitude murmured agaynst the Lordes. But all the Lordes sayed vnto al the congregacion: we haue sworne vnto them by the Lorde God of Israell, and therefore we maye not hurte them. But thys we wyl do to them, and lette them lyue, and so shall no wyath be vpon vs, because of the othe whych we sware to the. And the Lordes sayed vnto the, that they shuld lyue. The .x. chapter

The Amorytes are overcome of Josua. It rained stones. The sun standeth still, and the daye is lengthened. The fyue kynges are hanged.

And when Adonizedec kyng of Jerusalem had heard howe Josua had taken Ai, and had destroyed it, and how that *as he hadde done to Jericho and her kyng, even so he had done to Ai and her kyng, and howe the enhabitours of Babaon hadde made peace wpth Israell, and did remayne amonge them, then they feared exceedinglye, for Babaon was a greate cite, as anye cite of the kingdome, and thereto greater then Ap, and all her menne were mightie. Wherefore Adonizedec kyng of Jerusalem sent vnto Hoham kyng of Hebron, and vnto Pharan kyng of Jerimoth, and vnto Japhia kyng of Lachis, and vnto Dabir kyng of Eglon, sayinge: Come vp vnto me and healpe me, that we maye smite Babaon, for they haue made peace wpth Josua and the chyldren of Israell. Then the .v. kynges of the Amorytes, the kyng of Jerusalem, the kyng of Hebron, the kyng of Jerimoth, the kyng of Lachis, the kyng of Eglon, gathered them selves together, both they and al their hostes and went vpppe and beseged Babaon, and made warre againste it. But the men of Babaon sent vnto Josua vnto the hoste to Balgal, sayinge: wpthdrawe not thy handes from thy seruantes, but come vp to vs, for all the kynges of the Amorytes, which dwell in the mountaines are gathered together agaynst vs. And Josua ascended from Balgal, both he and all his people of war with him, & al his me of might, and the Lord sayd vnto Josua: feare them not, for I haue deliuered them into thyne hand, they shal not a manne stande before thee. And Josua came vnto them sodenlye and iourneied from Balgal all night. And the Lorde turnepled them before Israell, and slew of them a great slaughter at Babaon, and chased them along the waye, that goeth vp to Bethoron, and slew them til they came to Esaka and Makeda. And as they fled from Israell, even in the going downe to Bethoron, the Lorde caste downe great stoonies from heauen vpon them vntill they came vnto Esaka, that they dyed. And there were mo that dyed wpth haylstones then the chyldren of Israell slewe with the sword. Then spake Josua vnto the Lord, that day when the Lorde deliuered the Amorytes before the chyldren of Israell, and he said in the sight of all Israell: Sunne stand thou still vpon Babaon, and thou Mone, in the valley of Ailon. And the Sunne abode, and the Mone stode still, vntill the people had aduenged them selues vpon their enemyes.

And it was told Josua, sayng: the fyue kynges are found hyd in a caue at Makeda. And Josua sayde, roule great stoonies vnto the mouth of the caue, and apoynt men therto, for to kepe them. And stande ye not still, but folowe after your enemyes, and smyte the hyndmost of them. And suffer them not to enter into their ctyes, for the Lorde your God hath deliuered them into your handes.

And when Josua and the chyldren of Israell had made an end of slaying them with a great slaughter, til they wer wasted, yet there remained a certeyn of them, which entered into the walled ctyes. And all the people returned to the hoste to Josua at Makeda in peace, so that no man durst moue his tonge agaynst the chyldren of Israell. Then said Josua, open the mouth of the caue, and bring out these fyue kynges vnto me out of the caue. And they dyd so, and broughte those fyue kynges vnto hym, out of the caue: the kyng of Jerusalem, the kyng of Hebron, the kyng of Jerimoth, the kyng of Lachis, and the kyng of Eglon. And when they had brought out these kyngs vnto Josua: Josua called for all the men of Israell, and sayed vnto the captayns of the men of war whych came wpth him: come nere and (a) put your feete vpon the neckes of these kynges: and they came nere and put their fete vpon the neckes of them. The .xiii. Chapter.

Iosua is commaunded to deuyde the land to the chylidren of Israel.

When Iosua was wahren old, and stricken in yeares, the Lorde said vnto hym: thou arte olde, and stricken in yeares, and there remayneth yet erce adyng muche Lande to be possessed: Thys is the Lande that remayneth: all the coastes of the Philistins and all the Besurtes from Aplus in Egypte: vnto the borders of Akaron northe-warde, whiche Lande was counted to pertayne vnto the Cananites, euen of the syde Lorde of the Philistynes, the A-sathites, the Haddites, Ascalonites Bethites

thites, Abaronites, wth the Euytes, from the South. All the lande of the Cananites and Gagara, that pertaineth to the Sidons, euen vnto Aphek, and to the borders of the Amorites. And the lande of the Gilytes, and all Lybanon, towarde the Sunne rylunge, from Baal Gad, vnder mount Hermon, vntyl þ come to Hemath, all the inhabitants of the hill countrey, from Lybanon vnto the * whote waters euen all the Sidones. I wyl cast the out from before the chyldren of Israell, and se that thou in anye wyse deuyde it by lot vnto the chyldren of Israell, to enherite, as I haue commaunded the. Nowe therfore deuyde this Lande to enherite, vnto the nyne tribes, & the halfe trybe of Manasses. For the other halfe wth the Rubenites, and the Gadites haue receyued theyr enheritaunce already * whiche Moyses gaue them beyond Iordan eastward euen as Moyses the seruaunte of the Lord gaue them, from Aroer that lyeth on the bym of the ryuer Arnon, wth the cytpe in the myddeste of the ryuer. And all the playne of Midba vnto Dibon and all the cytyes of Sehon, kynge of the Amorites, whiche rayned in Hesbon, euen vnto the borders of the chyldren of Ammon, and Galead, and the Landes that border vpon the Gilytes, and the Machabites and all mounte Hermon, and all Basan vnto Salecah: euen all the kyngedome of Og in Basan, whiche rayned in Ashtaroth and Edrae, whiche same remayned yet of the reste of the * Raphaites. But Moyses smote the & destroyed them. Neuerthelesse the chyldren of Israell expelled not the Gilytes nor the Machabites: But the Gilytes and the Machabites dwelte amonge the Israelites euen vnto this day. Only to the tribe of Leuy he gaue none enheritaunce, * for the offerynge of the Lorde God of Israell is theyr enheritaunce, as he said to them.

And Moyses gaue vnto the trybe of the chyldren of Ruben by theyr kynredes. And theyr coastes were from Aroer that lyeth on the bancke of the ryuer Arnon, and the cytpe that lyeth in the riuer, and all the playne aboute Madba, Hesbon and all hyr towne that lye in the playne Dibon * Bomothbaal, and Bethbaalmeon, Iabazah, Kedemoth, and Melphat, Kariataym, Zabamath, and Zarath, Zaphar in mounte Ema, and Beth Sheor, & the fyringes of Shalgab, and Bethpethmoth, and all the cytyes in the playne. And al the kyngdome of Sehon, kynge of the Amorites, whych rayned in Hesbon, whom Moyses smote * wth the Lordes of Madyan, Gai, Rekem, Zur, Hur, and Reba, the Lordes of Sehon, and the inhabitants of the contrey. And Balam also the Sunne of Beor the Southfayer, the chyldren of Israell slewe wth the sword amonge other that were slayne. And the borders of the chyldren of Ruben was Iordan wth the contrey that lyeth there on. This is the enheritaunce of the chyldren of Ruben in their kyntredes, wth theyr cytyes and byllages pertainyng thereto.

And Moyses gaue to the trybe of Gad, euen vnto the chyldren of Gad, he gaue by kyntredes. And theyr coastes were Jazer, & al the cytyes of Galaad, & half þ land of the chyldren of Ammon, to Aroer þ lieth before Rabah: And fro Hesbon to Ramoth Gazpab, and Betonim, and from Mahanaim vnto the borders of Dabir. And in the valley they had Berharam, Berhyntra, Socoth, and Zaphon, the reste of the kyngedome of Sehon kynge of Hesbon, and Iordan, and the coastes that lye thereon, euen vnto the edge of the Sea of Tengeroth, on the other syde Iordane eastward. This is the enheritaunce of the chyldren of Gad in theyr kyntredes, the cytyes wth theyr byllages.

And Moyses gaue vnto the halfe tribe of Manasses. And the halfe trybe of Manasses had their parte by their kyntredes. And theyr coastes wer from Mahanaim, eue al Baasan the kyngdome of Og, kynge of Basan, & all the towne of Hay, whiche lye in Basan, euen thre score cityes, and halfe Galaad, and Ashtaroth, and Edrae, cityes of the kyngedome of Og in Basan, * whiche pertaine vnto the chyldren of Machir the sonne of Manasses, and that vnto halfe the chyldrenne of Machir, by theyr kyntredes.

These are they to the which Moyses gaue enheritaunce in the felde of Moab on the other side Iorda by Herico eastward. But vnto the tribe of Leui, Moyses gaue none enheritaunce, for the Lord god of Israell is theyr enheritaunce * as he said vnto the,

And these are the countreis whiche the chyldren enherited in the Lande of Canaan, vnto whiche Eliazar the prieste, and Josua the sonne of Nun, and the aunciente heades of the tribes of the chyldren of Israell gaue them theyr enheritaunce by lot, as the Lorde commaunded by the hande of Moyses to geue vnto the nyne trybes, and vnto the halfe trybe of Manasses. For Moyses had geuen enheritaunce vnto two trybes and an halfe, on the other side Iorda: But vnto the Leuites he gaue none enheritaunce amonges them. For the chyldren of Iosephe were two trybes, Manasses and Ephraym. And therefore they gaue no part vnto the Leuites in the land, saue cityes to dwelle in, and the suburbs of the same, for their beastes & cattell. As the Lorde commaunded Moyses: euen so the chyldren of Israell dyd, when they deuyded the lande. And the chyldren of Iuda cam vnto Josua in Balgall. And

The.xv.Chapter.

The lot of the chyldren of Juda, & the names of the cities & villages of the same.

And the lotte of the t[ri]be of the chyldren of Juda in thei[r] kynredes was the wyldernes of syn that stretcheth to the coastes of Edome southe-warde, and is the uttermoste parte of the South coastes. And their South coastes were from the brinke of the salt sea, and from a certayn point of the sea, that leaneth southward. And it went oute on the Southside of the goynge vp to Acrabym and went along to zimma, and ascended vp on the southsyde of Cades barne, and went along to Bezron, and wente vp to Adar, and set a compasse to Karca, and wente alonge to Azmon, and it went out to the riuer of Egypt: so that the ende of that coaste is the sea. And these are the South coastes. And their East coastes are the salt sea euen vnto the edge of Jordan.
 And their borders in the Northquarter were fro an other popule of the sea where

Jordan endeth. And wente vp to Bechhagla, and went alonge by the northsyde of Berharabah and wente vp to the stone of Bohen the sonne of Ruben. And then wente vp to Dabit from the valleie of A-cor, and so northwarde, turnyng towards Balgall, that lyeth before the goynge vp to Adonym, whiche is of the Southsyde of the riuer. And then wente alonge to the water of Ensemes, and ended at the well of Rogell. And then wente vp to the valley of the sonnes of Benon, euen vnto the Southsyde of the Jebusytes the inhabyters of Jerusalem. And then wente vp to the toppe of the hylle that lyeth before the valleie of Benon, Westwarde, and by the edge of the valleie of Raphai-im northward: And then it draweth from the sand hyl vnto the fountayne of water called Rephthoab, and goeth oute at the cityes of mounte Ephron: and draweth to Balah, otherwyle called Karyatharym: and then it compasseth from Balah weste-warde vnto Eyz, and then goeth alonge vnto the side of mounte Jarim, otherwyle called Chesalon, on the Northsyde thereof. And cometh downe to Berhsames, and goeth to Thammah, and goeth oute on the side of Akaron northwarde: And then draweth to Secron, and goeth alonge to mounte Balah, and goeth oute to Jabuel, and the ende of the borders is the Sea.
 And the west borders are the greate Sea and the coastes that lyeth thereon. And these are the coastes of the chyldren of Juda, round about in their kynredes. * And vnto Caleb the sonne of Jephune was there a parte allotted amonge the chyldren of Juda, by the mouth of the Lord to Josua, euen the cytye of Cariatharbe father of Enacke, whiche cytye is called Hebron.
 And Caleb droue thence the three sonnes of Enacke: Hefai, Ahmon, and Thalmay, the sonnes begotten of Enacke. And he wente vp thence, to the inhabytours of Dabit, whose name in the old tyme was Kariath Aepher. And Caleb sayde, * he that smyteth Karyath Aepher and taketh it, to hym wyll I geue Aclah my daughter to wyfe. Orthinell the sonne of Kenes, hym Aclah his daughter to wyfe. And as he went, he moued hym to aske of her father a fiede. And * she alpyghted of her asse.

 And Caleb saide vnto her: what aileth the?
 And she sayde, geue me a blessing: for thou hast geuen me a southward and drie land: geue me also springes of water. Then he gaue her springes of water bothe aboue and benethe. This is the inheritaunce of the t[ri]be of the chyldren of Juda in thei[r] kynredes. And the cityes of the t[ri]be of the chyldren of Juda in all quarters, to-warde the coastes of Edom southwarde, were Kabzel, Eder, and Jagur: Kynah,

The lotte of parte of Ephraim.

And the lotte of the chyldren of Joseph fel from Jordan by Jericho, vnto the water of Jericho eastwarde, and the wylder nesse that goeth by from Jericho thozoughe mounte Bethell, and then goeth oute from Bethel to Lus, and runneth a longe vnto the borders of Artiatath: and goeth downe westwarde, to the coastes of Japhlethi, and vnto the coastes of Bethhoran the nether, and goeth by by the sea syde to Basor, and the endes of theyr coastes came to the greates sea. And so the chyldren of Joseph, Manasses, and Ephraim toke their enheritaunce. And the chyldren of Ephraim toke their coa stes by kinredes. And the coastes of their enheritaunce Estewarde were, Acaroth, Ador, euen vnto Bethhoran the vpper and their marches went out Westwarde, to Machmathah that lieth on the northe side and fet a compas estward vnto Thaanah Siloh, and passeth from the east syde vnto Jonoah and went doune from Jonoah to Ataroth and Naarath, and met at Jericho and wente oute at Jordan. And their bor ders went from Thaphuah westward vnto the riuer Banah, and the endes were the salte sea. This is the enheritaunce of the tybe of the chyldren of Ephraim by theyr householdes. The chyldren of Ephraim had their cityes and billages scattered amonge the enheritace of the chyldren of Manas ses: notwithstandinge the chyldren of Ephraim slew not the Cananites that dwelt in Basor: but the Cananites dwelt amoge the Ephraimites to this dai, and pay tribute.

The. xvii. Chapter.

The lot of porcyon of the halfe tybe of Manasses. The Cananites become tributaries to the Israelites. Manasses & Ephraim require a greater porcyon of heritage.

Mad the tybe of Manasses whych was the eldest sonne of Joseph, receiued a Lotte. And Machir the eldest sonne of Manasses whych was the father of Gallad (and a man of warre) had for his enheritaunce Galaad and Basan. And the rest of the chyldren of Manas ses receyued by theyr kynredes, which were the chyldren of Abiezzer, the chyldren of Delek, the chyldren of Asriel, the chyldren of Sicheim, the chyldren of Bepher: the chyl dren of Semeda. These are the male chyl dren of Manasses the sonne of Joseph in theyr kynredes. But Zelapheade the sonne of Bepher, the sonne of Galaad, the sonne of Machir, the sonne of Manasses had no sonnes, but onely daughters. And these are the names of hys Daughters: Mahela, Noa, Hagla, Melcha, & Thirsa whych came before Eliazar the prieste, and before Josua the sonne of Nun, and before the Lordes, sayinge: * the Lorde commaunded Moyses to giue vs an enher itaunce, amonge oure bretheren. And he gaue them at the mouth of the Lorde, an enheritaunce among the brethren, of their fathers. And ther fel ten porcyons to Ma nasses beside the Land of Galaad, & Basan whych are on the other side Jordā: bicause the daughters of Manasses dyd enheryte amonge by sonnes. And Manasses other sonnes had the Lande of Galaad.

And the borders of Manasses reached from Aser to Machmathah that lyeth before Sicheim, and wente alonge on the ryght hande, euen vnto the inhabifers of the fountaine Thaphnah, and the Lande of Thaphuah belonged vnto Manasses, whiche Thaphuah laye in the borders betwene Manasses and the chyldren of Ephraim. And the coastes descended vnto the riuer of Kedde, on whose southsyde Ephraim hath cities that lye amonge the cities of Manasses. For the coastes of Manasses were on the northe syde of the ryuer, and the endes of them was the Sea: so that the southe pertained to Ephraim, and the north to Manasses, and the sea is bothe their borders. And they meete together in Aser northwarde, and in Isacar eastwarde. And Manasses had his inheritance in Isacar, Aser, Bethsean, and her townes, and Heblaam and her townes, and the enhabifers of Dor, wpth the townes pertainyng to the same: and the enhabifers of Endor, wpth the townes of the same: and the enhabifers of Thaanah, wpth her townes, and the enhabifers of Magedo, wpth the townes of the same: and the thyrde parte of the cite Rophe, yet the chyldren of Manasses coude not ouercome those cypres: But the Cananites beganne to dwell in the same land. Neuer theles as soone as the chyldren of Israell were waxed stronge, they putte the Cananites to tribute, but they due them not.

And the chyldren of Joseph spake vnto Josua, sayinge: Why haste thou geuen vs but one lotte, and one porcion to enherite, seynge we be much people, and for as much as the Lorde hath blessed vs so? And Josua answered the: if ye be muche people, then get you vp to the wood countrei, and prepare for youre selues there in the Land of the peresites, and of the *Kaphaites, if mounte Ephraim be too narrow for you. The the chyldren of Joseph sayed agayne, the hyll wyl not be gotten of vs: for all the Cananites that dwell in the lowe contri, haue charrettes of Iron, and so haue they that enhabite Bethsean, and the townes of the same, and they also that dwell in the valey of Jezreell. And Josua answered the house of Joseph Ephraim, and Manasses, sayinge: ye be much people and haue greate power, and shal not therefore haue one lot. But the hylls shalbe yours, thou shalt betwe downe the wood, and make a space to buylde vpon, for it shal be pures, euen vnto the endes of it, ye shal be able to caste out the Cananites, for all their yron charrets, and for al they be so strong.

The.xviii.Chapter.

Certainne are sente to deuide the land to the other seven trybes. The lotte of the chyldren of Benjamin.

And the whole congregacyon of the chyldren of Israell came together at Siloh, and set vp the Tabernacle of witnes there, and the land was in subieccion before them. But there remayned amonge the chyldrene of Israell seven tribes, whych had not theyr inheritance deuyled oute.

And Josua said vnto the chyldren of Israell, howe long are ye so lacke to go and possesse the lande whych the Lorde God of youre fathers hath geuen you? chose ye of euery trybe thre men that I may sende them. And p they may ryse and walke thorow the Lande, and betwe it after the enhabitauntes thereof and come agayne to me. Deuide it into seven partes. For Juda shal abide by theyr coastes in the south and the house of Joseph shal stande to theyr coastes in the North. Describe ye the land therefore into seven partes, and bryng the descripcion to me hyther, that I may caste lottes for you here before the Lorde oure God. The Leuytes haue no parte amonge you, for the priesteshippe of the Lord is theyr inheritance. And Gad, Ruben, and halfe the trybe of Manasses haue receiued theyr inheritance beyonde Jordan eastwarde, whych Moyses the seruaunte of the Lord gaue them.

And the men arose and went their way. And Josua charged theim that wente to describe the lande, sayinge: Hence and go thorow the Lande, and describe it, and come agayne to me hyther: and I wyl caste lottes for you before the Lorde in Siloh. And the men departed and walke thorow the lande, and described it by cypres into seven partes in a booke, and returned to Josua into the booke at Siloh. And Josua caste lottes for theym in Siloh before the Lorde, and there he deuided the lande vnto the chyldren of Israell into seven partes, to eche their porcion. And the fyrst lotte of the trybe of the chyldrene of Benjamin came vp accordyng to theyr kynredes. And the coastes of theyr lotte came out betwene the chyldren of Juda, and the chyldren of Joseph. And theyr northe coastes were to Jordan and wente vp to the syde of Jericho on the northe syde, and wente vp thorow the mountaynes westwarde, and they ended at the wyldernes of Bethauen: and wente from thence to the southside of Ius, other wyse called Bethell: and descended to Ataroth Adar vpon the hyll that lyeth vpon the southside of the neyther Bethoron. And the weste coaste draweth and compasseth Southwarde, euen from the hyll that lyeth before Bethoron, and goeth out at Kartathbaall, whych is Kartath: Marim, a city of the chyldren of Juda, and this is the Weste quarter, towarde the sea, and the southe coaste goeth from the edge of Kartathmarim westward, and goeth out to the water wel of Rephboah, and cometh downe to the edge of the hyll that lieth before the valey of the sonnes of Hennon, whych is in the valey of Kaphaym northwarde, and descendeth thorow

The lots of partes of zabulon, Issachar, Aser, Nephtali, Dan, and Josua

And the ii. lotte came oute to the tribe of the chyldren of Simeon by theyr kynredes. And theyr en-heritaunce fel in the myddes of the enheritaunce of the chyldre of Juda. And theyr enheritaunce was Bet-sabe, Sabe, and Gholadaghe, Dazorula, Balagh, and Azem, Elcholad, Berhull, and Hormath, zikelag, Berhmercaboth, and Hazerulab: Berthlebaoth, and Saruhen, thirtene cittes wyth theyr villages.
Aim, Remon, Epher, and Asan: four cittes wyth theyr villages: and thereto all villages that lye rounde aboute these cypres: euen vnto Balasath, Beor, and Ramath, southward. This is the enheritaunce of the tribe of the chyldre of Simeon in their kin-reds out of the port of the chyldre of Juda, came the enheritaunce of the chyldren of Simeon. For the part of the chyldre of Juda was to muche for them, and therefore the chyldren of Simeon had their enheritaunce in the enheritaunce of them.

B And the thirde lot came vnto the chy-ldrene of zabulon accordyng vnto theyr kynredes. And the coastes of their enheritaunce came to Sarid, & wente by to the sea, & to Marialah, & touched at Dabaseh, & mette at the ryuer that lyeth before Jokneuen: and turned from Sarid eastwarde toward the sunne rysing, to the border of Chisloth in mount Thabor, and then goeth out to Dabereh and goeth up to Ha-phia, and from thence goeth alonge East-

And the fourth lot came oute to the chyldre of Issachar by theyr kynredes. And their coastes wer Jestaclah, Casuloth, Sunem, Hapharaim, Sid, Anaharath, Rabbothe, Kisio, & Abez, Rameth, Engani, Eubadah & Bethphazez. And his coastes met at Thabor, Sahazimab, & at Bethsames, & endeth at Jordan. xvi. cities wyth their villages.
This is the Enheritaunce of the tribe of the chyldren of Issachar by theyr kynredes the cittes and theyr villages.

And the fyfte lotte came oute vnto the tribe of the chyldren of Aser by theyr kyn-redes, And theyr coastes were Belkath Hali, Beren and Achsaph: Alamaleche, Amaad and Giscal: and mette at Camell on the sea, and at Siphor, and at Labanath and turneth toward the sunne rysyng to Berhdag, and met at zabulon, and in the valley of Jephthael, and toward the north side of the Bethemes and Regell and goeth out on the leste syde of Gabull: and A-bzan Kohob, Hamon, and Kanah, euen vnto great Sydon. And then the coste tour-neth to Ramah, and to the stronge cite of Tice, and tourneth to Goshah, and endeth at the sea: by the possession of Achzibab. Amah, Apheke, and Kohob: Twente and two cypres wyth their villages. Thys is the enheritaunce of the tribe of the chyldren of Aser by their kynredes. These cities wyth their vylages. And the sixt lot came out vnto the chyldren of Nephtali by their kynredes. And their coastes were from Heleph, and from Elö in zaananim, and Adami. Rekeb and Jabneel euen to Lacum, and go oute at Jordan. And then the coaste turneth Westwarde to Askoth in mounte Thabor, and then goeth oute fro thence to Hukokah, & meteth wyth za-bulon on the Southsyde, and wyth Aser on the Weste, and at Juda vpon Jordan toward the sunne rysyng. And theyr stronge cities at zidim, Ber, Hamath, Racarthe, and Cenereth, Adamah, Hermah, and Hazor: Keddes, Edraie and Euhazor: Jeron, Magdelel, Dozem Berhanah, and

The.xxi.Chapter.

The cities geuen to the Leuites in number fortye and eyght. The promises of geuyng the land of Canaan are fulfilled. The Israelites are at rest.

And then came the pryncipall heades of the Leuytes vnto Eleazer the prieste, and vnto Josua the sonne of Nun, and vnto the auncient heades of the trybes of the chyldren of Israell, and spake vnto theym at Siloh in the land of Canaan, sayinge: * the Lord commaunded by Moyses, to geue vs cities to dwell in, & the fieldes aboute the for oure catell. And the chyldren of Israell gaue vnto the Leuytes out of theyr enheritaunces, at the byddinge of the Lord, these cities folowing with their suburbs. And the lot came out vnto the kynnedes of the Cabathites: and the chyldren of Aaron the priest, whych were of the Leuites, had geue them by lot out of the tribe of Iuda, out of the tribe of Simeon, and out of the trybe of Benjamin. xiii. Cyttes. And the reste of the chyldren of Cabath had by lot out of the kynnedes of the trybe of Ephraim, out of the tribe of Dan, and out of the halfe trybe of Manasses, ten Cyttes. And the chyldren of Gerson had by lotte out of the kynnedes of the trybe of Issachar, out of the trybe of Aser, out of the trybe of Nephthalim, and out of the other halfe trybe of Manasses in Basan. xiii. citpes. And the chyldren of Merari by theyr kynnedes, had out of the trybe of Ruben, out of the trybe of Gad, and out of the trybe of Zabulon, twelue cyttes. And the chyldren of Israell gaue by the lot vnto the Leuytes these Citpes wth theyr suburbs, as the Lord commaunded Moyses. And they gaue out of the trybe of the chyldren of Iuda, and out of the Trybe of the chyldren of Simeon these citpes by name: whych the chyldren of Aaron beyng of the kynnedes of the Cabathites, and of the chyldren of Leuy, obtayned: for theires was the fyrste lotte. And they gaue them Kariattharbe of the father of * Enache, whych is Hebron in the byll countrey of Iuda, wth the suburbs of the same rounde aboute it. And out of the tribe of Ben Jamin they gaue Gabaon wpth her suburbs, Gaba wpth her suburbs, Anathoth wpth her suburbs, Almon with her suburbs, foure Cyties. All these cities of the chyldren of Aaron ppeles wer. xiii. cities with theyr suburbs. And the kyndes of the chyldren of Cahath that were Leuites, that is to saye, the other chyldren of Cahath had the cities of their lot, out of the trybe of Ephraim. And they gaue them the free cite, of the Neer, Sichem wpth her suburbs in moūt Ephraim, & Bazer with her suburbs, & Rabzaim with her suburbs, Bethhoron with her suburbs, foure cyties. And out of the tribe of Dan, Eltheke with her suburbs, Gibethon with her suburbs, Aialon with her suburbs, and Bachzemō wpth her suburbs. iiii. cities. And oute of the halfe trybe of Manasses, Thanach with her suburbs, Gathremōn with her suburbs, two cities. So that all the cities which were geuen vnto the kyndes of thother chyldren of Cahath, were ten wpth their suburbs. And vnto the chyldre of Gerson, which wer of the kyndes of the Leuites, they gaue out of the other halfe trybes of Manasses, the cite of refuge for the Neer, Bolan in Balan, and Bosra with her suburbs: Beestherah wpth her suburbs. ii. cities. And oute of the trybe of Issachar, Rison with her suburbs, Daberach with her suburbs, Jarmoth with her suburbs, Enganim with her suburbs, foure cyties. And out of the trybe of Aser, Misell wpth her suburbs, Abdon wpth her suburbs, Balakath with her suburbs, Rohob with her suburbs. iiii. cyties. And oute of the trybe of Nephtali, the cite of refuge of the Neer, Kedesh in Galyle, wpth her suburbs: Hamothdor wpth her suburbs, Charthan wpth her suburbs, thre cities. So that all the cities of the Gersonites in their kyndes were. xiii. wpth their suburbs. And vnto the kyndes of the chyldre of Merari the rest of the Leuites, they gaue oute of the trybe of Zabulon, Jecna wpth her suburbs, Carthar with her suburbs: Damna wpth her suburbs, & Mahal wpth her suburbs. iiii. cyties. And out of the trybe of Ruben, they gaue Bosor with her suburbs, Jakesach with her suburbs, Kedemoth with her suburbs, foure Cities. And out of the trybe of Gad, they gaue the fraunchised cite of the Neer, Ramoth in Galaad wpth her suburbs. Manahaym with her suburbs, Hesbon with her suburbs, and Jasar with her suburbs. iiii. cyties in all, so that all the Cities of the chyldre of Merari in their kyndes, which were the reste of the kyndes of the Leuites, wer by their lotte, twelue cyties. And all the cities which the Leuites had in possession of the chyldre of Israel, were fortie and eyghte with their suburbs. And these Cyties had eche their suburbs rounde aboute her, thorough all the sayed Cities.

And the Lord gaue vnto Israel, all the land which he sware to geue vnto their fathers. And they conquered it, & dwelt ther in. And the Lord gaue them rest round aboute, accordynge to all that he sware vnto their fathers. So that there stode not a man of all their enemyes before them. But the Lord deliuered all their enemyes into their handes. There scaped nothyng of all the good thynges whiche the Lord had sayed vnto the house of Israel. But all came to passe.

The. xxi. Chapter.

Ruben, Gad, and the halfe trybe of Manasses are sent agayne to their possessions. They build an auter for a memoriall.

Then Josua called the Rubenites, the Gadites, and the halfe trybe of Manasses, & sayed vnto the: * Ye haue kepte al that Moyses the seruaunte of the Lord commaunded you, & haue obeyed my voyce in all that I commaunded you: Ye haue not leste your brethren of a long season vnto this day, but haue kept the commaundement of the Lord your God. And now the Lord hath geuen reste vnto your brethren, as he promised the. Wherefore retorne and go vnto your tentes and vnto the lande of your possession, whiche Moyses the seruaunte of the Lord gaue you on the other syde Jordan.

But in any wyse take excedynge good hede that ye do the commaundement and law which Moyses the seruaunt of the lord charged you, which is, that ye loue the lord your God, and walke in his wayes, and kepe his commaundementes, and cleaue vnto hym, and serue hym wpth all your hertes, and wpth all your soules. And so Josua blessed them and sent them awaye. And they went vnto their tentes.

Vnto the one halfe of the trybe of Manasses Moyses gaue possession in Balan, & to the other halfe therof gaue Josua wpth their brethren on this syde Jordan westwarde. And also when Josua sente them awaye vnto their tentes and blessed them, he sayed vnto them: retorne wpth muche ryches vnto your tentes, and wpth very muche cattell wpth syluer, golde, brasse, yron, and wpth raimente aboue measure, and deupde the spoyle of your enemyes, wpth your brethren.

And the chyldren of Ruben, the chyldren of Gad, and halfe the trybe of Manasses returned and departed from the chyldren of Israel out of Siloth, whiche is in the lande of Canaan, to go vnto the contrey of Balaad, and to the lande of theyr possession, wherein they were possessed at the mouth of the Lorde, by the hand of Moyses. And when they came vnto the hylls of Iordane, that lye in the Lande of Canaan, there the chyldren of Ruben, the chyldren of Gad, & the halfe trybe of Manasses buyt an aulter fast by Iordan, and that a greate aulter too see too. And when the chyldren of Israell hearde sape: beholde the chyldren of Ruben, the chyldren of Gad, and the halfe trybe of Manasses haue builte an aulter in the fore fronte of the Lande of Canaan in the borders of Iordan on the side of the chyldren of Israel: the whole cōgregacion of the chyldre of Israel gathered them together to Siloh to warre vpon them wpyth battel.

And the chyldren of Israell sente vnto the chyldren of Ruben, to the chyldren of Gad, and to the halfe trybe of Manasses into the Lande of Balaad, whiche the sonne of Eleazar the priest, and wpyth hym ten lordes, of euerpe chiefe house a Lorde, thowwe oute al the trybes of Israel, whiche heades of theyr fathers householdes were ouer the thousandes of Israell. And they wente vnto the chyldren of Ruben, of Gad, and to the halfe trybe of Manasses vnto the lande of Balaad, and spake with them, sayinge.

Thus say the whole congregacion of the Lorde: what transgression is this that ye haue transgressed agaynst the God of Israel, to turne away this day from after the Lorde, and to build you an aultare for to rebel this day agaynst the Lorde.

Is that wicked dede of Belpheor to litle for vs, wherof we ar not clenfed vnto this daye, and muche people were slayne, but ye also shoulde turne away this day from folowinge the Lorde? Ye shal rebel to day agaynst the Lorde, and to morowe he shal be wrothe with al the congregacion. Not wpythstandynge if the Lande of your possession be vncleane, then come ouer vnto the land of the possession of the Lorde, wher the Lordes tabernacle dwelleth, and be possessed among vs. But rebel not agaynst the Lorde, nor agaynst vs, to bulde you any other aulter, saue the aulter of the Lorde oure God. Dyd not Acan the sonne of Zareth transgresse the commaundemente of the Lorde, and wra the fell on all the cōgregacion of Israel, so that he alone perished not for his wickednes. Then the chyldren of Ruben, and of Gad, and halfe the trybe of Manasses answered and sayde vnto the heades ouer the thousandes of Israell. The myghty God, the almyghty Lorde, he knoweth, and Israell shall knowe, if it be to rebell or transgresse agaynst the Lorde, then the Lorde saue vs not this daye.

Or els if we haue builte vs an aulter to turne from folowynge the Lorde, or to offer theron burnt offeringe or meate offeringe, or to offer peace offeringes thereon, let the Lorde requyre it: And haue not rather done it for feare of this, least in time to come, your chyldre shold say vnto ours: What haue ye to do with the Lord God of Israel, seinge that the Lord hath made Iordan a border betwene vs & you ye chyldren of Ruben, & of Gad: ye haue no parte therefore in the Lorde, & so shal oure chyldre cease from fearynge the Lorde.

Therefore we thought it better, and said: Let vs cause an aulter to be made, not for burnt offerings, nor sacrifice, but it shal be a token betwene vs and you, and oure generations after vs, & we shuld serue the Lord wpyth our offerings: & ye your chyldre shold not say to ours in time to come: ye haue no parte in the Lorde.

And we thoughte, if they shoulde so sape to vs, or to oure generations in tyme to come, that we wolde say agayn: Behold the facion of the aulter whiche oure fathers made, neyther for burnt offerings, nor sacrifices, but that it shoulde be a witness betwene vs and you, God forbpd that we shoulde rebell agaynst the Lorde, and that we shoulde turne this daye from after hym, & builte an alter for burnt offerings or sacrifices, saue the aulter of the Lorde oure God, whych is before hys tabernacle.

And when whiche the prieste and the Lordes of the congregacion, and heades ouer the thousandes of Israel, whiche were wpyth hym, hearde the words that the chyldren of Ruben, the chyldren of Gad, and the chyldren of Manasses spake, they were wel content.

And whiche the sonne of Eleazar the prieste, sayd vnto the chyldren of Ruben of Gad and of Manasses, this day we perceue that the Lorde is among vs, because ye haue not done this trespase agaynst the Lorde. And now ye haue rid the chyldren of Israel oute of the handes of the Lorde.

And whiche the sonne of Eleazar the priest and the Lordes returned from the chyldren of Ruben and of Gad out of the land of Balaad, vnto the land of Canaan, to the chyldren of Israel, & brought them worde agayne. And the answer pleased the chyldren of Israel wel, and they praised God, and dyd not intend to go agaynst them in battel, to destroy the land, which the chyldren of Ruben & Gad dwelt in. And the chyldren of Ruben, and the chyldrene of Gad called the aultare En, because it is a witness betwene vs that the Lorde is God:

thou hast geuen me a southward and drye lande, geue me also springes of water. And Caleb gaue her springes bothe aboue and beneth. And the children of the Benite Moses wiues father went vppye oute of the cytye of Palmietrees with the children of Juda into the wilderness of Judas Lot, that lyeth in the Southe of Arad, and dwelte amonge the people.

And Juda went and Simeon wpyth hym and they slewe the Cananites that inhabited zephath, and vterlye destroyed it, and called the name of the cytye Hormah, that is a mount. And Juda toke vp Azah wpyth the coastes thereof, and Akalon wpyth the coastes thereof, and Akarö wpyth the coastes thereof. And the Lorde was with Juda that he conquered the mountayns, but they could not dryue out the inhabitants of the valleis, because they had charrets of yron. And they gaue Hebron vnto Caleb, as Moses sayed. And he expelled thence the thre sonnes of Enack.

And the children of Ben Jamin dyd not caste oute the Jebusytes that enhabytet Jerusalem, but the Jebusytes dwell wpyth the chyldren of Ben Jamin in Jerusalem, vnto thys daie. And in lyke manner the house of Joseph wente vp to Bethel, and the Lorde wpyth them: and when they beleged the cytye whiche before tyme was called Lus, and sawe a manne come oute of þ cytye, they sayde to hym: shew vs the way into the cytye, and we wpyll shewe the mercy. And he shewed them the waye into the cytye, and they smot it wpyth the edge of the sword, but they did let þ man and al his houshold go fre. And the man wente into the land of the Bethites, and built a citie & called the name thereof Lus, whiche is the name thereof vnto thys daie.

Nepther dyd Manasses expell Bethsean wpyth hys townes, nepther Thaanach wpyth her townes, nepther the enhabyttours of Dor, wpyth hys townes, nepther the enhabitours of Jebelaam with hys townes, neither the enhabitours of Magedo wpyth hys townes, and soo the Cananites wente to and dwelte amonge them. But as sone as Israell waxed myghtye, they putte the Cananites to tribute but expelled them not.

In lyke manner Ephraim expelled not the Cananites that dwelte in Gazer, but the Cananites dwelte still in Gazer amög them. Nepther dyd Zabulon expell the en-habytours of Betron, nepther the enhabytours of Rahalol. But the Cananites dwelt amög the & became theyr tributaries

Nepther dyd Asa caste oute the enhabi-tours of Acho, nepther the inhabytours of Zidon, of Ahalab, Aczib, Balthah, Apher nor of Kohob, but þ Aferites dwelt amög the Canaanites the enhabitours of the lande, and draue them not oute.

Nepther dyd Replthaim dryue out the enhabitours of Bethsames, nor the enhabitours of Bethanath, but dwelt amög the Canaanites the inhabytours of the lande. Neuertheles the enhabitours of Bethsames and of Bethanath became tributaries vnto them.

And the Amontes kepte the chyldren of Dan in the mountayns, and suffered them not to come downe too the valeies. And so the Amorites went to and dwelled in mount Beris, that is to saye a witnes, in Bailon and in Balabim. Neuerthelater the hande of Joseph waxed heauy vpon them, so that they became tributaries. And the cosse of the Amontes was from the gopnge to Aerabim, from the rocke vp warde.

The.ii. Chapter.

The aungell rebuketh the people because they made peace wpyth the Cananytes. As-dolatours are punyshed, but yet leue not theyr inuencions. God sendeth them iudges to deliuer them.

And the aungell of the Lorde came vp from Balgall to Bocim, and sayde: I broughte you oute of Egypte, and haue broughte you vnto the lande whych I sware vnto your fathers. And I sayed that I woulde neuer breake myne appoyntmente wpyth you so that ye shoulde make no couenaunte wpyth the enhabitours of thys lande, but breake downe theire altars: But ye haue not obeyed my voyce, whye haue ye thys done? wherefore I haue lykewyse determined that I wpyll not caste them oute before you, but they shall be your enemies, and their goddes shall be your destruccion. And when the aungell of the Lorde had spoken these wordes vnto all the chyldren of Israel, the people cryed out and wepte. And called the name of the sayde place Bocim, and offered there vnto the Lorde.

And when Josua had sente the people awaye, the chyldren of Israell wente euerye man into hys enheritaunce to possesse the lande. And the peple serued the Lorde all the dayes of Josua, and all the dayes of the elders that outelyued Josua, and had sene all the greate workes of the Lorde that he dyd to Israell. And Josua the sonne of Nun the seruaunte of the Lorde dyed when he was an hundred and tenne yeres old, whö they buried in the coastes of his inheritaunce: euen in Thānāb Bares in mounte Ephraim, on the northsyde of the hyll Baas. And euen so all that generacions wer put vnto their fathers, and ther arose an other generacion after them whych neether knewe the Lorde, nor yet the workes whych he dyd in Israell.

C And then the chyldren of Israell dyd wyckedlye in the syghte of the Lorde and serued Baalim, & (b) forsoke the Lord God of theyr fathers, whiche broughte them oute of the Lande of Egypte, and folowed straunge Goddes, euen of the Goddes of the nacions that wer round about them, and bowed them selues vnto them, and angered the Lorde. And so they forsoke the Lorde, and (c) serued Baal, and Ashtaroth. Wherefore the Lorde wared angre wth Israell, and deliuered them into the handes of raueners to spole them, and solde them into the handes of theyr ennemys rounde aboute them, so that they hadde no power anye lenger to stand before theyr enemies, but vnto what soeuer thynge they wente, the hande of the Lorde was vpon them wth euell lucke, euē as he promysed them. And as he sware vnto them. And they were sore oppressed.

Neuertheles the Lorde rased vp Judges whiche deliuered them oute of the handes of theyr oppressors, and yet for all that, they woulde not herken vnto theyr Judges: But wente a whorpyng after straunge goddes, and bowed them selues, and turned quykelye oute of the waye, whiche theyr fathers walked, in obeyinge the commaundementes of the Lorde, and dyd not so.

And when the Lorde rased them vpp Judges in theyr dayes, he had compassion of them, and hearde the lamentacyon of the oppressed and deliuered them oute of the handes of theyr ennemys: yet for all that, as sone as the Judge was deade, they turned, and dyd worse then theyr fathers in folowpyng straunge goddes, and in serupng them, and ceased not from theyr inuentions, nor from theyr malycouse wayes.

Wherefore the Lorde was angre wth Israell, and sayed: bycause thys people hath traungressed my couenaunte whiche I made wth theyr fathers, and haue not obeyed my voyce, therefore henceforth I wyl not caste oute one man of the nacions whiche Iosua lefte when he dyed, and that to proue Israell thowowe them whether they wyl kepe the waye of the Lorde to walke therein, as theyr fathers dyd or not. And so the Lorde lefte those nacions alone, and droue them not immediately, neyther deliuered them into the handes of Iosua.

Wherefore the Lorde was angre wth Israell, and sayed: bycause thys people hath traungressed my couenaunte whiche I made wth theyr fathers, and haue not obeyed my voyce, therefore henceforth I wyl not caste oute one man of the nacions whiche Iosua lefte when he dyed, and that to proue Israell thowowe them whether they wyl kepe the waye of the Lorde to walke therein, as theyr fathers dyd or not. And so the Lorde lefte those nacions alone, and droue them not immediately, neyther deliuered them into the handes of Iosua.

knewe nothyng of warre, he lefte the syue Lordes of the Philistines, and all the Canaanites, the Sidonites, the Beuites that dwelte in mounte Libanon, euen frome mounte Baall Hermon, to Bemoth.

Those God suffered to remayne to proue Israell by, and wete whether they woulde herken vnto the commaundementes of the Lorde, whiche he commaunded theyr fathers by the hande of Moses or no. And as the chyldren of Israell dwelte amonge the Canaanites, Bethites, Amorites, Pherezites, Beuites, and Jebusites, they tooke the daughters of them too be theyr wyues, and gaue theyr owne daughters to theyr Sonnes, and serued theyr Goddes. And so the chyldren of Israell dyd wyckedlye in the syghte of the Lorde, and forgat the Lorde theyr God, and serued Baalim, and Ashtaroth. Therefore the Lorde was angre wth Israell, and deliuered them into the handes of Chusan Rasathaim kinge of Mesopotamia. So that the chyldren of Israell serued Chusan Rasathaim eyghte yeres.

And then the chyldren of Israell cryed vnto the Lorde. And the Lorde spured them vp a sauer, and saued them: one Othoniel, the sonne of Kenes, and Calebs younger brother. And the spirite of the Lorde came vpon hym, and he iudged Israell, and wente oute to warre. And the Lorde solde Chusan Rasathaim kinge of Siria into hys hande. So that hys hand was myghty ouer Chusan Rasathaim, and the lande had rest fourty yeres. And Othoniel the sonne of Kenes dyed. And then the chyldren of Israell went to againe, and committed wyckednes in the syghte of the Lorde. And the Lorde hardened Eglon the kinge of the Moabites agaynst the chyldren of Israell, because they hadde comyfted wyckednesse before the Lorde. And thys Eglon gathered vnto hym the chyldren of Ammon, and the Amalekites, and wente and smote the chyldren of Israell, and conquered the cite of palme trees. And the chyldren of Israell serued Eglon the kyng of the Moabites. xlii. yeres. And then they cryed vnto the Lord, and the Lord spured them vp a sauer, Ahud the sonne of Sea, the sonne of Jemini, a man that coulde do nothyng hadsomy wth hys ryghte hande.

By whom the chyldren of Israell sente a present to Eglon the kyng of the Moabites, whiche Ahud made him a dagger with two edges, of a cubite lengthe, and he dyd gyde it vnder hys coote vpon hys ryghte thigh, and caried the present vnto Eglon the kinge of Moabites, which Eglon was a very fat man. And whē he had presented the present, he sent the people that bare it away, but he him self turned againe from the pdols by (b) Balgal, & said: I haue a secret to tell the kyng, & the kyng commaunded him to holde hys peace, vntyl al that stode aboute hym were gon out from hym.

And he arose oute of hys seate, and Abud put for the hys lefte hande, and toke the dagger from hys ryght thyghe, and thrust it so harde into hys bealpe, soo that the harte wente in after the blade. And the harte stopped in the fat, for he drew not the dagger oute, but as he stroke hym soo leste he the dagger in the wounde, tyl that by the pryuce partes of nature, the dyte came oute. And Abud gatte hym oute at a posterne dore, and shutte the doores of the parloure vpon hym, and locked them. The kynges seruauntes came and looked, and se, the doores of the parloure were locked, they sayed: A, he is a dorynge of hys easment in his sommer chamber. And when they had tarped tyl they were ashamed, for no man did the doores of the parloure open, then they tooke a kepe and opened them. And beholde, their Lorde was fallen downe dead vnto the earth. But Abud escaped while they tarped, and was gone beyond the quaries, and escaped into Serath. And when he was come he blew a trompet in mount Ephraim. And the children of Israell went down wth hym, and he before them, and saved vnto them: so lowe me, for the Lord hath deliuered your enemies the Moabites into your handes. And they descended after hym, and stopped the series of Iordane from the Moabites, and suffered not a manne to passe ouer. And they slewe of the Moabites the same time vpon a ten thousand men, al sat, and men of myghte, that there escaped not a man, and so the Moabites were subdued that daye vnder the handes of Israell, and the lande had rest foure score yeres. And after hym came Samgar the sonne of Anath, whiche slewe of Philistynes four hundred men wth an ore gode, and deliuered Israell also.

The.iii. Chapter.

I Israell is committed into the handes of Jabin, because they were returned to Idolatry. Deboia and Barak deliuer them: Sisara is kylled of Jaell.

And the children of Israell began againe to do wickedly in sight of the Lorde, when Abud was deade. And the Lord sold them into the handes of Jabin king of Canaan that rayned in Habor, whose captayne of war was Sisara, whiche dwelt in Haroseth of the Gentyles. And the children of Israell cted vnto the Lord, for he had nine hundred charrers of yron, he oppressed the children of Israell wth power twenty yeres. And Deboia a prophetesse, the wyfe of Lapidoth iudged Israell the same time and dwelt vnder the palme tree of Deboia, betwene Ramath and Bethel, in moue Ephraim. And the chyldren of Israell came to her for indgement. And she sente and called Barak the sonne of Abinoam out of Kedesh Nephtalim and sayed vnto hym. The Lorde God of Israell commaundeth the that thou go and leade an host vnto mount Thabor, and take wth the ten thousand men, of the chyldren of Nephtalim, and of the chyldren of Zabulon. And I wyll bryng vnto the at the ryuer of Kison, Sisara the Captayne of warre vnto Jabin, wth his charets and hys people, and wyll deliuer them into thy handes. And Barak sayed vnto her, if thou wilt go with me, I wyll goo: but and if thou wilt not go wth me, then I wyll not goo. And she answered, I wyll surely go with the, but then the praise shal not be thine in the way whych thou goest: for the Lord shal deliuer Sisara into the hands of a woman. And she arose and wente with Barak to Kedesh, and Barak called Zabulon and Nephtalim, wente by wth x. M. men: and Deboia went wth hym. But Hader the Kenyte went out of kind from the other Kenytes hys brethren, the chyldren of Hobab who was father to Moyse's wyfe, and pitched his tent vntill he was come to the oke of Zaanyim, by Kedesh. And then it was shewed vnto Sisara howe that Barak the sonne of Abinoam was gone vp to mount Thabor. And Sisara called for al hys charets, euen. ix. C. charets of yron and all for the people that he had from Haroseth of the Gentyles, vnto the ryuer of Kison. Then said Deboia vnto Barak: vp, for this is the daye in whiche the Lorde hath deliuered Sisara into thine handes, for the Lorde is gone out before the. And so Barak went downe from mount Thabor, and x. M. men after hym. But the Lorde crounsed Sisara and all hys Charrers, and all hys hoste wth the edge of the sword before Barak. And Sisara lighted downe of his charette, and fled a fote. But Barak folowed after the charets, and after the host, euen vnto Haroseth of the Gentyles. And all the hoste of Sisara fell vpon the edge of the swerde, that there was not a man lefte. Howbeit Sisara fled a fote to the tente of Jaell the wyfe of Haber the Kenite, for there was peace betwene Jabin the kyng of Habor, and the householde of Haber the Kenyte. And Israell went out agaynst Sisara and sayed vnto hym: tourne in my Lorde, tourne into me, and feare not. And he turned into her tente: and she couered him wth a mantle. And he sayd vnto her: geue me a lyttle water to dryncke, for I am thirstie. And she opened a bottell of mylke, and gaue hym drynke and couered him. And he sayed vnto her, stande in the doore of thy tente, and if anye man come aske the, or enquire of the whether there be any man here, say nay.

Then Jaell Habers wife toke a nalle of the tente, and an hammer in her hand, and went softly vnto him, and smote the nape wth the hammer throughe the temples of hys head into the ground, and as he slombred beyng weete he dyed. And beholde as Barak folowed after Sisara, Jael came oute agaynste hym, and sayde vnto hym: come, and I wyl shewe the the man whom thou seekest. And when he came into her tente: Beholde Sisara laye dead, and the nape thowre hys temples. And so God broughte Jaben the kynge of Canaan into subieccion that dape before the chyldren of Israell. And the hande of the chyldren of Israel prospered, and was sore vpon Jaben the kynge of Canaan, vntyll they had brought him to naught.

The .v. Chapter.

The songe and thanks geuing of Deboza and Barak after the victorie.

A De Deboza and Barak the sone of Abinoam, sange the same day, sayinge: Because he hath auenged the vengeance done to Israell, the people offering them selves wyllyngly, prayse ye the Lorde. Heare kyniges and herken Lords, I am she, I am she that wyllyng, and geue prayse vnto the Lorde God of Israell. Lorde when thou departedst out of Seir, and camest through the contreies of Edome, the earthe trembled, and the heauē rained, and the cloudes dropped water: the mountaynes melted before the Lorde, euen mounte Synai before the Lorde god of Israell. In the dayes of Samgar the sonne of Anah, and in the dayes of Jael, the hye wayes were vnoccupied, and (a) they that walked by pathes went by wayes that set compasses aboute. The champaigns of Israell were discouraged and faynt hearted, vntyll J Deboza arose, vntyll J rose a mother in Israell.

God chose new fashions of war: for when they had warre at their gates, there was not sene amonge. xl. Myther sheldes or speare in Israell. Gine hearte loueth the mainteyners of the law in Israell: ye that willingly haue put your selues in aduenture, blesse ye the Lorde, ye that ryde on goodly asses, and dwell besyde Middyn. And ye that walke by the wayes, make dyttyes. Where as the charrettes were broken in peces, where the booke of our aduersaries was choaked, there shal they tell of the iustye of the Lorde, and howe gracious was the stronge God of Israell: then the people of the Lorde, wente downe vnto the gates, and wan the mastery. Up vp Deboza, vp vp and sing a song, vp Barak and take thy praye, thou sonne of Abinoam. Then they that had escaped vnder Israell ragened ouer the proudeste of the people. The Lorde foughte amonge the stronge. Ephraim was the firste that destroyed Amalek. And after hym Beniamyn, amonge the people. Of Machy came leareved men in the lawe, and of zabulon that well coude conueye an host to warre. The Lordes of Isakar were wth Deboza. And as Barak, euen so was Isakar sent into the halley a fore, and put hys lyfe in auenture. But in the deuisions of Ruben were greates imaginations of hert. Wherefore abodest thou among the sheepe foldes, to hear the bletynges of the flockes? In the deuisions of Ruben greates were the imaginacions of hert. Galaad abode on the other side Jordan, and tarped Dan in hyss. And Aser sate in the hauens of the sea, and abode styl in hys owne coastes. But zabulon is a people that put their lyues in leoparde of death, and Repphalym in lyke maner euen vnto the top of the fyeldes. (c) Kynges came and foughte. Then foughte the kynge of Canaan at Chanach, vpon the water of Megedo. But the slyuer that they coueted they carped not awaye.

From heauen came battayle: for the sterres beyng in their course, foughte agaynst Sisara. The riuer of Kish caughte them away: that auncyent Riuer, the ryuer Ardon. My soule, tread thou the myghty vnder foote. Then their horses stumblid as they fled, that their myghty courters least praunsyng. Cursse ye Meroz, bydde the aungell of the Lord curse: curse the inhabitours therof, because they came not forth to helpe the Lord, to helpe the Lorde among the myghty. Blessed be Jael the wyfe of Haber the Kenite, aboue other women, aboue other women blessed be she in the tente.

She asked water, but she gaue hym mylke, and broughte butter in a goodly dyshe. She caughte a nape in her left hande, and a workynge hammer in her ryghte, and napped Sisara and wounded hys heade, and pearced and wente throughe hys temples. Betwene her fete he bowed hym selfe, fell downe and laye styl: Betwene her fete he sprawled, and lay dead lyke a wretche.

Throughe a wyndowe looked Sisaras mother, and howled oute of her chambere, why abidest hys charrette so longe that it cometh not? why tarre the wheles of hys waggans? The myfeste of hys wyues answered her, yea, and she answered her owne wordes her selfe, happily they haue founde, and deuide the spoyles. A mayde, ye two maydes for a piece, a spoyles of dyuers coloures for Sisara, a spoyles of dyuers coloures wth brodered workes, dyuers coloures brodered workes for the necke for a pray. So percythe al thynne enemyes lord, but they that loue the, lette them be as the sunne rysyng in his myghte. And the lande had rest fortye yeres.

And the children of Israel committed wickednes in the sighte of the Lorde. And the Lorde deliuered them into the handes of the madianites seven yeres. And when the hand of the Madianites was sore vpon Israel, the childre of Israel made them dens in the mountaynes, and caues, and strong holdes. For when Israel had sown, they came the Madianites, the Amalekites, and they of the Gaste countrey vpon them, and pitched theyr tentes agaynst them, and destroyed the increase of the earth, even vnto Azab, and lefte no sustenance in Israel, neyther shepe, ore, or asse: for they came wth theyr cattell, and householdes, even as greshoppers in multitude, so that boeth they, and also theyr Camels were withoutre numbre, and wasted all that euer they layed handes on. And they entered the lande to destroye it, And so was Israel exceedingly impouerished by the Madianites, and cryed vnto the Lorde. And when the childre of Israel cryed vnto the Lorde, because of the Madianites, the Lorde sente a prophete vnto them, and sayed vnto theym. Thus sayeth the Lorde God of Israel: I fet you from Egypte, and broughte you oute of the hande of the Egyptians, and oute of the handes of all that oppressed you, and caste them oute before you, and gaue you theyr Landes. And I sayed vnto you: I am the Lorde your God, and therefore feare not the Goddesses of the Amozites in whose lande you dwelle. But you woulde not obeye my voyce. And the aungell of the Lorde came and sate vnder an oke in Ephrah that pertayned to Joas the father of the Eserptes. And bys sonne Bedeon pressed oute wheate oute of eares in a presse, for to flee from the Madianites. And the aungell of the Lorde appeared vnto hym and sayed: the Lorde is wth thou man of mighte. And Bedeon answered hym: Oh my Lorde, if the Lorde be wth vs, whye is all this come vpon vs, yee and where be bys miracles whiche our fathers tolde vs of, and sayed: the lord brought vs out of Egypte. But now the Lord hath forsaken vs, and deliuered vs into the handes of the Madianites. And the Lorde looked vpon hym and sayed: Go hence in this thy myghte, and deliuer Israel oute of the handes of the Madianites: Beholde, I haue sente the. And he answered hym. Oh Lorde, wherewith shoulde I saue Israel? Beholde my kynred is the pooreste in Manasses, and I am the leaste in my fathers house. But then the Lorde sayed vnto hym: I wyl be wth the, and thou shalt smyte the Madianites, as they were but one manne. And he answered hym: if I haue founde grace in thy syghte, then shewe me a sygne, that thou art the Lord that talkest wth me.

Depart not hence, vntill I come agayne vnto the, and bypge myne offerpyge, and haue set it before the.

And he sayed, I wyl tarre vntill thou come agayne. And Bedeon wente & made ready a kybbe, & were cakes of an Ephab of flour, & put the flesch in a basket, and the broth in a pot, & brought it oute vnto hym vnder the oke, and presented it. And the aungell of God said to hym: take the flesch and the sweere cakes, and putte them vpon this rocke and powre oute the brothe. And he dyd so. Then the aungell of the Lorde put forth the ende of the staffe that was in bys hande, & touched the fleshe and the cakes. And there arose by fyre oute of the rocke, and consumed the fleshe and the cakes, and the aungell of the Lorde banished oute of bys syghte. And when Bedeon perceyued that it was an aungell, he sayde: alas my Lorde almighty, that I haue seene an aungell of the Lorde face to face. And the Lorde sayed vnto hym: peace be wth the, and feare not, for thou shalt not dye. Then Bedeon made an aulter there vnto the Lorde, and called it * Jehouah Salom, whiche vnto this daye is yet in Ephrah that pertayneth vnto the father of the Eserptes. And the same nyghte the Lorde sayed to hym: take an ore of thy fathers and another of seuen yeres olde, and destroye the aulter of Baalle that belongeth vnto thy father, and cutte downe the groue that is aboute it, and make an aulter vnto the Lorde thy God vpon the top of this rocke, & furnishe it. And take the ore and offer burnt sacrifice wth the wood of the groue which thou shalt haue cutte downe. Then Bedeon toke ten men of his seruantes, and did as the Lorde bad hym. But because he durste not do it by day, for feare of bys fathers houshold, and of the men of the ctry, he dyd it by nyght.

When the menne of the ctrye were by earlye in the morninge: Beholde, the aulter of Baalle was broken, and the groue that stode aboute it cutte downe. And the seconde ore offered vpon the aulter that was made. And they said one to another: Who hath done this thyng? and they enquired and asked for hym that shoulde haue done the deede. It was tolde theym that Bedeon the sonne of Joas had done it. Then the menne of the ctrye sayed vnto Joas: bypge out thy sonne, that he maye dye, because he hath broken the aulter of Baal, and cut downe the groue that was aboute it. And Joas sayed vnto all that stode by hym: wyl ye fyghte for Baal, or wyl ye be bys defenders? he that stricth for hym shal dye before to morow. If he be a God let hym reuege his quarel vpon hym that cast downe bys aulter. And he called Bedeon Jerobaal the same tyme sayinge: let Baal reacquit him because he hath broken downe bys aulter.

When all the Madianites, the Amalekites lekites and they of the east were gathered together, and had gone and pitched in the valley of Issachar, the south side of the Jordan entered into Gideon. And he blew a trumpet: and called together the house of Abiezer to follow him, and sent messengers throughout all Manasse, & called them up to follow him also. And he sent other messengers unto Aser, Zabulon, & Naphtali, which came also to meet him.

And Gideon said unto God, if thou wilt save Issachar by my hand as thou hast said, Behold, I will put a fleece of wool in the threshing place. And if the dew be on the fleece onely, and dry upon all the earth beside: then I shall be sure that thou wilt save Issachar by my hand, as thou hast said. And it came so to passe. And he rose up early on the morrow, and he pressed the fleece together, and wrung the dew thereout, and filled a bottle full of water. And Gideon said unto God, be not angry with me that I speake once more, let me proue onely once againe in the fleece. Let it be dry only upon the fleece, and dew upon all the ground about. And God dyd so that same night that it was dry upon the fleece only, & upon all the ground about dew.

The. vii. Chapter.

The soldiers that should go with Gideon to battell are proued by takinge them by water. Gideon with .iii. hundred men ouercometh the Midianites. Oreb, and Zeb are slayne.

When Jerobaal otherwyse called Gideon rose earlye, and all the people that were with him, and pitched beside the well of Harod, so that the hoste of the Midianites were in a vallie on the north side of the hill Hamorah. And the Lord said vnto Gideon: the people that are with thee, are to manye for me to geue the Midianites into thy handes, lest Issachar make theyr vaunte to my dishonour and saye, our owne hande hath saved vs. Nowe therefore make a proclamation in the eares of the people and saye: if any man dread or be afraid, let him returne, and get him home from mounte Baalad, and there departed and returned of the people, xiiij. thousand, and there abode ten thousande.

And the Lord sayde vnto Gideon: the people are yet to manye, bringe them downe vnto the water, and I will trye them vnto the there. And of whom I saye vnto thee, they shall go with thee, the same shall go with thee. And whosoever I saye vnto thee, they shall not go with thee, the same shall not go. And when he had broughte downe the people to the water, the Lord sayed vnto Gideon: as many as lappe the water with theyr tongues as dogges doo, them put by them selues, and so do they that knele downe vpon theyr knees to drinke. And the number of they that put theyr handes to theyr mouthes & lapped, were .iii. C. men, & all the remnant of the people kneled downe vpon theyr knees to drinke water. And the Lord sayed vnto Gideon, with the three hundred men that lapped water, will I save you, and deliuer the Midianites into thy hande, and all the other people shall go euery man to his owne home.

And they toke vnto theyr trumpettes, and he sent all the reste of Issachar, euery man vnto his tent, and kepte the three hundred with him: and the hoste of Midian was beneth him in a valleie. And the same nyght the Lord sayed vnto him, vp and go downe vnto the hoste, for I haue deliuered it into thy hande. But and if thou feare to go downe alone, then go thou downe vnto the hoste, and Iharab thy ladde, and hearken what they saye, and so shall thine handes be strong, and then thou shalt safely go downe vnto the hoste.

Then he went downe with Iharab his ladde, euen harde to the watchmen of armes that were in the hoste. And the Midianites, the Amalekites, & all they of the east laye alonge in the valley lyke to greshoppers in multitude, & theyr Camels were withoute number, euen as the sande by the sea syde. And when Gideon was come, Behold, there was a man that tolde a dreame vnto his felowe, and sayed on this maner: Behold, I haue dreamed a dreame, and me thoughte that a barthe baked lofe of barley breade tumbled into the hoste of Midian, and came vnto a tent, and smote it that it fell, and ouertourned it, and the tente laye along. And his felowe answered and sayed: this is no bringe else saue the swerde of Gideon the sonne of Joas a man of Issachar, into whose handes the Lord hath deliuered Midian, and all the hoste.

When Gideon hearde the tellinge of the dreame, and the meanynge thereof, he bowed hym selfe to the earth, and returned vnto the hoste of Issachar, and sayed: vp for the Lord hath deliuered into your handes the hoste of the Midianites. And he deuided the three hundred men into three companies, and gaue euery man a trumpet in his hande, with an empty pitcher and lampes therein, and sayed vnto them: loke on me, and do lyke wyse, and beholde when I come to the syde of the hoste, euen as I do, so do you. And when I blow with a trumpet, and all that are with me, blowe with trumpettes also on euery syde the host, & saye: here be the Lord and Gideon.

And so Gideon and the three hundred men that were with him, came vnto the side of the hoste, in the begynnyng of the middle watche, and rased vp the watchmen. And they blew with theyr trumpets, and brake theyr pitchers that were in theyr handes. And all the companies blew with trumpettes, and brake theyr pytchers, and helde theyr lampes in theyr left handes, and the trumpettes in their right, to blowe wyth all. And they cryed: thef wearde of the Lorde, and of Bedeon. And they stode stylle euery manne in hys place rounde about the hooste, and all the hooste ranne and cryed and fled.

And as the thre hundred blew wyth trumpettes, the Lorde sente hys swearde shynynge al the hooste, so þe euery one slewe other. And the hooste fled vntyl they came to Bethsitah, to zererath, and to the edge of Abelmeholah, besyde Tabar.

And the men of Israell gathered together of the trybe of Iephthahym, of aser and of Manasses, and folowed after the Gadianites. For Bedeon had sente messengers thowocoute all mounte Ephraim, saying: come downe agaynst the Gadyanites, and take from them the waters both of Berthbarath, and also of Jordane.

Then all the men of Ephraim gathered together, and came downe and toke the waters both of Berthbarath, and also of Jordane. And they toke two captaynes of the Gadyanites, Hozeb, & zeb, and slewe Hozeb vpon the rocke Hozeb, and zeb at the presse zeb, and folowed after Gadia, & brought þe heads of Hozeb & zeb to Bedeon, on the other syde Jordane.

The.viii. Chapter.

Ephraim maketh insurreccion agaynst Bedeon, but is lone pacified. The enhabytours of Socoth refuse to gyue Bedeon and hys armye bycade. The tower of Ihanuell is destroyed. Bedeon is constitute ruler ouer the Israelites. He hath thre scoze and ten sonnes. He dyeth.

And the menne of Ephraim sayed vnto hym. Why haste thou serued vs thus, that þe calledest vs not wgen thou wentest to fyghte wyth the Gadyanites? and they chode wyth hym a good, and were welluyghe at daggers drawynge. And he sayed to them: What deede haue I done lyke vnto you: are not the (a) clusters of Ephraim better then the wyne varueste of Abiezzer? God hath deliuered in to your handes the Lordes of Gadian, Hozeb, and zeb. And what was I able to do like as you haue done? And then theyr spirittes were pacified, and they well content wyth hym, when he had said that. And then Bedeon came to Jordane and passed ouer, both he and the thre hundred men that were wyth hym verpe saynt, and yet folowed he the chace.

And he sayed vnto the menne of Socoth: Gyue I praye you cakes of breade vnto the people that folowe me: for they be saynt, that I maye folowe after zebath and zalmona, knynges of Gadyan. And the Lordes of Socoth sayed: are the handes of zebathe and zalmona now in thyn handes, that we shoulde gyue breade vnto thy companye? And Bedeon sayed: therefore when the Lorde hath deliuered zed zebath and zalmona into myne hande I wyll teare the fleshe of you wyth the thornes of the wyldernes, and wyth byssers. And he wente thence to Ihanuell, and spake vnto them lyke wyse. And the men of Ihanuel answered, as dyd the men of Socoth. And he sayed also vnto the men of Ihanuell, when I come agayne in peace I wyll breake downe this tower. zebath and zalmou were in Arkar, and theyr hostes with them, vpon a fyftene thousande, whiche were all that were lesse of all the hostes of them of the East. And they that were saynt, were a hundred and twenty thousande men that drew swerde.

And Bedeon wente thowocoute them þe dwel in the tabernacle on the east syde of zebath and Ierhabab, & smote the hooste, for the host dyd caste no perils. zebath, and zalmona fled. But he folowed after them, and toke the ii. knynges of þe Gadyanites zebath and zalmona, & discorde the hoist.

And Bedeon the sonne of Noas retur ned from battell the sunne beyuge vp, and caughte a ladde of the men of Socoth, and enquired of hym the names of the chyefe lordes and elders of Socoth. And he wrote the L O R D E S and elders of Socoth, thre scoze and seuentene menne. Then he came vnto the men of Socoth and sayed: Behold zebath and zalmona, wyth whom ye caste me in the teth, saying: are the handes of zebath and zalmona alreedy in thine handes, that we shold gyue breade vnto thy saynt men? And he toke the elders of the cite, and thornes of the wyldernes and byssers, and all to tare them therwyth. And he brake downe the tower of Ihanuell, and slewe the men of the Cyt.

And then he sayed vnto zebath, and zalmona, what maner men were they whiche ye slewe at Thabor? and they answered, they were muche lyke the in sauoure, and one of theym euen as he were a knynges sonne. And he sayed, they were my brechren, euen my mothers chyldren, and as coulpe as the Lorde lyueth, if ye hadde saued theyr lyues, I woulde not slea you. And he sayde vnto Jether his eldest sonne, vp and slep them, but the ladde drew not hys swearde, for he feared because he was yet pong. Then zebath and zalmona said, Asple thou and fal vpon vs, for as the man is, so is hys strengthe, and Bedeon arose and slewe them, and he tooke awaye the trapperie and chapnes that were on theyr Camelles neckes.

Then the menne of Israell sayde vnto Bedeon. Raigne ouer vs, both thou, thy sonne, and also thy sonnes sonne, for thou haste deliuered vs oute of the handes of the Gadianites. And Bedeon sayde vnto them: I wyll not raigne ouer you, neythet my chylde n raigne ouer you, but the Lord shall raigne ouer you.

Reuerthelatter Bedeon sayde to them, I woulde desyre a certeyne requeste of you, went to Beer and dwelt there, for feare of Abimelech hys brother. When Abimelech hadde rayned thre yeres, God sente a spite full malpce betwene Abimelech and the citizens of Sichem.

And the citizens of Sichem beganne to despye Abimeleche and wshed that the wyckednesse done vnto the .lxix. Sonnes of Jerobaall myghte come vppon him and laped the bloude of them too Abimeleche thei brother, whiche slewe them, and vnto the other citizens of Sichem, whiche ayded hym in the kyllinge of his brethren. And the cypzens of Sichem sette menne to lye awayte for hym in the toppe of the mountaynes, and whyles they awayted hys commynge, they robbed all that came alonge the waye by them. And it was tolde Abimeleche.

D And Baall the sonne of Obed and hys brethren wente and gatte them to Sichem. And the men of Sichem putt thei confydence in hym. And they wente out into the fields and gathered in their grapes, & trod them, and made merke: and wente into the house of thei God, and dyd eate and dryncke, and cursed Abimelech. And Baall the sonne of Obed saied, what is Abimeleche? and what is Sichem? that we should serue hym? is he not the son of Jerobaall? and zebul hys offpcer? serue suche as come of Demoz the father of Sichem, for what reason is it that we shoulde serue hym? woulde God thys people were vnder myne hande, then I woulde putte downe Abimeleche. And one sayde vnto Abimeleche make thyne hooste greater, and goooute. And when zebul the ruler of the cyppe hearde the words of Baal the sonne of Obed, he was wrothe, and sente messengers vnto Abimelech pryuelie, sayinge. Behold, Baal the sonne of Obed, and hys brethren are come to Sichem, and beholde, they set the cyppe agaynst the. Howe therefore arysse by nyghte both thou and all the people that is wpth the, and lye in waite in the feldes. And ryse earlye in the mornynge as sone as the sunne is vyppre, and come vpon the cyppe. And when he and the people that is wpth hym come forth agaynst the, do to hym what thine handes shalbe able. And Abimeleche rose vyppre, and all the people wpth hym by nyghte. And they laped awayte to the Citie in foure compaynes.

And Baall the sonne of Obed wente oute, & stode in the entre of the gate of the cyppe. And Abimelech rose vyppre and the folke that were wpth hym from lpyng awayte. Now when Baal sawe the people, he sayd to zebul: Beholde there come people frome the top of the mountaynes. And zebul sayed vnto hym: the shadowe of the hylles seme men vnto the, and so thou arte deceyued. And Baal answered agayne, and sayde: See, there come folke downe by the middle of the Lande, and an other compayn come alonge by the Wytchooke.

Then sayde zebul vnto hym: Where is nowe thy mouth that sayed, what felowe is Abimelech that we shoulde serue hym? These are the people that thou so despysedest. Go out now and fyght wpth them. And Baall wente forth before the citizens of Sichem, and foughte wpth Abimelech. And Abimelech chased hym so that he fled before hym, and manye were ouerthrowen and slayne euen vntyll they came vnto the enterynge of the gate. And then Abimelech wente and dwelte at Azumah. And then zebul thrust oute Baall and hys brethren and woulde not suffer them too dwell in Sichem. And on the morrowe the people went forth into the feldes. And it was told Abimelech. And he toke his people & deuided them into thre copanies, and laye awayte in the feldes. And when he sawe that the people were come oute of the cyppe, he ranne vppon them, and laped vppon them.

And Abimelech and the compaynes that were wpth hym ranne and stode in the enterynge of the gate of the cyppe. And the two other compaynes ranne vppon all the people that were in the feldes, and slewe them. And then Abimelech foughte agaynst the cyppe al that daye, and tooke it, and slewe the people that was therein and destroyed the cyppe, and sowed salte in the place. And when al the menne of the towre of Sichem hearde that, they entered into a strong hold of the house of their God Baal Berith, when they made a couenaunte to hym, and the place had Berezthes name, and it was strongly fenced.

And when it was tolde Abimelech, that all the men of Sichem were gathered together, he gat hym to mount zelmon, both he and all that were wpth hym, and tooke axes wpth hym, and cutte downe an arme of a tree, and tooke it vyppre, and put it on hys shulder, and sayde vnto the folke that were wpth hym: whatsoeuer ye seme do, speede your selues, and do lykewyse. And all the people cut downe also euery man a bough and folowed Abimelech, and put them in to the holde, and set the holde afyre vpon them: so that al the menne of the towre of Sichem were slayne, aboute a thousande persons, what of men and women.

Then wente Abimelech to Thebez and beseged it, and toke it. But there was a stronge tower in the myddes of the cyppe, and thither ranne all the menue and women, and all the citizens of the cyppe, and shut it to them, and gotte them vppon the battelmentes. Then came Abimelech vnto the tower, and foughte agaynst it, and wente harde vnto the enterynge of the gate to set it on fyre. But a womanne cast a pece of a mylstone vpon hys heade and all to brake hys brayne panne.

Then Abimelech called hastelpe vnto the ponge manne that bare hys harnais, and sayde vnto hym: drawe thy swearde, and sleame, that menne saye not of me, a woman slewe hym. And hys ladde thruste hym thorowe, and he dyed.

And when the men of Israel sawe that Abimelech was dead, they departed euerye man vnto hys owne house.

And thus all the wyckednesse of Abimelech, whiche he dyd vnto hys father in sleynge hys lxx. brethren, and thereto all the wyckednes of the menne of Sichem. God dyd bynne upon thei heades. And vpon them came the curse of Joatham the sonne of Jerobaal.

The .i. Chapter.

Thola and Jair Judges of Israel, Israell synneth, and after cryeth on God for remission.

After Abimeleche, arose to defend Israell one Thola, the sonne of Ihuah, the sonne of Dodo a mā of Isaker, whiche dwelte in Samir, in mounte Ephraim, who iudged Israell thye and twente yere, and then dyed and was buried in Samir. And after hym arose Jair a Galaadite, who iudged Israell .xxii. yere. And he hadde, xxx. sonnes that rode on thyrte Asses coltes, and hadde thyrte cityes for them, whiche ar called the townes of Jair vnto this dai, and ar in the land of Galaad. And Jair died, and was buried in Ramon.

And the chyldren of Israell wroughte wyckednesse yet agayne in the spghte of the Lorde, and serued Baalim & Ashtaroth and the Gods of Siria, and the Gods of Sidon, the Gods of Moab, the Gods of the chyldren of Ammon, and the goddes of the philistines, and forsoke the Lorde and serued hym not, wherefore the Lorde was wroth wth Israell, and gaue them vp in to the handes of the philistines, and in to the handes of the chyldren of Ammon: whiche pylled and oppressed the chyldren of Israell in those dayes epghtene yere, all that were on the other syde Iordane, in the lande of the Amorites in Galaad.

Moreouer the chyldren of Ammon wente ouer Iordan to fghte agaynst Iuda, Ben Jamin, and the house of Ephraim, so that Israell was sore encombred. Then the chyldren of Israell cryed vnto the Lorde, sayinge: We haue synned agaynst the: for we haue forsaken oure owne God and serued Baalim. And the Lorde sayed vnto the chyldrene of Israell: dyd not the Egyptians the Amorites, the chyldren of Ammon, the philistines, the Sidonites, the Amalekites, and the Madianites, oppresse you? And ye cryed too me, and I deliuered you forth of theire handes. And thys not wthstandynge ye haue forsaken me, and serue straunge Goddes, wherefore I will helpe you no more. But goo and crye vnto the Gods whiche ye haue chosen, and lette them saue you in the time of your affliction. But the chyldren of Israell sayed vnto the Lorde, we haue synned, doo thou vnto vs what so euer please the, and delpue vs onelye at thys tyme. And they put awaye the straunge gods from them, & serued the Lorde. And he was sorrowful for the miserie of Israell.

Then the chyldren of Ammon assembled and pyched in Galaad, and the chyldren of Israell gathered them together, and pitched in Mazpah. And the compaigne of the Lordes of Galaad sayd, whosoever wil be ginne the battell agaynst the chyldren of Ammon shall be heade ouer all the inhabitants of Galaad.

The .xi. Chapter.

Jephthah the sonne of an harlotte delpueyth Israell frome the Ammonytes, after they asked forgiveness of the vowe of Jephthah.

There was one Jephthah a Galaadite, a stronge manne, who was the sonne of an harlotte: Howe be it Galaad begat Jephthah. But Galaades wyfe bare hym sonnes, whiche when they were come to age, thruste oute Jephthah, and sayed to hym. Thou shalt not inherite in oure fathers house, for thou arte the sonne of a straunge womanne. Then Jephthah fled from hys brethren, and dwelte in the Lande of Tob.

And idle people and robbers assembled themselves to Jephthah, and wente oute wth hym. But it chaunced in proceste of tyme, that the chyldrene of Ammon made warre agaynst Israell: then the elders of Galaad wente and sette Jephthah oute of the Lande of Tob, and sayed vnto hym: come and be oure captayne, and lette vs fghte wth the chyldren of Ammon. And Jephthah sayde vnto the elders of Galaad. Dyd not ye hate me, and chased me out of my fathers house? howe happeneth it then, that you come vnto me now in tyme of your tribulacion? And the elders of Galaad answered Jephthah. Wherefore wee turne agayne to thee now, that thou go wth vs, and fghte agaynst the chyldren of Ammon, and be oure heade, ouer all the inhabitants of Galaad. And Jephthah sayde vnto the elders of Galaad: If ye bynne me home agayne to fghte wth the chyldren of Ammon, then if the Lorde delpue them befoze me, I shall be your heade.

And the elders of Galaad sayd to Jephthah: the Lorde that heareth these wordes be wytnesse betwene vs, if wee do not accordynge to thy wordes. Then Jephthah went wth the elders of Galaad. And the people made hym head and ruler ouer the. And Jephthah rehearsed all hys wordes befoze the Lorde in Mazpah.

Then Jephthah sente messengers vnto the kynge of the chyldren of Ammon, sayinge: What ayleth the wth me, that thou comest vpon me to fghte agaynst my lande? And the kynge of the chyldren of Ammon answered the messengers of Jephthah Jephthah, because Israel took away my Lande, when they came forth of Egypte: euen from Arnon vnto Iabok, and from thence vnto Jordan. Nowe therefore, restore these Landes againe by fapre meanes. And Jephthah sente messengers agayne vnto the chylde of Ammon and sayde vnto hym: thus saythe Jephthah.

Deut. ii. a.

Israel took not away the Lande of Moab, nor the Lande of the chylde of Ammon. But when Israel came forth of Egypte, they walked thowre the wilderness euen vnto the redde sea, and came too Cadès, and sente messengers vnto the kynge of Edom, sayinge: lette vs (we praye the) goo thowre thy Lande. But the kynge of Edom woulde not assente thereto. And in lyke manner they sente too the kynge of Moab, but he woulde not consente. And so Israel abode still in Cadès. And then they wente alonge thowre the wyldernes, and compassed the Lande of Edom and the lande of Moab, and came alonge by the easse syde of Moab, & ptyched theyr tentes on the other side & riuier of Arnon, & came not within the coastes of the Moabites: for Arnon was theyr furthest border.

Nu. xi. b.

And then Israel sente messengers too Sehon kynge of the Amorytes, and kynge of Heshbon, and sayde vnto hym: Lette vs passe thowre thy lande, vnto oure contrie. But Sehon trusted not Israel, to go thowre hys costes: but gathered all hys people together, and ptyched in Jazah, and fought w Israel: But the lord God of Israel deliuered Sehon & al hys folke into the hands of Israel. And so Israel smote them, and conquered all the Lande of the Amorytes, the inhabitants of the sayd contrie.

And they conquered all the coastes of the Amorytes, from Arnon vnto Iabok, and from the wilderness vnto Jordane.

So nowe for as muche as the Lord God of Israel hath caste out the Amorytes before hys people, shouldest thou enioye the Lande? Naye, but what people Camos thy God dyueth oute, that lande possesse thou. But what soeuer nation the Lord oure God chaseth oute, that lande oughte we to enioy.

And therto, art thou better then Balack the sonne of Zephor king of Moab: or canst thou shewe vs that he dyd stryue wth Israel, or fyghte agaynst theim, all the whyle Israel dwelte in Heshbon, and hys townes, in Aroer and hys townes, and in all the cytys that bee a longe by the sea coastes of Arnon, thre hundred peres: whpe dyddest thou not recouer them in all that space: wherefore I haue not offended agaynst the, but thou doest me wronge too warre vpon me.

Nu. xxi. a.

Deu. xxi. a.

The Lord therefore be iudge thys dape betwene the chylde of Israel, and the chylde of Ammon. Neuerthelesse the kynge of the chylde of Ammon hearkeneth not vnto the wordes of Jephthah, whi che he sente hym.

Then the spirite of the Lorde came vpon Jephthah: And he passed ouer Galaad and Manasses, & came to Gazphah that lieth in Galaad, and from thence vnto the chylde of Ammon. And Jephthah bowed a bow vnto the Lord & said: If thou shalt deliuer the chylde of Ammon into my handes, then that thing that cometh out of the doores of my house agaynst me, wher I come home in peace from the chylde of Ammon, shalbe the Lords: and I wil offer it vpon a burnt offering. And so Jephthah wente vnto the chylde of Ammon, too fyghte wth them. And the Lord deliuered them into hys handes. And he smote them from Aroer vnto Menith, twentye cytys. And so forth to the playne of the vineyardes, and made an exceeding greate slaughter. And thus the chylde of Ammon were brought vnder, before the chylde of Israel.

If Jephthah boweth.

Then Jephthah came to Gazphah, to hys house. And behold hys daughter came oute agaynst hym wth tymbrelles, and daunces, whiche was hys onely chylde, so that besyde her, he had neyther sonne, nor daughter. And when he sawe her, he rente hys clothes, and sayde: Alas my daughter thou hast made me stoupe, and arte one of them that bere me: for I haue opened my mouth vnto the Lorde, and canne not go backe. And she sayde vnto hym: my father, if thou haue opened thy mouth vnto the Lorde, then do wth me accordyng to that proceeded oute of thy mouth, for as muche as the Lorde hath aduenged the of thys enemies the chylde of Ammon. And she sayd vnto her father, do thys much for me: let me alone for the space of .ii. monethes, that I may go down to the mountaynes, and bewaile my virginnyte wth my felowes. And he sayde, goo: and so he sente her awaye for two monethes.

And she wente wth her companions, and lamented her mayden head vpon the mountaynes. And after two monethes, she turned again vnto hir father, which did wth hys accordyng to hys bowe, which he had bowed, and so she knew no mā. And it became a custome in Israel pere by pere, that the daughters of Israel shoulde goo and lamente the daughter of Jephthah the Galaadite, four dayes in a pere.

Judi. x. a

And the chyliden of Israell began agayn to do wickednes in the sight of the Lord, and the Lord delpue red them into the handes of the philistines fortye pere. And there was a man in zaraah of the kindred of the Danites, named Manoah, whose wyfe was barren, and bare not. And the aungell of the Lord appeared vnto hys wyfe, and sayde vnto hyr: Beholde, thou arte barren, and bearest not. But thou shalt conceive and beare a sonne. And now beware, and drinke no wyne, ne stronge dryncke, neyther eate any vncleane thyng: for lo, thou shalt conceive and beare a sonne. And there maye no krafer nor theres come on hys heade.

For the chylde shall be a Nazare vnto God, euen from the tyme of hys byrthe.

And he shall begynne too delpue Israel oute of the handes of the philistines. The wyfe wente and tolde her husbände, sayinge: A man of God came vnto me, and the fashion of hym was lyke the fashyon of an angell of God exceadynge fearefull. But I asked him not whence he was neyther tolde he me hys name. And he sayde to me: Beholde thou shalt be wpth chylde and beare a sonne, and nowe dryncke no wyne nor stronge dryncke, neyther eate any vncleane thyng: for the chylde shalbe an abstainer to God, euen from his byrth to the dape of hys deathe.

Then Manoah made intercessyon to the Lord, and laide: I praye the my Lord let the manne of God whiche thou sendest come once more vnto vs, & teache vs what we shal do vnto the child, when he is bozne. And God hearde the voyce of Manoah, & the aungell of God came agayne too the wyfe as she sate in the feldes. But Manoah hir husbände was not wpth her. When the wife made hast, and ran & shewed hir husbände, & sayd to him: Behold, the man hathe appeared vnto me, that came the other dape vnto me.

Then Manoah arose, and wente after hys wyfe, and came to the man, and sayde vnto him: Art thou the manne that spakest vnto my wyfe? And he sayde, yea. The Manoah sayde, nowe when thy worde is come to passe: what shall be the manner of the chylde, and what shall he do? And the aungell of the Lord sayde vnto Manoah, thy wyfe must abstaine from al that I said vnto hyr: she maye eate of nothyng that cometh of the vyne tree, nor dryncke wyne or stronge dryncke, nor eate any vncleane thyng: but muste obserue all that I bade hyr. Then sayde Manoah vnto the aungell of the Lord: Braunte vs to tarpe tyll we haue made readye a kydde, and haue sett it before the. And the aungell of the Lord sayde vnto Manoah: thoughe thou make me abide, I wyl not eate of thy meate. And moreouer if thou wylte prepare a burnt offering, that thou must offer vnto the lord. For Manoah wiste not that it was an aungell of the Lord. And Manoah sayd vnto the angel of the Lord: What is thy name, & when thy saying is come to passe, we maye do the some worship? And the angel of the Lord sayd vnto hym: whye askest thou after my name seing it is maruelous.

And Manoah toke a kydde wpth a meate offering, and offered it vpon a rocke vnto the Lord whiche worketh wonders.

Manoah and hys wife looked vpon. And when the flame came oute of the aulter, the angel of the Lord ascended vp in the flame of the aulter.

The marriage of Samson. He killeth a Lion. He propoundeth a riddle. He killeth thyrty men. Hys wyfe forsaketh hym and taketh an other.

Deut. xlii. a Samson wente downe to Thamnath and sawe a woman in Thamnath of the daughters of the Philistines: and came and tolde hys father and mother, and sayde: I haue sene a woman in Thamnath of the daughters of the Philistines. And now geue her me to wyfe. Then hys father and mother sayd vnto hym: is there neuer a woman among the daughters of thy brethren, amonge all my people, but that thou must goo and fet a wyfe of the vncircumcised Philistynes? And Samson sayde to hys father, geue me this womanne for she pleaseyth me well. Nowe hys father and mother wyte not that it was the Lordes working and that he sought occasion of the Philistines, whyche at that tyme raygned ouer Israell. Then wente Samson, and hys father and mother downe too Thamnath: So when thei came to the vineyards of Thamnath, Beholde a ponge Lpon rored vpon hym. And the spryte of the Lord came vppon Samson. And he tare hym, as a manne woulde rente a kyd, and yet had nothynge in hys hande. Neuerthelesse he tolde not hys father and mother, what he had done, but wente downe and talked wpth the womanne whyche semed beautifull in sight of Samson.

And wpythin thorte space after, as he reparyed thither agayne, too take hir too wyfe, he fourned out of the wape, to se the carkasse of the Lpon. And behoulde, there was a swarme of Bees in the carkasse of the Lpon, and honye: and he tooke of the honye in hys handes, and wente eatynge and came too hys father and mother, and gaue them of the same. And they dyd eate. But he tolde not them that he had taken the honye forthe of the carkasse of the Lion. And when hys father was come to the woman, Samson made there a feaste, for so vsed the pong me to do. And whē hir frends sawe him, they broughte thyrtye companions to beare hym companye. And Samson sayde to them: I wyl put forthe a riddle vnto pou. And if ye can declare it with in seuen dayes of the feaste, and fynde it oute, I wyl geue pou thyrtye Hectes, and thyrty chaunge of garmentes. But if ye can not declare it me, then shal ye geue me thyrty Hectes, and thyrty chaunge of garmentes. And they answered hym, put forth thy riddle, and let vs heare it. And he sayde vnto them. Dute of the eater came meate: and oute of the stronge came sweetenes.

And they coude not in thre dayes expound the riddle. So when the seuenth dape was come, they sayde vnto Sampsons wyfe.

Flater thy husband, that he maye declare vs the riddle, or else we wyl burne the and thy fathers house wpth fyre: haue ye called vs to make vs beggers? Then Sampsons wyfe wepte vnto hym, and sayde: it can not be but that thou hatest me, and loveste me not, syth thou haste putte forthe a riddle vnto the chyldren of my folke, and wyte not tell me what it meaneth. And he sayde: Beholde, I haue not tolde it my father, nor yet my mother, and shulde I tell it the? And she wept vnto hym seuen daies whyle the feaste lasted. So the seuenth dape he tolde her, because she laye so sore vpon hym. And she agayne tolde it to the chyldren of her folke. And then the men of the cite sayde vnto hym the seuenth dape before the sunne wente downe. What is sweeter then honye, and what is stronger then a Lion? Then sayde he vnto them: If ye had not plowed with my heffer, ye hadde not founde oute my riddle. Then the spirite of the Lord came vpon hym, and he went downe to Askalon, and slewe thyrtye men of them, and dyspoiled the, and gaue their garmentes to them whyche expounded the riddle. And he was wroth, and went by to his fathers house. But Sams wife was geuen in marriage to one of hys companions that accompanied hym.

Samson tieth fyre brandes to fore tayles, and letteth them runne into the corn, with the Jawbone of an Ass he killeth a thousand. Dute of a greate rothe in the iawe, God geueth hym water.

At it chaunced wpythin a whyle after, in the tyme of wheate heruest, that Samson visited his wife wpyth a kid. And whē he thought to haue gon in to hys wyfe, into the chambre, hys father would not suffer hym to go in, But sayde: I thoughte thou haddest hated hir, and therefore I gaue hyr to one of thy companions. Howe be it hyr ponger syster is fayrer then she. Take hyr in stede of the other. Then said Samson vnto the. Now am I blameles concernyng the Philistines, though I do them displeasures.

And Samson wente forthe and caughte thre hundred foxes, and toke fyrebrandes and fastened taylor too taylor, and putte a fyre brande in the myddeste betwene two tayles. And he sette the fyre brande on fyre

and

and put them into the corne of the Philistines, and burnt vp both the reaped corne and also the standinge, wpth vynes and oliues. Then the Philistines asked who had done that dede. And it was tolde the that Sampson the sonne in lawe of the Thamnite, because he had bereaued hym of hys wyfe, and geuen her to one of hys companions. And the Philistines came, & burnt both her, and her father wpth fyre.

And Sampson sayd vnto them: Shoulde ye do so? I wyl surely be aduenged of you, and then I wyl cease. And he smote them legges and thpygh wpth a myghttie plage. And then he went and dwelte in the toppe of the rocke Etam.

Then the Philistines came vp, and pitched agaynst Iuda, and lape in Lehi. And the men of Iuda sayde: Why are ye come agaynst vs, and they answered: to bynde Samson are we come, euen to do to hym, as he hath done to vs. Then thre thousande men of Iuda wente vp to the toppe of the rocke Etam, and sayde to Sampson: wotest thou not, that the Philistines are rulers ouer vs? Wherefore then hast thou handled vs thus? And he answered them: as they serued me, so haue I serued them.

Then sayde they to hym: we are come to bynde the, and to deliuer the into the handes of the Philistines. And Sampson sayd vnto them: Sware vnto me, that ye shal not hurte me your selues. And they sayde, wee wyl not hurte the, saue only bynde the, & deliuer the into theyr handes. But wee wyl not kyll the. And so they bounde hym wpth two newe cordes, and brought hym doune from the rocke.

And when he came vnto Lehi, the Philistynes howted agaynst hym. And the spirite of the Lord came vpon hym, and the cordes that were vpon hys armes became as flaxe that was burnt wpth fyre, and the bandes lowshed from hys handes. And he founde a Jawe bone of a rotten Ass, and putte forth the hys hande and caught it, and slewe a thousande menne therewyth.

And Samson sayde, wpth the Jawe of an asse haue I putte them backe: wpth the Jawe of an Ass, haue I slayne a thousand men. And when he had lefte speakynge, he caste awape the Jawe out of hys hand, and called the place Ramath Lehi. But he was sore a thyrst, and called on the Lord, and sayde. Thou Lord haste geuen thys great victorie, thowowe the hand of thy seruante. And now I must dye for thyrste, and fall into the handes of the vncircumcised. But God brake a greate tothe that was in the Jawe, and there came water forth of it. And when he had dronken, hys spyryt came agayn, & he was refreshed, wherefore the name therof was called, *the well of the caller on, which is in Lehi to this day. The .xvi. Chapter.

Samson lifted vp the gates of Gaza and carpeth them vp into the mountaynes. He was deceiued by Daliah and made blinde. He pulleth downe the house vpo the Philistines, and dieth with them.

Then wente Samson too Gaza and sawe there an harlotte and lape wpth hyr. And it was tolde the Gazites, that Samson was come thither.

And they wente aboute, and laped awapte for hym all nyghte in the gate of the ctyte, and were styll abydyng for hym all the nyghte, sayinge: tarpe tyll the mornynge that it be dape, and then lette vs kyll hym as he cometh forth of the ctyte. And Samson toke hys reste tyll mydnyghte, and arose at mydnyghte and toke the doores of the gate of the Ctyte, and the two syde pooles, and rente them of, barres and all, and put them vpon hys shoulders, and carpeth them vp to the top of the hyl, that lyeth before Hebron.

And after that he loued a woman vpon the ruer of Sorek, called Daliah, vnto Daliah. whome came the Lordes of the Philistines, and sayde vnto hyr. Flatter hym, and se wherein hys greate strengthe lyeth, and by what meanes wee haue power ouer him that we maye bynde hym, and bynge hym vnder, and eche of vs shal giue the .xi. hundred syluerlynges.

And Daliah sayed to Samson. Oh tell me where thy greate strengthe lyeth, and what it is wherwyth menne myghte binde the, and beate the. And Samson sayde vnto hyr: If menne bounde me wpth seuen grene wythes, that were neuer dyed, I shoulde be weake, and as an other manne. And then the Lordes of the Philistines broughte hyr. vii. grene wythes, that were yet grene and neuer dyed. And they bounde hym with them. Notwithstanding he had men lying in wait wpth hyr in the chabre. And she sayd vnto hym: the Philistines be vpon the Samson. And he broke the cordes as a thred of towne breaketh, when it feleth fyre. And so it was not knowne wherein hys strength laye.

Then sayd Daliah to Samson: Se, thou haste mocked me, and tolde me lies. Nowe yet tell me I praye the, where wpth thou myghtest be bound: And he sayd: If I wer bounde wpth newe ropes, that neuer were occupied, then shoulde I be weake and as an other man.

And Daliah toke new ropes, and bound hym therewith, and sayed vnto hym, the Philistines be vpon the Samson. And they were lyers awapte in the chabre, and he brake them from of hys armes, as they hadde bene but a threade. And Daliah sayde vnto Samson, hitherto thou haste mocked me, and tolde lyes: I praye the yet tell me wherewyth menne maye bynde the. And he sayde vnto hyr: If thou bynde seuen lockes of my heade with an heare lace, and fasten them wpth a naile. I will be weake. And Daliah dyd so, and sayde vnto unto hym: the philistines be upon the Saron. But he awaked out of his slepe, & plucked, and went awake wth the naple that was in the plastryng, & wth the hertrlace.

Then she sayde vnto hym: Howe canst thou saye thou louest me, when thynne hert is not wth me: for thou haste mocked me thus thre tymes, and hast not told wherein thy chiefe strength lyeth. And as she laye vpon hym wth her wordes continuallye verpynge hym, hys soule was encombred euen vnto the death. And he tolde her all his hearte, and sayde vnto her: There neuer came raser nor sheres vpon my head, for I haue bene a Nazareto God, euen from my mothers wombe. If myne herre were cutte of, my strength woulde go from me, and I shoulde become, and be like all other men. And when Daliah saue he had vttered to hit al his vert, she set for the philistynes. sayinge: come vp yet this once, for he hath shewed me all hys herre.

Then the Lordes of the philistynes came and broughte the moneye in theyr handes. And she made hym slepe vpon his lappe, and sente for a barber, and cutte of the seuen lockes of his heade, and begaune to bere hym, and to thruste hym from hyr, for by and by his strength was gone from hym. And she sayd: the philistines be vpon the Samson. And he awoke oute of hys slepe, and thoughte to goo oute as at other tymes before, and shoke hym selfe, & wiste not that the Lorde was departed frome hym. The philistines toke hym, and put out hys eyen, & broughte hym downe to Gaza, and bounde hym wth fetters. And he was made to grinde in the pylson house: al be it the heare of hys heade began to growe agayne after that he was shorne. Then the Lordes of the philistynes gathered them together to offer a solemne offerpynge vnto Dagon theyr God and to reioyce, for they sayed: oure God hath betaken Samson oure enemye into oure handes. And when the people saue hym, they magnified theyr God: for they sayed, oure God hath geuen into our handes oure enemye, whiche destroyed oure contrey, and slewe many of vs. And when theyr hertes were mery, they sayed: sende for Samson, and lette hym play before vs. So they sette Samson oute of the pylson house, who played before theym, and they set hym betwene the pylles. And Samson sayed vnto the ladde that ledde hym by the hande: set me that I maye touche the pylles that the house standes vpon. And that I maye leane to them. And the house was full furnished wth mienne and women. And there were all the Lordes of the philistynes, and vpon the rouse there were aboute thre thousand men and women that beheld how Samson played.

Then Samson called vnto the Lorde, and sayed: my Lorde almyghtye thynke on me, and restore me myne olde strengthe at thys tyme O God, that I maye be aduenged of the philistines for my .ii. eyen. And Samson caughte the two myddle pylles on whych his house stode, the one in hys ryghte hande, and the other in hys lefte, and sayed: my lyfe perishe wth the philistines, and bowed the with myghte. And the house felle vpon the Lordes, and vpon all the people that were therein. And so the deade whiche he slewe at hys death, wear mo then they whiche he slew in hys lyfe. And then hys bretheren, and all the house of hys father came downe, and toke him, and brought him, and buryed hym, betwene zarah and Esthaol, in the burying place of Manoah hys father. And he iudged Israell twenty yeres.

The .xviii. Chapter.

Of Michas whose mother made hym an Idole of siluer. Of that yong priest of the image of Leui of Bethlehem.

There was a mā in mount Ephraim named Michas, whych sayed vnto hys mother: the .xi. hundred syluerlynges that were taken from the, aboute whiche thou cursedst in myne eares: Beholde, the syluer is wth me, for I toke it awaye. Then sayed hys mother: blessed be thou my sonne in the Lorde. And so he restored the .xi. hundred syluerlynges to hys mother agayne.

And hys mother sayed: I haue bowed the syluer vnto the Lorde, that my sonne shoulde take it of myne hande, to make a grauen Image, and a Image of metall. Nowe therefore I render it the agayne. And he restored the moneye agayne to hys mother. Then hys mother toke two hundred syluerlynges, and put them to a goldsmith, to make thereof a grauen Image and a molten Image, whiche remayned in the house of Michas, who also made a chappell of Goddes, and made an Ephod, and Images, and fylled the hande of one of hys sonnes whiche became hys prieste. For in those dayes ther was no king in Israel, but euery man did as he thought best.

And there was also an other, a younge man of Bethlehem Iuda, among the kittredes of Iuda, and he was a Leuyte, and sojourned there. And the younge man departed out of the city of Bethlehem Iuda, to goo dwell where myghte be mooste comodouse for hym. And he came to mount Ephraim, and to the house of Michas as he tourneied. And Michas said vnto him: Whence comest thou? and the Leuyte answered hym: I am of Bethlehem Iuda, and goo to dwell where I maye fynde a mooste mete place.

And Michas sayed vnto hym: dwell wth me, and be vnto me a father & a priest. And I wyll gyue the ten syluerlynges by the yere, and double apparell and meate and dryncke.

So the Leuyte went and dwelled wth the man, and was vnto hym as deare as one of hys owne Sonnes. And Michas fylled the hand of the Leuite, & the younge manue became hys prieste, and contynued in hys house, and sayed: Nowe I am sure that the Lorde wyll be good vnto me, sythens I haue a Leuite to be my prieste.

The.xviii.Chapter.

The children of Danne take the Goddes and the Prieste of Michas awaye. They destroye Laish, and buylde it agayne, and name it Dan.

In those dayes there was no kynge in Israel. And in those dayes the tribe of Dan soughte them an enherytaunce to dwell in, for tyll that tyme there fell no enherytaunce vnto them amonge the trybes of Israel. And the chyldren of Dan sente forth of theyr kynneddes fyue men of actiuyte, oute of theyr coastes, euen oute of Zarah, and Esthaol to vewe the Lande, and searche it oute, and sayed vnto them: goo and searche oute the Lande. And they came to mounte Ephraim, vnto the house of Michas, and lodged there. And when they were come to hys house, they knewe the voyce of the yonge man the Leuite, whose lodgyng they vsed, and sayde vnto him: Who broughte the hither? what makeste thou in this place? whype arte thou come hither? And he sayed vnto them: Thus and thus dealeth Michas wyth me, and hath hired me to be hys prieste. And they sayde vnto hym: Aske of God wee praye the, that wee maye knowe whether the way we go be prosperous, & whether the thing that take effect. And the priest sayd vnto them: go in peace, the Lord regardeth your waye, and the iourney whych ye go.

Then the fyue men departed and came to Laish, and sawe the people there dwelling careles, and after the maner of Sydons styll, and withoute castynge of perils, & that no man made anye trouble in the Land, or vsurped anye domynyon, and howe they were farre from the Sydons, and had no medlynge wyth anye nacion. And they came vnto theyr brethren to Zarah, and Esthaol. And theyr brethren sayd vnto the: what tidynge bringe you?

And they sayed, arise and let vs go vnto them, for we haue seue the Lande, and it is very good. Hasten you therefore, and be not shouthefull to departe, and to come and conquere the Lande: ye shall come vnto a people that casteth no perils, and vnto a large contrey: for God hath geuen into your handes a place wher is no lacke of any thyng in the worlde.

Then departed thence of the kynnedde of the Danites, out of Zarah and Esthaol fyue hundred men appoynted wyth abymentes of warre. And they wente and pytched in Bariat in Iuda.

Wherefore the place is called Mahanah Danne vnto this daye, whiche is on the backe syde of Bariat in Iuda. So they wente thence vnto mounte Ephraim, and came to Michas house. Then answered the fyue men that wente to espye oute the contrey of Laish, and sayed to theyr brethren: wotte ye not that there is in these houses an Ephode, and Images, and a grauen Image, and a moulted Image? Nowe therefore consydre, what ye haue to do. And they turned thitherwarde and came to the house of the yonge man the Leuite, and saluted him peaceably. And the fyue hundred men well fensed with weapons of war whych were of the chyldren of Dan stode in the enterpyng of the gate.

And the fyue menne that wente to espye oute the Lande, wente in thither, and toke the kerued Image, and the Ephode, and the moulted Image. And the priest stode in the enterpyng of the gate wyth the fyue hundred menne, that were armed vnto battell, whyle the other went to Michas house, and fet the kerued Image, the Ephode the kerued Image, and the Image of metall.

Then sayed the prieste vnto them: what do ye? and they answered hym, keepe silence, and putte thynne hande vpon thy mouthe, and come wyth vs, and be vnto vs a father and a priest. Whether is it better for the to be a prieste to the house of one man, or to be prieste to a trybe or kynned of Israel? And the priest was glad and toke the Ephode, and the Images, & the grauen Image, and wente wyth the people. And they turned and departed, and putte be chyldren, the cattell and theyr costly thynges before them.

When they were a good waye frome the house of Michas, the men that were in the houses, that were by Michas house, made an outcrye, and pursued after the chyldren of Dan, and called vnto them. And they turned their faces and sayed to Michas, what ayleth the that thou makest this oute crye? And he sayed, ye haue taken away my Goddes, whych I made, and also the prieste, and goo your wayes wyth them. And what haue I more, howe then saie you vnto me, what ayleth the?

And the chyldren of Danne sayed vnto hym, let not thy voyce be heard amonge vs, least angrie felowes runne vpon the, and thou lose thy lyfe, wyth the lynes of al thine howsholde also. And so the chyldren of Dan wente their wayes.

And when Michas sawe they were to strong for hym, he returned vnto hys house agayne. And they toke the thynges whych Michas hadde made, and the prieste whych he hadde, and wente vnto Laish, euen vnto a people that were at reaste, and wythout mistrust, and smote them wyth the edge of the swearde, and burnt the Cytie wyth fyre. And there was no manne to helpe, because it was far fro Sidon, & they hadde none affayres wyth any other nacion. And the city stode

The. x. Chapter.

The battell of the Israelites agaynst the tyebe of Ben Jamin for the Leuites wyfe killed.

That is all of one consent, or generally, as bemeth in this chap. v

IN that daye all the chyldren of Israell wente oute, and there gathered a compaigne together, as it had bene but * one man, euen frome Dan to Berseba, and oute of the Lande of Galaad vnto the Lande of Mezphah, and there rode folke oute of all quarters of all the trybes of Israell, in the assemble of the people of God, four hundred thousand fore men that drew sweardes. And the chyldren of Ben Jamin hearde that the chyldren of Israell were gone vp to Gar-phah. Then sayed the chyldren of Israell: tell vs howe this wyckednes happened. And the Leuite the sayne womannes husbnde, answered and sayed: I came into Gabaah in Ben Jamin with my concubynne to lodge all nyght. And the cryzens of Gabaah arose agaynst me, and besette the house rounde aboute me by nyghte, and thoughte to haue sayne me, but they caughte my concubine, and forsed hyr that she dyed. Wherefore I toke my concubynne and cut hir in peces, and sente hir thorowe oute all the Landes of the enherytaunce of Israell, for they haue done abhominacion and follye in Israell.
Beholde, ye are all the chyldren of Israel. Consider therefore, and geue poure ad-uise in the case. Then all the people arose as it had bene one manne, sayinge: there shall not one of vs goo to his sente, nor tourne into his house. And nowe this is it that we wyll do to Gabaah, and caste lottes agaynst it. And we wyll take ten men of the hundred thorowe oute all the trybes of Israell, and an hundred of the thousande, and a thousande of ten thousande, to sette vnto the people, to make that they maye goo agaynst Gabaah Ben Jamin, accordynge to all the so-ly that they haue wrought in Israell. And so all the men of Israell assembled vnto Gabaah, as it had bene but one man. And the tribes of Israell sent men thorowoute all the tribe of Ben Jamin, sayinge: What wykednes is this, that is happened amonge you? Nowe therefore deliuer vs them, those wycked wretches of Gabaah to the entrete we maye slea them, and putte awaye euill from Israell.

Nevertheless the childrene of Ben Jamin woulde not hearken vnto the voyce of their brethren the chyldren of Israell: but mustered oute in battell agaynst the chyldren of Israell. And the chyldren of Ben Jamin were recounted at that tyme out of the cityes .xxvi. thousande men that drew sweardes besyde the enherytaunces of Gabaah whiche were numbred seven hundred picked men. And amonge al these folkes were seven hundred ymble handed men, whiche euery one coulde styng stones at an herre breadthe, and not myste.
And the childrene of Israell beside the children of Ben Jamin, were numbred at four hundred thousande men that drew swear-des, and all men of warre.

And the chyldren of Israell arose and wente vnto Bethell, and asked of God who shoulde begynne the battell agaynst the chyldren of Ben Jamin: and the Lorde sayed, Juda shall be poure captayne. And the chyldren of Israell rode vp eatche and besieged Gabaah.

And the men of Israell wente oute to battell agaynst Ben Jamin, and putte them selues in araye agaynst them, to fyghe agaynst Gabaah. And the chyldre of Ben Jamin came oute of Gabaah and destroyed in Israell that daye .xxii. thousand men, and broughte them to the grounde. And the folke of the chyldren of Israell plucked vp theyr hertes and perestefones made battell in the same place wher they dyd the fyrst day: but they went sick vp and wepte before the Lorde vnto euen, and asked of the Lorde, sayinge: Shall we go agayne to battell agaynst the children of Ben Jamin our brethren?

And the Lorde sayed: goo vp vnto them.
When the chyldren of Israell were come to the chyldren of Ben Jamin the seconde daye, the chyldren of Ben Jamin wente agaynst them out of Gabaah, the second daye, and destroyed to the earth of the chyldren of Israell once agayne, eyghtene thousand men that drew sweardes eue-ry manne of them. Then the childrene of Israell and all the people, wente vp and came to Goddes house, and wepte, and sate there before the Lorde, and fasted the same daye vnto the euen, and offered burnte offerpuges, and peace offerpuges before

Jolu. xix. d

And they built the citi and dwelt therein * and called it Dan, after the name of Dan their father, whiche he was sonne vnto Israel. Howebeit it in dede the name of the citie was Lais at the begynnyng.

And the children of Dan set them vp the grauen Image. And Jonathan the sonne of Bersen, the sonne of Manasses and hys sonnes were pryestes vnto the trybe of the Danites, tyll they were carryed awaye out of the Lande prysouners. And they set them vp the carued Image whiche Mychas made, all the whyle that the house of God was in Siloh. In those dayes was no spage in Israel.

The .xix. Chapter,

Of the Leuite whose wife was villainouslye killed in Gabaah. She is deuoyded into xii. partes, and of her sent to euery tribe of Israel a pi. re.

A

And a certayne Leuite dwel-lynge on the syde of mounte Ephraim, tooke to wyse a concubyne oute of Bethlehem Juda: whiche concubyne played the whore in hys house, and wente away from hym, vnto hys fathers house to Bethlehem Juda, and there contynued foure monethes. And hir husbunde arose and went after hyr, to speake frendely vnto hyr, and to brynge hyr home agayne, and hys ladde wyth hym, and a couple of asses. And she broughte hym to hys fathers house. And when the father of the damosell sawe hym, he reioyced at his commynge. And the Leuite abode with hys father in lawe thre dayes, and so they eate and dranke, and lodged there.

B

The fourthe daye the younge man arose earlye in the mornynge, and woulde haue departed. But the damselles father sayed vnto hys sonne in lawe: conforte thyne herte wyth a morsell of breade, and then go your waye. And they sate downe, and dyd eate and dryncke boeth of theym together. Then sayed the damselles father vnto the man: goo to I praye the, and tary all nyghte, and let thyne herte be merie. Howebeit the man stode vp to departe: but hys father in lawe compelled hym to turne agayne, and to tarye all nyghte there. And he arose vp earlye the fiftte daie to depart. Then sayed the damselles father: conforte thyne herte: and so made hym tarye: tyll after myddaye, and they dyd eate boeth of them together.

Ge. xvi. a Psa. ciii. b.

And the ma arose to depart with his wife and his lad. But his father in lawe, the damselles father said vnto hym: beholde, the day goeth fast away and draweth toward nyghte, tary all nyghte, at leaste tarye thys day here, and let thyne herte be merie.

And to morowe gette you carthe on your waye, and get the to thy tente. Nevertheless the man woulde not tarye, but arose and departed, and came as farre as Iebus whiche is Hierusalem and hys asses laden, and hys concubyne, and hys lad with him. And when they were fast by Iebus, the daye was sore sprewe, and the yongeman sayed vnto hys maister: come I praye the, and lette vs turne into the citie of the Iebusites, and lodge all nyghte there. But hys maister sayed vnto him: Wee wil not turne into a strange ctye, that are not of the children of Israell: we will goo forth to Gabaah, and we shall come to one place or other, and shall lodge all nyghte in Gabaah, or in Ramah.

And they wente forth on their iourneye, and the Sun went downe vpon them, whe they were faste by Gabaah, whiche is in Beniamin. So they turned thyrtherward to go and lodge all nyghte in Gabaah.

And when they came in, they sate down in a streete of the citie, for no man woulde take them in to lodge. But beholde, there came an olde man from hys worke, oute of the feyldes at euen, whiche was also of mount Ephraim, and but a straunger in Gabaah: for the men of the place were of the children of Iemini.

And when he hadde lyfted vp hys eyen and saw a wayfarynge man in the streetes of the Ctye, he sayed: whether goest thou? And whence comest thou? And the other answered him, we come fro Bethlehem Juda, toward the syde of mount Ephraim: fro thence am I, and wente to Bethlehem Juda, & go nowe to the house of God.

But there is no manne that recepueth me to house, and yet I haue strawe and prouender for oure asses, and breade and wyne for me and thy hande mayed, and the Ladde that are wyth thy seruauit, and lacke nothyng but lodgyng.

The olde manne sayed: peace be wyth the, al that thou lackest, halte thou synde wyth me: onelye remaine not in the streetes all nyghte, and he broughte hym into his house, and gaue fodder vnto hys asses. And they washed their feete, and dyd eate and dryncke.

And as they were makynge good chere, the manne of the ctye whiche were wryked, sette the house rounde aboute, and thrust at the doore, and spake to the good manne of the house, sayinge: brynge forth the man that came into thyne house, that we maye playe buggery wyth hym.

But the manne of the house wente oute to them, and sayed vnto theym: Oo, haue my brethren do not so wyckedlye, for this thys manne is come into myne house, doo not thys abhomyne. Beholde, my Daughter a mayden, and thys mannes Concubyne, theym I wyll brynge oute vnto you, and throwe them downe, and take your pleasure of them, but vnto thys man, do not thys folp agaynst nature, I beseech you. But the men woulde not hearken to hym. Nevertheless the manne toke hys concubyne, and broughte hyr forth vnto them, and they had to do wyth hir, and before the Lord. And they asked the Lord, for there was the arcke of the appoyntment of God, in those dayes. And Phynes the sonne of Eleazar, the sonne of Aaron attendynge vpon it the same tyme, and they sayed: shall we go out anye more to Battell agaynste the childrene of Beniamyn oure brethren, or shall we cease? And the Lord sayed goo: for to morowe I will deliuer them into your hands, and Israell sette a priuy watch agaynste Gabaath, runde aboute. And the chyldren of Israell wente agaynste the chyldren of Beniamyn the thirde tyme, and put them selues in araye agaynste Gabaath, as they had done thysse before. Then came the chyldren of Beniamyn agaynste the people of Israell, til they were drawen a greete waye from the ctyte. And they beganne to smyte of the people and wounded them (as they dyd thysse before, for that Israell fledde by two hye wayes, of whiche one goeth vp to Bethell, and the other to Gabaath thorowe the fylde) and slew upon a thyrtye men of Israell. For the chyldren of Beniamyn thoughte that the other hadde bene beaten before them, as at the fyrste tyme. But the chyldren of Israell, sayed: let vs flee, & plucke them awaye fro the ctyte, to þ hygh wayes.

And then all the menne of Israell rose vp oure of theyr standynge, and put them selues in araye at Baall Thamer. And lyke wyse the liers in awayte of Israell, came forth out of their places, oure of the meddowes of Gabaath: and came before Gabaath, ten thousande chosen men, oure of al Israell, and there was a stronge battell. But the other wyse not that euyl was so nygh them. And the Lord plagued Beniamyn before Israell, so that the chyldren of Israell destroyed in Beniamyn that same daye. xxv. thousande and an hundred men, that drew swerdes euerye one of them. The chyldren of Beniamyn when they dyd se that they shoulde be beaten downe, beganne to fle. And the men of Israell gaue coloure to Beniamyn, because they trusted to the lyars awayte whiche they layed agaynste Gabaath. And the lyers in wayte hasted and ranne oure of their holes vpon Gabaath, and wente and smote all the ctyte with the edge of the swerde. And they of Israell gaue the priuy watche theyr watche worde, that as sone as they hadde taken the ctyte, they shoulde fyre it, that by the smoke they shoulde shewe that the ctyte was wonne. And the men of Israell fledde in the battell. And Beniamyn beganne to smite deade of the chyldren of Israell aboute thirte persons, for they supposed that the other had here put to the worke before them, as in the fyrste battell. Then began to aryse oure of the ctyte a poller of smoke. And the Beniamynites looked backe, and beholde, the wallynge of the whole city began to ascend to heauen.

Then the menne of Israell turned againe, and the men of Beniamyn were abashed, for they sawe that euyl appoynted them. And they fled before the men of Israell, vnto the waye that leadech vnto the wylbernes, the other folowynge them at the harde helcs. And besyde that their partakers of theyr ctytes aboute them, were slayne in the same place. And they compassed Beniamyn and chased them to Menoah, and overcame them before Gabaon on the East syde, and there was slayne of Beniamyn. xviii. thousand, and all men of myghte. And they turned and fled towarde the wylbernes, and vnto the rocke of Somgranettes. And the other flew by the way of the crosse of them, fyue thousande menne, and stycked vnto them vntill they came to Gadaam, and slew two thousande moore of them: so that all that were slayne that same daye of Beniamyn, were. xxv. thousande men that drew swerdes, and all men of myght, only. vi. ## The .xxi. Chapter.

The trybe of Beniamyn whiche was destroyed for their fornicacion with the Leuites wyfe is restored agayne.

And the men of Israell swaie in Gazphah, sayinge: there shall none of vs geue his daughter to any of Beniamyn to wyfe. And the people came to Bethell and abode there tyll euen before God, and lyfte vp their voices, and wepte sore, and sayed. O Lord God of Israell why is thys chaunced in Israell, that there shoulde be thys daye one trybe lackynge in Israell?

And on the morowe the people arose earlye, and made there an aultare, and offered burnt offerings, and peace offerings. And the chyldren of Israell asked, who are they amonges all the trybes of Israell that came not with the congregacion vnto the Lord: for they had made a greete or the concernynge them that came not vp vnto the Lord to Gazphah sayinge, they shoulde surely dye. And the chyldren of Israell had ppyte on Beniamyn theyr brethrenne, and sayed: there is one trybe cut of from Israell thys daye: what shall we doo vnto the residue of them, to gette them wyues, for as muche as we haue sworn by the Lord, that we will not geue them anye of oure daughters to wyues? Then they sayed, what are they of the trybes of Israell that came not vp to Gazphah to the Lord? And beholde, before the Lord. And they asked the Lord, for there was the arcke of the appoyntment of God, in those dayes. And Phynes the sonne of Eleazar, the sonne of Aaron attendynge vpon it the same tyme, and they sayed: shall we go out anye more to Battell agaynste the childrene of Beniamyn oure brethren, or shall we cease? And the Lord sayed goo: for to morowe I will deliuer them into your hands, and Israell sette a prync watch agaynste Gabaath, runde aboute. And the chyldren of Israell wente agaynste the chyldren of Beniamyn the thirde tyme, and put them selues in araye agaynste Gabaath, as they had done thysse before. Then came the chyldren of Beniamyn agaynste the people of Israell, til they were drawen a greete waye from the ctyte. And they beganne to smyte of the people and wounded them (as they dyd thysse before, for that Israell fledde by two hye wayes, of whiche one goeth vp to Bethell, and the other to Gabaath thorowe the fylde) and slew vpon a thyrtye men of Israell. For the chyldren of Beniamyn thoughte that the other hadde bene beaten before them, as at the fyrste tyme. But the chyldren of Israell, sayed: let vs flee, & plucke them awaye fro the ctyte, to þ hygh wayes.

And then all the menne of Israell rose vp oure of theyr standynge, and put them selues in araye at Baall Thamer. And lykewyse the liers in awayte of Israell, came forth out of their places, oure of the meddowes of Gabaath: and came before Gabaath, ten thousande chosen men, oure of al Israell, and there was a stronge battell. But the other wyse not that euyl was so nygh them. And the Lord plagued Beniamyn before Israell, so that the chyldren of Israell destroyed in Beniamyn that same daye. xxv. thousande and an hundred men, that drew swerdes euerye one of them. The chyldren of Beniamyn when they dyd se that they shoulde be beaten downe, beganne to fle. And the men of Israell gaue coloure to Beniamyn, because they trusted to the lyars awayte whiche they layed agaynste Gabaath. And the lyers in wayte hasted and ranne oure of their holes vpon Gabaath, and wente and smote all the ctyte with the edge of the swerde. And they of Israell gaue the pryue watche theyr watche worde, that as sone as they hadde taken the ctyte, they shoulde fyre it, that by the smoke they shoulde shewe that the ctyte was wonne. And the men of Israell fledde in the battell. And Beniamyn beganne to smite deade of the chyldren of Israell aboute thirtie persons, for they supposed that the other had here put to the worke before them, as in the fyrste battell. Then began to aryse oure of the ctyte a poller of smoke. And the Beniamynites looked backe, and beholde, the wallynge of the whole city began to ascend to heauen.

Then the menne of Israell turned againe, and the men of Beniamyn were abashed, for they sawe that euyl appoynted them. And they fled before the men of Israell, vnto the waye that leadech vnto the wylbernes, the other folowynge them at the harde helcs. Not so, my daughters: for then ye shuld be too old to marre, and it greueth me much for your sakes, that the hande of the Lord is gone oute agaynst me.

Therewith they cryed and wepte agayne, howbeit Orphath kyssed her mother in lawe, and departed. But Ruth abode still by hyr: then she sayde, see thy sister in lawe is gone backe agayne vnto hir people, and vnto her God: retorne thou after hyr. ### The .ii. Chapter.

Ruth lezeth corne in the felde of Booz and findeth fauoure in hys syghte.

AND Noemi hadde a kynsman of her husbandes, a manne of might of the kindred of Elimelec named Booz. And Ruth the Moabites sayde vnto Noemi: lette me goo too the feld and leaze and gather eares, after whō soeuer I fynde grace in hys syghte. And she sayde vnto her: goo my doughter. And she went, and came and gathered after the haruest men. And her chaūce was to gather in the feld that pertained vnto Booz, whiche was of the kindred of Elimelec.

And beholde, Booz came frome Bethlehem and sayde vnto the harueste menne, the Lorde be wpth you. And they answered hym, the Lorde blesse the. Then sayde Booz vnto the ponge man that hadde the ouersyghte of the harueste menne: Whose damosell is thys? And the ponge man that was sette to ouerse the haruest menne answered and sayde: It is the Moabyt the damosell that came wpth Noemi oute of the countrey of Moab, and she sayde, let me I praye the leaze and gather after the harueste menne the eares that remayne. And so she came and hath contynued euen from the mornynge vntyl now, and went not once home.

Then sayde Booz vnto Ruth: hearest thou my doughter: goo too none other felde to gather, nept her goo from thence, but abyde by my maydens. Thyne eyes are on a felde that shal be reaped: go after the maidens therefore, for I haue charged the ponge men, that they touche the not. Moreover, when thou arte a thyrt, go vnto the vessels and drinke of that which the laddes haue drawne. Then she fell on hyr face, * and bowed hyr to the grounde and sayde vnto hym: howe is it that I haue founde grace in thyne eyes, to knowe me, sythens I am an Aliante?

And Booz answered and sayd vnto hyr: al is tolde me that thou haste done too thy mother in lawe, sence the deathe of thyne husbāde, howe thou haste left thy father and thy mother, and the lande where thou was born, and art come vnto a nation whiche thou knewest not in tymes passed. The Lorde reacquite thy worke, and a full reward be geuen the of the Lorde God of Israel, vnto whome thou arte come to truste vnder hys wynges.

Then she sayde vnto hym: lette me fynd fauour in thi sight (my Lord) for thou hast comforted me, and haste spoken hertelpe vnto thy mayde, whiche yet canne not be lyke one of thy maydes. And Booz when the tyme of repaste was come, sayde vnto hir, come hither and eate of the bread, and dyppe thy soppe in the vineger. And she sat downe by the reapers, and he caughte hyr * parched corne. And so she dpyd eate & was fylled and lefte parte. And when she was risen vp to gather, Booz spake to the ponge men, saynge: let hir gather the eares that remayne, and do hyr no despite. And they to pull oute of the sheues for hyr, and let it lye that she maye gather it vp, and rebuke hyr not. And so she gathered tyll euen, and then thresed that she hadde gathered, and it was an Ephā of barlye, and she tooke it vnto and wente to the cytye, and shewed hyr mother in lawe what she had gathered, and thereto she plucked out, and gaue too hyr that she had reserued when she had eaten ynoughe.

Then sayde hyr mother in law vnto hir: where gatheredst thou to daye? and where wroughtest thou? blessed be he that knewe the. And she shewed hyr mother in lawe with whō she had wrought, & sayd: I mans name with whom I wrought to day, is Booz. Then sayde Noemi vnto hir daughter in law, blessed be he, for he ceaseth not to do the same goodnes to the deade, that he did to the lyuynge. And Noemi sayde vnto hyr: the manne is nye vnto vs, euen of oure nexte kinne. And Ruth the Moabite sayde:

he bade me also that I should continue with the ponge men, until they had ended all the heruest he hath. Then sayed Boemi unto Ruth her daughter in lawe: it is best my daughter, that I go out wpth his mapdens and that no manne mete the in anye other fiede. And so he kepte hyr by the mapdens of Booz, to gather unto the ende of barley haruest, and of wheat haruest also, and returned to her mother in lawe.

The.iii. Chapter.

Ruth lepeyth at Booz fete, and is knowne hys kynswoman.

A Den Boemi hir mother in lawe sayde unto hyr: my daughter I wyl seke rest for the, that thou mayste be in better case. For nowe thys Booz oure kinsmanne wpth whose mapdens thou wast, wynneth hys barley too nyghte in the threshynge floure: washe thy selfe therfore and anoynte the, and putte thy raimente vpon the, and get the to the threshynge floure. But let not the manne beware of the, tyll he haue leste eatynge, and drynckynge. And when he goeth too slepe, marcke the place where he layeth hym downe, and then goo and lyfte vpp the clothes that are on hys feete, & lape the downe, and soo shall he tell the what thou shalt do. And she answered hir: all thou bydest me, I wyl do. So she wente vnto the floure, and byd all that hyr mother in lawe bade hyr. And when Booz hadde eaten and dronken and made hym merke, he wente and lape downe by the syde of the heape, and she came softely and lyfte vpp the clothes at hys fete, and laied hyr downe. And at midnyghte the man was asrayde and groped, and beholde, a woman lape at hys feete. Then he sayd, what art thou? she answered, I am Ruth thine handmaide, spied thy mantel ouer thyne handmaide, for thou art the nexte of kynne.

And then he sayde: blessed be thou in the Lorde (my daughter) for thou haste shewed more goodnes in the latter ende, then at the beginnyng, in as muche as thou followedest not pong men, whether they were poze or ryche. And nowe my daughter feare not, I wyl doe too the all that thou requirist: for all wythin the gates of thys ctyte knowe that thou arte a woman of vertue. And it is true that I am of thy nexte kyn, howbeit there is one nether then I.

Take all nyghte, and when mornynge is come, if he wyl mary the, well and good lette hym so do. But if he will not haue the, Ipe styll tyll the mornynge. And so she lape at hys fete tyll the mornynge. And she arose vpp before one coulde knowe another. And he sayde, let no manne knowe that there came anye womanne into the threshynge floure. And he sayed, bynge the mantell that thou haste vppon the, and holde it vp. And she helde it vpp, and he mette in sixe measures of barley, and lay ed it on her, and she gate her into the ctyte, and came vnto her mother in lawe whych sayde: what thynges my daughter? And she tolde her all that the man had done to her. And sayde moreouer: these syre measures of barley gaue he me, and sayd: thou shalt nor go emptye vnto thy mother in lawe. Then sayd she, my daughter, syt styll vntyll thou knowe howe the matter wyl procede. For the man wyl not be in reast til he haue ended his matter this same day.

The.iiii. Chapter.

Booz taketh Ruth to wyfe, of whom he begetterh Obed.

Then wente Booz to the gate, & sate him downe there: and behold the kynsemanne of whych Booz spake, came by. Vnto whome he said: come and sitte doune here, and called hym by his name, and he turned in & sate doune. Then he tooke ten men of the elders of the ctyte, and sayde: syt ye doune here. And they sate doune. Then he sayde vnto the kynseman: Boemi that is come agayne oute of the contrey of Moab, wyl sell a parcell of lande whych was our brother Elimelecs. And I thought to do the to wete, and byd the bye it before the inhabitoures and elders of my people, if thou be disposed to challenge it, for thou arte nexte of kynred: but if thou wylte not purchase it, then tell me that I may wete it. For there is none to challenge it saue thou, and I next the. And the other answered: I wyl purchase it.

Then sayde Booz, what day thou byest the fiede of the hand of Boemi, thou must take also Ruth the Moabite, the wyfe of the dead, to stee vpp the name of thy deade kynseman vpp his enheritaunce. The said kynsman, I can not purchase it for marriage of myne owne name: take thou my ryghte to the, for I am content to lese my ryghte here. Nowe thys was the manner of old tyme in Israel concerning purchase and chaungynge, for to stablyshe all thyng that a manne muste plucke of hys shoo, and geue it hys neyghboure, and this was a wytnesse in Israel.

And the kinsman sayde to Booz, bye it thou: and so drewe of hys shoo. Then sayd Booz vnto the elders, and vnto all the people, ye are wytnesse thys dape, that I haue boughte all that was Elimelecs, and all that was Chilion and Mahelons, of the hande of Boemi. And moreouer Ruth the Moabite the wyfe of Mahelon, do I take to me to wyfe, to stee vpp the name of the deade vpon hys enheritaunce, that his name be not putte forthe amongs hys brethren, and from the gate of hys ctyte: ye are wytnesse thys dape.

And all the people that were in the gate, and all the elders sayed, we are wytnesses: the Lorde make the womanne that is come into thyne house, lyke Rachel and Lea, whych twayne did buyde the house of Israel, that she maye do vertuouslye in Ephrathah, and be samouse in Beth-

Elkanah hadde two wyues, Hannah and Phenennah. Phenennah byghydeth Hannah, because she is chyldlesse. Hannah after prayer made to God, byngeth forth Samuell.

HE WAS a man of Ramathim zophim, of mounte Ephraim named Elkanah, the sonne of Jeroham, the sonne of Elihu, the sonne of Tohu, the sonne of Zuphan Ephraite, whiche hadde two wyues, thone called Hannah, and the other Phenennah. And Phenennah hadde chyldren, but Hannah hadde none.

And the sayd man wente oute of the cite euerie feaste daye, to praye, and to offer vnto the Lorde of hostes: where the two sonnes of Eli (Dophni, & Shini) were the Lordes priestes.

The.ii. Chapter.

The sonne of Hannah. The offence of the sonnes of Eli. Eli is rebuked for the vniuersall sufferance of hys chyldren.

AND Hannah praped and sayde: Mine hert reioyseth in the Lorde, my horne is hygh in the Lorde, and my mouth is wyde open ouer my enemyes, for I reioyce in that thou haste deliuered me. There is none so hope as the Lorde: noo, there is none saue thou. Repther is there anye strengthe lyke vnto oure God. Talke not to muche proudelye, let olde thynges departe out of your mouthes, for the Lorde is a God of knowlege, and he setteth forth the workes. The bowes of the strouge is broken: & the weake are endued wpth strength.

They that were full, haue bene gladd to serue for breade, and they that were hongry be satisfied, in so muche that the barren hath borne seuen, and she that hadde manye chyldren is waxed feble. The Lord killeth and maketh alieue, byngeth downe to hell, and fetcheth vp agayne.

Whe Lorde maketh poore, and maketh riche, byngeth lowe, and heaueth vpe on hye. He rapseth vpe the poore oute of the duste, and lyfteth vp the begger frome the donge hyll, to sette them amonge prynces, and to enherite them wpth the seate of glorie.

For the pylers of the earthe are the Lordes, and he hath set the round world vpon them. He wyl kepe the fete of * hys holpe, but the wycked shall kepe silence in darckenesse. For in hys owne myghte shall no manne be stronge. The Lordes aduersaries shall be made to feare hym, and out of heauen he shall thunder vpon them. The Lorde shall Iudge the borders of the worlde, and shall geue myghte vnto hys kynge, and exalte the horne of hys anointed. And Elkanah went to Ramath to his house, and the chyld dyd mynyster vnto the Lord before Eli the priest.

But the sonnes of Eli were the sonnes of Beliall, and knew not the Lorde. For the manner of the priestes wpth the people was, whensoeuer anye manne offered any offeringes, the priestes ladde came whyle the fleshe was sethyng, and a fleshe hoke wyth thre tette in hys hande, and thruste it into the panne, kettle, caldren, or potte. And all that the fleshe hoke broughte vpe the prieste tooke awaye. And so they dyd vnto all Israell that came thither to Siloh. Yea and mozeouer before they hadde offered the fatte, the priestes ladde came and sayde to the manne that offered: geue fleshe to roste for the priest, for he wyl not haue sodden fleshe of the but rawe. And if anye man sayde vnto hym, lette the fatte be offered accordinge to the custome of the daye, and then take as muche as thyne herte desyret. The lad wold answer him, thou shalt geue it me now or els I wyl take it perforce. And the syn of the pong men was verpe great before the Lord. For they hyndred the peoples deuocion, frome offeringe vnto the Lorde.

But the chyld Samuell ministered before the Lorde gyrded aboute wpth a linnen Ephod. Mozeouer his mother made hym a litle cote, and broughte it to hym frome feaste to feaste when she came vpe wpth her husbnde to offer the offeringe of the sayed feaste. And Eli blessed Elkanah and hys wyfe, and sayde: the Lorde geue the seede of thys womanne, for that she hath lente the Lorde. And they wente vnto theyr owne house. And the Lorde visited Hannah, so that she conceived and bare thre sonnes and two daughters. But the chyld Samuell grewe, dwellinge wpth the Lorde.

Eli was verpe olde, and hearde all that hys sonnes dyd vnto all Israell, and howe they slepte with the women that wape in the doore of the tabernacle of witness, and sayde vnto them: why do ye suche thynges? For I heare youre wycked dedes of all these people. Oh nay my sonnes for it is no good reaporthe that I heare, howe ye make the Lordes people to trespace. If one manne synne agaynst another * dayesmenne maye make hys peace: but if a manne synne agaynst the Lorde, who can be hys dayesman? Notwithstandyng they hekened not vnto the voyce of theyr father, because the Lord wold slea them. The chyld Samuell prospered and grewe, and was in fauoure bothe with the Lorde, and also wpth men.

And there came a manne of God from Eli, and sayde vnto hym. Thus saythe the Lorde: I appeared vnto the house of thy fathers when they were in Egypt in Pharaos house. And I chose thy father forthe of all the tribes of Israell, to be my prieste for to offer vpon myne altare, and to burne incense, and to weare an Ephod before me. And I gaue vnto the house of thy father all the offeringes of the children of Israel. Wherefore kepe ye agaynst my sacrifice, and agaynst myne offeringe whych I commaunde in the tabernacle, and honour thy chyldren aboue me, and make your selues fatte of the fyre frutes of all the offeringes of Israel my people: Wherefore

The.iii. Chapter.

After the Lord hadde left to appeare by open vision in Siloh for a longe tyme, he yet calleth Samuel four tymes, and sheweth hym what shoulde befall on hys.

AND the childe Samuel ministered vnto the Lord before Eli, and the worde of the Lord was deuynt in those dayes, for there was no open vision. And it chaunced at that tyme, that Eli lay in hys place, & hys eyes began to waxe dymme, that he could not see. And erre the lampe of God wente oute, Samuel layde hym downe to slepe in the temple of the Lord, where the arcke of God was. And the Lord called Samuel: and he sayed here am I, and he ranne vnto Eli, and said: here am I, for thou caldest me. But he saide: I called the not: go agayne and slepe. And he wente and layde hym downe to slepe.

And the Lord called once agayne Samuel, and Samuel arose, and wente to Eli and sayed, I am here, thou dydest call me. And he answered, I called the not my son, go agayne and take thy rest: but as yet Samuel knewe not the Lord, neyther was the worde of the Lord opened vnto him. And the Lord proceeded and called Samuel the third tyme. And he arose, and went to Eli and saide: I am here, for thou hast called me. Then Eli perceyued that the Lord called the childe, and sayd vnto him: go and lye downe, and if he call the again, then saye: speake on Lord, for thy seruant heareth. And Samuel wente and layde hym downe in hys place. And the Lord came and stode and called as afore, Samuel, Samuel. And Samuel sayde, speake on for thy seruaunte heareth the. And the Lord saide to Samuel: beholde, I will do a thyng in Israel, that the eares of as manye as heareth it, shall tingle. In that daye, I will performe to Eli, al þat I haue spoken concerninge hys house. I will begynne it, and ende it. For I haue tolde hym that I will Iudge hys house for ever. For the wyckednesse whiche he knoweth howe hys sonnes are vngacious, and he chastised them not. And therefore I haue sworn vnto the house of Eli, þat the wyckednes of his house shall not be purged with sacrifice nor offering whyle the world standeth. And Samuel layt the morninge, and then opened þe doores of the house of the Lord.

But Samuel feared to shewe Eli the vision. The Eli called Samuel, and sayd: Samuel my sonne. And he answered, here am I. And he said: what is it that the Lord sayd vnto thee? See thou hyde it not from me. * The Lord do so, and so to the, if thou hyde any thyng from me, of all that he said vnto the. And Samuel tolde hym euerye whyt, and hyd it not from hym. And he answered: it is the Lord, let hym do what seemeth him good. And Samuel grewe, and the Lord was with hym, and he left none of hys wordes vnpurposed. And all Israel from Dan to Bersabe wist that the faithful Samuel was trulye made the Lordes prophet. And the Lord appeared agayne in Siloh, for the Lord opened hym selfe to Samuel in Siloh, thowhe the worde of the Lord.

The.iiii. Chapter.

The battell of the Philistines. Israel flyeth. The arke of the Lord is taken. Elies childe dyeth, and he hym selfe also.

AND Samuel spake vnto all Israel, and Israel wente oute agaynst the Philistines to battell, and pitched beside the help stone. But the Philistines pitched in Aphek, and put them selues in aray agaynst Israel. And in þe battle Israel was put to the worse before þe Philistines, for þe Philistines flew along by the fieldes, about .iiii. mylles.

And when the people were come into theyr tentes, the elders of Israel sayde: wherefore hath the Lord beaten vs this daye before the Philistines? lette vs sette the Arcke of the appoyntment of the Lord, oute of Siloh vnto vs, and lette it come amonge vs, and saue vs oute of the handes of oure enemies.

And the people sente to Siloh, and sette from thence the Arcke of the appoyntment of the Lord of hostes, whiche dwelleth betwene the Cherubins. And there were the two sons of Eli, Hophni, and Phinehes, with the arke of the appoyntment of god. And when the Arcke of the appoyntment rang agayne.

When the Philistines hearde the noyse of the thoute, they saide: what meaneth the sounde of thys myghty thoute in the hoste of the Hebrues? And they vnder-stode that the arcke of the Lorde was come into the hoste. And the Philistines were afraied, when it was tolde that God was come into the hoste, and sayde: Wo vnto vs, for it was neuer so before thys. Wo vnto vs, who shall delpue vs oute of the hand of thys myghty God: thys is the God that mente. And the man halted, and came in, and tolde Eli. Eli was .lxxxviii. yere olde, *and his syghte faled hym that he coude not se. And the man sayde to Eli, I am he that ranne forth from the arape, and fledde oute of the hoste thys dape.

And he sayd: how is it fortunied my sonne?
And the messenger answered and sayd: Israel is fled before the Philistines, and ther is a greate slaughter chaunced among the people, and thyr two sonnes Hophny and Phinies are ded, and thereto the arcke of God is taken. And when he had once named the arcke of God, Eli fell from hys stole backward toward y gate, *his necke broke, and he dyed: for he was old and vnweldy, and he iudged Israell fourty yeres.

And hys doughter in lawe Phinehes wyfe was wth childe, and nye the birth.
And when she hearde these tydynges of the takyng of the arcke of God, and that her father in lawe and hir husbunde were deade, she bowed her selfe and trauapled, for her paynes came vpon her. And aboute the tyme of her deathe, the womenne stode about her, *sayde vnto her, feare not, for thou haste borne a sonne. But she an-was taken.

The. v. Chapter.

Wagon the God of the Philistines is called before the arcke. The Philistines are placed in the secreete places. The enhabitautes of Akaron refuse to receiue the Arcke.

And the Philistines toke the arck of God, and carped it frome the help stone vnto Asdod, *and brought it vnto the house of Dagon, and set it by Dagon. And when they of Asdod were rylen in the mornynge: beholde, Dagon laye grouelinge vpon the earthe before the arcke of the Lorde. And they toke Dagon and sette hym in hys place agayn.
And when they rose by earlye in the nexte mornynge, behoulde Dagon laye grouelyng vpon the grounde, before the arcke of the Lorde, and hys heade and hys two handes cutte of vpon the threshold, that the bodye onlpe was lefte on hym. Wherefore neyther the priestes of Dagon, nor anye man that cometh into Dagon's house might treade on the threshold of Dagon in Asdod vnto thys dape.

But the hande of the Lorde was heaue vpon them of Asdod, and he destroyed them and smote them wth Emerodes, bothe Asdod, and all the coastes thereof.
And when the men of Asdod sawe that so, they sayde: the Arcke of the God of Israell shall not abyde here wth vs, for his hande is sore vpon vs, and vpon Dagon oure God. And so they sente and gathered all the Lordes of the Philistines vnto them, and sayde: what shall we doo wth the arcke of the God of Israell. Then sayd they of Beth: let the arcke of the God of Israell be carped aboute. And they car-ped the arcke of the God of Israell aboute.
And when they hadde caried it aboute, the hande of the Lorde was in the cite wth a myghty great plage, and he smote the men of the cite, bothe small and greate, and they were smitten in theire secreete places wth the Emerodes. Then they sente the arcke of God to Akaron, and as soone as the Arke of God came to Akaron, the Aka-ronites cryed oute, sayinge: They haue brought the arcke of the God of Israell to vs to sea vs & our people. Then they sente and sette all the Lordes of the Philistines vnto them, and sayde: sende away the arcke of the God of Israell, and lette it go home agayne into hys owne place, that it sea not vs wth our people. For there was a plage of deathe thorowoute all the cotype, and the hande of God was excedyng sore there, in so muche that they whych dyed not, were smitten wth the Emerodes: so that the crye of the cotype reached vp to heauen.

The. vi. Chapter.

The heifers beare home the arcke wth the rewardes. The Bethsamites were plagued after they had sene the arcke.

AND so when the Arcke of the Lorde hadde bene in the countrey seven monethes, the Philistynes called for the Priestes and the soothsayers, sayinge: what shall we doo wth the arcke of the Lorde: tel vs wher wth we shall sende it home agayne? They answered: if you sende the arcke of the God of Israel home agayne sende it not emptye: But rewarde it wth a trespass offeringe, and then ye shall be whole, and it shall be knowne to you why his hode departeth not from you.

Then sayd they, what shall be the trespass offeringe, whiche we shall rewarde hym wth? And they answered: fyue golden arkes wth Emerodes, and fyue golden myce, accordynge to the number of the Lords of the Philistynes. For it was one manner of plage that was on you al and on your Lordes to.

Wherefore ye shall make images lyke to your arkes wth Emerodes, and images lyke to your myce þ destroyed your land, and shall gyue glorie vnto the God of Israel: that he may take his hand from you, and from your Gods, and from your lande. Wherefore should ye harden your hertes, as the Egyptians and Pharaoh hardened their hertes? whych for al that (whiche he was wel scourged) was faine to let the people go, and departe.

Nowe therefore make a new cartte and take two mylche kyne, on whose necke neuer came yoke. And tie the kyne in the cartte and keepe the calves at home from them. Then take the Arcke of the Lorde, and put it in the cartte, and put the iewels of golde whiche ye rewarde hym wth, for a trespass offeringe, in a forer by the syde therof, and sende it awaye, and let it goo. And marche, if he goeth vp by the way that leadech vnto his owne coaste to Bethsames, then it is he that dyd vs this greute euyl. But if he do not, then it is not his hande that smote vs, but it was a chaunce that happened vs. And the men dyd euyl so: they toke two kyne that gaue mylke, and tyed them in the cartte, and kepte the calves at home, and they laied the arcke of the Lorde vpon the cartte, and the forer wth the myce of golde, and the Images of theyr arkes wth Emerodes.

And the kyne toke the straite waye to Bethsames, boeth one waye: and as they went they cryed. turnynge neither to the ryghte hand, nor to the lefte. And the lord of the Philistynes wente after them, tyll they came to the borders of Bethsames.

And they of Bethsames were reappynge their wheate in the valleye. So they lyfte vp their eyes and espyed the Arcke, and reioysed when they sawe it. And the cartte came into the groue of one Josua a Bethsamyte, and stode styl ther. Ther was there also a greute stone. And they claue the wood of the cartte, and offered the kyne in a burnt offeringe vnto the Lorde. And the Leuites tooke downe the arcke of the Lorde, and the forer that was there y, wherein the Jewels of golde were, and put them on the greute stone.

And the men of Bethsames sacryficed burnt sacryfice, and offered offeringes that same daye vnto the Lorde, and when the fyue Lordes of the Philistynes hadde sene it, they returned to Akaron that same daye. These are the golden arkes wth Emerodes, whiche the Philistynes gaue to amendes for a trespass offeringe, to the Lorde: for Asdod one, for Gaza one, for Akalon one, for Beth one, and for Akaron one. And the golden myce were accordynge to the number of all the cities of the Philistines, boeth of walled towne, & of townes vnmalled euen vnto the great stone where on they set downe the Arcke of the Lorde: whiche remayneth vnto this daye in the fyeelde of Josua the Bethsamyte. And the Lorde plagued the menne of Bethsames bycause they had sene the Jewelles that were in the Arcke of the Lorde. And he slew of the people, fifty thousand, and thre score and ten persons.

And the people lamented bycause the Lorde had made so greute a slaughter of them, and the men of Bethsames sayed: who is habile to stand before the Lorde, so holy a God, and to whom shall he go from vs? And they sent messengers to the inhabitants of Kartah Hartin: saying. The Philistines haue brought home agayne the arcke of the Lorde come downe and set it vp to you.

The. vii. Chapter.

The arcke is brought to Kartath Hartin. The people wepe, for whych Samuel maketh intercession to the lord. The philistines are smitten.

AND the menne of Kartath Hartin came and sette vp the arcke of the Lorde, and broughte it into the house of one Abynadab in Gabaah, and sanctified Eleazer his soune, to ascend vpon the arcke of the Lorde. And while the Arcke abode in Kartath Hartin, the daies grew so, that it was twenty yeres and all Israel lamented after the lorde.

And Samuel spake vnto all Israel, sayinge: If ye be come agayne vnto the Lorde wth all your hertes, then putte awaye the straunge Gods from you, Baalym, and Ashtaroth, and prepare your hertes vnto the Lorde, and serue hym alone, and so shall he rydde you out of the handes of the Philistynes. And then the chyldren of Israel dyd put awaye Baalym and Ashtaroth, and serued the Lorde onely. Then sayd Samuel, gather all Israel to Mizpah, that I maye praye for you.

Of this we haue. in. li. c.

you vnto the Lorde. And they assembled at Mizpah and drew water, and poured it out before the Lorde, and fasted the same daye, and sayed there: we haue synned agaynst the Lorde. And Samuel iudged the cause of the chyldren of Israel in Mizpah. When the Philistynes hearde that the chyldren of Israel were assembled at Mizpah, the Lordes of the Philistynes went by agaynst Israel: whych when the chyldren of Israel hearde, they were afrayed of the Philistynes, and sayed to Samuel: cease not to crye vnto the Lorde our God for vs, that he maye kepe vs out of the bandes of the Philistynes. And Samuel toke a suckynge Lambe, and offered it whole for a bourn teofferynge vnto the Lorde, and cryed vnto the Lorde for Israel: and the Lorde hearde hym. And as Samuel offered the bourn teofferynge, the Philistynes came to fyghte agaynst Israel. But the Lord thounded a great thonder that same day vpon the Philistynes, and turmoyled them, that they were beaten before Israel. And the men of Israel issued oute of Mizpah and pursued the Philistynes and slew them tyll they came vnder Bethcar.

And then Samuel toke a stone, and pitched it betwene Mizpah and Sen, and called the name thereof the stone of helpe, sayinge, thus farre bathe the Lord holpen vs. And so the Philistynes were broughte vnder, that they came no more into the costes of Israel, for the hande of the Lorde was vpon the Philistynes all the dayes of Samuel. Then the cityes whych the Philistynes had taken fro Israel came agayne to Israel, frome Akaron to Beth, with the coastes of the same: whych Israel plucked out of the bandes of the Philistynes. For there was peace betwene Israel and the Amorites. And Samuel iudged Israel all the dayes of his lyfe, and went aboute pere by pere to Bethel, Balgal, and Mizpah, and iudged Israel, in all those places, and came agayne to Ramath, for there was hys house, and there he iudged Israel, and there he buylte an auttare vnto the Lorde.

The. viii. Chapter.

¶ Because Samuels sonnes dyd mysseke eny, the people require a kynge: and to them is described the maner of a kynge.

When Samuel was olde, he made his sonnes Iudges ouer Israel. The name of hys eldeste sonne was Ioel, and the name of the seconde Abiyah, whych were Iudges in Bersabe. Neuertheles hys sonnes folowed not hys steps, but tourned asyde after lucre, and toke rewardes, and peruerred iudgemente. Then all the elders of Israel gathered them together and came to Samuel vnto Ramath, and sayed vnto hym: beholde, thou arte olde, and thy sonnes folowe not thy wayes. Nowe therefore make vs a kynge to Iudge vs, as other nacyns haue. But that thyng displeased Samuel, whē they sayed: Gue vs a kynge to Iudge vs. And Samuel prayed vnto the Lorde. And the Lord said vnto Samuel, heare the voyce of the people in al that they saye vnto the. For they haue not caste the awaye, but me: that I shoulde not raygne ouer theym. And as they haue euer done sythens I broughte them oute of Egypte vnto this daye, and haue forsaken me, and serued other Goddes, euen so do they vnto the. Nowe therefore herken vnto theyr voyce, howe be it yet testyfyed vnto theym, and shewe them the power of the kynge that shall raygne ouer them. And Samuel tolde al the wordes of the Lorde vnto the people, that asked a kynge of hym, and he sayed: this shall be the power of the kynge that shall raygne ouer you: he shall take your sonnes and putte them to hys charrettes and make hys horse men of them, and they muste runne before hys charette, and shall make hym captaynes of theym ouer thousandes and ouer hundredes, and wyll sette them to eare hys grounde, and to gather in hys barueste, and to make ordynance of warre, and apparell for hys charrettes, And he wyll take your daughters and make them the dyers of hys oynementes, and his cokes and bakers. And he shall take the best of your fyeldes, and of your vineyardes, and of your olue trees, & geue them to hys seruauntes. And he shall take the tenth of your sode, and of your vynes and greeue it to hys Lordes, and to hys seruauntes. And he shall take the beste of your men seruauntes, and maid seruauntes, and ponge men, and of your asses, and do hys worcke with theym. And he shall take the tenth of your shepe, and ye shall be hys seruauntes. And when ye crie out at that tyme vpon your kynge, whych ye shall haue chosen vnto you, the Lorde shall not heare you at that daye. Neuertheles the people would not heare the voyce of Samuel, but dyd say, not so: But there shall be a kynge ouer vs, and we wil be lyke all other nacyns. And our kynge shall iudge vs, and goooute before vs, and fyghte our battels for vs. And Samuel hearde al the wordes of the people and reuered them in the eares of the Lorde. And the Lord said to Samuel: hearken to theyr voyce and make them a kynge. Then sayde Samuel to the men of Israel, go euery man vnto hys cite.

The. ix. Chapter.

¶ Saul the sonne of Eysaech his fathers Ales, and is chosen kynge.

Nowe there was a man of Beniamyn named Eys, the sonne of Abiel, the sonne of zeroi, the sonne of Bechozab, the sonne of Aphyah, the sonne of a man, that was a Beniamynite a man of strengthe, the same had a sonne called Saul, a goodly younge man man, so that amouge the chyldren of Israel there was none goodlyer then he, and was thereto from the shoulders upward hier then all the other people.

And it chaunced that the asses of thys Cis Sauls father were strayed. The sayed Cis to Saule hys sonne, take one of the seruauntes wyth the, and go thy way and seeke the asses. And they wente thowme mounte Ephraim, and thowme the lande of Salisa, and founde them not. The they wente thowme the lande of Salym, and there they were not. Then they went also thowme the lande of Aemphye, and they founde them not.

Then when they were come to the land of zuph, Saule said to the young man that was wyth him: come lette vs retorne, lest my father leue caryng for the asses, & take thought for vs. And he answered hym: behold, ther is in this city a worshipful man of god, & al that he sayth cometh to pas.
Nowe then, let vs go thither, peraduen-ture he shall shewe vs what waye we shall
goo. Then sayed Saule to hys seruaunt:
if we goo, what shall we bynge the man?
For our breade is al spent out of our hampers, and there is none other presente to bynge the manne of God, what haue we?
And the younge man answered to Saule agayne and sayed. I haue founde aboute me the fourth parte of a sycke, that wyl we gyue the man of God to tell vs the waye.

Before tyme in Israell, when a manne wente to seeke an aunswere of God, thus wyl he spake: come and lette vs go to the *Sear. For he that is now called a pro-phete, was in the olde tyme called a Sear. Then sayed Saule to hys younge man, wel sayd of the, come let vs go. And so they went vnto the cite where the man of God was. And as they were goynge by into the cyppe, they met wyth damosels that came oute to drawe water, and sayd vnto them: is there here a Sear? And the maydens answered them, yea: beholde he goeth before you. Make hast now, for he came this daye to the cite, for the people muste offer this day in the hye place. When ye be come vnto the cyppe, incontinent ye shall fynde him, ere he goo vp vnto the hylle to eate:

for the people wyl not eate, vntyll he come bycause he muste blesse the offerynge. And then eate they that be readye to the feaste.
Nowe therefore get you vp, for euen now shall ye fynde him. And they wente vp into the cite, and when they were come into the myddes of the cyppe, beholde Samuel came out agaynst them, to goo by, to the hye place. But the Lorde hadde tolde Samuell the daye before Saule came, sayinge: to morowe thys tyme, I wyl sende the a man oute of the land of Beniamyn, hym shall thou annoynte captayne ouer my people Israell, that he maye saue my people from the handes of the Philistines for I haue looked vppon my people, and they crye is come vnto me. When Samuell sawe Saule, the Lorde sayed vnto hym: se, thys is the man whome I spake to the of. Thys same shall raygne ouer my people. Then wente Saule to Samuel in the myddes of the gare, and sayed: tell me I praye the where is the Sears house?

And Samuel answered Saule, and sayed: I am the Sear, goo by before me vnto the hylle, for ye shall eate wyth me to-daye. And to morowe I wyl let the goo early, and wyl tell the all that is in thyn herte, and as concernynge thynne Asses that were losse thre dayes ago, care not for them, for they are founde. And more ouer, who shall haue the beutyfull thyn-ges of Israell: belonge they not to the,
and to all thy fathers house? But Saule answered, and sayed, am not I the sonne of a Leminite, of the smallest tyebe of Israell, and my kynred the leaste of all the kynredes of the tribe of Benjamin: when fore then speakest thou so to me?

And Samuel took Saule and hys seruaunte, and broughte them into the parloure, and made them sit in the chief place amonge them that were bydden, whiche were vpon a thyrtye personnes.

Then sayed Samuel vnto the cooke: Bynge forth that measse wherch I gaue the, and of wherche I sayed reserue thys to an other tyme. And the cooke took vp the shoulder and broughte it, and sette it before Saule. And Samuel sayed: Be-holde, that is lette, sette it before the, and eate, for I kepte it for the vnto thys tyme, when I called the people. And so Saule dyd eate wyth Samuel that daye. And when they were come downe from the hylle into the cyppe. Samuel communed wyth Saule in the gallarpe: and they arose earlye. And aboute the sprynge of the day, Samuel called Saule in the galerye sayng: aryse that I may sende the away.
And Saule arose. And they wente oute at the doores, both he & Samuel. And when they were come to the townes ende, Samuell said to Saul, byd thy seruaunt go before vs, & he went, but stand thou still a lytle space, & I may know what god sayeth.

The .x. Chapter.

asses, & sozoweth for you, sayinge: what shall I do for my sonne? Then thou shalt go fourthe thence, and come to the oke of Thabor. And there shalt thou meete three men goinge to God to Bethel, one carryinge thre kyddes, and the other thre loaves of breade, and the thyrde a bottrell of wine. And they shall greete thee, & gyue thee the two loaves of bread, which þu shalt receiue at their handes. After this thou shalt come to the hyll of God, where the Philistynes kepe their marche. And when thou arte come thither to the city, thou shalt meete a companye of Prophetes, comynge downe from the hyll, wyth a psalter, a tymbyrell, & a pype, & a harpe before them, & they prophceyenge. And as sone as he hadde touned his shoulder to go from Samuell, God gaue hym, an other maner of herse, and al those tokens toke effecte that same day. When they came to the hyll, beholde the company of Prophetes mette him, & the spiryte of God came vpon hym, and he prophceyed amonge them. And all that knewe him, before, when they sawe he prophceyed amonge the Prophetes, sayed eche to other, what is happened vnto the sonne of Cis? Is Saule also amonge the Prophetes? And one of the same place answered and sayed: who is theyr father? And thereof sprange a prouerbe: is Saule also amonge the Prophetes? And when he had made an ende of prophceyng, he came to the hyll. Saules vnckle said to him and to his seruante: whither wente ye? And he answered, to seke the asses, and when we sawe them no where, we wente to Samuell. Then sayed Saules vnckle, tell me what Samuell sayed to you. And Saule answered his vnckle, he tolde vs the asses were found. But of the kingdome whereof Samuel spake, tolde he hym not. After that Samuell called the people together vnto the Lorde to Mizpah, and sayed vnto the chyldren of Israell: thus sayeth the Lorde God of Israell, I brought you oute of Egypte, and deliuered you forth of the bande of the Egyptians, and forth of the handes of all kyngedomes that oppressed you. And ye haue this daye cast away youre Lorde God that by hym selfe hath holpe you oute of all youre aduersities, and tribulacions, and ye haue sayed vnto hym: * make a kynge ouer vs. Howe therefore stande before the Lorde by youre trybes and your houses. And whē Samuell hadde broughte all the trybes of Israell, the trybe of Beniamyn was taken forth by lot. When he hadde broughte the trybe of Beniamyn by theyr kynreds the lotte fell vpon the kynred of Metre, and so wente the lot thorow, vntyl it came to Saule the sonne of Cis. And they sought hym, but he coulde not be founde. Then they asked the Lorde further, whether the man shoulde come thither or no. And the Lorde answered, beholde, he hath byd hym selfe amonge the stuffe. And they ran and fette hym thence. And when he stode amonge the people he was hygher then anye of the people from the shoulders vwarde. And Samuell sayed to all the people: se ye, whome the Lorde hath chosen, and howe there is none like hym amonge all the companye. And the people shouted and sayed, God sende the kynge lyfe.

Then Samuell tolde the people the lawe of the realme, and wrote it in a booke, and layed it by before the Lorde, & so sente all the people away, euerye manne to his house. And Saule also went home to Gabaah, and there went wyth hym an hoste such as God had touched theyr herts. But the chyldren of vntyrstynes sayed: howe shall he saue vs? and despised hym, & brought hym not presents. And he made as though he had not hearde it.

The. xi. Chapter.

The people being deliuered from the tyranny of Nabal, reneweth the kingdome of Saul.

NABAL the Ammonyte came and beseged Jabes in Galaad. And all the people of Jabes sayed vnto Nabal: make a couenaunte wyth vs, and we wyll be thy seruantes. And Nabal the Ammonyte sayed: to this wil I make a couenaunte w you, eue to thrust out al youre ryghte eyes, that I maye make al Israell ashamed of you. The said the elders of Jabes: Gyu vs seuen dayes respyre, that we may sende messengers vnto all the coastes of Israell. And if there come no man to helpe vs, we wyll come out to the. Then came the messengers to Gabaah, where Saule dwelte, and tolde this trydynge in the eares of the people. And all the people lystie by theyr voices and wept. And beholde Saule came solowynge his oren from the felde & asked what aileth þe people to wepe. And they tolde him the trydynge of the men of Jabes. Then came the spirite of God vpon Saule, when he heard those trydynge, and he was exceedingly angrie. And toke a yoke of oxen and hewed them in peces, and sent them thorowout al the coastes of Israell, by the handes of messengers, sayinge: whosoever commeth not forth after Saule and after Samuell, so shall his oren be searued. Then the feate of the Lorde fell on the people, and they came out as it had bene but one mā. And when they were numbred in Bezek, the chyldren of Israell Israel were thre hundred thousande, and the men of Iuda thirtie thousande.

And they sayed vnto the messengers that came: so saye vnto the menne of Jabes Galaad, to morowe by that tyme the Sunne be hoore, ye shal haue healpe. And the messengers came and shewed the men of Jabes, and they were glabbe.

And then the menne of Jabes sayed: to morowe we wyll come out vnto you, that ye maye do wyth vs al that pleaseth you.
And on the morowe Saule put the people into thre partes. And they came in vpon the host in the morning watch, and slew the Ammonites wyl the heate of the daye.

And they that remayned, scattered, so that two of them were not left together. Then sayed the people to Samuel: what are they that sayd, shal Saule raygne ouer vs?

1. Reg. i. s

Bring them that we maye slea them. But Saule sayed, there shall no man dye thys day, for to day the Lord hath saued Israel.

Then sayed Samuel vnto hys people come and let vs go to Galgal, and renewe the kyngedome there. And the people went to Galgal, and made Saule kyng there before the Lord in Galgal. And ther they offered peace offeringes before the Lorde. And there Saule and all the people reioysed byghlye.

Samuel said Samuel vnto al Israel, beholde, I haue obeyed poure voyce in al ye sayed vnto me, and haue made you a kyng. And lo, your kyng goeth before you. But I am old and grey headed: and beholde, my sonnes are wyth you, and I haue lpyed amonge you from my chyldhode vnto thys daye.
Behold, here I am: answere me before the Lord and before hys annointed, whose ore haue I take? or whose asse haue I taken?
whos haue I done wrong to? or whom haue I pylled? And of whose hande haue I re-ceyued anpe byrbe, to blynde myne eyes therewyth? and I wyll restore it you a-gayne. And they sayed, thou haste done vs no wronge, nor pylled vs, neither hast thou taken ought of any mannes hande. Then said he to them: the Lorde is wytnes vnto you, and his annointed is wytnes this day that ye haue fould naughte in my handes.

That, why-

And they answered, we are wytnesses.
Then sayed Samuel vnto the people, it is the Lorde that made Moyses and Aaron, whiche broughte your fathers oute of Egypt. Now therefore stande still, and let me reason wyth you before the Lorde of all the merces of the Lorde, whiche he shewed boeth vnto you and poure fathers. After that Iacob was come into Egypt, your fathers cryed vnto the Lorde

Neuerthelater they forgate the Lorde their God. And he solde them into the bin kyng of Habor, and into the handes of the Philistynes, and into the handes of the kyng of Moab, whiche foughte a-

Lorde, and sayed: we haue synned bycause we haue forsaken the Lorde, and haue ser-ued Baalim and Asaroth. But nowe de-lyuer vs out of the handes of oure enemy-es, and we wyll serue the. And the Lorde sente Jerobaal* Bathan, Jephthah, and Samuell, and delyuered you oute of the handes of your enemyes on euery syde, so that ye dwelled wythoute feare. And for all that, when ye sawe that Nabas the kyng of the chyldrenne of Ammon came agaynst you, ye sayed: not so, a kyng shall raygne ouer vs, when yet the Lorde poure God was poure kyng. Nowe therefore beholde, the kyng whom ye haue chosen and whom ye haue desired: se, the Lorde hath geuen you a kyng. Oh that you would feare the Lord, and serue hym, and heare his voyce, and not disobey the mouth of the Lorde: and that boeth ye, and the kyng that raygneth ouer you, woulde followe the Lorde your God. For if ye shal not hearken vnto the Lord, but shal disobey the Lordes mouth, then shall the hand of the Lord be vpon you, as on your fathers.
Nowe also stande and se thys great thinge whiche the Lorde wyll doo before poure eyes: is it not now to beat heruest? And yet for all that, I wyll call vnto the Lord, and he shall sende thunder and rayne. Wherby perceyue and vnderstande howe that your wickednesse is greates, whiche ye haue done in the syghte of the Lorde, in askyng you a kyng.

And when Samuel called vnto the Lord, the Lord sent thunder and rayne the same daye. And al the people feared the Lorde, and Samuel erce adpynglye. Then sayed all the people vnto Samuel: praye for thy seruauntes vnto the Lorde thy God, that we dye not: for mee haue synned in askyng vs a kyng, besyde all the synnes that euer we dyd.

Then sayed Samuel vnto the people: feare not. And though ye haue done al this wickednes, yet departe not from the Lord in any case. But serue him wyl your hearts.
Neither turne ye after vayne thyngs, whiche can not deliuer you, for they are but vanities. But the Lorde wyll not forsake hys people, because of hys greates Names sake, because the Lord hadde begonne to make you his people. * The that

The. xiii. Chapter.

The Philistines are smitten of Saule and Ionathas. Saule beyng disobedient to Goddes commaundement is shewed of Samuell that he shall not raygne.

IT was now an houle pere after that Saule beganne to raygne. And when he had raygned two yers ouer Israell, he chose hym thre thousande men out of Israell. Two thousande were wyth Saule in Machmas and mounte Berhell, and a thousand wyth Ionathas in Gabaah Beniamyn. And the reste of the people he sente home euerie man to his house.

And Ionathas sene the Philistines in an hold that they hadde in Gabaah, and it came to the Philistynes eares. And Saule caused the trompet to be blowen thowre oute all the lande, sayinge, let the Tribes beare. And all Israell hearde say how that Saule had destroyed an holde of the Philistines, & how that Israell stanke afore the Philistynes. And all the people cryed after Saule to Gulgall.

When the Philistines gathered them selues togyther to fyghte wyth Israell thirtie thousand charrettes, & vi. thousand horsemenne, wyth other people lyke the sand of the sea side in multitude, and came by and pyched in Michmas eastwarde from Bethauen. And when the men of Israell sawe theym selues in a strypte, and that the people were dysconforted, they hid the selues in caues, in pryue holes, in rockes, denues, and pyttes. And the Tribes wente ouer Iordane, vnto the Land of Gad and Galaad. But Saule was yet in Gulgall, and all the people that folowed hym were dysmayed. And he taried seuen dayes, as Samuell * had appoynted. But Samuell came not to Gulgall, and the people scattered from hym. Wherefore Saule sayed: byng me burnt sacrifice and peace offerynges. And he offered burnt sacrifice. And as sone as he had ended his burnt offerynges, beholde Samuell came. And Saule wente agaynst hym to trete hym. Then sayed Samuell to Saule, what hast thou done? And Saule sayd, because I sawe that the people scattered from me, and that thou camest not wythin the dayes appoynted and that the Philistines gathered theim selues togyther to Machmas: then sayd I, the Philistynes shall come downe vpon me to Gulgall, here I haue made my prayer vnto the Lord. And therefore when they enforced me, I toke a courage, and offered burnt offerynges. Then sayed Samuell to Saule: thou hast done folysly, and hast not kepte the commaundemente of God whiche he commaunded thee. For at this tyme would the Lorde haue stablished thy kyngdome vpon Israell for euer. But now thy kyngdome shal neuer florish agayne. The Lord hath soughte a man after his owne hert, and hath commaunded hym to be a captaine ouer his people because thou hast not kepte that the Lorde commaunded thee. And Samuell arose and gat hym from Gulgall to Gabaah Beniamyn.

And Saule numbered the people, and the people that were founde wyth hym, were aboute a. vi. hundred men. And Saule and Ionathas bys sonne, and the people that were founde wyth theym, had their abyding in Gabaah Beniamyn. But the Philistines had pyched in Machmas.

And ther came oute of the hooite of the Philistynes thre compaignes to destroye: one compaigne turned to the way that leadeth to Ephraim vnto the Lande of Saule an other compaigne turned the waye to Berbozon, and the thyrde compaigne turned the way of the coaste that turneth to the valley of zeboim towarde the wyldernes. But there was no smyte thowre out al the lande of Israell.

For the Philistynes were ware that the Tribes shoulde not make them selues neyther swerdes and speares. And therefore muste all Israell goo downe to the Philistines to mend euery man bys share, bys mattocke, bys axe, or bys spyckle, as oft as the edges of the sickles, mattockes, dongforkes, and axes were blunte, and muste be hadde vnto the stethye to be amended. And so in tyme of battayle, there was neyther swerde nor spere founde in the handes of anye of the people that were wyth Saul & Ionathas, saue for Saule & Ionathas his sonne was ther somewhat folide. And the army of the Philistines came out and stode on the other side before Machmas.

The. xiii. Chapter.

Ionathas companied wyth his esquire putteth the Philistines to flight. He taketh the hony which his father unknowyng to him had forbydde the hole host, for which he shuld haue bene slaine, but the people deliuered him.

And it fell on a daye that Ionathas the sonne of Saule sayde vnto his pong manne that bare his harnesse: come and lette vs go ouer to the watchmenne of the Philistines that are ponder on the other syde, and tolde not his father.

But Saul taried in the uttermoste part of Gabaah vnder a pomegranet tree that was in Agaron, and the people that were wyth hym, were about fyre hundred men.

And Ahiah the sonne of Ahitob Jehabodes brother, the sonne of Shimeles, the sonne of Hely was the Lordes priest in Siloh, and bare an Ephod. But the people wiste not that Ionathas was gone.

And hys harnies bearer sayed vnto hym, doo all that ipeeth in thynne hearte, set the forward, and see, I am wpth the, as thy herte lusteth.

Then sayed Jonathas: beholde, when we goo ouer vnto the menne, and shewe oure selues vnto them, if they saye on thys wise to vs: tarpe tpyl we come to you, then wee wpyll stande stpyll where we be, and not goo bppe vnto them. And then Saule sayed vnto Ahia: Bynge hyther the arcke of God. For the arcke of God was at that tyme wpth the chyldren of Israell. And whyle Saule talked vnto the priestes, a lowde skirmyſhe beganne in the hooſte of the Philistines, and it encreased and was hearde wpth a greate noyse. And Saule sayde to the priest, withdraw thynne hand. And Saule assembled all the people that were wpth hym, and wente to the holde.

And se, euerye mannes swerd was agaynst hys felowe, and there was greate slaughter done. Moreover the Hebrewes that were wyth the Philistines before that time, and were come wpth them in all partes of the host, turned to the chyldren of Israell that were with Saule and Jonathas. And they also whiche hadde hydde them selues in mounte Ephraim, hearynge that the Philistines were fled, put them selues in presse wpth Saules men, and pursued the Philistynes, and so God holpe Israell that dape. And the battell contynued tpyl they came to Bethauen. And the men of Israell ioyned them selues together that dape: and Saule adiured the people sayinge. Cursed be he that eateth anye fode vntil night, that I maye be aduenged of myne enemies. And so there was none of the people that tasted anye fode. And all the lande came to a wood where honye lay vpon the grounde. And when the people were come into the wood: Behoulde, the honye dropped. Howe beit, there was no manne that moueth hys hande to his mouth, because the people fered the curse. But Jonathas hearde not when that hys father adiured the people: wherefore he put forth the end of the staffe that was in hys hande, & dypte it in an honye combe, and putte hys hande to hys mouth, and forthewyth hys eien receiued their olde vertue and courage.

All the lande for all the people of the land.

* Thus speke the Hebrewes, for we saye he recovered his strengthe was more chearfull. Troubled the lande is a maner of speech vſed among the Hebrewes, for we saye he troubled the people or the hooſte as a house.

Then spake one of the people and sayde, thy father adiured the people sayinge: Cursed be the manne that eateth anye fode thys dape, and yet the people were saynt. Then sayed Jonathas: my father hathe troubled the Land: for beholde, my eien haue recovered thir power and strengthe, because I tasted a lytle of thys hony: how then if all the people hadde eaten of the spople of theyr enemies which they found, hadde there not bene then a muche greate slaughter amonge the Philistynes? And they layed on the Philistines that dape, from Machmas to Aialon. But the people were exceadyng saynte. Then the people gate them to the spople, and toke shepe oxen, and calues, and flewe them on the grounde, and dyd eate wpth the bloude.

Then men tolde Saule sayinge: Behoulde the people synne agaynst the Lord, in that they eate wpth the bloude. And he sayde ye haue trespassed. Bnt rowle a greate stone vnto me now, and goo abrode amonge the people, and bydde them bynge euerye manne hys ore, and euery man hys shepe, and slayethem here and synne not agaynst the Lorde, in eatynge wpth the bloude. And the people broughte euerye manne hys ore in hys hande by nyght, and flewe them there.

And Saule made an aultare vnto the Lorde. And that was the first aultare that he made vnto the Lorde. And Saule sayde: Let vs go downe after the Philistines by nyghte, and let vs make hauoke amonge them tpyl it be dape in the mornynge, and let vs not leaue one of the. And the people answered, do what soeuer thou thynekst best.

E. iii.

Then

Then sayed the prieste: Let vs come hither vnto God. And Saul asked of God: Shal I go downe after the Philistines, and wilt thou geue them into myne handes? But he answered him not at þe tyme. Then sayde Saule, lette the people come hither out of all quarters, and knowe and see, in whom thys spynne is chaunced thys daye, for as trulpe as the Lorde lyueth, whiche hath saued Israell, though it be in Jonathas my Sonne, he shall dye for it. But no man answered hym of all the people. Then he sayd vnto al Israell: Be ye on one side, and I and Jonathas my sonne wyl be on an other. And then the people sayd vnto Saul: What thou thikest best, that do. And Saul and Jonathas were apprehended by þe lot, and al the people escaped free.

Then sayd Saul, caste lots betwene me and Jonathas my sonne, and Jonathas was taken by the lot. Then Saul sayde to Jonathas: tel me what thou hast done. And Jonathas tolde hym and sayed: I tasted a lyttle hony vpon the ende of the staffe that was in my hande, and se, I must dye. Then sayd Saul: God deale so and so wyth me, but if thou dye Jonathas. But the people sayde vnto Saul: Shall Jonathas dye, whiche so myghtely holpe Israell? God forbid. As trulpe as the Lorde lyueth, ther shal not one heare of hys heade fall to the grounde for he hath wroughte with God thys day.

The people
do rescowe Jonathas
þe die not

And so þe people deliuered Jonathas, that he dyed not. And then Saule ceased from followinge the Philistines. And the Philistines returned to their own place. And so Saul toke the kyngdome ouer Israell, and foughte agaynst al their enemyes on euery syde: agaynst the Moabites, agaynst the chyldren of Ammō, agaynst the Edomites, agaynst the kynges of Zobah, and agaynst the Philistines. And whither so euer he turned hym selfe, there he wanne, and demeaned hym selfe valeauntly, and slewe the Amalekites, and rydde Israell oute of the handes of them that spoyled them. The sonnes of Saul wer Jonathas, Jeshui, and Melchisua. And hys two doughters were thus named: the elder Merob, and the yonger Michol. And the name of Saules wyfe was Ahinoam, þe daughter of Ahimaaz. And the name of the chiefe captaine was Abner the son of Ner Saules vncle. * And Cis was Saules father.

worde of the Lord. Thus saith the Lord of hostes: I haue called to remembraunce all that euer Amalecke hath done to Israell * how they lay in wait for them in the way as they came oute of Egypte. Nowe therfore, go and smite the Amaleckites, and destroye only al that pertaineth vnto them, and se thou haue no compassion on them. But slaye manne and womanne, infante, and suckelyng, oxe, shepe, camel, and asse. And Saul assembled the people, and numbred them in Telaim, two hundred thousand footemen, and ten thousand men of Juda. And Saule came vnto a cite of the Amalekites, and foughte in a valey. But Saule sayde vnto the Benites: go and departe, and get you awaye from the Amalekites, lest I destroye you wyth them, for ye shewed mercye vnto Israell when they came oute of Egypte. And the Benites departed from the Amalekites. And Saule slewe the Amalekites from Beula to Sur that lyeth before Egypte, and tooke Agag the kyng of the Amalekites alque, and vtterly destroyed all the people wyth the edge of the swearde. But Saule and the people spared Agag, and they left of the sheepe, and of the oren, and fatte * thynges, and the lambes, and al that was good and wolde not destroye them. But all that was naughte and flaggge, that they destroyed vtterly. Then came the woorde of the Lord vnto Samuel, saying: it (a) forthinketh me that I haue made Saul king. For he is turned from me, and hath not fulfilled my commaundements. Wherefore Sa- muell was euell apayd, and cryed vnto the Lorde all nyght. And Samuel arose early to meete Saul in the mornynge. And it was tolde Samuel that Saul was come to Car- mel, and hadde sette hym vp a pillar of triumphe. And was tourned, and departed, and gone to Balgall.

And when Samuel was come to Saul, Saule sayde vnto hym: Blessed be thou in the Lorde. I haue done the commaunde- mente of the Lorde. And Samuel answered. What meaneth then the bleatynge of the shepe in myne eares, and the noyse of the oren whiche I heare? And Saule sayd they haue broughte them from the Amalekites. For the people spared the best of the shepe, and of the oren, too sacrifice too the Lorde thy God. And the rest we haue destroyed. But Samuel said to Saule: cease, and let me tell the what the Lorde hath sayed to me thys nyght. And he sayde vnto hym, saye on. And Samuel saide: when thou wast * lytle in thine owne syght, wast thou not made the heade of the trybes of Israell? And the lord anointed þe king ouer Israell. And then the Lorde sente thee on a viage, and sayde vnto the, se thou vtterly destroy those spynners the Amalekites and spghte agaynst them, tyll ye haue vtterly destroyed them: wherefore then hast thou not obeyed the voyce of the Lord? But didst turne to the pray, and haste wroughte wyckedwyckednesse in the sight of the Lorde?

And Saule sayed to Samuell: I haue obeyed the voyce of the Lorde, and went the way whiche the Lorde sente me, and haue broughte Agag kynge of the Amalekites. And haue viterly destroyed the Amalekites. And the people tooke of the spoyle, shepe, oren, and the chiefeste of the thynge whiche shoulde haue bene destroyed, to offer vnto the Lorde thy God in Balgal. Then sayed Samuell: requireth the Lorde burnt sacrifice, and offerpnges, and not rather þ thou shuldest obey hys voyce? Behold to obey is better then offerpng, and to giue hede, is better then the fat of rams. For rebelliousnes is as the synne of wythcraft, and stubburnes is wyckednes and dolatrye. Because therefore thou hast caste awaye the woorde of the Lorde, therefore hath the Lorde caste awaye the also, from beynge kynge. Then sayde Saule to Samuell: I haue sinned, for I haue offended the mouth of the Lorde, and thy wordes, because I feared the people, and they obeyed theyr voyce. But now take awaye my synne, and turne agayne wyth me, that I maye worshyp the Lorde. Then sayd Samuell vnto Saul: I will not retorne wyth the, for thou hast cast awaye the commaundemente of God, and therefore the Lorde hath caste awaye the also, that thou shalt not be kynge ouer Israell.

And as Samuell tourned to goo awaye he caughte the lappe of hys coote, and it rente. Then Samuel sayed, the Lorde hath rent the kingdome of Israell from the, this day, and hath geuen it to a neyghbour of thynne, that is better then thou. And therefore, he that geueth byctorye to Israell, wyl not begyle, nor repente, for he is not a mā, that canne repente. Then he sayde: I haue sinned. But yet honoure me before the elders of my people, and before Israell, and turne agayne wyth me, that I maye praye to the Lorde thy God. And Samuell tourned agayne and folowed Saule. And Saul prayed to the Lorde. Then sayed Samuel: Brynge pe hyther to me Agag the kynge of the Amalekites. And Agag came vnto him delicatly. And Agag sayed: truly the bitternes of death cometh on. And Samuel sayd: As thy sword hath made women childlesse, so shall thy mother be childlesse among her women. And so Samuel hewed Agag in peaces before the Lorde in Balgal. And then Samuel departed to Ramath.

And Saul went home to his house to Gabaa. But Samuel came no more to see Saul till the day of his death. Neuertheless Samuel mourned for Saule, because the Lorde repented that he had made hym kynge ouer Israell.

The .xvi. Chapter.

David is anointed kynge and receyue the holy ghost. An euill spirit cometh vpon Saul which departeth whē David plaiceth.

And then the Lorde sayd vnto Samuell: Howe longe wylt thou mourne for Saul sithens I haue cast hym awaye from raygnynge ouer Israell? I pl an home wyth ointment, and come: I wyl send the to Isai the Bethlehemitte: for I haue espyed me a kynge amonge hys sonnes. But Samuell answered: howe shall I go? For Saule shal heare it and wil kyl me. And the Lorde sayd: Take an heifer wyth the and saye, thou goest to offer vnto the Lorde. And cal Isai to the offering, & I wyl shew the what þ shalt do: And thou shalt annoynt hym in whome I shal aspygne the. And Samuell dpyd as the Lorde bade him. And when he came to Bethlehem the elders of the town wer astonied at hys comynge and sayd: Betokeneth thy coming peace: and he said yea, for I am come to offer vnto the Lorde. * Cense your selues and come wyth me to the offering. And he purified Isai and hys sonnes and bade them to the offering.

And when they were come, he looked on Eliab, and sayd: the Lorde anointed is before hym. But the Lorde sayde vnto Samuell: Looke not on his facion, nor on the heygth of hys stature, for I haue refused hym because it is not as man seeth. For mā loketh on the outward apperance, but the Lorde beholdeth the hert. Then Isai called Abinabab, and made hym come before Samuel. And he sayde: Repether hath the Lorde chosen thys. Then Isai made Samah come, & he sayde: neither yet hath the Lorde chosen thys. Then made Isai leue of his sonnes come before Samuel. And Samuell said: þ Lorde hath chose none of these.

Then sayde Samuell to Isai: Are here all thy chyldren? And he sayde: The yongest is yet behynde. Beholde, he kepeth the shepe. Then Samuel sayd vnto Isai: send, and fet hym, for we wyl not spt downe to meate tyl he be come hyther. And he sente and brought hym in. And he was ruddy & a goodly creature of makynge, and of a pleasant countenance. And then the Lorde said: arple and annoynt him: for thys is he. And Samuel toke the horne with the ointment and annoynted him in the presence of hys brethren. And the spirit of the Lorde came vpon David from that day forward. Then Samuel arose by and went to Ramath.

But the spirit of the lord departed from Saul, and an euill spyrte sent of the Lorde bered him. Then sayd his seruauntes vnto him: behold, an euill spirit sent from god bereth the, let our Lorde therefore comaunde hys seruauntes to seeke a man that is a cunning player wyth an harpe. And then whē the euill spyrte sente of God cometh vpon the, he maye plape with his hande, and thou shalt be eased.

And Saul sayd vnto hys seruauntes: seeke me a man that can well plape, and brynge hym to me. Then answered one of hys seruauntes and sayd: Beholde I haue fene a sonne

The. xvii. Chapter.

The battell of the Philistines agaynst Israel. Little Dauid ouercometh great Goliath.

De Philistines gathered theyr hoste to battell, and assembled at Socoh in Iuda, and Azekah in the ende of Domim. And Saule and the men of Israell came and pyched in Ockedale: and putte them selues in arape to fyghte agaynst the Philistynes, and the Philistines stode on an hyl on the one syde, and Israell on an hyl on the other syde, and a balpe betwene them. And then came a manne and stode in the middes, oute of the tentes of the Philistines named Goliath of Beth, sixe cubytes, and an hande breath longe, and had:
an helmette of brasle vpon hys heade, and a cote of male aboute hym. And the wepghte of hys coate of male was fyue thousande cycles of brasle.

Goliath

And he had harnesse of brasle vppon hys ledges, & a shylde of brasle vpon his shoulders. And the staffe of his spere was lyke a a weuers beame. And hys spere head waide fyre hundred sicles of prou. And one bering a shielde wente before hym.

And he stode and called vnto the hooste of Israell, and sayde vnto them: what nea-deth, that ye shoulde come oute in arape to battell: am not I a Philistine, and pou seruauntes to Saul: chose pou a manne, and let hym come downe vnto me, if he be able to fyghte wth me, and to beate me, then we wyll be your seruauntes. But if I can ouere come hym and beate hym: ye shall be our seruauntes and serue vs. And the Philistyne sayde: I haue defied the hooste of Israell thys daye, geue me a man, and let vs fyght together. When Saule and all Israell hearde those wordes of the Philistine they were discouraged & greatly afrayde.

Nowe Dauid was the son of an Ephrathite of Bethlehemitte Iuda named Isai, whiche Isai had epght sonnes. And was an olde man in the dayes of Saul among the people. And the thre eldest sonnes of Isai went and folowed Saul to battell.

And the names of hys thre sonnes that wente to battell were: Eliab the eldest, and the myddle moste Abinadab, and the thirde Samah, and Dauid was the yongest. And when the.iii. eldest were gone after Saul, Dauid wente and departed from Saul to kepe hys fathers shepe at Bethlehem. And the Philistine came foorth euerpe mornyng and euening, and contynued thus fourtye dayes, and Isai sayd to Dauid his sonne: take for thy brethren thys Ephra of parched corne, and these ten loues, and rti to the hoost to thy brethren, and carpe these ten freshe cheses vnto the captayne & loke howe thy brethren fare, and fet oute theyr pledges. And Saule and they and all the menne of Israell were in a valep fyghtyng wth the Philistines. And Dauid arose by earlye in the mornynge: and lefte the shepe wth a keper, and toke and wente as Isai had commaunded hym, and came wher the hoost laye. And the hooste was gopnge oute in arape, and shouted in the battell, for Israell and the Philistines hadde put them selues in arape, the one agaynst the other. Then Dauid put the panier fro hym vnto the handes of the keper of the bes-sels, and ranne into the hooste, and came and greted hys brethren. And as he taul-ked wth them, Behoulde, there stode a manne in the middes, Goliath the Philis-tine by name, of Beth, whyche came oute of the arape of the Philistines, and spake in the manne raboue rehearsed, that Da-uid hearde it. And all the men of Israell, when they sawe the manne, ranne a wape frome hym, and were sore afrayed. And euerpe manne of Israell sayde: Se ye thys manne that is come forth, euen to reuple Israell is he come. And too hym: that bea-teth hym wll the kyng geue greate rechesse, and wyll geue hym hys doughter thereto: pea, and make hys fathers house fre in Israell. Then spake Dauid too the manne that stode by and sayed: What shal the manne haue that beateth thys Philis-tine, and taketh awaye the shame frome Israell: for what is thys vncircumcised Philistine, that he shoulde reule the hoost of the lypunge God? And the people aun-swered as is rehearsed, sayinge. Thus shal he be rewarded, that can vanquish him.
And Eliab his eldest brother hearde, when he spake vnto the manne, and was angrie wth Dauid and sayde: Why camest thou awaye? and wth whome haste thou lefte those fewe shepe in the wylde nesse? I knowe thy pryde, and the malpce of thyne herte, that thou arte come to seth the battell.
And Dauid answered, what haue I nowe done: is there anye more saue a woorde?
and departed from hym to an other front, and spake in the same maner, and the people answered hym agayne, as before. And they that hearde the woordes whiche Da-uid spake, rehearsed them before Saule, whyche caused hym too be fet: And Dauid sayde

Heb. xi. e

Sayde to Saule: Lette no mannes hearte faynte for drede of hym. Thy seruaunte wyl go and fyghte wpth thys philistine.
And Saule sayde to Dauid agayne, thou arte not able to go vnto thys philistine to fyghte wpth him. For thou art but a child, and he hath bene a man of warre euen fro hys yowthe. Then sayd Dauid vnto Saul: as thy seruaunte kepte hys fathers shepe, there came a Lion, and lykewyse a Beare, and toke a shepe oute of the flocke. And I wente oute after hym and smote hym, and toke it oute of hys mouth. And when he arose agaynste me, I caughte hym by the bearde, and smote hym, and slew hym. For bothe a Lion and also a Beare hath thy seruaunte slayne. And thys vncircumcised philistine shall be as one of them, for hys raplynge on the hoste of the lpyngge God.
And Dauid spake moreouer, the Lord that deliuered me oute of the handes of the Lion, & out of the hands of the beare, shal deli-uer me also out of y hands of y philistine.

Then sayde Saule to Dauid, go: and the Lord be wpth the. And Saule put hys raymente vpon Dauid, and put an helmet of brasse vpon hys head, and put a coate of maple vpon hym, and girded Dauid with hys owne swerd vpon hys raymente. And he assayed howe he coulde go, for he neuer proued it. Then sayde Dauid vnto Saule: I can not go in these, for I haue not bene blessed therto, and put them of hym, and toke hys staffe in hys hand, and chose hym fyue smothe stones oute of a broke, and put the in a shepherdes bagge whiche he had, and toke hys slynge in hys hande, and went to the philistine.

And the philistine came and drewe nere vnto Dauid, wpth the manne that bare a shylde before hym. And when the philis-tine lokyd and sawe Dauid, he dysdained hym, for he was but a yonglynge, roudde and goodly to loke vpon. And the philistine sayd vnto Dauid: am I a dogge, that thou comest to me a wpth a staffe? and he cursed Dauid in the name of hys Goddes. And he sayed vnto Dauid: come too me, and I wyl gyue thy fleshe vnto the fowles of the ayre, and too the beastes of the feldes.
Then sayde Dauid to the philistine: thou comest to me wpth a swerde, a spere, and a shylde: But I come too the in the name of the Lord of hostes, the God of the host of Israell on whome thou haste rayled.
Thys daye shall the Lord gyue the into myne hande, and I shall smyte the, and take thyne heade frome the, and I wyl gyue the carcases of the hoste of the philistins this daye too the fowles of the ayre and to the beastes of the earth, and all the worlde shall knowe that there is a God in Israell. And all thys companie shall knowe, that the Lord saueyth not wpth the swerde and speare. For the battell is the Lordes, and he shall gyue you into oure handes.

And when the philistine arose and came and drewe nye vnto Dauid. Dauid hasted and ranne to fyghte agaynste the philis-tine. And Dauid put hys hand in hys poke and tooke oute a stone in hys hande and slange it, and smote the philistine in hys foreheade, that the stone sanke into hys forehed, and he fel grouelynge to the earth.

And so Dauid ouercam the philistine with a slinge and a stone, and smote the philis-tine, and slewe hym.

And because Dauid hadde no swerde in hys hande, he ranne and stode vpon the philistine, and toke hys swerde, and drewe it out of his sheath, and slewe hym, and cut of hys heade therwpth. And when the philistines sawe theyr champion deade, they fled. And the menne of Israell and of Juda arose, and howted and folowed after the philistines tyll they came to the balye, and vnto the gates of Akaron. And the philistines fell downe deade by the waye to Samraim, euen vnto Beth, and Akaron.
And then the chyldren of Israell returned fro chasping the philistines & spoyled theyr tentres. And Dauid toke the head of y philis-tine & brought it to Ierusalē. But he put hys armour in hys tente. But when Saul sawe Dauid issue forth agaynste the philistyne, he sayde vnto Abner the chiefe captaine of hys hoste: Abner, whose sonne is thys yonge manne? And Abner answered: as trulpe as thy soule lyueth, O kynge, I can not tell. Then sayed the kynge: enquire thou, if he be some noble mannes son. And so when Dauid was returned frome the slaughter of the philistine, Abner toke him and broughte hym before Saul, wpth the heade of the philistine in hys hande. And Saule sayde vnto hym. Whose sonne arte thou, thou yonge manne? And Dauid answered, the sonne of thy seruaunt Iai, the Bethlehemite.

Jonathas and Dauid bounde them selues the one to the other, for Jonathas loued hym as hys owne lyfe. And Jonathas put of hys owne coote that was vpon him, and gaue it Dauid, and therto hys mantel, his

of the Philistines, that womē came out of all cities of Israel synngng and dauncyng agaynst Saul wpth timbrels, wpth iope, and wpth fidels. And the women that played, sang thereto, and sayde: Saule hathe slayne hys thousand, and Dauid his tenne thousande. Then was Saule excedyng wrothe, and the sayinge displeased hym, & he sayde: They haue ascribed vnto Dauid ten thousand, and to me but a thousand, & what can he haue moze saue the kyngdō?

¶ wherfore Saul looked awpe on Dauid fro that daye forward. And it happened on the morowe, that the euyl spirit sent of God came vpon Saule, so that he prophesied in the middes of the house. And Dauid played wpth the instrument wpth hys hand, as he was daylye wonte. And Saul had a speare in hys hand, & hurled it, intending to haue naped Dauid to the wal. But Dauid auoi ded oute of hys presence two times.

¶ For Saul was afraid of Dauid because the Lorde was wpth hym; and was departed from Saul. And then Saul put Dauid from hym, and made hym a captayne ouer a thousand, and he went out & * in before the people. And Dauid was wple in al hys doings, and the lord was with him. Wherfore when Saul sawe that he was so excedyng wple, he was afrayed of hym.

¶ But all Israell and Iuda loued Dauid, because he wente oute and in before them. Then sayed Saule to Dauid. Beholde my eldest daughter Merob, hy? I wpll geue the to wple: Onlye playe the manne, and fight the lords battels. For Saul thought myne hande shall not be vpon him, but the handes of the Philistines. And Dauid answered Saule: what am I, & what is my lyfe, or the kyndred of my father in Israel, that I should be sonne in law to the king? But when the tyme was come that Merob Saules daughter should haue bene geuen to Dauid, he was geuen to Adriell a Getholothite to wple. Howbeit Michol another of Saules daughters loued Dauid.

¶ And when it was shewed Saule, & thynge pleased hym wel. And he sayde: I will geue hym hit: & he maye be a snare to hym, to byng the hand of & Philistines vpon hym. And Saul said to Dauid: & shalt thys day be my son in law agayn. And Saul commaunded hys seruantes to comen wpth Dauid secretlye, and saye: Behoulde the kyng hathe a fauoure too the, and all hys seruantes loue the, be therfore the Kynges sonne in lawe.

¶ And Saules seruantes spake those wordes in the eares of Dauid. But Dauid answered: semeth it to you a lyghte thyng to be the kynges sonne in lawe, when I am a pore man of smal reputacon? And Saules seruantes told him agayn sayyng: in this manner answered Dauid: Then said Saul this wple say to Dauid: & kyng careth for none other dowrye, but for an hundred forskins of the Philistines to be aduerged of & kings enemyes. For Saul thoughte to make Dauid fall into the handes of the Philistines. Then hys seruantes tolde Dauid these wordes, and it pleased Dauid well too be the kynges son in law. And shortly after Dauid arose with his men, and wente and slew of the Philistines, two hundred men, and broughte they forskynnes, and numbred them vnto the kyng for too become hys sonne in law. * And so Saul gaue him Micholl hys daughter to wple. And when Saule sawe and vnderstode that the Lord was with Dauid, & that Michol hys daughter loued him, he was the more afrayed of Dauid, and became Dauides enneye for euer. And when the Philistines went oute to warre, Dauid behaued hym selfe more wple then all the seruantes of Saule: and hys name was muche set vp.

The. xix. Chapter.

Saul commaundeth to slea Dauid. Micholl hys wple saueh hym by a proper feate, and deceaueth hys father. Saule is also amonge the Prophetes.

¶ When Saule communed wpth Jonathas hys sonne, and wpth all hys seruantes, that they should kyll Dauid. But Jonathas Saules sonne had a greate fauour to Dauid and tolde Dauid, sayyng: Saule my father goeth aboute to slep the. Nowe therefore take hede to thy selfe in season, and abyde in some secret place, and hidethy self. And I wpl go out and stande by my father in the feld wher thou art, and wpl comen with my father of the: and if I ca perceiue oughte I wpll tell the.

¶ And Jonathas spake good of Dauid vnto Saule hys father, and sayed vnto hym: let not the kyng synne agaynst hys seruante Dauid: for he hathe not synned agaynst the, and hys woorkes are towards the verpe good. For he did putte hys lyfe in his hande, and slew the Philistine, and the Lorde gaue a greate victorie vnto all Israell. And thou sawest it, and thou reioysedest, wherfore then shouldest thou synne agaynst innocent bloude, and slep Dauid for nought? And Saule hekened vnto the voyce of Jonathas, and swate: as trulpe as the Lord lyueth, he shall not dye. Then Jonathas called Dauid, and shewed hym all those wordes, and broughte hym to Saul. And he was in hys presence as in tymes paste. And the warre beganne again and Dauid wente oute and foughte wpth the Philistines, and made a greate slaughter, and put them to flyghte. And the euyl spirit of the Lorde was vpon Saule as he late in hys house, haupnge a fauelpnge in hys hand, & Dauid played wpth hys hand. And Saule entended to haue naped Dauid to the wall wpth the fauelpne: But Dauid ridde hym selfe oute of Saules presence, and so he smote the speare in too the wall. gers to Dauid's house, to lye in wayte for hym, and to slep hym in the mornyng. But Michol his wyfe tolde it hym, sayinge. If thou saue not thy selfe this nyght, to morrowe thou arte but a deade man. And so Michol let Dauid do what he wold. And he went and fledde, and saved himselfe. And then he toke an image, and layed it in the bedde, and put a pillowe stuffed with fowles beate vnder the heade of it, & couered it with a cloth. And whē Saul sent messengers to fet Dauid, he said that he was sicke. Then saule sente the messengers to se Dauid, sayinge: byngye hym to me bedde and all that he maye be slayne. And when the messengers were come in, beholde, there laye an image in the bed, wth the pillowe of fowles beate vnder the head of it. Then sayd saule to Michol: Why haste thou mocked me so, and sente a waye myne enemye that he is escaped? And Michol answered saule: He sayde vnto me: let me go, or els I wyl kyll the. And so Dauid fled, and escaped and went to Samuel to Ramath, and tolde hym all that saule had done to hym. And he, and Samuel went and dwelt in Ramoth.

And it was tolde saule, sayinge: Beholde, Dauid is at Ramoth in Ramath: then saule sent messengers to fet Dauid, And when they saw a compaignie of prophetes prophesyinge, and Samuel teachinge them, the spirite of God fell vpon the messengers of saule, and they prophesied to. And when it was tolde saule, he sent other messengers, and they prophesied likewise. And saule sent messengers yet agayne the thirde tyme, whych prophesied also. Then went he hym selfe to Ramath, and when he came to a greete well that is in Socoh, he asked and sayde:

Where are Samuel and Dauid? And they sayde: Se they be at Ramoth in Ramath, and as he wente thither to Ramoth in Ramath the spirite of God came vpon hym also, and he wente prophesyinge, tyll he came to Ramoth in Ramath.

And he wrote of his clothes & prophesied before Samuel in lyke maner, and fel naked all the day, and all the nyght, wherefore it is a commune saying: As saule also amonge the prophetes.

Dauid beinge in leoparde complayneth vnto Jonathas. Jonathas deliuereth hym. A policy deuised betwene the: by which Dauid shuld know the intent of saule.

And Dauid fled fro Ramoth in Ramath & wet before Jonathas, & sayed. What haue I done? wherein am I faultye? what is the synne that I haue committed agaynst thy father? he seeketh my lyfe? And Jonathas answered him: God forbid, thou shalt not dye. For se my father wyl do nothyng, neyther greete nor smalle, but that he wyl shewe me. For why shoulde my father hyde this thyng from me? I knowe not. And Dauid swaie agayne and sayed: thy father knoweth that I haue founde grace in thyne eyes, and therefore he thyngeth Jonathas that he not knowe it, lest he be so. For in dede, as truly as the Lord liueth, and as truly as thy soule lyueth, there is but a steppe betwene me and death. Then sayed Jonathas to Dauid, whatsoeuer thy soule despereth, I wyl do vnto the.

And Dauid sayed vnto Jonathas. Beholde to morrowe is the kalendes and I shoulde sytte wth the kynge at meate. But let me go that I maye hyde my selfe in the fieldes, vnto this daye thre dayes at euē. If thy father misse me, saye: Dauid asked leaue of me that he myghte go to Berlehem to his owne cytye, for there is holden a petye feast for all his kyn. And if thy father saye thus: It is well done, then thy seruante shall haue peace. But if he be angrie: be sure, wyckednesse is betwene concluded of hym. And then thou shalt shewe mercy vnto thy seruante, for thou hast made wth me thy seruante a bonde in the Lorde. Notwythstandyng if there be wth me anye trespass, sea me thy selfe, for what needest thou to byngye me to thy father? And Jonathas answered: God kepe from the that I shoulde know, that wickednesse were concluded of my father to come vpon the: and shoulde not tell it the. Then sayed Dauid, who shall telle if thy father answereth cruellye? Jonathas sayed to Dauid: Come and let vs go forth into the fieldes. And they went both of the into the fieldes. Then Jonathas sayed vnto Dauid: O Lorde God of Israel, when I haue groped my fathers mynde, at one tyme or other, wth in this thre dayes that it stande well wth Dauid: and I then sende not vnto the, and shewe it the, the Lorde do so and so vnto Jonathas.

And in lyke maner, if enyll towarde the be appoynted of my father, I wyl shewe the and sende the awaye, that thou mayest go in peace. And the Lorde be wth the, as he hath bene wth my father. And thou shalt persoume vnto me the mercy of the Lorde, nor onelye whyle I lyue, but also when I am deade, plucke not thy mercy awaye from my house for euer: No, not when the Lorde hath destroyed the enemyes of Dauid euerye one, from the face of the earth.

And so Jonathas made a bonde wth the house of Dauid, desyringe that the Lorde shulde seeke oute of the handes of Dauid's enemyes theyr wyckednesse. And wth other wordes Jonathas adiuerted Dauid, because he loued hym. For as his owne soule he loued hym. Then sayde Jonathas to Dauid: To morrowe shall bee the kalendes. And thou shalt be missed because the place shall appeare emptye. But on the thirde daye come in anye wyse vnto the place wherethou shalt

And I wyll shote three arrowes by the one syde thereof, as though I shote at a marcke, and wyll sende after a ladde, and byd hym goo seeke the arrowes. If I saye vnto the ladde: See the arrowes are on thys syde the, bynge them: then come thou, for it is peace, and nothyng to do, as sure as the Lorde lyueth. But if I saye thus vnto the ladde, Beholde the arrowes are behynde the, then flee, for the Lorde hath sent the away. And of thys whiche thou and I haue spoken, beholde: the Lorde is witness betwene the and me for euer. And so Dauid hid him selfe in the feilde. And when the Kalendes came, the kynge sate hym downe at meat, to the currence to eate. And the kynge sate him downe after the accustomed maner, in hys seate by the wal. And Ionathas arose and Abner sate by Saules syde, and Dauides place was empty, but yet Saul sayd nothyng at al that daye. For he thoughte same thyng had chaunced hym, whereby he was not cleane. But on the morrowe after the Kalendes, when Dauids place appeared emptye. Saule sayd vnto Ionathas his sonne: wherefore cometh not the sonne of Isai to meate, neyther yesterdaye nor to daye? And Ionathas answered vnto Saule: Dauid asked lycence of me to go to Bethlehem sayinge, lette me goo I praye the, for our kynred holde an offeringe in the cytye, and my brother hath sente for me. Nowe therefore, if I haue founde fauoure in thynne eyes, let me goo and see my brethren. And for thys cause he cometh not vnto the kynges table.

Then was Saule angere wyth Ionathas, and sayde vnto hym: O forward and rebellious childe, thinkest thou I knowe not howe thou haste chosen the sonne of Isai vnto thynne owne rebuke, & vnto the rebuke & shame of thy mother? For as long as the sonne of Isai liueth vpon the earth, I shalt not be established nor yet thy kyngedome: wherefore nowe send, and sette hym vnto me, for he is the chyld of death.

But Ionathas answered Saule hys father, and sayd vnto hym: wherefore should he dye? What hath he done? Then Saule caste a spere at hym to hytte hym, whereby Ionathas wyfte well, that it was vtterlye determyned of his father to slea Dauid. Then Ionathas arose from the table in a greate anger, and byd eate no meate the seconde daye of the Kalendes for he was sorre for Dauid, because hys father had done hym shame. On the nexte mornynge Ionathas wente oute into the feilde at the tyme appointed with Dauid, and a lyttle ladde wyth hym. And he sayd vnto the boye, runne and fynde out myne arrowes whiche I shoute. And as the boye ranne, he shote an arrowe beyonde hym. And when the lad was come to the place whither Ionathas had shote the arrowe, Ionathas cryed after hym, and sayd, the arrowe is beyonde the. And he cryed after the lad, haste, make speede and stande not styll. And Ionathas ladde gathered vp the arrowe and came to hys maister. But the ladde wyfte nothyng of the matter: Onely Ionathas and Dauid wyfte it. Then Ionathas gaue hys weapons vnto the Ladde, and sayd vnto hym: goo and carpe theym to the towne. And as sone as the lad was gone, Dauid arose oute of a place that was toward the south, and fell on his face to the ground, and bowed him selfe three tymes. And they kissed epyther other and wepte togyther, but Dauid more aboundantlye. And Ionathas sayde to Dauid: go in peace of suche thynges we haue* sworne epyther of vs in the name of the Lorde, sayinge: The Lorde be betwene the and me, and betwene thy seide and myne for euer. And he rose and departed. And Ionathas went into the towne.

The.xxi. Chapter.

Dauid flyeth into Rob to Achimelech the priest, and getteth shewe breade to satysfye hunger. After he flyeth to kyng Achis, and ther sayneth him selfe mad.

Then came Dauid to Rob to Achimelech the priest: And Achimelech was astonied at his cominge, and wente to mete Dauid, and sayde vnto hym: Why comest thou thi selfe alone, and no man with thee? And Dauid sayde to Achimelech the priest: the kynge hath commaunded me to do a certeyne thyng and sayde vnto me: lette no man knowe wherabout I sende the, and what I haue commaunded the to doo. And therefore I haue appoynted my seruantes to suche and suche places. And now what haste thou vnder thynne hande? gyue me fyue loues of bread or what cummeth to hand. And the priest answered Dauid and sayd: Ther is no comen bread vnder myne hand, but ther is halowed breade, if the younge menne haue abstayned onelye from women. And Dauid answered the priest and said vnto him: O fauourer we men hath benelocked vp frome vs aboute a three dayes, when we came oute. And the vessels of the younge men were by the bodies. How be it if we haue taken any vncleanness by the wayes, thys daye it shall be halowed in the vessels. And so the priest gaue hym halowed breade, for there was none other bread there saue shewe breades that were taken frome before the Lorde to put freshe breade there.

And ther was the same daye a certeyne manne of the seruantes of Saule wythin the tabernacle of the Lorde, named Doeg an Edomite, the chiefe of Saules heard menne. And Dauid sayde vnto Achimelech: is not here vnder thynne hande, epyther speare or swerde? For I haue neyther broughte my swerde nor my harnesse with the seruantes of Achis sayed of hym: Is Dauid fleeth into the caue Adullam, and then into Masphah to the kyng of Moab. And thence in to Gath. Doeg betrayeth Dauid Achimelech is accused of treason and. lxxv. &

iii. priestes mo wylth him: because they recei-ued Dauid. Rob is destroyed of Saule. Abiathar flyeth to Dauid.

A Dauid departed thence and escaped, and came vnto the caue Adullam, whiche when his brethren and all his fathers house hearde of, they wente thither to hym. And there resorted vnto hym all suche as were in dystresse, and in dette and troubled in their hertes, and he was made their capitayne, and there were wylth hym aboute iij. hundred men. And Dauid went thence to Masphah in the land of Moab, & sayde vnto the kyng of Moab: Lette my father and mother (I praye the) haue their abiding with you, till I knowe what God wyl do with me. And he broughte them afore the kyng of Moab, and they dwelte wylth hym all the whyle that Dauid kept him self in holdes. And the prophete Gad sayed vnto Dauid: Abide not in holdes, but departe and go to the lande of Iuda: Then Dauid departed and came into the forest Hareth. And Saul hearde of it: for Dauid was knowen, and also the mē that were with him. And as Saul satte in Ba-bah vnder a groue vpon an hygh bancke with his spere in his hande, & all his men rounds aboute hym, he sayde vnto his ser-uantes that were about hym. Heare me ye sonnes of Bemini: Wil the sone of Isai also geue euerye one of you speldes & vine-yardes, and make you al graund capytai-nes and pety capytaynes, that ye haue all conspired agaynst me, so that there is none that wyl shewe me any thyng, in somuch that my sonne Isai made a confederacie wylth the sonne of Isai: There is none of you that bewayleth my chaunce, or sheweth it in mine eare: because my sonne hath set vp my seruant to lye in a wayte agaynst me, as appeareth this daye.

Then answered Doeg the Edomite, whych was chief of the seruantes of Saul and sayde: I sawe the sonne of Isai when he came to Rob to Achimelech the sonne of Ahitob, whych soughte counsell of the Lorde for hym, and gaue hym vitayles, and the swearde of Goliath the Philistine also.

Then the kyng sent to call Achime-lech the prieste the sonne of Achitob, and all his fathers house: that is to saye, the priestes that were in Rob. And they came all to the kyng. Then Saul sayde: heare thou sonne of Achitob. And he sayed: here I am my Lorde: Then sayde Saul vnto him: why haue ye conspired agaynst me, thou and the sonne of Isai, in so much that thou hast geuen him vitayle and a sweard, & hast sought counsel of God for hym, that he should arise agaynst me, and lie in wait as appeareth this daye? And Achimelech answered the kyng and sayd: who is amonge al thy seruants as the faithfull Dauid, and the kynges sonne in lawe, and goth at thy bidding, & is had in honour in thine house? haue I this daye begon syst to aske counsel of God for hym? be this farre from me: let not the kyng suspect agaynst his seruant any suche thyng in all the house of my father. For thy seruant knoweth no thyng of all this eyther litle or muche.

But the kyng sayde: thou shalt surely dye Achimelech, bothe thou and all thy fathers house. Then sayde the kyng vnto his soterne that stode about hym: turne and slay the priestes of the Lorde, both because their hande is wylth Dauid, and because they knewe when Dauid fledde and shewed it not to me. But the seruantes of the kyng would not moue their handes to runne vpon the priestes of the Lorde. The priestes Then sayed the kyng to Doeg: tourne thou and smyte the priestes. And Doeg the Edomite turned and ranne vpon the priestes and slew that same daye foure score and syue personnes that dyd weare eche man a linnen Ephod. And Rob the city of the priestes he smote wylth the edge of the sweard, both man and womā, childe and suckylunge, wylth ore asse and sheepe.
Yet one of the sonnes of Achimelech the sonne of Achitob, named Abiathar escaped & fled to Dauid, and shewed hym that Saul had slayne the Lordes priestes. Then Dauid said to Abiathar: I wyl it the same day, that whē Doeg the Edomite was ther he woulde surely tel it Saul. I am cause of the death of al the soules of thy fathers house. Abide wylth me, and feare not: be

The. xlii. Chapter.

Dauid deliuereth Keilah, and flieth into the wyldernes of ziph. He is comforted of Ionathas. The zephites would haue betrayed hym.

A Then they tolde Dauid sayinge: Behold, the Philistines fight against Keilah and spoile the barnes. Dauid therefore asked the Lordes aduise, saying: Shall I go and smite the Philistines? and the Lord said vnto Dauid: So and smite the Philistines, and saue Keilah. Then sayed Dauids me vnto hym: See we be afrayed here in Iuda. What shall we then be, when we come to Keilah, to the host of the Philistines? The Dauid asked the Lord agayne. And the Lord answered hym and sayde: aryse, and go to Keilah, for I wil geue the Philistines into thyne handes. So Dauid and hys men went to Keilah, & fought with the Philistines, & drowne awaye their carel, and made a great slaughter of the. And so Dauid saued the inheritance of Keilah. Now it chafised when Abiathar the sonne of Ahimelech, had fled to Dauid to Keilah, & he broughte an Ephode in his hande.

B And it was tolde Saule that Dauid was come to Keilah, then said Saul: God hath geuen hym into myne hande. For he is shutte in by the he is come into a towne where be bothe gates and barres. And Saule called al the people to warre, for to goo to Keilah to besiege Dauid and hys me. But Dauid had knowlege that Saul pruely imagined myschief agaynst hym and sayde to Abiathar the pprest: * Wrynge the Ephod. Then sayed Dauid. O Lord God of Israel, thy seruante heareth that Saule is aboute to come to Keilah to destroye the cytye for my sake: wyl the elders of Keilah deliuer me into hys hand? or wyl Saule come as thy seruante heareth saye? The Lord God of Israel tell thy seruant. And the Lord said: He wil come. Then sayed Dauid: Wyl the men of Keilah deliuer me and my men into the hande of Saul? and the Lord sayd: they will deliuer you. Then Dauid and hys men whiche were vpon a. vi. C. arose and departed out of Keilah, and went here & there they knew not whether. And whē it was tolde Saul & Dauid was fled fro Keilah, and so in sauegarde, he let the tourney alone. And Dauid abode in the wyldernes in stronge holdes, and in a mountayne in the wyldernes of zeph. And Saule soughte hym all his life. But God deliuered hym not into his hand. And Dauid saw that Saul was come out to seke hys lyfe, but Dauid was in the wyldernes of ziph in a couerte. And Ionathas Saules sone arose & went to Dauid to the couerte, and strenghtened hym in God, and said vnto hym: Feare not, for the hande of Saule my father shall not fynde the, but thou shalt be kynge ouer Israel, and I must be next vnto the. Yea, & Saule my father knoweth that it shall be so, and they made * a bonde to gether before the Lord, and Dauid tarped syl in the wood, but Ionathas wente to hys house.

Then came the zephites to Saule vnto Gabaah, sayinge: Dauid hyderth hym selfe faste by vs in stronge houldes that are in a couerte in the hylle of Bachylah on the ryghte syde of the wyldernes. Nowe therefore syz kynge, come downe with all the luste that thy soule hath to come. And it shall be our partes to deliuer hym into the handes of the kynge. Then sayed Saule: Blessed are ye in the Lord: for ye haue compassion on me. So I praye you, and marke moze narrowly, and knowe and se hys haunte, where hys fote hath bene, and who hath sene him there: for it is tolde me he is very wyl. Se therefore and knowe all the lurkinge places wher he luterh, and come agayne to me with the certenty. And I wyl goo with you. Yea and if he wyl hyde hym selfe in the grounde, yet I wyl hunt him oute, with all the thousandes of Iuda. And they arose and wente to ziph before Saul. But Dauid and his men were in the wyldernes of Maon, in the wyldes stelde, on the right hande of the wyldernes. For when Saul was gone with hys men to seke, it was tolde Dauid. And therefore he went vnto a rocke & dwelte in the wyldernes of Maon. Whych whē Saul hearde he pursued after Dauid into the wyldernes of Maon. But Saul & his me wente on the one syde of the mountayne, & Dauid & hys men on the other. And Dauid as a man amased, made haste to get from Saul. For Saul and his me had compassed Dauid and his men rounde about, to take them. Then there came a messenger to Saule, sayinge: Haste the and come, for the Philistines haue inuaded and doo dyspoyle the lande. Wherefore Saule returned from persecutinge Dauid, and made agaynst the Philistines. And thertfore the place is called * Sela Mabelech. And then Dauid went thence & dwelt in strong holds at Engaddye.

The. xlii. Chapter.

Dauid fflyeth into Engaddy and ther hyderth hym. Saule cometh in thither to do hys easement, and Dauid curteth of the border of his mantell. Dauid goeth oute of the caue after Saul and speaketh to him.

V When Saule was come agayne from the Philistines, there were that tolde hym sayinge: beholde Dauid is in the wyldernes of Engaddye. Then Saule toke thre thousande chosen men out of al Israel, and wente to seke Dauid and his menne in the rockes, where nothing haunted but wilde * goates. The .xxv. Chapter.

Samuel dyeth Dauid dyeth to the wyldernes of Sharan. He is angry with Nabal: but is pacified by the wysedome of Abigail. Nabal dieth and Dauid marryeth Abigail.

When Samuel dyed, and al Israel assembled and lamented hym & buried him in his own house at Ramath. But Dauid arose and gat him to the wyldernes of Shara. And there was a man in Gath, whose carell was in Carmel, and the man was exceeding myghty, and had thre thousand shepe, and a thousand goates. And he was shepyng his shepe in Carmel. The name of the man was Nabal, and the name of hys wyfe was Abigail, and was a woman of good wyldome and beuotifull. But the man was churlysh and of shrewde condicions, and was a Calebite. And whē Dauid berde in the wyldernes, that Nabal shate hys shepe, he sent oute ten of hys ponge men, and sayde vnto them: get you vp to Carmel, and go to Nabal and greete hym in myne name. And thus wise say vnto my frende: peace be to the, peace be to thine house, and peace be vnto al that thou haste. I haue hearde saye thou haste shepers. Now thy shepheardes were wth vs & we did them no despite ne villany, neyther was there ought missynge vnto them al the whyle they were wth vs in Carmel: aske thy seruants, and they wil shew the. Wherefore let these pong men synd fauoure in thyne eyes (for we come in a good season) and giue (I pray the) whatsoener cometh to thyne hande vnto thy seruantes, and to thy sōne Dauid. So Dauides ponge men came and told Nabal all those wordes in the be alse of Dauid, and then stopped. Then Nabal answered, Dauides seruantes and sayde: what is Dauid? and what is his sōne of Israel? there is plēty offeruantes now a dayes, that breake away from their masters. Shoulde I take my bread, my water, and my fleshe that I haue killed for my shepers, and giue it vnto men which I wor not whence they be? Then Dauides seruantes turned their way, and wēt agayne, and came and tolde him accordyng to al those sayinges. The Dauid sayed vnto hys men: gyde euery man his sword about him. And they gyded euery man his sword on him, and Dauid therto gyde on hys swearde. And so there folowed Dauid about foure hundred men, and two hundred abode by the stuffe. But one of the seruantes tolde Abigail Nabals wyfe, sayenge: Se, Dauid sente messengers vnto oure master oute of the wyldernes to salute him, & he reupled the. And yet the men were verrey good vnto vs, and dyd vs no displeasure neyther missed we any thyng, as longe as we were conuersing.

uerfaunt with them, when we were in the feldes. Yea they were a walle of defence vnto vs, both by nyght and by day, all the while we were with them keepynge shepe.
 Nowe take heede and se, what thou haste to do, for mischief is concluded to be done vnto oure master and to al hys houholde.
 And he is vnglacypous to speake to. Then Abigail made haste and rooke two hundred loues and two barrells of wyne, and fyue sheepe readye dressed, and fyue measures of parched corne, and an hundred budles of resynes, and two hundred scaples of fygges, and laded them on asses, and sayed vnto her younge men: go before me, and so I come after you, and tolde her husbande Nabal nothyng thereof. And as she rode on her asse, and was comynge doune a side of the hylle, Dauid, and hys menne came downe agaynst her, and she mette them. And Dauid sayde: in vayne haue I kept all that this felowe had in the wyldernes: so that naughte was myssed that perteyned vnto him, for he hath acquyted me wyth euyl for good. So and so God do vnto the enemies of Dauid, as I wyll not leane of all that pertayne vnto hym, by the dawnyng of the dape, ought that pisseth agaynst the wall. When Abigail saw Dauid, she hastened and did alyte of her asse, and fell before Dauid on her face, and bowed her selfe to the ground, and fell at his feete and sayed: Let this unhappye dede be accompted mine, my Lord, and let thine handmayde speake in thine audience, and heare the wordes of thy handmayde. Lette not my Lord regard this vntowly man Nabal, for as his name is, so is he. Nabal is hys name, and folly is wyth him. But I thine hande mayde sawe not the younge men of my Lord whych thou senddest.
 And now my Lord as truly as the Lord lyueth, and as thy soule lyueth, the Lord hath wythholden the from comynge to shedde bloude, and from auengynge thy selfe wyth thine owne hand. Furthermore I praye God that thine ennemyes, and they that intende to do my Lord euyl, may be as Nabal. And now take * thys blefsyng whiche thine handmayde hath broughte to the my Lord, let it be geuen to the younge men that folowe my Lord.
 Forgyue the trespass of thine handmayde that the Lord maye make my Lord a sure house, bycause my Lord fygtheth the battelles of the Lord, and there could none euyl befounde in the, in all thy lyfe.
 And if anye man ryse to persecute the, and to seeke thy soule, the soule of my Lord myght be preserued as it were in a bundell

 God. And the soules of thy ennemyes be sloung in the myddes of a synge. And when the Lord shall haue done to my Lord all the good that he hath promys-

And when the Lord shall haue dealede sed be the Lord God of Israell, whiche sente the thys day to mete me. And blessed be thy behaueour, and blessed be thou whi-

And so Dauid receyued of hys hande that she broughte, and sayed to hys: goe in peace to thine house. Lo I haue obeyed thy voyce, & haue receyued the to grace.
 And when Abigail returned to Nabal beholde, he helde a feast in hys house lyke the feast of a kynge, and Nabals herte was merry wyth in hym, for he hadde well droncke. Wherefore she coulde hym neythere lytle nor muche tyll the morowe.
 But in the mornynge when Nabal had digested the wyne, hys wyfe tolde hym these wordes: and hys herte dyed wythin hym, and he became as a stone, and vpon a tennedayes after the Lord smote Nabal that he dyed. Whiche when Da-

The. xxbi. Chapter.

Saule sleapeth in hys tente. And Dauid taketh away hys speare and a cruse of water that stode at hys head.

After that came the ziphytes to A-Saule to Gabaab, sayinge: Da-uid hideth him selfe in the hyll of Bachylah before the wyldernes. Then Saule arose and wente to the

the wilderness of ziph, and thre thousande chosen menne of Israell with him, to seke Dauid in the wilderness of ziph.

And Saul pitched in the hil of Achilah, whiche lyeth before the wilderness, by the wape syde. But Dauid dwelte in the wilderness. And when he saw that Saule pursued hym in the wilderness, he sente forth spyes and understode that Saul was come in dede.

Wherefore Dauid arose, and wente to the place, where Saul hadde pytched, and behelde the place where Saule laye wpyth Abner the sonne of Ner, his chiefe captayne. For Saule laye wpythin a rounde bancke, and the people pitched rounde aboute hym. Then answered Dauid and spake too Ahimelech the Bethite, and too Abisai the sonne of zaruah, and brother to Joab, sayinge: Who wyl goo downe wpyth me too Saule too the hooste? And Abisai sayed, I wyl goo downe wpyth the.

And so Dauid and Abisai came to the people by nyghte. And behoulde, Saule laye sleppynge wpythin a rounde bancke, and hys speare pytched in the grounde at hys heade, Abner and the people lying round aboute hym. Then sayde Abisai to Dauid: God hath inclosed thine enemy into thine hande this daye. Nowe therefore lette me smyte hym I praye the wpyth my speare to the earthe, but one stroke, and it shall nede no more. But Dauid sayde too Abisai: despoyle hym not, for who can laye hys hand vpon the Lordes anointed and be gyltlesse? And Dauid sayde furthermore: As trulpe as the Lord spaueth, onles the Lord shall smyte hym, or hys daye shall come to dye, or he shall descende into battell and there perishe: the Lord kepe me from lappinge myne hande vpon the Lordes anointed. Nowe then take hys speare that is at hys head, and the cruse of water, and lette vs go. And Dauid toke the speare, and the cruse of water that was at Saules heade, and they gate them awaye, and no manne sawe or wpyte it or awoke. For they wer al a slepe, because the Lord hadde sente a slumbre vpon them. Then Dauid went ouer to the other syde, and stode on the top of an hyll a farre of (a greate space between them) and cryed to the people, and to Abner the sonne of Ner sayinge: Answerest thou not Abner? and Abner answered and sayed: What arte thou that cryest too the kynge? and Dauid sayed to Abner: art not thou a man, and who is lyke the in Israel?

That is why thy voyce awaketh the kynge.

But wherefore haste thou not kepte thy Lord the kynge? For there came one of thy folcke too destroye the kynge thy Lord. It is not good that thou haste done. As trulpe as the Lord spaueth ye are worthy to dye, because ye haue not kepte the Lordes annointed. And nowe se where the kynges speare is, and the cruse of water þ was at hys heade.

Then Saule knewe Dauids voyce, and sayed: is this thy voyce my sonne Dauid? and Dauid sayed: it is my voyce my Lord kynge. And he sayde further, wherefore doest thou my Lord pursue hys seruaunte? for what haue I done? or what euill is in mine hande? Nowe heare therefore (my Lord kynge) the woordes of thy seruaunte. If the Lord haue spured the by agaynste me, let hym smell the sacrifice. But if they be the chyldrene of menne, cursed be they before the Lord. For they haue caste me oute, so that I canne not dwell in the inheritance of the Lord, sayinge: hence and go and serue other Gods: And yet I hope my bloude shall not fall to the earthe before the face of the Lord, though the kynge of Israell become oute to hunte one fle, as men hunte the partryges in the mountaynes. Then said Saule: I haue synned, come agayne my sonne Dauid, for I wyl do the no more harm, because my soul was precyouse in thy syghte this daye. Behold I haue played the fole, and haue erred exceedinglye muche.

And Dauid answered and sayde: Behold the kynges speare, let one of the pong men come ouer and fet it. The Lord reward euerye mannes ryghtuousnes and sayth, for the Lord deliuered the into my hand this daye, but I woulde not laye my hande vpon the Lordes anointed. And as thy lyfe was muche set by this tyme in myne eyes: so be my life set by in the eyes of the Lord, that he deliuer me oute of al tribulacions.

And Saul sayd vnto Dauid: Blessed art thou my sonne Dauid, for thou shalt be a doer, and also able to brynge to an ende. And so Dauid went his way and Saul turned to hys place agayne.

* That is, he shall destroye myne vnghteousnes w an open spere, as in sacrifice of Cain. Gen. iii. 15.

The xxvii. Chapter.

Dauid flieth to Achis kynge of Geth which geueth hym zikeleg to dwel in. He killeth þ Philistines. And Achis demaunded agaynst whome he had roued, he geueth hym a subtyl answere, and deceyueh hym properlye.

IN thoughte Dauid in hys herte: I maye perishe at one daye or other by the handes of Saule. There is no better thyng for me then to fle in to the land of the Philistines, that Saul of very dispaire to finde me, may cease seekynge me anye more in all the coastes of Israel: for so I maye escape hys hand. And so Dauid arose, and he and the spre hundred menne that were wpyth hym wente vnto Achis the sonne of Maach kynge of Geth. And Dauid dwelt wpyth Achis at Geth, both he and his men, euerye man wpyth hys howshold, and Dauid with his two wyues: Ahinoam the Jezraelite, and Abigail Rabals wyfe of Carmel.

So when it is tolde Saule that Dauid was fledde to Geth, he sought no more for hym. And Dauid sayde vnto Achis: If I haue found grace in thine eyes, let me haue a place in some towne in the fieldes that I maye dwell there. For what shuld thy seruaunt dwelt in the cuntry of the Philistines, was

And Dauid and hys menne wente and ranne bypon the Gerusites, and the Ger-zites, and the Amaleckites, whiche natyons were from the beginnyng the inhabptantes of the Lande, as men gootoo Sur, and so forth to Egypte. And Dauid smote the Lande, and lefte neyther manne nor woman alyue, and toke the shepe, the oxen, the asses, camels, and clothes, and came to Achis. And Achis sayde: haue ye not bene a rounge thys dape. And Dauid answered, yes in the south of Iuda, and in the southe of the Jemrahelites, and in the Southe of the Kenites. And Dauid saued neyther manne nor womanne aliue too so was hys manner all the whyle that he dwelte in the countrie of the Philistynes.

And Achis beleued Dauid, sayinge: He hathe wroughte muche mischief agaynst hys people Israell, and therefore he shalbe my seruaunte for euer.

The. xxviii. Chapter.

The Philistines moue warre against Saul and the Israelites. Saule equyreth counsel of God, but hath no answer: then seeketh after an enchanter, who rayseth vp the spirit of Samuell.

It chaunced in those daies þ the Philistines gathered their hoste to gether to war, intendyng too fpyght with Israell. And Achis sayde to Dauid. Be sure thou shalte goo oute wpth me in the host, and thy menne also. And Dauid sayde agayne to Achis: then thou shalte knowe what thy seruaunt can do. And Achis sayde to Dauid: Then I wil make the *keeper of my head for euer. Samuel was then dead, and al Israell had lamented him, and buryed him in Ramath hys owne ctype. And Saule hadde put the womenne that hadde spirites of prophesye and the Sorcerers oute of the lande.

And þ Philistines gathered together, and came and pitched in Sunam, & Saule and all Israell gathered together and pytched in Belboe. When Saule sawe the hoste of the Philistines he was afrayde, and hys herte was sore astonped. And Saule asked shal name vnto the. And the wyfe sayed vnto hym: Behoulde, thou knowest what Saule hathe done, howe he hathe destruyed the women that hathe prophesyinge spi-

Wherefore then layest thou a *nette for my soule to kyll me? And Saule sware too hy:

Then sayde the wife: whom shal I fetch vp vnto the? and he sayed: bryng me Sa-ell, she cryed wpth a lowd voyce, and spake to Saule, sayinge: whye haste thou moc-sayed to hyr, be not afrayed: But what se-

And he sayed, what fashyon is he of? And the woman sayed: ther cometh an old man wpth a mantyl aboute hym. And Saule per-cepued that it *was Samuell, and stou-ped wpth hys face to the grounde, and bowed hym selfe.

And Samuel sayde to Saule: whye haste thou vniquieted me, to make me be brought vppe? And Saul answered: I am sore encoraged. For the Philistines make warre a-gaynst me, and God is departed from me and answered me no more, neyther by prophetes, neyther by dreames, and therefore I haue called the, to tel me what I shal do.
Then sayde Samuel: wherefore doest thou aske of me? whyle the Lorde is gone from the, and is thyne ennemye: the Lorde wpll doo to the as he sayde by my hande. For the Lorde wpll rente the kyngdome oute of thy hande, and geue it thy neyghboure Dauid, because thou obeyedst not the voice of thy Lorde, nor executedst hys fearce wrathe vpon the Amaleckites, Therefore hathe the Lorde done thys vnto thys dape.
And further the Lorde wpll delpuer the into the handes of the Philistines, and toomorrowe shalte thou and thy sonnes be me, and the Lorde shal geue the hoste of Israel into the handes of the Philistines.

Then Saul fel flat on the earthe, and was sore adzed of the wordes of Samuell. And thereto there was no strengthe in hym, for he hadde not eaten all the dape before. And the woman came to Saul, and saw he was sore troubled, and said vnto hym. Se, thine handmayde hathe obeyed thy voyce: and haue putte my Soule in my hande, and haue herkened vnto thy wordes, whiche thou saydeste vnto me. Nowe therefore herken thou also vnto the voyce of thyne

And so he arose from the earth, and sate hym on a bed. And the woman had a fatte calfe in the house, and that she hasted and killed, and toke floure and kneaded it, and did bake him sweate cakes, and broughte them before Saul, & before his seruauntes: when they had eaten, they stode vp & went awaye the same nyghte.

The. xxix. Chapter.

David goynge wth kynge Achis to fyghte agaynst Saule, is sente agayne by the meanes of the Lordes of the Philistines.

The Philistines gathered all theyr hostes together vnto Apek, and Israel ptyched by a fountayne in Jezrahell. And the Lordes of the Philistines went forth by hundredes, and by thousandes. But David and hys men came behynde wth Achis. Then sayd the Lordes of the Philistines: what wil ponder Hebrues? And Achis sayde vnto the Lordes of the Philistines. Is not thys David the seruaunte of Saul the king of Israel, whiche hathe bene wth me dayes and yeres, and I haue founde no faulte in hym, sythen he fled to me vnto thys dape? Neuer theles the Lordes of the Philistines were wrothe wth hym, and sayde vnto hym:

Awake thys felowe returne and lette hym go agayne to hys place whych he thou haste appoynted hym. For he shall not goo wth vs to battell, leaste he be an aduersary vnto vs in the battayle when we begynne to fyghte. For wherewyth coude he better obtayne the fauoure of hys master, then vppon the heades of our men? Is not thys David to whome they linge in daunces?

* Saule slewe hys thousande, but David hys tenthousande?

Then Achis called David, and sayde vnto hym. As trulpe as the Lorde lyueth thou arte honest, and it pleasech me well thou shouldest accompanie me in the hoste, for I haue found none euyl wth the from the tyme that thou cammeste vnto me, vnto thys dape. Neuerthelesse the Lordes of the Philistines fauoure the not: wherefore retourne, and goo in peace, that thou dysplease not the Lordes of the Philistines.

And David sayde agayne to Achis. Whye: what haue I done? And what haste thou founde in thy seruaunte as long as I haue bene wth the vnto thys dape: that I may not go fyghte agaynst the enemyes of my Lorde the kynge.

Achis answered and sayde to David: I wot well, thou pleasest me, as it wer an angel of God. Not wthstandyng the Lordes of the Philistines haue sayde, & thou shalt not go wth them to battayle. Wherefore aryse earlye in the mornynge wth thy masters seruauntes that are come wth the. And when ye be vppe earlye, as sone as it begynneth to be day, depart. And so David and hys menne arose earlye too departe in the mornynge, and to returne into the land of the Philistines. And the Philistynes wente vp to Jezrahell.

The. xxx. Chapter.

David returnyng from kynge Achis, fyndeth zikeleg burnt. He pursueth after & burneth therof & killeth them & recouereth the praye.

But ere David and hys menne were come to zikeleg the thyrde dape, the Amalekites had made assault in the southe parte vpon zikeleg, and had smitten zikeleg and burnt it wth fyre, and hadde taken the women there prisoners, bothe smal and great, but sene not a man, but caried them with them, and departed. When David and hys men came to the cite, behold it was burnt with fyre, and theyr wyues, their sonnes, & their daughters were taken prisoners. Then David and the people that was wth hym lyste vp their voyces and wepte, tyll they could wepe no more. And Davids two wyues were taken prisoners also, Achinoam the Jezraelite, and Abigail the wyfe of Nabal the Carmelite. And David was sore troubled, for the people entended to stone hym, because the hertes of all the people were vexed for their sonnes & their daughters. But David tooke a good herte to him in the Lorde his God, and sayde to Abiathar the priest, Achimelechs sonne: bringe me hither & Ephod. And Abiathar brought the Ephod to David. And David asked the Lorde, sayyng: Shall I pursue thys companye? and shall I ouertake them? And he sayde to hym: folowe, for thou shalt ouertake them, and recouer the praye. So he went, and the sixe hundred menne that were wth hym, and they came to the riuer Besor, where a parte of them abode. Neuertheles David and.iiii. David commaundeth to sea the messenger, that sayd he had kylled Saul. The lamentacio of David for Saul and Jonathas.

After the deathe of Saul, when Dauid was returned from the slaughter of the Amalekites, & hadde bene two dayes in zikeleg: Beholde, there came a man in the thy. day out of the hoste from Saul wpth hys clothes rente, and earth vpon his heade. And when he came to Dauid he fell to the earth, and dyd obersaunce. To whom Dauid said: whence comest thou? And the other answered hym: Oute of the hoste of Israell am I escaped.

And Dauid sayde to hym agayne. Howe hath it chaunced? tell me. And he sayde: the people fled from the battell, and manye of the people are ouerthrowen and dead. And Saul and Jonathas hys sonne are deade thereto. And Dauid sayde vnto the ponge manne that tolde hym, howe knowest thou that Saule and Jonathas hys sonne bee deade? And the ponge manne that tolde hym, sayde: I was by chaunce in mounte Gelboe. And see, Saule leaned vpon hys speare, and the charrettes and horse menne folowed hym at the heles. And Saule looked backe and called me: And I answered, here am I. And he sayde vnto me: what art thou? And I sayde vnto hym: I am an Amalekite.

And he sayde vnto me: come on me and sea me. For angur he is come vpon me: and my lyfe is yett all in me. And I wente on hym, and slewe hym: for I am sure that he coude not lyue after that he was fallen. And I tooke the crowne that was vpon hys heade, and the bracelet that was on hys arme, and haue broughte them vnto the my Lorde hyther. Then Dauid toke hys clothes and rent them, and so dyd all the menne that were wpth hym, and they mourned, wepte, and fasted tyll euen for Saule and Jonathas hys sonne, and for the people of the Lorde, and for the house of Israell, because they were ouerthrowen wpth the swerde.

Then sayde Dauid to the ponge manne that broughte hym tydyngs. Whence arte thou? And he sayde: I am the sonne of a stranger, an Amalekite. And Dauid sayd vnto hym, howe is it that thou wast not a fraped to lape thynne hande vpon the Lordes annoynted to destrope hym. And Dauid called one of hys ponge men, and said:

Go and runne vpon hym. And he smote hym that he dyed. Then sayed Dauid vnto hym. *Thi bloude be vpon thynne own heade. For thynne owne mouthe hath witnessed agaynst the, sayinge: I haue slaine the Lordes annoynted. And Dauid sange thys songe of mournyng ouer Saule, and ouer Jonathas hys sonne, and bade too teache the chyldrene of Israell the staues thereof. And behoulde it is wyrtten in the booke of the ryghtuouse. The glorie of Israellis slayne vpon the hye hys: Oh howe were the myghtye ouerthrowen? For there the sheldes of the myghty were caste frome them: the shelde of Saule as though he had not bene annoynted wpth oyle. The bow of Jonathas, and the swerd of Saule neuer turned backe agayne emptye, from the bloude of the wounded, and from the fat of the myghty warriours.

Saul and Jonathas louely and pleasant in theyr lyues, were in theyr deathes not deuided, men swifter then Eagles, and stronger then Lions. Ye daughters of Israell wepe ouer Saule, whiche clothed you in purple and garmentes of pleasure, and bordered your rayment wpth ornaments of gold. How wer the myghty ouerthrowen in batayl? Jonathas on the hye hys was wounded to deathe. Woe is me for the my brother Jonathas: for delectable too me wast thou exceedingly. Thy loue to me was wonderfull: passyng the loue of women. came to Mahanaim.

And Joab retourned frome Abner, and assembled all the people, and there lacked of Dauids seruantes nyntene persons and Asahell. But the seruantes of Da uid hadde slayne of Ben Jamin, and of Abners menne, thre hundred, and thre score menne. And they toke by Asahel, and buried hym in the Sepulchre of hys father in Bethlehem. And Joab and hys menne wente all nyghte, and came in the da wynge to Hebron.

And these sonnes of Remon the Berorhite, Rechab and Baanah went and came in the heate of the daye to the house of Apphiboseth, as he slept on a bedde at none. And behold: they came into the house as thoughe they woulde haue boughte wheate, and smote hym vnder hys shorte rybbes, and fledde. For they came into the house as he slepte on hys hedde in hys resting chamber, and smote hym and slewe him and beheded hym, and toke hys heade and gatte them awaye toward the East al nyght. And they broughte the heade of Apphiboseth vnto Dauid to Hebron, and said to the kynge: Beholde here the heade of Apphiboseth Sauls sonne thine enemy, whiche sought thy soule. But the Lorde hath wrought my Lorde the kynge thys daye, of Saul and of his seede. The Dauid answered Rechab and Baanah hys brother the sonnes of Remon the Berorhite, and sayde vnto them: as surely as the Lorde lyueth who hath deliuered my soule oute of all aduersities, hym that tolde me that Saul was ded, thynkyng to haue brought me good tidynges, I caughte and slewe in zikeleg, to gyue him a rewarde for hys tydynges byngynge. And howe muche more ought I so to deale wyth wycked men that haue slayne a righteous persō in his owne house vpon hys bed. Now therfore thynke ye that I wyll not requyre hys bloude of your handes, and take you from the earth? And Dauid gaue in commaundemente to his seruantes, and they slewe them, and cut of their handes and their fete, and hanged them vp by the poole in Hebron. And they toke the head of Apphiboseth: & buried it in the sepulchre of Abner in Hebron.

The.v. Chapter.

Dauid is yet agayne annoynted kynge: and taketh the Arcke fro Geth. He casteth out the blind and lame. He marieth mo wyues & getteth mo chyldre. He striketh the Philistines.

When came all the kynneddes of Israell to Dauid to Hebron and sayde: se, we are thy bones and thy fleshe. And further in tymes past when Saul was kynge ouer vs, thou leddest Israell in and oute. And the Lorde hath sayed: thou shalt fede my people Israell, and shalt be a captayne ouer Israell. And so all the elders of Israell came to the kynge to Hebron. And kynge Dauid made a couenaunte wyth them in Hebron before the Lorde, and they anointed Dauid king ouer Israell. Dauid was thirtie yere olde what tyme he beganne to raygne, and he raygned forty yeres. In Hebron he reigned ouer Iuda, seuen yere and fyve monethes, and in Hierusalem thyrtye and thre yeres ouer al Israell and Iuda.

When wente the kynge, and hys men to Hierusalem, vnto the Jebusytes thynke: birauntes of the land. And they sayed vnto Dauid: vnto the kynge: thou shalt not come in hither, meaning thereby that Dauid shoulde not haue come in thither. Neuerthelesse Dauid toke the holte of Sion, whiche is in the cite of Dauid. Then sayde Dauid the same day: Whosoever slepyth the Jebusyte, and wyppeth the towres of hys house, and destroyeth the lame and the blynde enemyes vnto Dauids soule. Wherefore it is a prouerbe: the blynde and the lame shal not come into the house. And Dauid dwelte in the towre and called it the cytye of Dauid. And he buryed rounde aboute it from Gello, inward. Dauid waxed greate, and the Lorde God of hostes was with him. And Hyran kynge of Tyre sente messengers to Dauid wyth Cedar trees and Carpenters and Masons, to buylde Dauid an house. Whereby Dauid perceyued that the Lorde had established hym kynge ouer Israell, and had auanced his kyngdome for hys people Israells sake. And Dauid tooke hym mo concubines & wyues out of Hierusalem, after he was come fro Hebron, and mo sonnes & daughters were borne to Dauid. These be the names of the sonnes that were borne him in Hierusalem: Samna, Sobab, Natha, Salomon, Nebahar, Elisua, Repbeg, Iaphia, Elisama, Elada & Eliphalet. But when the Philistines hearde that they had annoynted Dauid kynge ouer Israell, they came all vp to seeke Dauid. And as sone as Dauid hearde of it, he gat hym to an hold. And the Philistynes came and layd the alonge in the valley of Raphaym. And Dauid asked of the Lorde, saying: Shall I go to the Philistines? & wylte thou geue the into my handes? And the Lorde sayde vnto Dauid, go: for I wil deliuer the Philistines into thy handes. And Dauid came to Baal Perazym and smote them there and sayed: the Lorde hath leuened myne enemyes a sonder before me, as a man wolde deuyde water, and therefore he called the name of the sayde place Baal Perazym. And there they leste their Images, and Dauid and his men toke them vp. And the Philistines came yet agayne, and layde them in the valleye Raphaym. But Dauid asked the Lorde, and he sayde, go not. But compasse them on the backeside, and come vpon them from the mulberry trees. And when thou herest the noise of a thinge goyng in the tops of the trees, then moue. For then the Lord is gone out before the, to smite the host of the Philistines. And Dauid did as the Lorde commaunded, and smote the Philistines fro Gabaah to Bezer.

And Dauid sente messengers to Iphobeth Saules sonne, sayinge: deliuer me my wyfe Myrcholl, whiche I maried wyth an hundred shekynnes of the Philistynes. And Iphobeth sente and toke hym from hym husbände Iphatell the sonne of Lays. And hym husbände folowed him and came weeping behynde him, tyll they came to Bahurim. Then sayed Abner vnto him: go and retorne. And he returned.

And Abner had communicaciō wyth the elders of Israell, sayinge: Ye haue longe gone aboute that Dauid shoulde be kyng ouer you. Now the do it: for the Lord hath sayd of Dauid: by the hand of my seruante Dauid, I will saue my people Israell out of the handes of the Philistynes, and out of the hande of all theyr ennemyes.

And semblable wordes had he wyth Ben Hamech, and then wente to tell in the eares of Dauid in Hebron all that Israell was content with, and the whole house of Ben Hamech. So whē Abner was come to Dauid to Hebron, and twenty men wyth hym, Dauid made him and the menne that were with hym a feaste.

Then Abner sayd vnto Dauid: I will arise, & go gather al Israell to my Lord the kyng, that they maye make a bonde wyth the, that thou mayst be a kyng ouer al that thyne hereafter: and so Dauid let Abner depart, and he wente in peace.

And, loo the seruantes of Dauid and Joab came from chasyng robbers, and broughte a greute botye wyth them. But Abner was not wyth Dauid in Hebron for he hadde sente hym awaye in peace.

When Joab and all the hooste wyth hym were come, men tolde Joab, sayinge: Abner the sonne of Ner came to the kyng, & he hath sent away in peace. The wēt Joab to the kyng and sayd: What hast thou don? See Abner came to the, why haste thou sente hym away that he shuld escape free? Thou myghtest knowe Abner the sonne of Ner: that he came to flatter the and knowe thy conuersaciō and behauoure, and to knowe all thy doynges. And when Joab was come oute from the kyng, he sente messengers after Abner, to bych broughte hym agayne from the well of Sorath vnto Dauid.

So when Abner was come agayne to Hebron, Joab take hym aspyde in the gate to speake wyth him gylefully, & ther smote him vnder the short ribbes that he died, for the bloud of Asahel hym brother.

And when it afterwarde came to Dauid's eare, he sayed: I and my kyngedome are gyltelles before the Lorde for euer, concerninge the bloud of Abner the sonne of Ner. It fall therfore vpon the heade of Joab, and vpon al hym fathers house: that the house of Joab be neuer wythoute one or other that hath runnyng issues, or wyth out lepers or goers vpon crouches, & that fall on the swerde, or that lacke bread. And the cause why Joab and Abisaye slew Abner, was that Abner hadde slayne theyr brother Asahel at Gabaon in battel. And Dauid sayed to Joab, and to all the people that were wyth hym: sente youte clothes, and put on sacke clothe and mourne before Abner. And kyng Dauid hym selfe folowed the bere. And when they had buryed Abner in Hebron, the kyng lyste vpon hym boyce and wept ouer the graue of Abner and so dyd all the people.

And the king bewayled Abner and sayd: Abner dyeth not as a wretche dyeth. Thy handes were not manacled nor thy fete shackled, but as men falle before wycked children, so sellest thou, and all the people wept yet more ouer hym.

And when all the people came to eate meate wyth Dauid, while it was yet day, Dauid swore, sayinge: so do God to me, and so, if I taste breade or oughte els, tyll the sunne be downe. And the people wyte it, & it plesed them, as wel as al other good thynges, which the kyng dyd in the syght of the people. And al Israell vnderstode that daye, howe it was not the kynges mynde to slea Abner the sonne of Ner.

And the kyng sayed vnto hym seruantes: know ye not there is a Lorde, and that a great, fallen this day in Israell? And I am this daye tender, though I be annoynted kyng. And these men the sonnes of Israhiah, be to good for me to rule? But the Lorde rewarde the doer of euill accordyng to hym wyckednesse.

The.iiii. Chapter.

Baanah and Rechab sleeth Iphobeth the sonne of Saule.

WHEN Saules sonne heard that Abner was deade in Hebron, hym herte faynted, and all Israell was troubled. Nowe this Saules sonne hadde two mē that were become Captaynes ouer the Souldyours, the one called Baanah, and the other Rechab the sonnes of Remon a Berothite, and of the tribuennye of Benjamin: for Beroth was reckened to appertayne to Benjamin.

And these Berothytes fledde to Bethaym and Abinadab. Ozah is strike and dyeth because he touched the arke. The arke is broughte in to the house of Obed Edom, and fro thence into Iherusalem. Dauid daun et; before it, & is therfore despyled of hys wife Michol.

After this, Dauid chose oute all the chief yong men in Israel to the sume of thyrty thousande, and arose, and wente, and all the folke that were wpth hym of the men of Iuda to fet awaye the arke of God, vpon whiche is called the name of the Lorde of hostes, that dwelleth betwene the Cherubins. And they put the arke of God on a newe carre, and brought it forth of the house of Abinadab that dwelte at Gabah. And Ozah, and Ahio the sonnes of Abinadab draue the newe carre. And when they brought it out of the house of Abinadab that dwelte at Gabah with the arke of God, Ahio wente before the arke, & Dauid & al þ house of Israel plaid before the Lord with al maner instrumentes of fyre wood, with harpes, psalteries, tymbrels, fidels andymbals.

And whē they came to Nachons thersyngefloure, Ozah put his hand to þ arke of God and helde it, for the oren stumbled. And the Lorde was wrothe wth Ozah, and God smote him in the same place for his faulte, and there he dyed by the arke of God. And Dauid was dyspleased by cause the Lorde had rente Ozah. And the name of the place was called Perez Ozah tpi this day. And Dauid was then afrayed of the Lorde, and said: how shuld the arke of the Lord come to my house? And so Dauid wold not bynge the arke of the Lord w him into the cite of Dauid, but caried it into the house of Obed Edom a Gethite. And the arke of the Lorde conynued in the house of Obed Edom the Gethyte thre monethes, and the Lorde blesse Obed Edom, and all hys housholde. And when it was toulde kyng Dauid that the Lorde hadde blesse the house of Obed Edom, and all that belonged vnto hym, by cause of the arke of God, he went and broughte the arke of God from the house of Obed Edom, vnto the cite of Dauid wth gladnes. And euer whē they ha; bare the arke of the Lorde hadde gone fyre paces, he offered an oxe and a fatte shepe. And Dauid daūced before the Lord wth al his myght in a lynnē spbod gynde vnto hym. And Dauid and all the house of Israel broughte the arke of the Lord wth shoutyng and trompet blowyng.

And as the arke of the Lorde came into the cty of Dauid, Michol Sauls daughter looked thorow a wyndow & sawe kyng Dauid spring and daunce before the Lord, and therfore dispised him in her heart. And when they had brought in the arke of the Lorde, and had set it in hys place, euen in the tabernacle that Dauid hadde prepared for it: Dauid offered burntofferpynges and peace offerpyngs before the Lorde. And as sone as Dauid hadde made an ende of offerpyng burntofferpynges and peace offerpynges, he blessed the people in the name of the Lorde of hostes, and gaue amonge all the folke, euen amonge the whole multitude of Israel, as well to the women as men, euerpe one a cake of breade, and a piece of fleshe, and a flacket of wyne. And so the people departed euerpe man to hys house. Then Dauid returned to salute hys housholde. And Michol the daughter of Saul came out agaynst hym and sayed: Oh how glorious was the kyng of Israel to daye, which scrpt him selfe thys daye before the eyen of the maydens of hys seruantes, as a lyghte brayned selome is wont to scrp hym selfe? But Dauid sayde agayne to Michol: I wyl make spoite before the Lord, whych chose me before thy father, and before all hys kynne, commaūdyng me to be ruler ouer all hys people Israel. And I wyl be yet more vyle then so, and wyl be meke in myne owne syghte: and shall neuer thelesse of the verpe same mayde seruantes whych thou speakeste of, be hadde in honoure. But the saide Michol daughter to Saule, hadde no chyldre vnto the daye of her death.

The. vii. Chapter.

Dauid of a good purpose cōmēding to build an house to the Lord, is forbydde of god. He prayeth þ the promyses of God may be fulfilled.

AND in procelle as the kyng dwelte in hys fathers house, after that the Lorde had geuen him reste rounde aboute from all hys enemyes, he said vnto Nathā the prophet: beholde, I dwelle in an house of Cedar trees, but the arke of God dwelleth in the middes of curtaynes. The sayd Nathā vnto the kyng: go and do all that is in thyne herte, for the Lorde is wth thee. But that same nyght the word of the Lord came vnto Nathan, sayinge: go and telle my seruant Dauid, thus sayth the Lord: shalt thou go build me an house to dwell in? For I haue not dwelte in anye house sythens the tyme I brought the chyldren of Israel oute of Egypt, vnto this daye: but haue walked in a tent and in a tabernacle. In anye waye where I wente amonge all the chyldren of Israel, spake I one worde wth anye of the kynredes of Israel, whych I commaūded to feede my people Israel, sayinge: why buylde ye not me an house of Cedar tree? Nowe therfore so say vnto my seruant Dauid: thus sayth the Lorde of hostes, I toke the oute of a sheepe cote fro solowpyng shepe, to be a ruler ouer my people Israel. And I was wth the in all thou wenteste to, and haue destroyed all thyne enemyes oute of thy syght, & haue made the a greates name, lyke vnto the renowne of the greates men of the world. And I wyl appoynt a place for my people Israel, and wyl plante it, and they shall continue in one place & shall moue no more, neyther shall wycked people trouble them anye more as they dyd at the begynnyng, and sithens the tyme I commaunded Iudges to be ouer my people Israell, and I wyl geue the reste from all thine enemies. And the Lorde telleth the that he wyl buylde the an householde.

And when the dayes be fulfilled, and thou layde to reste wylth thy fathers, the I wyl sette vp thy seede after the whiche thal procede out of thy body, and wyl establishe his kyngdome, he shall buylde an house for my name, & I wyl establishe the seate of hys kyngdome for euer: I wyl be his father, & he shal be my sone: in somuche that if he sune I wil but rebuke him with such a rodde as men be rebuked with, and with such plagis as the chyldren of men bee plagued wylth. But my mercye wyl I not take awaye from hym, as I toke it from Saulle, whom I put downe before the and thynne house, and thy kyngedome shall endure wylthoute ende after the, and thy seate shall be establisshed for euer.

When Nathan had tolde Dauid al these wordes, and all thys vpspon, then wente Dauid and set him downe before the Lorde and sayde: what am I Lorde almyghtye, and what is my kynne, that thou shouldest haue broughte me this farre forth? And is thys a smalle thyng in thy syghte Lorde almyghtye, but that thou shouldest speake also of thy seruantes house for a greate whyle to come? Is thys a lawe amonge men Lorde almyghtye? And what can Dauid saye more vnto the, syth thou knowest thy seruante Lorde almyghtye? Euen for thy word, and according to thine owne hert hast thou done al these great thinges to make them knowne vnto thy seruant.

Wherefore thou are great, O Lord God and there is none lyke the, neyther is ther any God saue thou, accordyng to all that we haue herde without eares. And what one people in the earthe is lyke vnto the people Israell, whiche God deliuered to be his people, and to make hym a name, & to shew them greates & terribles thynges in earth, before thy people which thou redeemedst to the oute of Egypte, euen from theyr gods. And thou haste ordeyned the people Israell to be thy people for euer, & thou Lord art theyr God. And nowe Lord God the thing thou hast sayed of thy seruante and of hys house, make it good for euer, & doo as thou haste sayde. And let thy name be great for euer, & me may saye: O Lord of hostes is the God of Israell: and lette the house of thy seruante Dauid be assured before the. For thou Lorde of hostes, God of Israell hast tolde in the eare of thy seruant, sayinge: I wyl buylde the an house. And therefore hath thy seruant sounde in hys herte to praye thys prayer vnto the. And now Lorde almyghtye thou arte the God, & thy wordes muste be true, for thou haste tolde this goodnes vnto thy seruant. Nowe therefore goo to, and blesse the hou-holde of thy seruant, that it may contynue for euer before the. For O Lord almyghty hast said that of thy blessinge the house of thy seruant shalbe blessed for euer.

The. viii. Chapter.

Dauid ouercometh the Philistines and maketh the tributaries. He ordaineth and appointeth hys officers.

After that, Dauid beat the Philistines, and subdued the, and toke hys people out of bondage out of their handes. And he beat the Moabites and measured them wylth a lyne, makinge them ly a longe on the earthe, and then measured the lengthe of two lynes to see, and the lengthe of one lyne to saue alpye. And so became the Moabites Dauids seruantes, and payde tribute. Dauid smote also Adadazer the sonne of Rehob kyng of Zobah, as he wente to make the ende of hys costes of the ryuer Euphrates. And Dauid toke a. M. and. vii. C. horsemen of hys, and twenty thousande fote men, and destroyed all his charrettes, reseruyng one hundred of them. Then came the Syrians of Damascos to succoure Adadazer kyng of Zobah. And Dauid slew of them. xxi. thousand men, and put souldiours in Syria Damascos. And the Syrians became seruantes to Dauid, payinge tribute: And thus the Lorde saued Dauid in al he went to. And Dauid toke the shilds of gold he were vnto the seruantes of Adadazer, & brought the to Ierusalem. And therto oute of Berach & Berathai ctytes of Adadazer, he brought exceeding greates aboundaunce of brasse.

When Thoi kyng of Hemath hadde herde howe Dauid hadde dyscunfyt all the hoste of Adadazer, he sente Hoiam hys sonne vnto kyng Dauid, to salute hym wylth peace, and to blesse hym bycause he hadde foughte agaynst Adadazer, & beaten hym. (For Thoi kept war with Adadazer) whiche sonne brought vessels of syluer, gold and of brasse with him. And then also kyng Dauid did present vnto the Lorde the syluer and gold that he halowed seuerally of all nacions whiche he subdued: of the Syrians, the Moabites, the children of Ammon, the Philistines, the Amalekites, & of the spoyle of Adadazer sone of Rehob kyng of Zobah. And Dauid made him a name after he returned from the slaughter of the Syrians in the valey of faulte where he slew egyptene thousand men. And he put keepers in Edom, euen thowhe oute all Edom put he souldyours, and all Edom became hys subiectes. And the Lorde kept Dauid what soeuer he toke in hand. And Dauid reigned ouer all Israell, and executed ryghte and iustice vnto al his people. And Joab the sonne of Zaruath was ouer the hoste, and Josaphat the sonne of Ahilud was recorder. And Sadoche the sonne of Ahitob and Achimelech the sonne of Abiathar were the prestes, and Saraias was the scribe. And Banaias the sonne of Jehoiada was ouer the

The .ix. Chapter.

David restoreth all the felde of Saule to Miphiboseth the sonne of Ionathas.

Miphiboseth the sonne of Ionathas. Then sayde David: is there anye manlette of the house of Saule that I maye shewe hym merce for Ionathas sake? And there was one of the household of Saule a seruaunte named zabab, who was called unto David. And the kynge sayde vnto him: arte thou zabab? And he sayd: thy seruaunt is he. Then sayde the kynge: remayne yet any man of the kyned of Saule, whom I maye shewe the merce of God vpon?
And zabab sayde vnto the kynge: Iona-thas hath yet a sonne whiche is lame on both seete. And the kynge sayde vnto him: wher is he? And zabab said vnto the kynge: beholde he is in the house of Machir the sonne of Amiel in Lodaber. Then kynge David sent and ferre hym out of the house of Machir the sonne of Amiel out of Lodaber. Nowe when Miphiboseth the son of Ionathas the sonne of Saule was come to Dauid, he bowed hym selfe, and fell on hys face. The sayd David: Miphiboseth?
And he answered. Beholde thy seruaunt.
And Dauid sayd: feare not. For I wyl sue-ly shewe the kyndenes for Ionathas sake, and wyl restore the al the landes of Saule thy father, and thou shalt eate meate on myne owne table alwaye. And the other bowed hym selfe and sayde: what is thy seruaunt, that thou shuldest vouchesafe to take vpon suche a dead dog as I am? Then the kynge called zabab Saules young man sayinge vnto hym: I geue vnto thy masters sonne all that pertaineth to Saule, and to al his kynne. Se therefore thou and thy sonnes and thy seruauntes tylle the lande for him, and bynge in that thy masters sonne may haue foode to eate. For Miphiboseth thy masters sonne shall eate meate alwaye vpon my table. For this zibab hadde fyfene sonnes, and twenty seruauntes. Then sayd zabab vnto the kynge: All that my Lorde hath sayde vnto hys seruaunte thy seruaunte shall do. For (sayde the kynge) Miphiboseth muste eate vpon my table, as one of the kynges sonnes.
This Miphiboseth had a sonne that was younge, named Micha, and al that dwelled in the house of zabab, were seruauntes unto Miphiboseth. So Miphiboseth dwelte in Ierusalem, for he eate euer at the kyngs table, & was thereto halt on both legges.

The tenth Chapter.

The messengers of David are spitefully en-reated of the kynge of Moab: whych thing David auengeth.

It happened after thys, that the kyng of the chyldren of Ammon died, & Hanon hys sonne reyg-ned in his stede. The sayd Da-uid: I wyl shewe kyndnesse vnto Hanon the sonne of Nahas, as hys father shewe-d kyndnesse vnto me. And thereupon Da-uid sente to comforte hym by the hande of hys seruauntes ouer the deathe of hys father. Nowe, when Dauids seruauntes were come into the lande of the chyldren of Ammon, the Lordes of the chyldren of Ammon sayde vnto Hanon the Lorde: Whychest thou that Dauid doth honoure thy father, bycause he hath sente to com-forte the? Naye he hath rather sente hys seruauntes vnto the to searche the cypres, and to espye it oute, to thynente to ouer-throw it. Wherefore Hanon toke Dauids seruauntes, and shaued of the one halfe of of euery mans berde, and cut of theyr garmentes euen in the myddle harde by the buttocks of them and sente them awaye.

Whycher thyng when it was told Dauid, he sent agaynst them (for they were men exceedingly ashamed) and sayed: rary at Jericho tyl pour berdes be growen, and then returue. And when the chyldren of Ammon sawe that, they wronged Dauid, they sent and byred the sonnes of Bethzeheb, and of the Sirians of Jobab, xx. thousand foremen, and of kynge Maacah a thousande men, and of Ishob twelue thousand men:
and when Dauid herde of it, he sente Joab and all the hoste of strong men. And the chyldren of Ammon came oute & gaue battyle before the gate, & the Sirians of Ielah Rehyb, Ishob, and Maacah, were themselues in the felde. When Joab sawe that the fronte of the battayle was before and after, he chose of al the beste of Israell and put them in araye agaynst the Sirians.
And the reste of the people he deliuered in to the hande of Abisai his brother, whycher put them in araye agaynst the chyldren of Ammon. And he sayd: if the Syrrians ouer-come me, then succour me. But if the chyldren of Ammon be to good for the, I wyl come and succoure the, quite the lyke a ma and let vs fight lustely for our people, and for the cyres of oure God. And the Lorde do what semeth best in his eyes. And forth with Joab proceeded and the people that were with him into battayl agaynst the Sirians, which fled before hym. Whycher when the chyldren of Ammon sawe that the Sirians were fledde, then fledde they also before Abisai, and entered into the cytye. And so Joab returned from the chyldren of Ammon, and came to Ierusalem. And when the Sirians sawe that they were put to the worse before Israell, they gathered themselves together. And Hadadezer sente and broughte oute the Assirians that were beyonde the ryuer, and the hoste of them came, and Sobab captayne of the hoste of Hadadezer before them.

And when it was shewed Dauid, he gathered all Israell, and passed ouer Iordane, and came to Belam, where the Syrians put theym selues in araye agaynst Dauid.

quyre what womanne it shoulde be. And it was aunswered agayne, that shee was Bersabe the daughter of Eljam, & wyfe to Urias the Hethite.

And Dauid sente messengers and sette hys, and she came vnto hym, and he laye wth hys. And she was forthwth clean sed from hys vncleanesse, and returned vnto hir house. And when the woman per ceyued that she had conceyued, she sente and tolde Dauid, and sayed: I am wth chylde. Then Dauid sent to Joab to sende vnto hym Urias the Hethite. And Joab sente Urias to Dauid. So when Urias was come to hym, he demaunded, howe Joab dyd, and howe the people fared, and howe the warre prospered. And Dauid sayed moreouer to Urias: goo downe to thy house, and wash thy feete. And Uri as departed oute of the kynges palasce, and there folowed hym a seruyce frome the kynges table. But Urias slepte at the dore of the kynges palasce wth all the ser uautes of his Lord, and went not downe to hys house. Then they told Dauid say ing: Urias went not into hys house. Then sayde Dauid vnto Urias: For as muche as thou art come from Iourneyng, why doest thou not goo downe to thyne house?

And Urias sayed to Dauid: the arcke and Israell, and Iuda, dwell in pauy sons: and my Lorde Joab & the seruautes of my Lorde lye in tentes vpon the flatte earth, and shoulde I goo into myne house to eate, and dryncke, and to lye wth my wyfe? * By thy lyfe and as sure as thy soule lyueth, I wyl not doe that thyng.
Then sayde Dauid vnto Urias: tarpe here thys day also, & to morowe I wyl let the depart. And so Urias abode in Jerusalem that daye. And on the morowe, Dauid called hym, & he care & dranke before hym, and he made hym droncke. And at euen he wet oute to lye on his couch wth the ser uautes of his Lord, & went not downe to his house. Wherefore on the morowe Da uid wrote a letter to Joab, & sente it by U rias. And he wrote in the letter sayng: put Urias in t<sup>h</sup>e forefront of the battell where it is most stronge, & come backe fro hym, s<sup>o</sup> he may be smytte to death. So when Joab besieged the cite, he appoynted Urias to a place where he wylle t<sup>h</sup>e stronge mē wete.

And the men of the cite came out & fought wth Joab. And there wer certayne ouer throwe of the people, & of the seruautes of Dauid, and Urias the Hethite dyed also.

Then Joab sente and tolde Dauid all the procedynges of warre, and charged the messenger, sayng: When thou hast made an ende of tellyng the thynges of warre vnto the kynge, if he begynne to fume, and saye vnto the: wherefore appro ched ye so nye to the cite to fyghte: wylle ye not that men would hurle & hute from the wals? Who smot Abimelech sonne of Jerobeseth? Did not a womā cast a pece of a mylstone vpon hym from of the walles, that he dyed in Thebes? why then went ye nye the walles? The say thou: thy seruant Urias the Hethite is deade also.

And the messengers wente and came and shewed Dauid all that Joab hadde sente hym wth, and sayed vnto Dauid: the mē preuailed agaynst vs, & came forth vnto vs in the feild, and we stakke vnto the vnto the enterpyng of the gate, and thou ters shot from the walles, and some of the seruautes of the kynge be deade. And thy seruant Urias the Hethite is deade also.

Then sayed Dauid vnto the messen ger: thys wyse saye vnto Joab, lette not the thyng trouble the. For the swerde de uoureth one as wel as an other: make thy battel more stronge agaynst the cite, and destroie it, and se thou encourage Joab.
And when the wyfe of Urias hearde that hys husoande was deade, she mourned for hym: and as soone as the morayng was ended, Dauid sente, and sette hys to hys house, and she was hys wyfe, and bare hym a sonne. But the dede that Dauid had committed, dyspleased the Lorde.

ate of his owne meate, and dranke of hys owne cuppe, and slept in hys bosome, and was as deare vnto hym as hys daughter. And there came a straunger vnto the kynge man. And he could not find in his herte, to take of his own shepe, nor of his beastes to prepare for the strainger that was come vnto hym. But toke the pore mans Lambe, & dressed it for the man that was come vnto hym. And Dauid was excedyng wrothe with the man, and said to Nathan: as sure I ye as the Lord liueth, the felow that hath done thys thyng is worthy of deathe, and shal restore the Lamb four fold, because he dyd thys thyng, and had no pitye.

When Nathan sayde vnto Dauid: thou arte the selfe man. Thus saythe the Lord God of Israel. I annointed the kynge ouer Israel, and dyd the oute of the handes of Saule: And I gaue y thy masters house and thy masters wiues into thy bosome, & gaue the the house of Israel, and of Iuda, and woulde if that had bene to lpytle, haue geuen the twyse so muche more. Wherefore hast thou despised the commaundement of the Lord to do wickednesse in his syghte? thou hast kylled Urias the Bethite wpyth the swerde, and hast taken his wife to thy wife, and hast slain him wpyth the swerde of the chyldren of Ammon.

Howe therefore the swerde shall neuer departe from thy house, because (sayeth the Lord) thou hast despyled me, and taken the wife of Urias the Bethite to be thy wyfe. Thus sayth the Lord, beholde I wyl stirre vp euil agaynst the of thyne owne house, and wyl take thy wyues before thyne eyes and giue them vnto thy neyghbour, which shal sleepe wpyth them, in the syght of the sunne. And thou diddest it secretly, yet wyl I syghte day I do thys thyng before all Israel, and in the open sunne syghte.

Ec. xiii. b. Then said Dauid vnto Nathan: I haue sinned agaynst the Lord. And Nathan sayde agayne to Dauid: the Lord hath put away thy synne, thou shalt not dye.

Howbeit because in doing thys dede thou hast geuen the ennemyes of the Lord a cause to rale, the chyld that is borne the shall surely dye. And Nathan departed vnto hys house. Then the Lord stroke the chyld that Urias wife bare Dauid, and it spokened. Dauid besoughte God for the chyld, and fasted, and wente and laye all nyghte vpon the earthe: And the elders of hys house arose and wente to hym, to take hym vp from the earthe. But he would not, neyther eate meate wpyth the. It happened the seuenth day that the chyld died. But y seruants of Dauid durst not tel him that the chyld was deade.

E For they saide: se, whyle the chyld was yet alpye, we spake vnto hym, and he wold not herken to our voyce. Howe much more wyl he bere hym selfe, if wee tell hym the chyld is deade? But Dauid sawe hys seruantes whisperyng, and thereby percey-ued that the chyld was deade, and sayd to hys seruantes, is the chyld deade? And they sayde: yea.

Then Dauid arose from the earthe, and washed, and annointed hym selfe, and chaunged hys apparell, and wente into the house of the Lord and prayed, and after came to hys owne house, and badde they shoulde sette meate before hym, and he dyd eate.

Then sayde hys seruantes vnto hym: what is thys that thou hast done? Thou fastedst and wepest for thy chyld whyle it was alpye, but as sone as it was deade thou dydeste arpye vyppye and eate meate. And he answered: whyle the chyld was alpye, I fasted & wept. For I thus thought who can tel me whether God wil haue mercy vpon me, that the chyld may liue? But now I syth it is deade, wherefore shoulde I faste? can I bryng him agayne any more? I shall go to hym, but he shall not come agayne vnto me. And Dauid comforted Bethsabe hys wyfe, and wente in vnto hym, and laye wpyth hym, and she bare a sonne, whose name was called Salomon, and the Lord loued hym. And he sente by the hande of Nathan the prophet, and called his name Mediah, on the Lordes behalfe. And as Joab foughte agaynst Abah, the cpyte of the chyldren of Ammon, he toke the kings tower, and sente messengers to Dauid sayyng: I haue made assaulte to Abah, and also haue taken the Castell from whence they had theyr water. Howe therefore gather the rest of thy people: and come and besiege the cite and take it, lest if I take it, the victorie be ascribed vnto me.

And then Dauid gathered all the people together, and went to Abah and assaulted it, and gat it. And he toke the kynge's croune from hys head: whych wayed an hundred waight of gold, and Dauid ware it on hys head. And he brought out the spoyle of the cite in excedyng greate abundance. And he broughte out the people that was therein, and sawed them, and drue harrowes of iron vpon the, and shred some of them wpyth shredpyng kniues of iron, and thruste some into fornaces. And so he serued al the cities of the chyldren of Ammon. And then Dauid and all the people returned vnto Ierusalem.

Ammon Dauides sonne despyled hys syster Thamar. Absalom therfore killeth Ammon after he hath feare of his father Dauid.

A D it chaunced that Absalom Dauides sonne hadde a fayre syster named Thamar, whome afterwarde Ammon an other son of Dauid loued. And thys Ammon was sobered that he fell sycke for the loue of hys syster Thamar: for it thoughte him harde to come by his purpose of her, sith she was yet a vyrgyn. But Ammon hadde a companion called Jonadab the sonne of Samah the brother of David, which Jonadab was a very wise man. And he sayde vnto hym: howe commeth it that thou being the kinges sonne arte thus consumed euerye morning? maist thou not tel me? And Ammon answered him: I loue Thamar my brother Absolons sister. Then sayd Jonadab vnto hym: lie on thy bedde, and laine thy self sicke, and when thy father is come to se the, saye vnto hym: let my sister Thamar come and geue me meate, and dres it in my sight that I may se it, and may eate it of hyr had.

So Ammon laye downe, and made hym self sicke, and when the kyng was come to se him, Ammon said to hym: lette Thamar my sister come and make me a couple of fritters in my syghte. That I may eate of hir hande. Then David sente home too Thamar, saying: go to thi brother Ammons house, and dresse hym meate. When Thamar came to hyr brothers Ammons house, he laye, and she toke flour and made past and made fritters in hys syghte, and dyd bake them, and toke a platter and poured them oute before hym. And Ammon would not eate, but commaunded to haue oute all menne frome hym, and they wente all oute frome hym.

Then sayde Ammon to Thamar, bringe the meate into the chambie, that I may eate of thy hande. And Thamar tooke the fritters whiche she had made, and brought them into the chambie of Ammon hyr brother, and sette them before hym to eate.

And he toke hyr, and sayed vnto hyr: Come lye wth me my sister.

And she answered hym: nape my brother do not inforce me. For it oughte not too be so in Israell, do not thys folie. * For whither shal I go wth my shame? And thou shalt be as one of the soles of Israell. But speake vnto the kyng, and he shal not denie me vnto the. Howe beit he woulde not herken vnto hyr voyce, but was to stronge for hyr, and * forced hyr, and laye with hir. And then Ammon hated hyr exceedingly: so that the hate wherewyth he hated her was greater then the loue with whiche he before loued hyr. And he sayed vnto hyr, a curse, and a wape.

Then she sayde vnto hym: thys greates crueltie that thou puttest me away, passeth the other that thou diddest vnto me. Neuer thelesse he woulde not heare hyr, but called hys ladde that wayted vpon him, and saide put hir oute of the dores from me, and bolt the doze after hyr. And she had a kittle of diuers coulours vpon hyr: For wth suche were the kynges daughters that were bygyns appareled, made straighte to them. Then hys seruaunte broughte hyr oute at the dozes, and locked the dozes after hyr. And she put a shes on hir head, and rent hyr gaye kittle that was vpon hyr, and put his hande vpon hyr heade: and so wente, and as she wente, cryed: When Absalon hyr brother sayde vnto hyr: hath Ammon thy brother bene wth the? Howe then be still my sister, for he is thy brother, and let not this thyng greue thyne hearte. And so Thamar remayned discomforted in hyr brother Absolons house.

And king David heard of al these things & was very wroth, and Absalon said to hys brother Ammon nether good nor bad. Howe beit Absalon hated Ammon because he had forced hys sister Thamar.

And it happened two yere after that Absalon had a shepe shepning in Baall Hazor besyde the tribe of Ephraim, & bade al the kinges sonnes, and he came to the king and sayed: beholde thy seruaunt hath a shepe shepning, let the kyng and hys seruaunts come wth thy seruaunte.

And kyng David sayed: Oh nape my sonne, let vs not go euerye one of vs, that we be not chargeable vnto the. And Absalon laye soze vpon hym, howe be it he wold not go, but blessed hym. They sayde Absalon, then lette my brother Ammon go with vs: And the kyng answered: what nedeth it that he go wth the? But Absalon made suche instaunce, that he lette Ammon go wth hym, and all the kynges chyliden. Then Absalon commaunded hys pong me saying: marke when Ammons herte is meete wth wyne, and when I bid pou smite Ammon, then kill him: feare not, for it is I that byd pou, be bould therefore, and play the lustie bloude. And the ponge menne of Absalon serued Ammon, euen as Absalon hadde commaunded them. And all the kynges sonnes arose, and toke eche manne his quyle and fledde.

And whyle they were yet in the way, the kynges came to David that Absalon had slayne all the kynges sonnes, so that none was left aloue. Then the kinge arose and tare hys garmente, and laye alonge vpon the earth, and all hys seruantes stoode by wth theyr clothes rente. Then Jonadab the sonne of Samah Davids brother answered and sayde: let not my Lord suppose that they haue slayne all the pong me the kyngs sonnes, none saue Ammon only is dead, for that hath he beue euer in Absalons mouth, sithens he forced hys sister Thamar. Howe therefore let not my Lorde the kyng take the thyng so greuouesly, too thyne that all the kyngs sonnes be dead, when Ammon onely is deade. But Absalon fledde, and the ponge man that kepthe the watche lyfte vpe hys eyen and looked aboute, and behold: there came muche people by a wape that was behynde his backe, alonge by an hyll syde. Then sayde Jonadab vnto the kyng: beholde, the kynges sonnes are come, and as thy seruaunt said so it is. And as sone as he hadde left speake kyng, behold the kinges sonnes came and lyfte vp their voices and wepte.

And thereto the kyng and all hys seruantes wept exceedingly. But Absalon escaped and wente to Holmai the sonne of of Amihud kynge of Besur. And the kynge mourned for his sonne continuallye. And so Absalom escaped and wente to Besur, and was there thre yeres. And by that time the kynge turned hys mynde from pursuinge Absalom. For he had lefte mourning for the deathe of Ammon.

The. xiii. Chapter.

By the wysdome of the woman of Thekoa, Absalom is called. The comelines & bueh of Absalom. Absalom speth Joabs coine. His father kylleth hym.

When Joab the sonne of Zaruiah perceyued that the kynge hert was tourned againto Absalom, he sent to Thekoa, and set there a wyse woman, and sayde vnto her: kepne thy selfe to be a mourner, and put on mourning apparell. And annoint not thy selfe wth oyle. But be as a woman that hadde longe tyme mourned for the deathe of some bodie. And go to the kynge and speake on thys manner vnto hym. And Joab taughte her what she shoulde saye.

Nowe when that the wyse of Thekoa was come to speake wth the kynge, she fell on hyr face to the grounde, and dyd obeysaunce, and sayde: helpe me O kynge, And the kynge saide vnto hir: what ayleth the? she answered: I am a widdow & myne husbände is deade. And thy handmaid had two sonnes which fought together in the fieldes, where was no man to go betwene them, and the one slewe the other.

And beholde, the whole kynred arose agaynst thy handmaide, and saide, deliuer vs him that smote his brother: that we may kyl hym, for the soule of hys brother who he slewe, for we wyl destroye the heire also. And so they shall quench my sparkle whiche is lefte, tyll there remayne nether name nor issue vpon the earth vnto my husbände. The kynge sayde vnto the wife: go home too thyne house, and I wyl gyue a charge for the. Then the woman of Thekoa sayde vnto the kynge: My Lord king, the trespace be vppon me, and vppon my fathers house, and the kynge and his seate be gyltlesse.

And then sayde the kynge: if anye man saye oughte to the, bynge hym to me, and he shal no more trouble the. Then said she: lette the kynge remembre hys Lorde God, that the nexte of the bloude gather not on heapes together to destroye, and that they see not my sonne. And he sayde: as trulpe as the Lorde liueth ther shal not one heere of thy sonnes heade fall to the earth.

Then the woman sayd: let thyne handmaide speake one worde more to my Lord the kynge. And he sayde: saye on. And the woman sayed, wherefore then haste thou determyned on thys same maner agaynst the people of God: that the kynge shoulde speake thys thyng and be faulte there in, so that the kynge shoulde not fet home agayne hys banished? For we must needs dye and perishe, as water spylte on the grounde, whiche canne not be gathered vp agayne, and God will not take awaye the lyfe, but fynde the meanes that the banished be not vtterly expelled from hym. And nowe concerning that I am come for to speake of thys thyng vnto my Lorde the kynge, for I stode in feare of the people: thy handmaid thought surely, I wil speake vnto the king, peradventure the kinge wil heare the request of his handmaid. And the king shal hear his handmaid, & deliuer hyr forth of the hand of the mā that wold haue destroyed me and my sonne also out of the enheritaunce of God.

Then thy handmaide saide: I praye God that the word of my Lord the kynge maye be vunchangeable. For my Lorde the kynge is an angell of God in hearing of good or badde: and therefore the Lorde thy God be wth the. Then the kynge answered and sayde to the woman: hyde not from me I pray thee, the thyng that I shal aske the. And the woman said: let my Lord the kynge saye on. Then sayd the kynge: Is not the hand of Joab wth the in al this matter? And the woman answered & sayd: as surely as thy soule lyueth my Lorde kynge, it is neyther on the right hand nor on the lefte that my Lorde the kynge hath spoken. For thy seruant Joab bad me, and he put all these wordes in the mouth of thy handmaide: and that I shoulde thus turne my tale an other waye, wylled me thy seruant Joab. And so I see that my Lorde is wyse, even as an angell of God, to vnderstande all thynges that are in the earth.

Then sayd the kynge to Joab: beholde, I am contente to do this thyng. So therfore I fet home the yonge man Absalom. And Joab fel to the grounde on hys face, and bowed hym selfe, and blessed the kynge, and saide: nowe thy seruante knoweth that I haue founde grace in the sight of my Lord the kinge, in that he hath fulfilled the request of his seruante. And so Joab arose and wente to Besur, and broughte Absalom to Jerusalem. Then saide the king: let him tourne too hys owne house, and see he come not in my presence. And so Absalom wente to his owne house: but came not in the kinges presence. Moreover in all Israel there was not so goodlye a man as Absolon, or so greatly praised: from the sole of his fote to the top of his head, was no blemishe in him. And when he shaued his head (for at every yere end he shaued it because it was heauie on him and therefore he shaued it) the heare thereof waied ii. C. sicles weighte of the kinges weighte. And this Absolon had thre sonnes borne hym and one doughter named Thamar, which was a fayre woman to loke vpon. When Absalom had dwelt two yere in Jerusalem withoute commynge into the kinges presence, he sente for Joab to the intente to haue sente him to the kinge. But he woulde not come

Then he sayde vnto his seruauntes: beholde, Joab hath a parcell of lande faste by myne, and hath the barke therein, so and let it on fyre. And Absaloms seruauntes went and set it on fyre. Then Joab arose and came too Absalom vnto his house, and sayed vnto him: Wherfore haue thy seruauntes burnt my feld wpth fyre? And Absalom sayde to Joab: beholde, I sente for the despyng the to come because I woulde haue sent the to the king for to saye: wherefore am I come from Be sur? And Joab wente to the kyng and tolde him. And he sente for Absalom: whiche when he was come, fell too the grounde on hys face before the kyng. And the kyng kyssed hym.

The .xv. Chapter.

¶ Absalom maketh insurrection agaynst his father. David is faine to fle for feare of him,

After this, Absalom gat him charretes and horses, and fiftie men to runne before him. And thereto he vsed to arise vppon earle in the morninges, and to stand by the wayes side that led too the gate of the cite. And all the menne of Israel that had complaintes and came to the kinge for iudgement, he called vnto him, and sayde: What cōtpe arte thou? And when the other answered: thy seruaunte is of such a tribe of Israel. Then sayde Absalom vnto hym: see, me thinketh thy matter is good and righteous, and yet no man is appointed of the kinge to heare the. Then Absalom sayde further: Oh, that I wer a Iudge in the land, and that al men whiche haue sutes and matters in the lawe shoulde come to me. For I woulde do them iustice: And also when anye manne came nyghe to hym to do him obsequence, he put forth his hande and toke him to him, and kyssed him. And on this manner did Absalom to all Israel that came to the kyng for iudgemente, and thus he wanne the hertes of the menne of Israel. And at fourtye yerres ende Absalom sayde to the kyng: Let me go to Hebron, and paye my vowe whiche I haue vowed vnto the Lorde: for thy seruaunte bowed a vowe when I was in Be sur in the lande of Siria, sayinge: if the Lorde shall bypunge me agayne to Jerusalem, I wll serue the Lorde.

And the kyng saide, goo in peace. And so he arose and wente to Hebron. Then Absalom sente spies thorowe oute all the tribes of Israel, sayinge: as sone as ye heare the voyce of the trompe blowe, saye: Absalom raigneth kinge in Hebron. And with Absalom wente two hundred men forth of Jerusalem that were called. And they wente wpth pure hertes knowinge nothyng of the matter. Absalom sente also for Achitophel the Bilonite Dauides counselloure, and fetter him oute of his cite Biloh when he sacrificed sacrifices, wher was wrought stronge treason. And the people due to Absalom in greates thronges: And ther came a messenger to David, and saide. The hertes of the men of Israel are to folowe Absalom. Then sayd David to al his seruauntes that were with him at Jerusalem: arise and let vs fle, for wee shall not otherwise escape from Absalom. Make spede to depart leaste he come sodenlye and catche vs, and byringe some mischiese vpon vs, and smyte the cite with the edge of the swearde. And the kynges seruauntes saied to him: behold thy seruauntes are redy to whatsoeuer my Lorde the kyng shall appointe. Then the king and al his houshold departed a fote. And he left behinde him ten women that were hys concubines, to kepe the house.

And so the kyng and all the people wente forth a fote and taried far from the house and al his seruauntes went by his side. And all the Gerethites and all the Shelethites, and al the Bethites euen fife hundred men whiche were come a fote from Beth went before the kinge. Then sayde the kinge to Ethai the Bethite, wherfore shuldest thou go with vs also? Retourne and abide with the kinge, for thou art a straunger and art remoued from thine owne place. Thou canest but pesterdape. And shoulde I disquiet the to dape to go wpth vs? I wll go whither I go, But retourne thou & carpe agayne thy brethren. Mercy and truthe be with the. And Ethai answered the kinge and saide: as surely as my Lorde the king liueth in what place my Lorde the kinge shall be, whether in deathe or lyfe, there wll thy seruaunte be. Then saied the king to Ethai, come and go forwarde. And Ethai the Bethite went forth and all hys men, and al the chyldren that wer with him. And al the contrie wept wpth a loude voyce. So al the people went forwarde the straighte waye to the wyldeynes. And beholde Sadock and all the Levites were with him, and bare the arcke of the testamente of God. And when they had sente downe the arcke of God, Abiathar came by, vnto the people were all come ouer, oute of the cite. Then saide the kyng vnto Sadock: Carpe the arcke of God agayne into the cite. Yf I shall finde fauour in the eyes of the Lorde, he wll bypunge me agayne, and shewe me bothe it and the tabernacle therof also: But if the Lorde thus saye: I haue no lust vnto the. Behold, here am I: lette him do with me what seemeth good in his eyes. The kinge saide also vnto Sadock the priesste, thou arte a Seer, Retourne therfore into the cite in peace. And take pour two sonnes wpth pou, Ahimaaz thy sonne, and Jonathas the sonne of Abiathar, And se, I wll hyde me in the felde of the wyldeynes til ther come some woorde from pou to be tolde me. And so Sadock and Abiathar carped the Arcke of God agayne to Jerusalem: and they tari-

And al the people that was with him, had euery man his heade couered, and as they wente wepte also. And one toulde Dauid, saying: Achitophel is one of them that haue conspired with Absalom. Then sayde Dauid: O Lord, turne the counsell of Achitophel into folishnes. When Dauid was come to the top of the mounte and hadde bowed him selfe vnto God: behoulde, Husai the Arachite came agaynste him with his cote torne, and earthe vpon his heade. Vnto whome Dauid sayde: if thou go with me, thou shalt be a burden vnto me. But if thou retourne to the citie, then shalt thou save vnto Absalom: I wil be thy seruaunte o kyng: thus longe haue I bene thy fathers seruant, and now I am thynne. And shalt disclose the counsell of Achitophel. And thou haste there wpth the Sadocke and Abiathar the prieskes, to whome thou shalt shewe al thou canst heare oute of the kynges house. And beholde, pe haue wpth you these two sonnes Ahimaaz Sadockes sonne, and Jonathas Abiathars sonne, bi whom ye shal send me all ye canne heare. And so Husai Dauides frend gat him to the citie: And Absalom al so entered into Jerusalem.

The. xvi. Chapter.

Ziba byngynge presentes to Dauid, dothe falsely accuse Michiboseth. Semei curseth Dauid and hurleth stones at him. Absalom by the aduise of Achitophel lyeth with his fathers Concubines.

When Dauid was a lytle paste the toppe of the hyl, beholde ziba the seruaunte of Michiboseth came agaynste him with a couple of Asses ladeled, and vpon them two. C. loues, and one hundred bonches of reasinges, and an. C. fraples of dried figges, and a bottell of wine. Then sayde the kyng to ziba: What haste thou there? And ziba saide: Asses for the kynges householde to ride on, and bread and fruite for the pong me to eate, and wine to drinke if anye manne fainte in the wylterneffe. Then sayd the king: Where is thy masters sonne? and ziba sayd vnto the king, behold he tarieth styl at Jerusalem. For he sayde: This dape shall the house of Israell restore me the kingdome of my father. Then sayd the king to ziba: behoulde thine are all that pertayned vnto Michiboseth. And ziba answered, I beseeche the that I maye fynde grace in thy sighte my Lorde kyng.

And when kyng Dauid came to Bahurim, beholde, thence came out a man of the kynrede of the house of Saule named Semei the sonne of Gera, and he came oute cursinge. And thereto he cast stones at Dauid and at al the seruautes of Kyng Dauid, al the people and all the men of warre goinge parte on his righte hande, and part on his lefte. And thus saide this Semei, when he cursed y kyng: walke, walke, thou bloud shedder, and thou vnthriftie manne: The Lorde hathe broughte vppon the, all the bloude of the house of Saule, in whose place thou hast raigne, and he hathe deliuered the kingdome into the hande of Absalom thy sonne. And thou arte wrapped aboute with thine owne mischiefe, because thou arte a bloude shedder.

Then sayde Abisai the sonne of Zaruiah vnto the king: Whye dothe thys dead dog curse my Lorde the king? let me go and strike of his head. And the king said. What haue I to do wpth you, yesonnes of Zaruiah? Let hym curse, for the Lorde hath bidde hym curse Dauid. And who dare presume to save, wherfore dothe he so? And Dauid sayde to Abisai, and to all hys seruautes: behold, my sonne whych came out of mine owne bowels seekeh my lyfe, How muche more then may this sonne of Jemini do it? Suffer hym therfore to curse, for the Lorde hath bydden hym, happely the Lorde wyl looke on my wretchednes, and do me good for hys cursyng this dape. And thus as Dauid and his men went by the waye, Semei went along on the hylle syde, ouer agaynst hym, and rayled as he wente, and threwe stones at hym, and caste dust. And the king and al that wer with him, came very wery, and refreshed them selues there.

And Absalom & all the people of the men of Israel came to Jerusalem, and Achitophel with him. And as soone as he was come Husai the Arachite Dauides frende wente vnto Absalom and sayd vnto him: god saue the kinge, God saue the kyng. And Absalom sayde agayne to Husai: is this thy kindness thou owest to thy frende? Whye wendest thou not with him? And Husai said vnto Absalom: naye not so, but whome the Lorde and thys people and al the menne of Israel chose, his wil I be, & with him wyl I dwel: And furthermore, vnto whom shal I do seruice but to his son? And as I was seruaunte before wpth thy father, so shal I be with the: Then spake Absalom to Achitophel: giue counsell what is beste for vs to do. Achitophel sayde to Absalom: Gette in to thy fathers concubynes * whych he hathe lefte to keepe the house. For when al Israel shal heare that thou haste foyled thy father then shal the handes of all that are wpth the, be strong: And so they pitched Absalom a tent vpon the * top of the house: And he wente in vnto hys fathers concubines in the syghte of all Israel, And the counsell of Achitophel which he counseled in those dapes, even as a man had asked counsell of God: so was all the counsell of Achitophel, bothe vnto Dauid and also vnto Absalom.

The. xvii. Chapter.

Achitophel perceiuing his counsell disallowed of Husai and forsaken, hangeth him self.

Then Achitophel saide vnto Absalom: let me chose out twelue thousand me. And I wil forwarde and folowe after Dauid

David by night, and come vpon him while he is wep and weake handed, and wil frap hym, that al the people that are wpyth hym shall flee. And so will I smyte the kyng succourlesse, and wil bypunge againe al the people vnto the, for thou learchest but after one mā, and al the people shall haue rest. And the sayinge pleased Absalom wel, and all the elders of Israel. Then sayd Absalom: cal also Husai the Arachite, and let vs hear his aduice. When Husai was come to Absalom, Absalom spake vnto hym, sayinge: Achitophel hath geuen such counsel, whether it be best we do after his saying or not tell thou. Then sayd Husai to Absalom: the counsel that Achitophel hath geue, is not good at this tyme. For (sayde Husai) thou knowest thy father & the men that are with hym, howe they be stronge men. And they be chafed in theyr mindes, as a bear robbed of her whelpes. And mozeouer thy father is a man practised in warre, and wyl not lye a nightes amonges the commen people. Perchaunce he nowe lurketh in some caue or in some other place. And though some of hys menne be ouerthrowen at the first brunt, yet they that hear it wil thinke the people that foloweth Absalom bee put to the worse. By reason whereof euen the best men thou hast whose hertes are as the hertes of Lions, shall shrinke thereat. For al Israel knowe that thy father is a doury man, & that they which be with him be valiaunt men. But my counsel is that al Israel be gathered vnto the, fro Dan to Bersaba, as the sand of the sea in numbze, and that thou go to battel in thine own persō: And we shall come vpon him in one place or other where we shall fynde him, and we shall ppytche a felde againste him, euen as thicke as the dewe falleth on the grounde. And there shall not one of them be left. neyther he nor anye of them all that were with him. Mozeouer if he take a towne, then shall all the men of Israel compass that cite rounde aboute wpyth ropes, and we will drawe it into the riuer, vntyll there be not one stone founde vpon another. And Absalom and all the menne of Israel sayde that the counsell of Husai the Arachite was better then the counsell of Achitophel. For it was euen the Lords intent to destroy the counsell of Achitophel, which was good, that the Lord might bringe euill vpon Absalom. Then sayde Husai vnto Sadocke and Abiathar the Priestes: on this and that maner did Achitophel and the elders of Israel counsell Absalom. And thus and thus haue I counceled. Nowe therefore sende quikly and shewe David, sayinge: tarpe not all nyghte in the felde of the wilderness, but get the ouer least the kyng be deuoured, and all the people that are with him. Nowe Jonathas and Ahimaaz abode by the well Rogell, for they myghte not be sene to come into the cite. And a wenche wente and tolde them. And they to go and shewed kyng David. Nevertheless there was a lad saw them which tolde it to Absalom. But they wente both of them away quikly, and came to a mans house in Bahurim, which hadde a well in his parde, into whiche they wente downe. And the wyfe tooke and sprede a couerlet on the top of the well, and strawed thereon steeped barley to dype. And the thynge was not espied. So when Absolons seruantes came to the wyfe to the house, and asked where one Ahimaaz and Jonathas were, the wyfe sayde vnto them: they be gone ouer the litle broke of water. And when they had sought them and could not fynde them, they returned to Jerusalem. And as sone as they were departed, the other came out of the well & wente and tolde kyng David and said vnto him: aryse and get you quickly ouer the water, for such counsell hath Achitophel geuen. The David arose, and all the people that wer with him, and they were come ouer Iordane by dape lyght, so that there lacked not one of them that was not come ouer Iordane. And when Achitophel sawe hys counsell was not folowed, he saddled his asse, and rose, and gat him home to his owne cyppe, and set his houtholde in order, and hanged hym selfe and dyed, and was buried in the burpall of hys father. Then David came to Mahanaim. And Absalom passed ouer Iordan, bothe he and all the men of Israel with him. Then Absalom made Amaza captayne of the hoste in steade of Joab: which Amaza was a mans sonne named Methra a Jezraelite that wente into Abigail the doughter of Naah, syster to Zaruiah Joabs mother. And Israel and Absalom pitched in the lande of Galaad. And when David was come to Mahanaim, Sobi the sonne of Naah of Rabath the cyppe of the chyldren of Ammon, and Machir the sonne of Amiel of Lodaber, and Berzelei & Galaadit of Rogelim, brought beddes, basens and earthen vessels: and also corne, barley, flour, and parched corne, benes, and rice, hony, butter, shepe & chese of kine, for David and al the people that wer with him to eate. For they supposed that the people shulde be hongrye, faynty, and thyrsty in the wilderness.

The. xviii. Chapter.

Absalom is ouercome in battel. He hangeth by the heare on an Oke. He is killed and put in a ditche. David is so sorowful for the death of Absalom, that he wepeth.

And the kyng numbred the people that were with him, and set graunde capitaines and petty capitaines ouer them. And he sente one part of them with Joab, and an other parte wpyth Abisai the sonne of Zaruiah Joabs brother, and the thirde parte wpyth Eshai the Bethite. And the kyng sayde to the people: shall I go wpyth you? And the people answered: naye, for if we see oure

Then sayde the kynge: what seemeth you beste, that wyl I doo. And the kynge stode by the gates syde, and all the people came oute by hundreds and by thousandes. And the kynge commaunded Joab, Abisai, and Ethai sayinge: se that ye saue my sonne Absalom. And all the people hearde when the kynge gaue all the capitaynes charge vpon Absalom. And the people went out into the fiede agaynst Israell, and the battel was in the wood of Ephraim. Where the people of Israell were put to the worse before the seruauntes of Dauid, and there was a great slaughter that day, euē of .xx. thousand men. And the felde was foughte in diuers places, al abrode vpon the earth. And the woodes deuoured mo people that day, than dyd the swerde. And it chaunced Absalom to come before the seruauntes of Dauid riding on a Gule whych carried him vnder the thicke bowes of a great Oke. And hys heade caughte in the Oke, so that he hong betwen heauē and earth, and the Gule that was vnder him went away. And one sawe it that tolde Joab sayinge: behold, I sawe Absalom hang in an Oke: & Joab sayed to him that tolde him, lo, sawest thou hym? And why dydeste not thou there smyte hym to the grounde, that I shoulde haue gyuen the ten sylles of syluer and a souldyours girdle.

And the man answered Joab: thoughe I hadde a thousande sylles of syluer tolde in my hande, yet wold I not stretche oute myne haude agaynst the kynges sonne. For we hearde wyth oure eares when the kynge charged the, Abisai, and Ethai, sayinge: se that ye laye no handes vpon my sonne Absalom. Moreouer thoughe I had leoparded my lyfe: & done falsly, yet coulde nought of all the matter haue bene byd fro the kynge: yea and thou thy selfe wouldest be agaynst me. Then sayde Joab I maye not stande carpenge wyth the I, wyl I vpon him before thy face.

And there wyth he toke thre speares in his hande and thruste them into the harte of Absalom whyle he was yet aloue on the bodye of the tree. And ten seruauntes that bare Joabs wepōs, turned and smote Absalom and slawe hym. Then Joab blew a trompet, and the people retourned from pursuyng Israell: for Joab spared the people. And they toke Absalom, and caue hym into a greate pytte that was in the wood, and cast a myghty great heap of stones vpon him. Then al Israell fled euerye man to his tent. And this Absalom pet in hys lyfe tyme reared vp a pyllet, whych is pet in kynges dale. For he sayed: I haue no male childe. And therefore to kepe my name in remembraunce, doo I it. And he called the pyllet after his owne name. And it is called vnto this daye, Absoloms pyllet.

Then sayed Ahimaaz the sonne of Sadocke: let me run & beare the kinge tydynge, bow the Lorde hath gyuen him iudgement forth of the handes of hys enemyes. Joab said to him: thou art no man to beare tidings this day: thou shalt beare tydynge an other tyme, but to day thou shalt beare none, by cause the kynges sonne is deade. Then said Joab to Chusi, go and tel the kynge what thou hast sent.

And Chusi bowed hym selfe vnto Joab and ran. Then sayd Ahimaaz the sonne of Sadocke agayne to Joab: come what come wyl, let me run I pray the after Chusi. And Joab said: Wherfore shuldest thou runne my son? for albeit thou run, þ gettest no reward, but he sayed: Well, come what wyl, let me run. And he said to him: runne. Then Ahimaaz ranne by the playne, and ouer ranne Chusi.

Dauid sate betwene the two Gates. And the watche manne wente vnto the touse ouer the gate vnto the wall, & lyfte vpon hys eyes and sawe: and beholde, there came a manne runnyng alone. And the watche man called, and tolde the kynge. And the kynge sayde: if he come alone, ther is tidings in his mouth. And he came and dyue nye. And the watchman saw an other man runnyng, and called vnto the porter and sayed, beholde, there cometh an other runnyng alone. And the kynge answered, he is also a tydynge bringer. And the watche man sayed: me thynketh the runnyng of the forme, is lyke the runnyng of Ahimaaz the sonne of Sadacke. And the kynge sayed: he is a good manne, and cometh wyth good tydynge. And Ahimaaz called and sayed to the kynge: good tydynge, and bowed hym selfe to the earthe before the kynge, and sayd: blessed be the Lorde thy God whych hath shutte vp all the menne that lyfe by theyr handes agaynst my Lorde the kynge. And the kynge sayed is the ladde Absalom safe? And Ahimaaz answered: I sawe a great hurle burle, when the kynges seruaunte Joab sente me thy seruaunte. But I wotte not what it was. And the kynge sayed: turne and stande here. And he turned and stode. And beholde, Chusi came and sayed: good tydynge my liege syr kynge, the Lorde hath quit the this daye oute of the handes of all that arose agaynst the. And the king said to Chusi, is the ladde Absalom safe? And Chusi answered, the enemyes of my lord the kynge, and all that tye agaynst the to haue the, be as thy sonne is. And the kynge was moued and wente vnto a chābre ouer the gate, and wepte. And as he wente thus he sayed, my sonne Absalom, my sonne my sonne, my sonne Absalom. wold to God I hadde dyed for the Absalom, my sonne, my sonne.

That is cut throte.

Dauid is restored to his kyngedome, and broughte agayne to Hierusalem.

A Was told Joab that the kyng wept and mourned for Absolon. And the byctorye was tourned that daye into mournynge to al the people. For the people heard that daye howe the kyng sorowed for his sonne, and the people went stealyng into the ctyte, euen as people confounded do steale away, when they flee in battel.

And the kynge bydde his face, and cryed with a lowde voyce: my sonne Absolon Absolon my sonne my sonne. Joab therfore wente into the house to the kyng and sayed: thou haste abashed this daye the faces of all thy seruantes, whyche this daye haue saued thy lyfe, and the lyues of thy sones and daughters, and the lyues of thy wyues and concubynes, in þ thou lovest thyne ennemys and hateste thy frendes. Thou haste declared this daye that þ carest not nerher for thy captains nor thy seruantes. For now I euidently perceyue if Absolon had lyued, and all we dyed this day, the it had pleased the wel. Now therfore arise come abrode, and speake kyndlye vnto thy seruantes. I sweare by the Lord, onlesse thou come out, there will not scape one man wyth the this night: whiche thing wil be worse vnto the, then al the euil that fel on the from thy yowth vnto this houre. The kyng arose and sate downe by the gate. And it was tolde vnto all the people, howe the kyng sate in the gate. And then all the people came before the kyng. But Israel fledde euery man to his tente. And al the people were at strepe, chorowme oute all the kyntredes of Israel, sayinge: the kyng deliuered vs oute of the hande of oure ennemys, and he deliuered vs oute of the hande of the philistines: And now he is fledde oute of the Lande for Absolon. But Absolon whom we annoynted ouer vs, is deade in battayle. Nowe therefore why are ye so still, that ye byrynge not the kyng agayne? And kyng Dauid sente to Sadock, and Abiathar the priest, sayinge: Speake vnto the elders of Iuda and saye: why shoulde ye be the laste that shoulde byrynge agayne the kyng to his house, si the suche tydynge is come from all Israel vnto the kyng, euen vnto his house? Ye are my brechren, my bones and my flesh wherfore then shoulde ye be the laste that shoulde come to byrynge the kyng home agayne? And saye to Amasa: arte not thou my bone and my fleshe? And God be o so to me, and so, onles thou be capytayne of the hoste vnto me for euer in the towne of Iudab: and be bowed the hertes of all the men of Iuda, as a manne would bow the hert of one man: so that they set worde to the kyng, that he shoulde retorne wyth al his seruantes. And the kyng returned and came to Iordan.

And Iuda cameto Balgall to the intent to mete the kyng and conuey hym ouer Iordan. And Semey the sonne of Beera the sonne of Ieminy which was of Babilon, hastened and came wyth the men of Iuda to mete kyng Dauid, and a thousande men of Ben Iamyn wyth hym, and Ziba the seruaunte of the house of Saule and his xv. sonnes, and twentie seruantes wyth hym. And they whyppte ouer Iordan before the kyng. And there wente ouer a Bote to carpe ouer the kynges household, and to do hym pleasure. And Semey the sonne of Beera fell before the kyng, as he was come ouer Iordan, and sayed to hym: let not my lord accompte wyckednes vnto me, nor let hym not remember the wyckednes that thy seruaunte dyd, when my lord the kyng departed for the of Hierusalem, that the kyng shoulde take it to herte. For thy seruaunte doeth knowe his offence. And therefore beholde, I am the firste this daye of all the house of Iosephe that am come to mete my Lord the kyng. But Abisay the sonne of Zairubabau answered and sayd: shal not Semey dye for these wordes þ he reuiled the Lordes annoynted wyth? And the kyng sayde: What matter is betwene you and me, ye sonnes of Zairubabau, that ye shoulde this daye be aduersaries vnto me? There shall no manne dye this daye in Israel, for I knowe I am made this daye kyng ouer Israel. And the kyng sayed vnto Semey, thou shalt not dye, and sware vnto hym.

And Giphboses the sonne of Saule came also to mete the kyng, and had rather dressed his sere, nor shauen his beard nor washed his clothes, from the tyme the kyng departed, til he came agayn in peace. And whē he was come to Hierusalem toward þ kyng, þ kyng said vnto him: Wherfore wentest not thou w me Giphboses? And he said, my Lord kyng, my seruaunte deceiued me. For thy seruaunt said that I would haue myne alle saddled to ryde theron, for to go to the kyng bycause thy seruaunte is lame: And he hath thereto complayned vnto my Lord the kyng. But my Lord the kyng is as an angell of God, do therefore what semeth beste in thine eyes. For all my fathers house were but deade men vnto my Lord the kyng, and yet dydest þ put me amonge them þ eate at thine owne table. What ryghte therefore haue I yet, to crye anye more vnto the kyng? And the kyng sayed: It needeth thee not to speke anye more. For I haue sayed, that thou and Ziba shall deuyde the Lande betwene you. And Giphboses sayed vnto the kyng, yea let hym take al, for so muche as my Lord the kyng is come in peace to his owne house.

And Berzelay the Galaadite came fro Rogelym, and wente ouer Iordan wyth the kyng, to accompayne hym ouer Iordan: whyche Berzelay was a berpe aged man, euen foure score yeres olde, and had prouided iii. Re. ii. d.

prouded the kynge of sustenance whyle he lay at Gabaon: for he was a manne of very greatesubstance. And the kynge sayd vnto Berzelai: come thou with me, that I may fede the with me in Ierusalem. But Berzelai sayd vnto the kynge. Of what age am I, that I should go with the kynge into Ierusalem? I am this day foure score yere olde: and therefore cannot decerne sauetye from vnsauetye, neyther hath thy seruante pleasure in that he eateth or drinketh: ne yet delectacion in the songes of men or women. It is no neede that thy seruante be a burthen vnto my Lord the kynge: let thy seruante goo a little way ouer Iordan with the kynge, for why should the kynge peld me such a reward? But let thy seruante turne backe agayne, that I maye dye in myne owne cuntrye, and be buried by the graue of my father, & mother. But lo here is thy seruante Chamaam, let hym goo with my Lord the kynge, and do to hym, what shall please the. And the kynge answered: Chamaam shall goo with me. And I will do to hym that thou shalt be contente with. Yea and whatsoeuer thou shalt requyre of me, that same will I do for the. And all the people wente ouer Iordan.

And when the king was come ouer Iordan, he kissed Berzelai and blessed hym, and he went backe agayne vnto his own place. And then the kynge wente forth to Galgal, and Chamaam went with him. Now, all the men of Iuda were at the bringing ouer of the king, and but halfe the men of Israell. Wherfore all the men of Israell came to the king and sayd to hym: why haue our brethren the men of Iuda stolen the awaye, & haue brought the king & his household, and all Dauids men with him ouer Iordan.

And all the men of Iuda answered the menne of Israell: for the kynge is nere of kynne to vs: wherfore be ye angrie for that matter? thynke ye that we care of the kynge's coaste, or that the kynge geueth vs anye gyftes? And the men of Israell answered the men of Iuda and sayd: we haue ten partes in the kynge, and haue thereto more right to Dauid then ye: Why then byd ye dyspyse vs, that oure aduise hadoe not bene firste hadde in restoringe oure kynge agayne? And the wordes of the men of Iuda were fearter then the wordes of the men of Israell.

The .xx. chapter.

Seba the sonne of Bochzi raiseth Israell agaynst Dauid. Joab killeth Amasa traitorously. The head of Seba is geuen to Joab, Dauid's reuelers are numbred.

THAT happened to be an' on this personne named Seba the sonne of Bochzi, a manne of Geminy, whiche blew a trumpet, and sayd: we haue no parte in Dauid, nor enheritaunce in the sonne of Ilay, O Israell: let vs depart therfore euerye manne to his rente. And all Israell wente from Dauid and folowed Seba the sonne of Bochzi. But the menne of Iuda claued fast vnto the kynge from Iordan to Ierusalem. And whē Dauid was come to his house to Ierusalem, he toke the ten women his concubynes that he had left behynde hym to kepe his house, and put theym in warde, and mynystred all thynges vnto them, but lape no more with them. And so they were closed vnto the daye of the death of them, and lpyed a widowes lyfe.

Then said the kynge to Amasa: assemble me the men of Iuda within thre dayes, and present thy selfe here. And Amasa went to assemble the menne of Iuda: but tarried longer then the tyme appoynted hym. Wherfore the kynge sayd to Abisai. Now shall Seba the sonne of Bochzi be worthe to vs then Absalon. Take thou therfore thy maisters seruantes, and folowe after hym, leaste he gette hym walled ctyces and escape vs.

And they went oute after hym Joabs men and the Getherites, and the Shelethites, and menne of strength. And they departed oute of Ierusalem to pursue Seba the sonne of Bochzi. And when they were come to the greare stone in Gabaon, Amasa mette hym. And Joab had his garments that he ware about him, girded vnto him and had gird thereon a knyfe toynd faste to his loynes in a sheath, ouer of whiche he myghte casely come forth.

And Joab sayd to Amasa: are all thynges readye my brother? And Joab toke Amasa by the chynne with the ryghte hand as though he would haue kyssed him. And Amasa toke no hede to the knife that was in Joabs hande, with whiche Joab smote hym in the shorte rybbes, and shedde oute his bowels to the grounde, and smot hym but one stroke, and he dyed.

And then Joab and Abisai his brother pursued Seba the sonne of Bochzi. And one of Joabs men that stode by the deade corse of Amasa, sayd: What is he, that he woulde be as Joab, and what is he that woulde be vnto Dauid instede of Joab? And Amasa lay a wallowynge in bloude in the myddeste of the waye. And there was a manne that sawe howe all the people stode still to gaze vpon hym, and he rowled Amasa oute of the waye into the feld, and caste a cloth vpon hym. And as sone as he was tumbled out of the waye, all the people went after Joab, to pursue Seba the sonne of Bochzi.

And he wente thorowe all the tepes of Israell, vnto Abell, Bethmaacah, and all Barym. And the people gathered vnto hym, and wente also after hym. And they came & beseged hym in Abell Bethmaacah. And they caste by a bancke agaynst the cuntrye. And it was beseged. All the people that were with Joab laboured busily to ouerthrowe the walles.

Dauid enquired of the Lorde. And the Lord answered: it is for Saules sake, the Gabaonites. And the kynge called the Gabaonites, and fayed vnto them, (Now

Then he fayed. What then woll ye I do for you? And they fayed vnto the kynge: B the man that consumed and imagyned to brynge vs to nought, hym we oughte to destroy, that none of his stocke be left in al the coastes of Israell. Let the seuē mē of his sones be delyuered vnto vs, that we maye hange them vp vnto the Lorde, in Gabaab of Saule, sometime the lordes elect.

And Dauid sayd, I wyl geue them you. l. cc. xxxvi. a.
But the kynge had compassion on Giph-bosheth the sonne of Ionathas, the sonne of Saul, bicause of the Lordes oth that was betwene Dauid & Ionathas, the sonne of Saul. But he toke the tme sonnes of Re-zphah the daughter of Aiah, which he bare vnto Saule, Armonye, and Giphbosheth, and the tme sonnes of Michol, the daughter of Saul, whiche he bare to Adriel the sonne of Barzelay the Golarbite, and delyuered them vnto the handes of the Gabaonites, and they hanged them in the hil before the Lorde.

These seuen were al flaine at once in the first dayes of heruest: eue in the begynning of barly haruest. And Rezpah the daughter of Aiah toke sacke clothe and sprede it vnder hir vpon the rocks, euen from the beginning of heruest, vntyll raine dropped vpon them out of heuen, and suffered neyther þ birds of the ayre to falle on them by day, nor beastes of the feild by nyght.

When it was tolde what Rezpah the daughter of Aiah, the concubynne of Saule had done, he wente and toke the bones of Saule, and of Ionathas hys sonne of the men of Jabes in Galaad, whych they had i. Re. xxxi. c. holen from the strete of Bethlah wher the Philistines had haged the in þ dates when the Philistines had flaine Saul in Gelboe.
And brought thence the bones of Saul and of Ionathas hys sonne, and they set away the bones of them þ wer hanged, & buried them with the bones of Saul & Ionathas hys sonne, in the countrepe of Beniamyn in zela in the sepulchre of Cis hys father.
And when they had performed all that the king comaunded, God was appeased wyth the lad. And the Philistines had yet again warre wyth Israell. Dauid therfore wente downe and hys seruantes wyth hym, and fought wyth the Philistynes.
And Dauid waxed fayntye, and Iesbye of Rob one of the sonnes of Haraphab, whose speare heade wayed thre hundred syckles of brasse, and was gyde wyth a new sword, thoughte to haue flayne Da-uid. But Abisai the sonne of Nerayah suc-coured hym, and smote the Philistine, and flewe hym.

Then the seruantes of Dauid swate vnto hym sayinge. Thou shalte goo no more forth wyth vs to battayle, that the lyght of Israell be not put out. And there was yet after thys, battel with the Philistynes at Rob, in whiche Sobochay the Husathyte flewe Saph of the sonnes of

of Haraphah. And there was yet the third battayl in Gob, with the Philistines, wher Elehanan the sonne of Jaere Ogim, a Bethlehemitte, slew one Goliath a Bethite, the staffe of whose spere was as great as a weauers cloth beame.

And there was yet a battell in Beth, where was a man of great heighth, who had on euery hande fyre fingers, and on euery fote fyre toes. xiiii. in all. And was also of the kynred of Haraphah, and defied Israel. And Jonathas the sonne of Samuech the brother of Dauid slew hym. These. iiii. were the sonnes of Haraphah in Beth, and were ouertrowen by the hand of Dauid and his seruantes.

The.xxi. Chapter.

The song of Dauid for his deliuerie from his ennemyes.

AND Dauid spake the wordes of this Ballade vnto the Lorde what tyme the Lorde had deliuered hym out of the handes of all his ennemyes, and out of the handes of Saule.

And he sayed: The Lorde is my strength and in hym will I truste: my shield, and the helme that defendeth me, myne high hold & refuge: my sauour & I shall saue me from wyckednes. I will prayse and call vpon the Lorde, and so shall I be saued from myne ennemyes. For the stormes of deathe haue closed me aboute, & the cloudes of Belpal haue feared me. The cordes of hell haue enuironed me, and the snares of death haue ouertake me. In my tribulacyon I called vnto the Lorde, and cryed vnto my God. And he heard my voyce out of his temple, and my cry entered into his eares. The earth trembled and quoke, and the foundations of beuē moued and shoke bycause he was angrie.

Smoke wente oute at his nosegaylles and consumynge fyre oute of his mouth, that it kyndeled coales. He bowed heauen and came downe, and darckenesse vnderneath his seete. And he rode vpon Cherubyn & flew: & appeared vpon the wynges of the wind. And he made derckenesse a tabernacle roundaboute hym, with water congeled in thicke cloudes. Of the brightnesse that was before hym, coles were sette ouer fyre. The Lorde thounded from heauen, and the most hygh put out his voyce. He shotte arrowes and scatered them, and hurled lyghtnyng, and turmoiled them. And the bottome of the sea appeared, and the foundacions of the worlde were sene, by reason of the rebukynge of the Lorde, and thowome the blastynge of the breache of his nostrilles. He sent from aboue and fet me, & plucked me oute of myghty waters. He deliuered me fro my myghty enemyes, & fro the þe that hated me, & were to strygge for me. When they had beseged me in þe day of my affliction, the Lorde staied me vp. And he brought me out at large and deliuered me, because he deliuyed in me. The Lorde rewarded me after my ryghtwysnesse, and accordyng to the purenesse of my handes he requited me. For I kept the wayes of the Lorde, and committed no wyckednesse by forsakynge my God. But I had al his lawes in my syghte, neither I toured my face from anye of his ordinaunces. But was pure vnto hymwarde, and kept my selfe from vngodlynesse.

And the Lorde dyd to me agayne, accordyng to my ryghtwysnesse, and after my purenesse that I had in his ryghte. Wyt thou the holy thou shalt be holpe, and wyth the man that is vncorrupte, thou shalt be vncorrupt. Wyt thou the pure thou shalt be pure and wyth the frowarde thou shalt be froward also. And the people that are in aduersitie, thou shalt helpe. And on the proud shalt thou cast thine eyes, to pul the down. Thou art my lyght (O Lorde) & the Lorde shall lighte my darckenesse. Wyt thou thy helpe I wil run thowome an hooke of men, and by the aide of my God wil spring ouer a wal. The waye of God is vndeuyled, and the word of the Lorde spred as golde, and he a shield to all that truste in hym.

Who is a God saue the Lorde, and who myghty saue our God? God is my strength in war, & ridder the way cleare before me: And maketh my fete as swyfte, as an byndes, & setteth me fast vpon my high holdes.

And teacheth my handes to fyght, that a bow of brasse is to weke for myne armes. And thou hast saued me wth thy shield, and thy gentilnes hath multiplyed me. Thou madest me space to walcke in, that my fete should not stagger. I folowed myne ennemyes & destroyed the, & turned not agayne til I had consumed them. I wasted them & so browfed them, that they coude not aspyce: but fell vnder my fete.

And thou dyddeste compasse me aboute wyth myghte to battell, and made theym that arose against me, to stoupe vnder me. Thou madeste myne ennemyes to trowne their backes to me, & them that hated me & I destroyed them. They looked for helpe: but none came to saue the. Vnto the Lorde they cryed, but he herd the not. I wil beat them as smal as the dust of the earthe, and wil stampe them as the byrte of the streate and wil spread them abroad.

Thou deliuerest me from the dysfencyon of my people, and keapst me to be an hed ouer nations: for the people whiche I knew not became my seruantes.

And the straungers shall make noe respyce agaynst me, & shall obey me at a word.

And the alientes that shrinke away, shall tremble for feere, in their defended places.

The Lorde lyue, and blessed be he that is my strength: & exalted be God the strength & sauer of me: It is God that auengerd me, & bringerth down the people vnder me. And deliuereth me fro mine ennemyes. Thou lyf in strongnesse me vp on hygh fro the þe that aspyce agaynst holdes.

And Joab sayde vnto the kynge: I beseeche that the Lorde thy God make the people as manye mo as they be, yea and an hundred tymes so manye mo, and that the eyes of my Lord the kyng may se them. But how is it that my Lord the kyng hath a luste in this thinge? Notwithstandynge the kinges wordes preuayled agaynst Joab, and agaynst all the capitaines of the host. Then Joab and the captaynes of the host wente oute from the king, to bew the people of Israel. And they passed ouer Jordan, and pytched in Ardet on the ryghte syde of the cypre that lyeth in the myds of the valeye of Gad, and so forth to Jazer. And then they went to Galaad & to the nether lande of Hodesi: and from thence too Dan Naan, and aboute too Sidon, & came to the stronge towne of Tyre, and to al the cities of the Hewites, and of the Cananites and then wente oute to the southe of Juda euen to Bersabe. And so when they hadde bene abroad thorowe out all the land, they returned to Jerusalem at the end of nyne monethes and twenty dayes. And nowe Lorde take away the trespace of thy seruaunte: for I haue done folpshye. And when Dauid was rylen in a mornynge, the worde of the Lorde came vnto the prophete Gad Dauides sear, sayinge: So and saye too Dauid, thus sayeth the Lorde. I offer the thre thinges, chosse which of them I shall do to the. And Gad came to Dauid and he wed him, and said vnto him: whether wilt thou haue. vii. yeres hunger in thy lande, or that thou fleethre monethes before thyne ennemys, and they folowing the, or that there be thre dayes pestilence in thy lande? Nowe auise the and se, what word I shall bynge agayne to hym that sent me. Then sayde Dauid vnto Gad: I am in a ryghte greate strypte. But better it is to fall into the handes of the Lorde, for muche is hys mercy, then to fall into the handes of men. And the Lorde sent a pestilence in Israel from the morning vnto the end of the time appoynted. And there dyed of the people betwene Dan and Berseba. lxx. thousand men. And when the aungell stretched oute hys hande vnto Jerusalem to haue destroyed it, the Lorde repented vpon the scourge and sayde to the angel that destroyed the people: It is sufficient, lette thynne hande cease. And the angel was at the threshing place of Areunah the Jebusite. Then spak Dauid vnto the Lorde, when he sawe the Angell that smote the people, and sayde: Loo, it is I that haue sinned, and I that haue done wickedly. But these shepe what haue they done?

Let I praye the thine hande be on me and on my fathers house. And Gad came the same daye too Dauid, and sayed vnto hym: Go vnye and reare an aultare vnto the Lorde in the threshynge floure of Areunah the Jebusite. And Dauid accordynge to the sayinge of Gad, wente vnye as the Lorde commaunded. And when Areunah looked and sawe the kynge and hys seruautes commynge towarde hym: he wet oute: and bowed hym selfe too the kynge flatte on hys face to the ground and said: Wherefore is my Lorde the kinge come to thy seruaunte? And Dauid sayde: to by the threshynge floure of the, for too make an aulter vnto the Lorde, that the plage may cease from the people. And Areunah sayed vnto the kynge: Lette my Lorde the king take and offer what semeth hym good in hys eyes: Behoulde, Oren, sacryfye, and fleades and the other instrumentes of the Oren for woode. And Areunah the kinges frende gaue all to the kyng, and said more ouer vnto the kynge: the Lorde thy God accepte the. But the kynge sayde vnto Areunah, not so, but I wyl bye it of the at a pryce, and wyl not sacrifice vnto the Lorde my God that shall coste me naughte. And so Dauid boughte the threshynge floure and the Oren, for fiftye species of syluer. And Dauid builde there an aulter vnto the Lorde, and offered burnt sacryfices and peaceofferynge. And so the Lorde was appeased wth the lande. And the plage ceased from Israel.

When kynge Dauid was waxed old, and stricken in yeres, though they couered him wth clothes, yet he caught no heat. Wherefore his seruautes sayde vnto hym: lette there be soughte for my Lorde the kynge, a yonge mayden to stande before hym, and to cheere uen from Dan to Bersaba and numbre the people, that I maye knowe the number of them. And Joab sayde vnto the kynge: I beseeche that the Lorde thy God make the people as manye mo as they be, yea and an hundred tymes so manye mo, and that the eyes of my Lord the kyng may se them. But how is it that my Lord the kyng hath a luste in this thinge? Notwithstandynge the kinges wordes preuayled agaynst Joab, and agaynst all the capitaines of the host. Then Joab and the captaynes of the host wente oute from the king, to vew the people of Israel. And they passed ouer Jordan, and pyched in Ardet on the ryghte syde of the cypre that lyeth in the myds of the valeye of Gad, and so forth to Jazer. And then they went to Galaad & to the nether lande of Hodesi: and from thence too Dan Jaan, and aboute too Sidon, & came to the stronge towne of Tyre, and to al the cities of the Hewites, and of the Cananites and then wente oute to the southe of Juda euen to Bersabe. And so when they hadde bene abroad thorowe out all the land, they returned to Jerusalem at the end of nyne monethes and twenty dayes. And then Joab deliuered vp the rekenynge of the numbre of the people vnto the kynge. And there were founde in Israel nyne hundred thousand men of myghte that drew sweardes. And the menne of Juda were fyue hundred thousand men.

And Dauides herte smote him after that he hadde numbred the people. And he sayde vnto the Lorde: I haue synned exceedinglye in that I haue done. So Bethsabe entred vnto the kyng in to the chamber. And the kyng was verpe olde, and Abisag the Sunamite ministred vnto him. And Bethsabe stouped and made obeysaunce vnto the kyng. And the kyng sayde, what is thy matter? She answered and sayde: my Lorde, thou swarest by the Lorde thy God vnto thine handmaide: Salomon thy sonne shal raigne after me, and shal sitte vpon my seate. But now se Adonias is king, and thou my Lord kyng wotest it not: and he hath offered oxen, fatlinges, and shepe abundantly, and hath called all the sonnes of the kyng, and Abiathar the prieste: and Joab the Capitaine of the hoste. But Salomon thy seruaunte hath he not bydden. And now (my Lorde kyng) the eyes of al Israel waite on the, to tell them who shal sitte on the seate of my Lorde the kyng after hym. For he is gone downe this dape and hath offered oxen, fatlinges, and shepe plentyfullpe, and hath called al the kyngs sonnes and the captaynes of the hoste, and Abiathar the priest. And se: they eate and drinke before him, and say: God saue kyng Adonias. But me thy seruaunt and Sadocke the priest, and Banaiah the sonne of Joiada, and thy seruaunte Salomon he hath not called. Then king David answered and sayde: Call me Bethsabe. And she came in and stode before hym. And the king sware: sayinge. As surely as the Lord (that hath rid my soule oute of all aduersite) lyueth, euen as I swate vnto the by the Lorde God of Israel, sayinge: Salomon shal raigne after me, so wyl I do this dape. And Bethsabe bowed on her face to the earth, & did obeysaunce vnto the king, & said: I pray God my lord king David maye lyue euer. Then sayde kyng David: call me Sadocke the priest, and Nathan the prophet: and Banaiah the sonne of Joiada. And when they came before the kyng, the kyng sayde vnto them. Take with you the seruautes of your Lord, and set Salomon my sonne vpon myne owne mule, and carpe hym downe too Bihon. And lette Sadocke the priest, and Nathan the prophet anoint hym there, to be kyng ouer Israel. And then blowe ye wpth a trompette, and saye God saue kyng Salomon. And then come by after him, and let him come and sitte vpon my seate: for he shal be kyng in my stede. And hym I haue commaunded to be leader ouer Israel and Juda. And Banaiah the sonne of Joiada answered the kyng and saide: Amen. And so I praye God that the Lorde God of my Lorde the king save so to. And as the Lorde hath bene with my Lorde the kyng: so I praye God be wpth Salomon, and that he make his seat more glorious then the seate of my Lorde kyng David. So Sadocke the priest, and Nathan the prophet, and Banaiah the sonne of Joiada, and the Cherethites and the Phelithites wente downe, and sette Salomon vpon kyng Davids mule, and led him too Bihon. And Sadocke the priest toke an horn of oyle out of the tabernacle, & anointed Salomon. And they blew a trompet, & al they sayde: God saue kyng Salomon.

And al the people came vp after him piping with pipes, and reioysing greatly, so that the earth rang wpth the sounde of them.

And Adonias and al the gesses that wer with him herde it, euen as they hadde made an ende of eatinge. And when Joab herde the sounde of the trompet, he sayde: howe happeneth it that there is suche a nople in the cite? And as he yet spake: se, Jonathas the sone of Abiathar the prieste came. And Adonias sayde: come for thou arte a lustye bloude, and byngest good tydyngs. And Jonathas answered and sayde to Adonias: Werelpe oure Lorde kyng David hathe made Salomon king. And the kyng sente wpth him, Sadocke the prieste, and Nathan the prophete: and Banaiah the sone of Joiada, and the Cerethites and the Shelethites. And they haue sette hym vpon the kynges Mule, and Sadocke the priest and Nathan the prophet haue anointed him kinge in Sihon. And as they came vp again, they reioised that the cite sounded agayne. And that is the nople that ye haue herde. And therto Salomon sitteth on the seate of the kingdome. And moreouer the kyngs seruants went in to blesse our lord king David: saying, thy god make the name of Salomon more full of fauour than thine, and his seate more glorious than thine. And the king bowed him self vpon the bed. And laste of al thus sayde the Kyng: blessed be the Lorde God of Israell, who hath made one to sitte on my seate this day, myne eyes sepyng it. Then all the gesses that were with Adonias were afraied, and rose vpye, and wente euerye manne hys waye. But Adonias fearpunge Salomon, arose, and wente and caughte holde on the hornes of the aulter.

And it was tolde Salomon, that Adonias for feare of Kyng Salomon hadde caughte holde by the hornes of the aulter, saying: let king Salomon sweare vnto me this dape, that he wil not slea his seruante wpth the swerde. And Salomon said: if he wil be a good man, there shall not an heare of his heade fall to the earth: But if wickednes shall be founde in hym, he shall dye for it. And therupon kyng Salomon sent and fet him downe from the aulter. And he came and dyd obeysaunce vnto kyng Salomon. And Salomon sayed vnto hym: gette the to thine house.

The. ii. Chapter.

David dieth. Adonias requireth to have Absag to his concubine, & therefore Salomon commaundeth to slea him. Abiathar is put fro his priesthode. Hemei & Joab are slain.

When the dapes of David were drawen nye that he shoulde die, he charged Salomon his sonne sayinge: I muste walcke by the waye of all the worlde, neuerthelesse be stronge, and quyte thy selfe manfullye. And se thou kepe the appoyntmente of the Lorde thy God, that thou walcke in hys wayes, and kepe his commaundementes, ordynaunces, lawes and testymonies as it is wyttte in the law of Moyses, that thou mayste vnderstande all that thou oughtest too do, and all that thou shouldest meddle wpth, that the Lorde maye make good his promes, whiche he hath promysed me, sayinge: if thy chylde shall take heede to their wayes, that they walcke before me in truthe wpth all theyr heartes, and wpth all theyr soules: then thou shalt neuer be wpthout one sittynge on the seat of Israell.

* Moreouer thou wotest howe Joab the sonne of zacariah hathe serued me, and what he hath done to the two capitaynes of the hostes of Israell: to Abner the sonne of Ner, and vnto Amasa the sonne of Iether, howe he slewe them, and shedde the bloude of warre in tyme of peace, and put the bloud of war vpon his gyrdle that was aboute hys loynes, and in his shoes were on his fete. Deale wpth hym therfore accordinge to thy wisdom, and se thou bring not his grape head down to the graue in peace. And shew kindnes to the sonnes of Bersai the Galaadite, & let them be among them that eate at thy table, because they so claue to me when I fled from Absolom thy brother.

* And lo, thou hast wpth the Hemei, the sonne of Gera, the sonne of Gemini of Bahurim: whiche Cursed me wpth a bitter curse, what tyme I wente too Mahanaim. But he came agaynst me to Jordan, & I swore vnto him by the Lord, saying: I wil not slea the with the swerd. But pardon thou him not. Thou art a man of wisdom, & shalt know what to do to him, se therfore thou bringe his grete heade to the graue wpth bloude.

And so David rested with his fathers and was buryed in the cite of David. And the dapes whiche David ragued vpon Israell were fortye peres, seuen pere in Hebron, and thyrtye and thre pere in Ierusalem. * So Salomon satte vpon the seate of David his father. And his kingdome was stablyshed myghtelye. After this, Adonias the sonne of Hagith came to Bethsabe, the mother of Salomon. And she sayde: betokeneth thi coming peace? And he said: it betokeneth peace. Then sayd he, I haue a matter to shewe the. And she saide saye on. And he sayde thou knowest that the kyngdome was myne, and that all Israell sette theyr eyes on me that I shulde ragne, howbeit the kyngdome was turned away, & geuen to my brother: for it was appointed hym of the Lorde: and nowe I aske a peticio of the, wherefore denye me not.

And she sayde vnto hym: tel what it is. Then he sayde: speake I praye the vnto Salomon the kyng (for he wyl not scape the nape) that he giue me Absag the Sunamite to wife: And Bethsabe sayde: well, I wyl speake for the vnto the Kyng. And thereupon Bethsabe wente vnto king Salomon to speake vnto him for Adonias. And the

And kyng Salomon answered and sayde vnto hys mother: whye doeste thou aske Abisag the Sunamite for Adonias? Nape, rather aske for hym the kyngdome, for he is mine elder brother: euen for him aske it, and for Abiathar the priest, and for Joab the sonne of Zeruiah. Then king Salomon sware by the Lord, saying. God do so to me and so, if Adonias haue not spoken agaynst him selfe. Howe therefore, as surely as the Lord lyueth, who hath established me, and sette me on the seate of Dauid my father, and who hath made me an house as he promised me, Adonias shall dye this daye. And kyng Salomon sente by the hande of Banaiah the sonne of Joia-da, and smote him that he died. And vnto Abiathar the priest sayed the kyng: gette the to Anathoth vnto thine own fields: for thou arte worthe deathe: but I wyl not at this tyme kyll the, because thou barest þe arcke of the Lord before Dauid my father, & because thou sufferdest wth my father in all afflictions.

II. Reg. vii. And so Salomon putte awaye Abiathar from being priest vnto the Lord, to fulfill the wordes of the Lord, whiche he spake ouer the house of Eli in Siloh. Then the kynges came to Joab, for Joab had turned after Adonias, but not after Salomon.

II. Reg. ii. f. Wherefore he fledde vnto the tabernacle of the Lord, and caughte houlde on the hornes of the altier. And it was told king Salomon howe Joab was fled too the tabernacle of the Lord, and stode by the altier. Then Salomon sente Banaiah the son of Joia-da, sayinge: go and smyte hym.

And whē Banaiah was come to the tabernacle of the Lord, he sayd vnto him: thus saythe the kyng: come oute. And he sayde nape. But I wyl dye here. And Banaiah broughte the kynges worde, sayinge: thus sayd Joab, and thus he answered me. The kyng sayed: do euen as he hath sayed, smite hym, And burie hym, and take awaye the bloude (whiche Joab shedde causeles) from me, and from the house of my father: and the Lord byng hys bloude vppon hys owne heade: for he smote two menne ryghtwys and better then he, and slewe them wth the swerde, my father vnwe-lyng, euen Abner the sonne of Ner, captayne of the host of Israel, and Amasa the sonne of Jether, captayne of the hoste of Iuda, and theyr bloude retorne vppon the heade of Joab, and on the head of hys seide for euer, and prosperite be vnto Dauid, and vnto hys seide, and vnto hys house, and vnto hys seate of the Lord for euer. And Banaiah the sonne of Joia-da wente by, and smote hym, and slew hym, and buried him in hys owne house in the wyldernesse, and the kinge put Banaiah the sonne of Joia-da in hys rowm, ouer the host, and put Sadock the priest in the rowme of Abiathar.

Then the kinge sent, and called Semei, and sayed vnto hym: buyld the an house in Ierusalem, and dwell there. For be thou sure of it, the daye thou goest out and passest ouer the riuer of Cedron, thou shalt dye for it, and thy bloude shall be on thine own heade. Semei sayde vnto the kyng: it is well sayed, as my Lord the kyng hath sayd, so wyl his seruaunte do. And Semei dwelte in Ierusalem manye a daye. And it chaunced at the ende of thre pere, that twoo of the seruautes of Semei ranne awaye vnto Achis sonne of Maacah kyng of Beth.

And one told Semei, sayinge: se, thy seruante is be in Beth. And Semei stode by, & sadled his asse, and gate him to Beth to Achis to seeke his seruantes, and came and brought them againe from Beth.

But it was tolde Salomon how Semei hadde gone from Ierusalem to Beth, and was come agayne. And the kyng sent, and called Semei, and sayde vnto him: Wpd I not swere by the Lord, and recorded vnto the, saying: be sure when soeuer thou goest out, and walkest abroad any whither, thou shalt dye. And thou answeredst me: it is good to dyngest that I haue hearde? Whye then haste thou not kepte the othe of the Lord: and the commaundemente that I commaunded the. And then þ king sayde vnto Semei: thou remembreste all II. Reg. vii. b the wickednesse whiche thynne hert knoweth, that thou dydest vnto Dauid my father. The Lord therefore render agayne thy wickednesse vpon thynne owne heade: and king Salomō be blessed, and the seate of Dauid be settled before the Lord for euer. And the kinge commaunded Banaiah the sonne of Joia-da: whiche wente oute and smote hym that he died. And so was þ kyngdome settled in the hand of Salomon.

And the kyng wente to Babaon to offer there, for that was a greete offerynge place. And there Salomon offered a thousande burnt offerynge vpon that aulter. And in Babaon the Lord appeared to Salomon in a dreame by night. And God said. Aske what I shall geue the. And Salomon sayd: thou haste shewed vnto thy seruaunt Dauid my father greete mercye, because that he walked before the in truthe and in ryghtousnesse and playnes of herte wpth the. For who is able to iudge this thy so waigh tye a people? And it pleased the Lorde well that Salomon had desired thys thyng.

Wherefore God sayed vnto hym: because thou haste asked thys thyng, and hast not asked longe lyfe, neither hast asked riches nor the liues of thine enemies, but hast asked the discrecion to vnderstande equytie: Doe, I haue done accordynge to thy pety cion: and beholde, I haue geuen the a wise and an vnderstandinge herte, so that there was none lyke heretofore, nether after the. * Shall anpe arple lyke vnto the. And he came to Ierusalem, and presented hym selfe before the Arcke of the Lords couenaunte, and offered burnt offerynge: and peace offerynge, and made a feaste to all hys seruautes.

Then came two women that were harlots vnto the kyng, and stode before hym. And the one of them sayde: O my Lorde, I and thys woman dwel bothe in one house. But when I had looked more diligently vpon it in the mornynge: Beholde, it was not my sonne, whiche I dyd beare. And the other womanne sayde, It is not so: But the lyuyng is mine, and the deade is thine. And she sayed agayne: thou sayeste vntreue, for the deade is thy sonne, and the lyuyng myne. And thus they chid before the kyng. Then sayde the kyng: the one sayth, thys that is alpye is my son and the deade is thyne. And the other saith naye: But thy sonne is the deade, and the chylde alpye is myne. Then sayde the king bynng me a swearde, and they broughte a swerde before the kyng. And the kyng sayed: Deuyde the lyuyng chylde in two, and geue the one halfe vnto the one, and the other vnto the other.

Then spake the woman (that was mother to the chylde alpye) vnto the kyng (for her bowels perned vpon her sonne,) and sayd: I beseeche the my Lorde geue her the lyuyng chylde, and in no wyse slea it. And the other sayd: it shall be neither thyne nor mine, but deuide it. Then the kyng answered and sayde: geue her the liuyng chylde, and slea it not, for she is the mother therof. And all Israell hearde of the iudgemente, whych the kyng had geuen, and feared the kyng, for they perceiued that the wise dome of God was in him to do iustice.

The fourth Chapter.

The Princes and rulers vnder Salomon. The prouision for hys vittels. The numbre of his hoxes and of hys parables.

Salomon was kyng ouer all Israell. And these were hys Lords: Azaria the son of Sadock the priest, Eliho reph and Ahiah the sonnes of Sisa, scribes. Josaphath the sonne of Ahilud, the recorder. And Banaijah the son of Jaiada was ouer the hoste. And Sadock and Abiathar were the priestes. And Azariah the sonne of Nathan was ouer the general receiuers. And zabud the sonne of Nathan was a waiter, and the kynges companon. And Ahiasar steward of housholde. And Adoniram sonne of Abda ouer the tributes. And Salomon had twelue generall recepuers ouer all Israell, whiche sustayned the kyng, and hys housholde, eche man hys monethe in a yere. Whose names are these: the sonne of Hur in Ephraim: the sonne of Dekar in Maaz, in Salem, in Bethlames, in Eglon and in Bethhanan: the sonne of Besed in Aruboth, and to hym pertayned Socoh, and all the lande of Depher: the sonne of Abinadab, whiche hadde all the regions of Dor, and Tapheth the daughter of Salomon was hys wyfe: Baanah the sonne of Ahilud had Chanach Magedo, and all Bethsan, whiche is by zachanah beneth Jezrahell, and from Bethsan to Abel Me hulah, and vnto beyonde Iecmaam. The sonne of Gaber had Ramath Galaad, and Abinadab the sonne of Ado, hadde Mahanaim, Ahimaaz hadde Rephthalim, and he had taken Bethsema the daughter of Salomon to wyfe: Baanah the son of Huai had Afer and Aloth: Josaphat the sonne of Paruah had Isachar. * Semei the sonne of Elah had Ben Jamin: Gaber the sonne of Uri, had the countrey of Galaad, and the Lande of Sehon kyng of the Amorites, & of Og kyng of Basan, and was alone receiuer in the lande. And Juda and Israell were manye, euen as the lande in the sea in number, eatynge drynkyng, and manyng merue. And Salomon raygned ouer all kyngedomes, from the ryuer, thowowe out al the lande of the Philistines, vnto the borders of Egypt, & they brought presents, and serued Salomon all daies of hys lyfe.

And Salomons expence of houshoulde was euerye daye thyrty quarters of manchet floer, and thre skore quarters of mele, ten stalled oxen, and twentye oute of pastures, and an hundred shepe and goates besyde venison of hertes, buckes, and bubals and fat pultrye. For he ruled in all the regions on the other syde Euphrates, from Thapsah to Gaza, and also ouer all the kynges on the other syde the sayed Euphrates. And he had peace with al hys seruauntes on euery side. And Juda and Israel dwelte without feare euerye man vnder his vyne, and vnder his figg tre, from Dan to Bersabe, al the daies of Salomon.

And Salomon hadde fortye thousande stalles of horsles for charets and twelue thousande horsemen. And the foresayd general receiuers made puruepaunce for kyng Salomon, and for al that came to kyng Salomons table euerye manne his moneth, so that there lacked nothynge. And as for barley and straw, for the horsles and mules, they broughte vnto the place where the officers were, euerye man in his office.

* And God gaue Salomon wysedome and vnderstandynge, excedynge muche, and a large hearte, euen as the Sande alonge by the sea bancke: so that Salomons wysedome exceded the wysedome of all theyn of the East countrey, and all the wysedome of the Egyptians. And he surmounted all menne in wysedome, both Bilhaim the Ezathite, and Demanne, Chalcol, and Dorba, the sonnes of Agaholl. And hys name sprede abroade amonge all nacjons on euerye syde. And Salomon wrote thre thousande prouerbes. And hys songes were a thousande and fyue. And he disputed of tres, euen from the Cedar tre, that groweth in Libanon, vnto the scope that springeth out of the wall. And he disputed of beasts, foules, wormes, and fyshes. And there came of all nacjons to heare the wysdome of Salomon, and from all kynges of the earthe whpche had heard of hys wysedome.

The. v. Chapter.

Kyng Hiram sendeth Cedar timber too the buyldynge of the temple. The descrepcyon of the workes,

And Hiram kyng of Tyre sent his seruauntes vnto Salomon, for he had heard that they hadde annoynted him kyng in the towne of his father. And thereto Hiram was euer a leuer of Dauid.

* And Salomon sente agayne to Hiram, saying: thou knowest of Dauid my father howe he coulde not buylde an house, to the name of the Lord hys God, for warre whpche he had on euerye side, vntyll the Lorde had put them vnder hys fote. But now the Lord my God hath geuen me rest on euery side, so that there is neither aduersary nor an euill plage. And therefore I am dysposed to buylde an house vnto the name of the Lorde my God as he promysed Dauid my father, sayinge: thy sonne whpche I wil put vpon thy seate for the, he shall buylde an house vnto my name. Nowe then commaunde that they hewe me Cedar trees in Libanon. And lette my seruauntes bee wpth thyne, and I wyll gyue the the hyre of thy seruauntes, in all suche thynges as thou shalt require, for thou knowest, & they are not among vs that can skil to hew timber, lyke to the Sidones.

When Hiram heard the wordes of Salomon, he reioysed greatlye, and sayde: Blessed be the Lorde thys daye, whpche hath sette Dauid a wyse sonne, ouer this myghtye people. And Hiram sente agayne to Salomon, sayinge: I haue allowed thy requeste whpche thou sentest too me, and wyll satisfye al thy luste concernynge timber of Cedar trees and fyre. My seruauntes shall brynge them from Libanon too the Sea. And I wyll conueye theyn by hyppes vnto the place that thou shalt assigne me, and wyll cause them too be dyscharged there, that thou mayste receyue them. And thou shalt do me thys pleasure agayne to gyue me grayne toward my house keepynge. And so Hiram gaue Salomon Cedar trees, and fyre trees, as muche as he desired. And Salomon gaue Hiram twentye thousande quarters of wheate to fede hys houshoulde wpth, and twentye buttes of pure oyle. And so muche gaue Salomon to Hiram perelye. And the Lorde gaue Salomon wysedome as he promysed hym. And there was peace betwene Hiram and Salomon, and they were in a leage together. And kyng Salomon rayled a trybute thowowe oute all Israell. And the trybute was thyrtye thousande menne whpche he sente to Libanon tenne thousande a moneth by course, so that they were one moneth in Libanon, and two monethes at home.

And Adoniram was ruler ouer the trybute. So Salomon hadde thre skore and ten people that wrought in the worke. And at the commaundemente of the kynge, they brought grete stones, and that freestones and the masons of Hiram dyd betwe the both tymber and stone to buyld the house.

The. vi. Chapter.

The frame and foyme of the temple porch and Altare. &c.

Salomons
temple.

1. Par. iii. a
That is Apill of there about some wyl
that it be Maye.

And it came to passe in the four hundred and four score yere after the chyliden of Israel were come out of the land of Egypte and the fourthe yere of the raygne of Salomon vpon Israel and the second moneth called *zif, that he began to buyld the temple vnto the Lorde.
And the house which Salomō built for the Lorde was .lx. cubytes longe, and twenty bryde, and thirty cubytes hye. And the porch that was before the bodye of the temple, was .xx. cubytes longe, after the measure of the bredth of the house, & .x. bryde, euen at the verry ende of the house. And he made vnto the house, wyndowes to open & shut.

And vnder the walles of the house, he made galeries rounde about, both aboute the temple and also the quere: And so made sydes rounde aboute. And the nerthermoste gallery was fyue cubytes bryde, and the myd-dle gallery syde, and the thirde seuen cuby-tes bryde: for he made the walles without wher on the beames laye, euer thinner and thinner, so that they were not fastened in the walles of the house. And the house was builde of stone made perfecte alre dyer it was broughte thither, so that there was neither hammer or axe, eyther anye tooke of yron herd in the house, whyle it was in building.

And the doore of the myddle ga-lerie was in the ende of the house on the right syde. And men wente vp wyth wynding staires into the myddle gallery, and oute of the myddle into the thirde. And so he buylte the house and synched it, and roustet it wyth beames of Cedar tymber, made holowe and ioyned togyther. Then he buylte chambres ouer all the temple of fyue cubytes heigth, and coupled the house together wyth beames of Cedar.

And the word of the Lorde came to Salomon, sayinge: concernynge the house wher thou art a buildinge, if thou wylt walke in myne ordinaunces, and execute my lawes, and kepe all my commaunde-mentes, to walke in them: then wyl I make good vnto the, my promys * wherche I promysed Dauid thy father *. And I wyl dwelle amonge the chyliden of Israel, and wyl not forsake my people Israel. And so Salomon buylte the house and synched it, and spled the walles of the house within, wyth rybbes of Cedar tre, & uen fro the pauemente vnto the rouffe dyd he sple it wythin, and boarded the rooze of the house wyth planches of fyre.

And he spled twenty cubytes in the end of the temple, both rooze and walles wyth Cedar, and dressed it within to be the quere and place moste holpe. And the fyfte house that is to say, the bodye of the temple, was fourty cubytes longe. And the Cedar of the house within was kerued with knops and graued with floures, and al was Cedar timber, so that no stone was sene. And the quere that was within the temple, he prepared to set ther the arcke of the Lords testamēt.
And the quere was .xx. cubytes long, & .xx. in bredth & twenty in heygth. And he spled it wyth pure golde, and boured the alter wyth Cedar. And Salomon spled the house within also wyth pure golde. And he made golden barres runne along the quere, wherche he hadde couered wyth golde. And the hole house he ouerlayed wyth golde, vntyll he had ended it. And the autter that was in the quere, he ouerlayde wyth golde also.
And within the quere he made two Cherubyns of olyue tree, ten cubytes hye a pece, and euery wyng syue cubytes long, so that from the vntermoste parte of one wyng, vnto the vntermoste parte of the other, were tenne cubytes: And the othe Cherub was ten cubytes hye also, soo that both the cherubes were of one measure and one syse. The heygth of the one Cherub was ten cubytes, and so was it of the other. And he put the Cherubes in the myddle of the inner house. * And the Cherubes stretched theyr wynges, so that the one wyng of the one touched the one wal, & the one wyng of the other touched the other walle. And the other two wynges of them touched one an other in the myddes of the house. And he ouerlayed the Cherubes wyth goulde.

And the walles of the house rounde about he garnysed wyth worke of Cherubes and palme trees, and grauen floures, bothe wyth in the quere, and wythoute in the temple. And the floure of the house he couered wyth golde: bothe wyth in the quere, and also without in the temple.

And in the enterynge of the quere, he made two dozes of olyue tre, wyth the vpper and two syde postes, fyue square. And the .ii. dozes of olyue tree, he graued with grauinge of Cherubes & palme trees, and graued floures, & couered the wyth golde, and laide golde ouer the Cherubes, and al so the palme trees. And in lyke maner vnto the doze of the temple he made postes of olyue tree foure square and two dozes of fyre tre, and either doze with two folding leaves, & graued thereon Cherubes, palme trees, and floures, and couered the wyth golde made playne by a ruler. And then he built the inner court wyth thye rowes of hewed stone, & one row of Cedar wood.

The. vii. Chapter.

The buildynge of the house of Salomon. The house of Pharaos daughter. The form of the pylers of Brasse, of hys Salen Ser. &c.

AND Salomon buylte his own house in. xiii. yere space, and ful fynished it. And he buylte the house of the wood of Libanon an hundred cubites longe, and fifty brede, & thirty hygh, four square with rowes of Cedar pylers, & Cedar beames a long upon the pylers. And the rose was of Cedar aboue on hygh, vpo the beames that laye an hygh on the pylers, which pylers were fourtye and syue in numbze, fyftene on a rowe: and the spaces betwene the pylers were one agaynst an other threfolde. And al the dozes wth the postes were. iiii. square one agaynst an other threfolde.

And he made a porche of pylers fyfte cubytes longe, and thirtie cubytes brede, and yet a porche before that with pylers, and a thicke piler before that. Then he made a porche to sytte and iudge in, spyled wth Cedar, even from the pauementes vnto the toppe. And his owne house where he keppe resydence in an other court wthoute that porche, was of the same worke. And then Salomon made an house for Pharaos daughter, whiche he had take to wife like vnto that porche.

AND al these thynges were of ricche stone hewed after a measure, and sawed wth sawes wthyn and wthoute, even from the foundacion vnto the toppe of the walles, and on the oute syde thereto towarde the great court. And the foundacyon was of ryche stones, and that myghty greute stones of ten cubytes, and of epyghte. And aboue were ryche stones hewed accordinge to the same cise, and also wth Cedar. And the greute court rounde about was wth thre rowes of hewed stone, and one rowe of Cedar planckes.

2. Par. ii. c.

And likewise was it in the inner court of the house of the Lorde, and of the porche of the temple. * And kynge Salomon sente and fetre one Hiram oute of Tyre a wyddowes sonne of the trybe of Nephtalim: his father being of Tyre. Whych Hiram was a perfyte founderer, and full of wysdome, vnderstandynge, and conynge to worke al maner of worke in brasse. And he came to kynge Salomon, & wroughte all his worke. He cast two pylers of brasse, of xviij. cubites a pece hygh, and a strynge of xii. cubites h myght compassse eyther of the aboute. And he made two heade peces of molten brasse to set on the tops of the pylers of syue cubites long a pece, with garlandes of brodded worke, & hopes of chapyn worke for the head pieces, that wer on the pylers, seuen for the one, and seuen for the other. And he made the pylers, and for eyther of the head pieces a garland, with two rowes of pomegranets to couer the wth. And the head peces that wer on the tops of the pylers, wer wrought wth lilies in the porche the space of foure cubites of the. And the pomegranettes aboue & beneth on the wthyn chaines that compassed the myddle of the head pieces, were in number. ii. c. on eyther head piece. And he set vp the pylers in the porche of the temple, & when he had set vp the ryght piler, he called the name therof Jachin, and when he had set vp the left piler, he called the name therof Boaz. And the toppes of the pylers were thus wroughte wth lyles, and so was theyr workemanship finished.

Then he caste a see of brasse ten cubites wide from byrme to byrme, and round in compassse, and syue cubytes hygh. And a strynge of thirtie cubytes myght compass it about: and vnder the byrm of it as it wer appels, compassed and embased the sea of ten cubites wide in the rowes caste wth it when it was cast. And it stode on twelue oren, of whych, thre looked North, thre West, thre South, and thre east, and the see on hygh vpon the, and al thet hinder partes wer inward. And it was an had bredth thicke, and the byrm wrought like the byrm of a cap with floures of lilies. And it contained. ii. m. * Bathes.

Of the Bath is the name of a certeyn vessel that containeth liquoze, vset amonge the hebrues at that time, what quantite it was is now vncertaine.

And he made ten bottoms of brasse. iiii. cubytes longe, and foure cubytes brede a pece, and thre hygh. And the workes of the bottoms was on thys maner, that p sydes wer as it wer flat bordes betwene the ledges. And on the flat bordes betwene the ledges were lyons, oren, and Cherubes. And vpon the ledges that were aboue and beneth the Lyons and oren, was layned pendant worke. And euery botrome had foure brasse wheles, whose axeltrees were also of brasse. And in the. iiii. corners were vnderletters vnder the lauatory, cast ech ouer agaynst hys felowe.

And the stalke of the lauatory was in the myddle of the botrome one cubyte hygh, and a cubyte & an halfe rounde, and it had knoppes thereon in the bare places whych were four square, not rounde. And vnder p sides were foure wheles, & their axeltrees ioined fast to the bottom. And the heigth of euery whele was a cubit & an halfe. And the workmanship of p wheles was like p worke of a charer whele: And the axeltrees, the nauels spokes, & shaftes were al moult. And the foure vnderletters in the foure corners were of the very bottomes.

And vnder the stalke of the lauatory in the myddes of the botrome, was there a rounde fate of halfe a cubite hygh. And thereon plaine plates and ledges of the selfe

And he graced in the playne, and also on the ledges, Cherubynes, Lyons, and palme trees, euery where rounde aboute. And on this maner he made the ten bottomes cast worke: all of one measure & one size. When he made ten lauers of brass, contaynyng fourtye Bathes a pece, and they were of fourte cubytes a pece, for euery one of the bottomes a lauer. And he put .v. of those bottomes on the ryghte corner of the temple, and other flue on the lefte, and put the see on the righte corner of the temple eastwarde, and toward the South. And Hiram made pottes, Houels, and basones, and so finished al the worke that he made King Salomon for the house of the Lorde: that is to saye, two pyllets and two scalpes of the heades that were on the toppes of the two pyllets, and fourte hundred pomgranets vpon two wretches, two towes on eyther wretche, to couer the two scalpes of the heades: that were on the toppes of the two pyllets: and the ten bottomes of brass with .x. lauers vpon them, and sette wyth .xii. oxen vnder it, & pottes Houels and basens. And all these vessels whiche Hiram made to King Salomon for the house of the Lorde, were of bryghte brass. And in the plaine of Iordā did the King cast the, eue in the clay of the erth betwene Soth and Jartan. And Salomon left all the vessels vnwaied, for the exceeding abundance of brass that was in the. And Salomon made all the vessels that pertainyd vnto the house of the Lorde, the alter of gold & the table of gold wheron the shew breade was put. And syue candelstyes for the right side & as many for the left, before the quere of pure gold: with floures, lāps, and snuffers of gold, and bolles, psalteries, basons, spones and fire pannes of pure golde, and hinges of gold, bothe for the doores of the quere, the place most holpe, and for the doores of the temple also.

And so was ended all the worke that King Salomon made for the house of the Lorde. And then Salomon brought in the thynges which Dauid his father had decreate in siluer, golde, & other vessels, & put the to the treasure of the house of the Lorde.

The viii. Chapter.

The arke is borne into the temple: A Cloude fylleth the temple. The temple is blessed.

Then Salomon gathered elders of Israel, al the heades of the tribes & ancient lordes of the children of Israel vnto him to Ierusalem, to byng by the arke of the testamente of the Lorde oute of the ctyte of Dauid, whiche is Syon. And all the menne of Israel assembled vnto King Salomon, to the feast that falleth in the moneth Erbanym, whiche is the seventh moneth. And when all the elders of Israel were come, the priestes toke vp the arke of the Lorde, and brought it, and also the tabernacle of witness, and all the holpe vessels that were therein. And the priestes & the Leuites brought them vp. And King Salomon and all the company of Israel that were assembled, & were wyth him before the arke, did offre thece and open that coulde not be tolde nor numbred for multitude.

And so the priestes brought the arke of the Lordes testamente vnto his place: euen into the quere of the temple, & place most holpe, vnder the wynges of the Cherubes. For the Cherubes stretched out their wynges ouer the arke, and couered bothe it & also the stauess thereof a hye vpon it. Howebeit the stauess were so long that the ends of the appeared oute of the holpe place before the quere, but on the ouer syde were they not sene, and there they be vnto this day. And ther was nothinge in the arke save the two tables of stone, whiche Moyses put there at Horeb, when the Lorde made an appoyntment w the children of Israel, after they were come forth of Egypt.

And when the priestes were come oute of the holpe place, then a cloude fylled the house of the Lorde, that the priestes coulde not endure to minister because of the cloude for the glorie of the Lorde hadde fylled the house of the Lorde. Then spake Salomon: the Lord said that he wold dwell in darknesse. I haue buylt the an house to dwell in, and an habytacyn for the to abyde in for euer. And the King turned his face, and blessed al the congregacion of Israel, all the congregacyon standynge. And he sayed: Blessed be the Lorde God of Israel, whiche hath fulfilled with his hand that he spake wyth his mouth vnto Dauid my father, sayng: fro the day I broughte my people Israel forth of Egypt, I chose no ctyte among any of the tribes of Israel to buyld an house, that my name might be ther: But I haue chosen Dauid to be ruler ouer my people Israel.

And it was in the herte of Dauid my father to buyld an house for the name of the Lorde God of Israel. But the Lorde God sayed vnto Dauid my father: in that it was in thyne herte to buyld an house for my name, thou dydest wel, that thou wast so mynded, Reuert theselle thou shalt not build the house, but thy sonne that shall come out of thy loines, shall build an house for my name. And the Lorde hath made good his word that he spake. For I stode vp in the roune of Dauid my father, and sat on the seat of Israel, as the Lord promysed, and haue buylt an house for the name of the Lorde God of Israel. And I haue prepared therein a place for the arke, wher in the couenante of the Lorde is, whiche he made wyth our fathers after he hadde brought them oute of the lande of Egypt. And Salomon stode before the aulter of the Lorde in the syghte of all the people of Israel, and stretched out his hands to heauen, and sayd: Lord God of Israel, there is no God lyke the in heauen aboue, or in the earth beneath, that keepeth appointment and mercy with thy seruantes that walke before the with all thy heres, which also haue kepte with thy seruante David my father, that thou promysedst hym. Thou spakest with thy mouth and haue fulfilled with thyne hande, as it is come to passe this daye. And nowe Lorde God of Israell kepe with thy seruante David my father that thou promysedst hym, saying: thou shalt not be without one or other before me, setting on the face of Israell: So neuertheless, if thy chyldren shall rake heed to thy wayes that they walke before me, as thou haue walcked before me. Nowe then O Lorde God of Israell, let thy worde be stable whyche thou spakest vnto thy seruante David my father. But in dede, as God dwell on the earth? Behold, neither heauen, nor heauen above al heauens, are hable to contayne the, howe muche lesse then thy house that I haue builte: but loke to the prayer of thy seruant and his supplicacyon, O Lorde my God, to geue an eare vnto the voyce and prayer whych thy seruant prayeth before the this daye, that thyne eyes maye be open vpon thy house night and daye, and vpon the place, of whiche thou haue sated: my name shall be there: that thou harken vnto the prayer whych thy seruante shall praye in this place. And hearken vnto the supplicacyon of thy seruante, and of thy people of Israell which they shall praye in thy place: And heare thou vnto heauen thy dwelling place, and when thou hearest, haue mercy. And if anye man trespass agaynst his neyghbour, & his neyghbour take an adiuracyon to adiure hym withall, and the adiuracyon come before thyne altier at thy house, then harken thou vnto heauen, and worke and iudge thy seruantes that thou condemne the wicked, to brynge his wale vpon his head and iustifye the ryghtous, to geue hym accordinge to his ryghtousnes. When thy people Israell be put to the worse before their ennemyes, because they haue sinned agaynst the, & afterwarde turne agayne to the & praise thy name, & praye & make supplicacyon vnto the in this house, the hear & vnto heauen, & be merciful vnto the sinne of thy people Israell, and brynge them agayne to the lande whyche thou gaueste time be wored vnto their fathers. If heauen be shut vnto that ther be no raine because they haue sinned agaynst the, yet if they pray in this place & praise thy name and turne from their synnes, & howe thy scourgyng of them, then heare thou vnto heauen, & be merciful vnto the synne of thy seruantes, and of thy people Israell, that thou shewe them a good way to walke in, and geue rayne vpon thy lande that thou hast giuen vnto thy people to enberite. If ther chaunce death in the land, pestilence, blaspnyng, or wytheryng of coyne, that the fruits be deuoured of greshoppes or caterpillers, or if their enemies besedge them in the land, & in their owne cyties, or whatsoeuer plage or sicknes chaunce, then heare thou vnto heuethy dwelling place al the prayers & supplicacyons & shalbe made of alme thyng out al thy people Israell, whyche shall knowledg euerie man the plage of his owne bette, & stretch forth his handes vnto this house, and bee mercysfull and worke, & geue euerie man accordinge to his wayes, (euen as thou only knowest euerie mannes bette, for thou knowest the bettes of all the chyldren of Adam) that they may feare the as long as they liue vpon the earth, which thou gauest vnto their fathers. And likewise if a stranger that is not of thy people Israell, come out of a far countrey for thy names sake, (for they shal heare of thy great name, and of thy mighty had, & stretched out arme) and therefore if he come and praye at his place, heare thou vnto heauen thy dwelling place, and do accordinge to all that the stranger calleth to the for, & al nations of the earth may know thy name, to feare the as do thy people Israell, & that it may be knowne & thy name is called vnto ouer this house which I haue builte. And when they go out to battayl agaynst their ennemyes whither soeuer thou shalt sende them, & shal pray vnto the Lorde toward the cite which thou hast chosen, and toward the house that I haue buylte for thy name: heare thou their prayers and supplicacyons vnto heauen, and iudge their cause. And finallye, when they shall haue sinned agaynst the (for ther is no man that sinneth not) & thou arte angry with them and hast deliuered them to their ennemyes, that they be caried away prisoners vnto the land of their enemies whether far or neare, yet if they turne agayne vnto their bettes in the land wher they be in captiuitie, and retorne and pray vnto the in the lande of them that hold them captiue, sayinge: we haue sinned, and haue done wyckedlye, and haue trespassed, and so turne agayne vnto thee with all their bettes, and all their soules, in the lande of their ennemyes whyche holde them captiue, and praye vnto the, toward the lande whyche thou gauest vnto their fathers, & toward the cite which thou haue chosen, & house whyche I haue buylte for thy name: then heare thou their prayer and supplicacyon vnto heauen thy dwelling place, and iudge their causes, and be mercysfull to thy people that haue sinned agaynst the, & vnto all they trespass that they haue trespassed agaynst thee, and gette them fauour in the syght of them that holde them captiue, that they maye haue compassion on them. For they be thy people, and thyne inheritance whych thou broughtest oute of Egypte, from the furnace of iron. And lette thyne eyes bee open vnto the prayer of thy seruant, and vnto the prayer of thy people people Israel, to berken vnto them in all they call vnto the lord. For thou byddeste seuer them to be thyne euerlasting, aboue all the nacions of the earth, as thou saydest by the hande of Moyses thy seruant when thou broughdeste our fathers out of Egypt O Lord almyghty.

When Salomon had made an ende of praiſing all thys prayer and supplicacyon vnto the Lord, he arose from the aulter of the Lord, and from kneelinge on hys knees, and from stretchyng hys handes vp to heaue, and stode & blessed all the congregacion of Israel, wth a loud voice sayinge: Blessed be the Lord that hath giuen rest vnto his people Israel accordyng to all þe promysed: so that there is not one word escaped of al þe good promyses which he promysed by the hand of Moyses hys seruant. And the Lord our God be wth vs as he was wth oure fathers, and forsake vs not neyther leaue vs, but that he bowe oure hertes vnto hym, to walcke in all hys wayes, & to kepe hys commaundementes, ordinaunces and rites, which he commaunded oure fathers. And these my wordes which I haue prayed before the Lord, be nye vnto the Lord our God day & night, that he defende the cause of hys seruante and of his people Israel euermore, that al nacions of the earth may knowe that the Lord is God, and none but he. And I praye God þe your hertes may be founde wth the Lord our God to walke in his ordinaunces, & to kepe his lawes, as we do thys daye.

And the kinge and al Israel wth hym, offered offerynges before the Lord. * And the peaceofferynges that Salomon offered vnto the lord were. xxi. thousand oxen, & an hundred and. xx. thousand shepe. And so the kinge and al the chyldren of Israel halowed the house of the Lord. And the same daye the kynge halowed the myddle of the court that is before the house of the Lord, for there he offered burnt offerynges, and meate offerynges, and the fatte of the peaceofferynges, bycause the brasen aulter that was before the Lord, was so litle to receiue þe burnt offerings & meate offerynges, & the fat of the peaceofferings.

And Salomon helde that same tyme an hye feast and al Israel wth hym, a myghty congregacion euen fro the coastes of Mesopotamia vnto the ryuer of Egypte, before the Lord our God, seven dayes, and yet seven dayes that is fourtene dayes. And the eight day he sent the people away. And they blessed þe king and went vnto theyr tentes ioyous and glad in herte, for al the goodnes þe Lord had shewed vnto Dauid his seruante, and to Israel his people.

The ix. Chapter
The Lord appeareth againe to Salomon. Salomon giueth townes to Hiram. The Canaanites become tributaries. He sendeth Hiram for gold. And buildeth many cyties.

When Salomon had synished the building of the house of þe Lord and of the kinges palace, and all þe desire & luste was to make: the Lord appeared vnto him againe, as he appeared to him at Gabaon. And the Lord said vnto him: I haue herd thy prayer and intercessyon that thou madeste before me, and haue halowed this house whych thou hast buylte to put my name there for euer, & mine eyes & myne hert shall be there perpetuallys. And if thou wilt walcke before me, as Dauid thy father walked, in purenes of hert & plainnes, to do al that I haue commaunded the, and shalt kepe myne ordynauces and cytes: I will settle the seate of thy kyngdome vpon Israel for euer, as I promysed Dauid thy father, sayinge: Thou shalt not be withoute one of other vpon the seate of Israel. That if ye and your chyldren shall turne away from me, and shall not kepe myne ordynauces whych I haue set before you, but shall go & serue other goddes, and bow your selues to the: then I wil weede Israel out of the land whych I haue giuen them. And thys house whych I haue halowed for my name I wil put oute of my syghte. And Israel shall be a prouerbe and a fable vnto all nacions. And thys house whych is so hye, * al that passe by it shall be astonysed, and shall hitte & say: why hath þe Lord dealt on thys maner wth this lad, & wth this house? And it shall be answered the: because they forsoke the Lord their God, whych brought theyr fathers out of the land of Egypte, and haue leaned to other goddes, and haue stouped vnto them, and serued them: therefore hath the Lord brought vpon them all thys euil. When at the end of twety yeres, in which Salomon had buylte the two houses, that is to wytte the house of the Lord, and the kinges palace: bycause Hiram the kynge of Tyre had supported hym wth Cedar, fir, and gold, as much as he desired, therfore Salomon gaue Hiram. xx. cyties in the land of Galyle. And whē Hiram was come from Tyre to se the cyties which Salomon had giuen him, they pleased him not. Wherfore he sayed: what cyties are these whych þe hast giuen me, my brother? And he called them the lande of Cabull vnto thys day. This Hiram had sente the kynge fyre score hundred waight of golde. And this is the sum of the tribute which king Salomon rayled to build the house of the Lord & hys own house & the walles of Ierusalem, and Bezer and Gagedo, and Bazar.

For Itharao kynge of Egypte wente vp and toke Bazer and burnt it wth fyre, and slew the Cananytes that dwelte in the city, and gaue it for a presente vnto his daughter that was Salomons wyfe. And Salomon buylte Bazer and Bechoron the neyther, and Baalath and Thamar in the wyldernesse that is in the land, and all the noye cyties that Salomon hadde, and ettes for his charrettes, and citles for his horsemen, and al that his lust was to build in Ierusalem and Libanon, and in all the land of his kyngedome.

¶ And all the people that were leste of the Amorites, Hethites, Iheresites, Hemytes and Jebusites, whyche were not of the chyliden of Israel, the chyliden of the sayd nacions that were leste in the lande, by-cause the chyliden of Israel were not ha-ble to destroy them, Salomon made tributaries vnto this day. But of the children of Israel dyd Salomon make no bondemen.
But they were men of warre, bys seruan-tes, and bys lordes, and capytaynes and rulers of his charrettes, and of bys horsemen. And these many lordes that ouersaw the worke hadde Salomon, foue hundred and fyfthe, whyche ruled the people that wrought in þe worke. And Itharaios dought-er came vp oute of the cite of Dauid, vnto the house whyche Salomon had buyt for her. And after that, he built Gelo. And thysc a yere dyd Salomon offer burnt offerynges and peace offerynges vpon the aut-ter which he had built vnto the Lorde, to burne the fatte thereon: whyche autter is before the Lorde. So when kynge Salomon had made the house perfecte, he made shyppes in Azion Gaber, whych is besyde Elab, on the bynke of the redde sea in the lande of Edom. And Hiram sente by shypp also of his seruantes, that were shipmen and experie in the sea, wyth the seruants of Salomon. And they went to Ophir and fet from thence golde, to the summe of four hundred and two and twenty talentes, and brought it to Salomon.

The. x. Chapter.

¶ The Quene of Saba cometh from the furthest partes of the land to heare and se þe wis-dome of Salomō. The yerely reuenues & ren-tes of Salomon, his thron, vessels of golde, Charets, horsemen, and koyson of syluer.

¶ And the quene of Saba hearde of the wysedome of Salomon concernyng the name of the Lorde, and came to proue him wyth riddles. And she came to Ierusalem wyth a myghty grete multitude of Camels that bare sweete odoures, and golde exceding muche, and precious stones. And when she was come to Salomon, she talked wyth hym of all that was in her herte. And Salomon expounded all her questions, that ther was not one thynge hyd from the kynge, whych he expounded her not. And when the quene of Saba had sene all Salomōs wysedō, & the house that he had built, and the meate of his table, & the lodgings of his seruantes: and the fashion of his court, & their apparel, & his butlers, & the sacrifice þe he offered in the house of the Lorde, she was astonied. And she sayd to the king: the word I heard in myne own land of thy dedes & wysedome is true. How he it I beleued it not, tyll I came & sawe it with myne eyes. And lo, the one half was not tolde me, for thy wysdome and goodness: passeth the same whych I herd. Hap-pye are thy men, and happye are these thy seruantes, whych stande euer before the & beare thy wysdom. And blessed be the Lorde thy god which had a lust to the, to set þe on the seate of Israel: because the Lorde loued Israel for euer, and therfore made the king to do equyte and ryghtuousnes.

Then she gaue the king an hundred and
xx. talentes of gold, and of swete odoures exceding muche, & precious stones. There came neuer after suche aboundaunce of swete odoures as the quene of Saba gaue to kynge Salomō. And thereto the shyppes of Hiram that brought gold from Ophir, great plenty of Almuge tree, and precious stone. And kynge Salomon made of the Almuge trees pillars of the house of the Lorde & in the kinges palace, and made harpes & psalteries for singers. Ther came no more Almuge tre so, nor was any more sene vnto this daye. And kynge Salomon gaue vnto þe quene of Saba all her desyre that she asked of hym, besydes that he gaue her with his owne hand. And so she retourned vnto her owne countrey w her seruants.

The weight of golde that came to Salomon euery yere, was. vi. hundred, thre score and. vi. talentes of golde, besydes that he had of chapmen, & of marchauntes, of poticaries, & of all the kynges of Arabye, & of the lordes of the country. And kynge Salomon made two hundred bucklers of beaten golde, fyre hundred sciles of gold went to a buckler. And he made thre hundred shil-des of beaten golde, thre pound of golde going to a piece, and put them in the house of the worde of Libanon.

And the kinge made a greate seate of Iuorie, and couered it with precious golde.
And the seate had sixe steppes.

And the toppe of the seate was round behynd his backe, wyth pomelles on eyther syde the place wher he sate, and two lyons standyng besyde the pomelles. And there stode twelue lions on the steppes, fyre on a syde. There was none lyke sene in anye kyngdome. And al kynge Salomons drynkyng cuppes were of golde, and al the gar-nyshment of the house of the wood of Lybanon, were of pure golde. And as for syluer it was nothyng worthe in the dayes of Salomon. For the sea shyppes which the kyng had in the sea, w the ships of Hiran, came euer thrid yere lade w gold, syluer, Iuory, apes & peccokes. And so kynge Salomon passed all the kynges of the earthe in riches & wisdom. And al the world resoted to Salomō, to heare his wisdom which God had put in his hert. And brought him euery man his presēt, vessels of siluer and of gold, and of cymēt, harnes, swete odours, horses, and gyles yere by yere. And Salomon gathered togyther charrettes and horsemen, so that he had a thousand & foure hundred charrettes, and twelue thousande horsemen, which he bestowed in the char-cityes, and wpth the kyng at Jerusalem. * And the kyng made syluer in Jerusalem as plenteous as stones, & Cedar as plenteous as the mulberry trees that grow in the valleys. And Salomons horses came oute of Egypte from Beua. The marchantes fet them fro Beua at a price. A charet came out of Egypte for. vi. C. sicles of syluer, and an horse for on. C. and fyfty. And euē so by the handes of the sayd marchantes, horses were brought out for all the kynges of the Bethites, and for the kynges of Siria.

But king Salomon loued many outelandysh women: the daughter of pharaon and of the Moabites, and Ammonites, Edomites, zidonites, and Bethites, euen of natyons of whiche the Lorde sayd vnto the chyldren of Israel: se ye come not at them, nor let them come to you, for suerlye they wyl turne your hertes after theyr gods. Neuertheles to such Salomon claue and fel in loue wpth them. And he had seuen hundred * very quenes, and thre hundred concubines, which turned away hys hert. For when Salomon was old, his wyues turned his hert after other Gods, so that his hert was not perfect with the Lord his God, as was the hert of Dauid his father.

And Salomon folowed Ashtaroth the God of the zidons, and Milcom the abhominacion of the Ammonites. So Salomon wrought wyckednesse in the syghte of the Lorde, and contynued not after the Lorde as dyd Dauid his father. After that Salomon built an auter for Chamos the abhominacyon of the Ammonites in the hyll that standeth befoze Jerusalem, and vnto Moloch the abhominacion of the chyldren of Ammon. And semblablye did he for all his outlandyshe wyues, whiche burnt incense, and offered vnto theyr Goddes: Then was the Lord angry wpth Salomon, because hys hert turned from the Lord God of Israel which appeared vnto hym twise, & gaue him a charge of this thyng that he shulde not folowe other Goddes. But he kepte not that whiche the Lorde commaunded hym: wherupon the Lord said to Salomon: for as muche as thys is done of the, and thou hast not kept mine appointment and myne ordynauces whiche I haue commaunded the, therefore I wyl rente the kyngedome from the, and wyl giue it to thy seruaunte. Not wpthstandinge in thy dayes I wyl not do it, because of Dauid thy father: but wil take it from thy sonne. Howebeit I wyl not take awaye all, but wyl gyue one trybe to thy sonne, because of Dauid my seruaunt, and because of Jerusalem, whiche I haue chosen.

Then the Lorde stirred vp an aduersarye vnto Salomon, one Hadad an Edomite, and of the kynges lynage of Edom. For when Dauid was in Edom, and Joab the captayne of the hoste was gone vp to burie them that were slayne, and hadde slayne al the men chyldren in Edome. For syre monethes dyd Joab remayne there, and all Israel, tyll he had destroyed al the men chyldren in Edom. And thys Hadad fled, and certayne other Edomites of hys fathers seruauntes wpth hym, to go to Egypte, Hadad beyng yet a lytle land. And they arose oute of Gadiam, and wente to pharan, and toke men wpth them oute of pharan, and came to Egypte vnto pharaon kyng thereof whiche gaue hym an house, and appointed hym vntayles, and gaue hym landes. And Hadad gatte greate fauoure in the syghte of pharaon, so that he gaue hym to wyfe the syster of his own wife, the syster of Thahaphnes the quene. And the syster of Thahaphnes bare hym Sedubath hys sonne. And Thahaphnes wened him in pharaons house. And he was in pharaons house amonge the sonnes of pharaon. And when Hadad hearde sape in Egypte that Dauid was laid to slepe with hys fathers, and that Joab the capytayne of the hoste was deade also, he sayd to pharaon: let me departe, that I maye go to mine own cuntry. Then sayd pharaon vnto him: what lackeste thou here wpth me, that thou woldest go to thyne owne countrey? And he sayd, nothyng: howbeit lette me go. And God stired vp an other aduersarye one Razon the sonne of Eliada, whiche fledde from Hadadzer kyng of Jobah his master. This Razon gathered men vnto hym, and became capytayne ouer an armye, when Dauid slewe them: And they went to Damasco & dwelte therein, & raigned in Damasco. And he was an aduersarye to Israel al the daies of Salomon with the euil that Hadad dyd, whiche abhorred Israel, and raigned in Siria.

And Jeroboam the sonne of Nabat an Ephraimite of zaredah (whose mother was called zeruah, and was a wydowe, and he Salomons seruaunt) * lyfte vp his hand agaynst the kyng. And hereof came it, that he lyfte vp his hand agaynst the kyng. Salomon built Babel, and mended broke places in the cite of Dauid hys father. And this fellow Jeroboam was an actiue man. And when Salomon sawe the ponge man that he wrought so lustely in the worke he made hym ruler ouer all the charges of the house of Joseph.

And it chaunced at that season, as Jeroboam was gone oute of Jerusalem, that the prophet Ahiah the Silonite met hym by the waye, haupng a new mantel on him * and rent it in twelue peces, and sayd to Jeroboam: take the ten peces. For thys saith the Lorde God of Israel: behoulde I wyl rent the kyngedome oute of the handes of Salomon and wyl gyue ten trybes to the

and he shall haue one, for my seruaunt Dauid's sake, and for Ierusalem, the citie whiche I haue chosen oute of all the tribes of Irael because they haue forsaken me: and haue bowed themselves vnto Ashtaroth the God of the zidons, and to Chamos the God of the Moabites, and to Melcom the God of the chyldren of Ammon, and haue not walcked in my wayes, to do that pleaseth me and myne ordynauces and rites: as did Dauid his father.

Howbeit I wyl take none of the kyngdome oute of his hande, but wyl make him chiefe all hys lyfe longe, for Dauid my seruaunt's sake, whiche I chose: because he kepte my commaundementes and ordynauces. But I wyl take the kyngdome forth of hys sonnes hande, and wyl giue vnto the, ten tribes of it, and wyl giue his son one, that Dauid my seruaunt may haue lyghte alwaye before me in Ierusalem the cite whiche I haue chosen me, to put my name there. And I wyl take the, and thou shalt raygne vpon all that thy soule despyreth, and shalt be kinge ouer Irael. And if thou shalt herken vnto all that I commaunde the, and shalt walke in my wayes and do that is right in my syght, that thou kepe myne ordynauces and commaundementes, as Dauid my seruaunt dyd: then wyl I be wth the, and buyld the an house that shall contynue, as I buyld for my seruaunt Dauid: and I wyl geue Irael vnto the. And therewith wil I bere the seede of Dauid, but not for euer. And Salomon soughte to kyl Ieroboam, wherfore Ieroboam arose and fled into Egypte, vnto Seke kinge of Egypte: and continued ther tyll the death of Salomon. The rest of the actes of Salomon and all that he dyd, and his wyl dome, are wyrtten in the booke of the actes of Salomon. And the tyme that Salomon raygned in Ierusalem vpon all Irael, was fouretye yeres. And then he layed hym to rest with hys fathers, and was buryed in the cite of Dauid hys father, and Rehoboam his sonne raygned in hys stede.

The. xii. Chapter.

The kyngdome is deuyded: and Rehoboam raygneth ouer two trybes, and Ieroboam ouer ten. Aduram is stoned. Ieroboam maketh golden calues.

¶ And Rehoboam went to Sichem for all Irael wer come to Sichem to make him king: And when Ieroboam the sonne of Nabat hearde of it, beyng pet in Egypte, for he had fled to Egypt for feare of Salomon, and dwelt ther. And they sent and called hym: and so Ieroboam and all the assemble of Irael came and spake vnto Rehoboam, sayinge: thy father made oure yoke greuous, but now make thou the greuous serupce of thy father, and hys sore yoke whiche he put vpon vs, lyghter, and so we will serue the. And he sayde vnto them, depart yet for the space of thre daies and then come agayne to me. And the people departed.

And kyng Rehoboam tooke counsell wth the olde men that stode before Salomon his father while he yet liued, and said: what counsell geue ye to answer this people wth? And they said vnto hym: If thou shalt be a seruaunte vnto this people this daye, and serue them, and answer them, & speke kynde wordes to them, they wyl be thy seruaunts for euer. But he left the counsell that the olde men had geuen him, & counselled wth the yonge men that wer nourished by wth him, and had waited on hym.

And he sayde vnto them: what counsell geue ye to answer this people, which haue communed wth me, sayinge: make y yoke whiche thy father dyd put vpon vs lyghter. And the yonge men that were broughte by wth him, answered hym sayinge: this people that haue said vnto the: thy father made oure yoke heuie make thou it vs lyghter: thus answer them. My litle finger shall be waigh tier then my fathers loines. And now wher my father put a greuous yoke vpon you, I wil make it heuier. For wher my father corrected you with scourges, I wyl chastice you with scorpions. And when Ieroboam and all the people were come to Rehoboam the third day, as the king appointed them, sayinge: come to me agayne, this day the daies: the kinge answered the people churly, & left the aduise that the olde menne gaue hym, and spake to them after the aduise of the yonge men, sayinge: My father made your yoke greuous, but I wil make it greuouser. For wher my father chastised you with whippes, I wil chastice you with scorpions. And so the king herkened not to the people, for the turning awaye was of the Lord to performe his saying, which the Lord had said by Ahiah the Salomite vnto Ieroboam the sonne of Nabat.

And when all Irael sawe that the kyng regarded the not, the people answered the kyng agayne, sayinge: we haue no part in Dauid, nor enheritaunce in the son of Iui. Hasten you to your tentes there fore Irael, and now see to thynne owne house Dauid. And so Irael departed vnto their tentes. Howbeit ouer the chyldren of Irael, whych dwelt in the cite of Iuda dyd Rehoboam raigne tyll. Then kyng Rehoboam sent Aduram the receiuer of the tribute, and all Irael stoned hym to death wth stones. But kyng Rehoboam made speede, and gat hym by to his charet, & fled to Hierusalem. And so Irael departed from the house of Dauid vnto this daye.

And when all Irael hearde that Ieroboam was come agayne, they sente and called hym vnto the congregation, and made hym kyng ouer Irael: so folowed the house of Dauid, but the trybe of Iuda onlye. And when Ieroboam was come to Ierusalem, he gathered all the house of Iuda, and all the tribe of Benjamin, an hun-

ii. Par. 1. 2.

died foure score thousande of chosen men, and good warrioures, to spghte agaynst the house of Israel, and to byrning the king dome agayne to Rehoboam the sonne of Salomon. * Then came the worde of the Lorde vnto Semelai, the man of God, sayinge: speake vnto Rehoboam the sonne of Salomon kyng of Iuda, and vnto al the house of Iuda and Ben Iamin, and the remnaunte of the people, and saye. Thus saythe the Lorde: go not, nor yet spghte a-gaynst your brethren the chyldren of Israel, but retorne euery man to hys house, for this doinge is of the Lorde. And they obeyed the worde of the Lorde, and returned and departed accordynge to the word of the Lorde. Then Jeroboam buylte Si-chem in mounte Ephraim and dwelt therin. And wet from thence and built Bethaniel. And Jeroboam thought in his hert: nowe myght the kyngdome retorne to the house of David agayne.

For if thys people shall go vppre and do sacrifyce in the house of the Lorde at Jerusalem: then shall their heartes tourne agayne vnto their Lord Rehoboam kyng of Iuda: and so shall they kille me, and go agayne to Rehoboam kyng of Iuda. * Whereupon the kyng toke counsell, and made two calves of golde, and sayde vnto the people: ye shal not nede to go any more to Jerusalem. Behold your gods (Israel) whych brought you out of the lande of Egypt. And he put the one in Bethel, the other in Dan. And that doyng was a cause of synne. And the people went to worshyp the calfe, as farre as Dan. And he made teples in the hylles, and made the lowest of the people priestes, whych were not of the sonnes of Lewi. And Jeroboam made a feast the fiftene daye of the epght moneth, lyke vnto the feaste that was in Iuda, and offered on the aulter. And so did he in Bethel, to offer vnto the calves that he hadde made. And he putte in Bethel the priestes of the hyl aulter, whiche he had made.
And he offered vnto the aulter whiche he had made in Bethel the fiftene daye of the eight moneth, whiche he had imagined of his own herte, and made a solempne feaste vnto the chyldren of Israel, and went vp to the aulter to burne sacrifyce.

The. xiii. Chapter.

Jeroboam sacrifycinge vnto Calues is re-proued of the Prophete. His hande dyeth by while he putteth it out agaynst the Pro-phete. The prophete is kylled and buried.

And behold, ther came a man of God oute of Iuda with the word of God to Bethel, as Jeroboam stode by the aulter to offer, and cryed agaynst the aulter at the commaundement of the Lorde, & sayd: aultare, aulter, thus sayeth the Lorde.
Behoulde, a Chylde shall be borne of the house of David Josiah by name, whych vpon the shall offer the priestes of the hyl aul tares, th at Sacrifice vpon the, and shal burne mennes bones vpon the.

And he gaue them the same tyme a signe sayinge: this is the signe of that the Lorde hathe promysed. Behoulde the aulter shall rente, and the ashes that are in it shall fall oute. And when the kyng hearde the saying of the man of God, whiche he cried a-gaynst the aulter in Bethel, he stretched forth his hand from the alter, sayinge: hold hym. And his hand which he put forth toward hym, dyed vp, that he could not pull it agayne to him, and the aulter claued, and the ashes ranne oute of the aultare accord-ynge to the token whych the manne of God had geuen, at the commaundemente of the Lorde. And the kyng answered and sayde vnto the man of God: Oh pray vnto the Lorde thy God, and make intercessyon for me, that my hande maye be restored me agayne. And the man of God besoughte the Lorde, and hys hande came to hym agayne as well as befoze. Then sayde the kyng vnto the man of God: Come home wpth me and refre the thy selfe, and I will gyue the a rewarde. But the manne of God answered the kyng, if thou wouldest gyue me halfe thynne house, I woulde not go wpth the, neyther woulde I eate meate, nor drinke in thys place. For so was it charged me thowome the worde of God, & sayde to me: eate no breade, nor dryncke water, nor tourne agayne by the same wape thou wenteste. And so he wente an other wape, and retourned not by the same wape that he came to Bethel.

And there dwelte an olde prophete in Bethel, whose sonnes came and tolde hym all the workes that the man of God hadde done that day in Bethel, and the woordes whych he spake vnto the kyng thep tolde thep father also. And their father sayd vnto them: what way went he? for his sonnes had sene what way the man of God went, whych came from Iuda. Then sayde he to his sons, saddle mine asse. And thei saddeled hym an asse. And he gate hym thereon, and went after the mā of God, and found him sitting vnder an oke, and sayde vnto hym: Arte thou the manne of God that cammest from Iuda? And he said, yea.

Then he sayde vnto hym: come home with me and eate breade. And the other said agayne, I maye not retorne with the to go w the, neyther maye I eate breade, or dryncke water in this place. For it was sayed to me by the commaundemente of the Lorde: eate no breade, nor drinke water in thys place, nor turne agayne by the wape thou wenteste.

And the olde prophete said vnto him: I am a prophete as well as thou, and an angell spake vnto me wpth the woorde of the Lorde, sayinge: Byrnye hym agayne wth the to thynne house, and let hym eate breade, and dryncke water, and yet lye vnto hym. And lo, the other wente agayne wth him, and eate bread in his house, and dranke

dranke water. And as they late at the table, the woordes of the Lorde came vnto the prophete that broughte hym agayne.

¶ And he cryed vnto the manne of God that came from Iuda, sayinge: Thus sayth the Lorde: because thou haste dysobeyed the mouth of the Lorde, and haste not kepte the commaundement whiche the Lorde thy God commaunded the, but cammest backe agayne, and haste eaten breade and dranke water in the place, in the whiche he bad that thou shouldest eat no breade, nor drinke water: therefore thy carcas shall not come to the sepulchre of thy fathers. And when he had eaten breade, and dranke, he saddled an asse for the prophete which he broughte agayne. And as he iournied, a Lyon met hym by the way, and slewe him, and hys carcas laye along in the way, and the asse stode therbi, and the Lion by the corpe also. And men that passed by, sawe the carcas cast along in the way, and the Lyon standinge therby, and went and told it in þe towne where the olde prophete dwelte.

¶ And when the prophete that broughte hym backe agayne from the waye, hearde thereof, he sayde: It is the manne of God, whiche disobeyed the mouth of the Lorde. And therefore the Lorde hath deliuered hym vnto the Lyon, whiche hath rente hym, and slayne hym, accordynge too the woordes of the Lorde, whiche he sayed too hym. And he saide to his sonnes, saddle me an asse: and so they did. And he wente and founde the bodie caste alonge in the waye, and the asse and the Lion, standynge therby. And the Lion had not eaten the carcas nor hurte the asse. And he toke vp the bodie of the man of God, and put it on hys asse, and broughte it agayne, and came to the cypse of the olde prophete to lamente him, and to burie hym. And he layed hys body in his owne graue, and lamented hym. * Oh my brother. And when he buried hym, he spake to hys sonnes, sayinge: When I am deade, se ye burie me in the sepulchre, wherein the man of God is buried, and laye my bones by hys. For the sayinge whiche he cryed at the byddynge of the Lorde agaynst the aulter in Bethel, and agaynst al the houses of hyl aulters which are in the cypses of Samaria, shall come to passe.

Howbeit for all that Jeroboam turned not from his wycked waye: but turned away, and made of the lowest of the people priestes of the hyl alters. Whosoever wolde he filled their hands, & they became priests of the hyl aulters, And thys doynge was synne vnto the house of Jeroboam, euen to destroye it: and to putte it awaye frome of the face of the earth.

The. xiii. Chapter.

¶ Jeroboams wyfe asketh counsell of Zedekiah, which propheseth the death of her child, and the destruction of the realme. Jeroboam dieth. Sezak king of Egypt robbeth the house of the Lorde. Rehoboam dyeth. Abisam succedeth hym.

¶ At that tyme Ahiah the sonne of Ieroboam tel spck. And Ieroboam said vnto his wife: arylse & chaunge thine apparel, that thou be not known to be the wyfe of Ieroboam, and get the to Siloh. For there is Ahiah the prophete, whiche coulde me * that I shoulde be kyng ouer this people. * And take wpth the ten loues and crakenels, and a cruse of honp, and go to him, for he wyl tel the what shal come of the child. And Ieroboams wife did so: she a rose & wet to Siloh, & came to the house of Ahiah. But Ahiah coulde not se for his eyes were waxes dumme for age.

And the Lord said vnto Ahiah: Behold the wyfe of Ieroboam cometh to question wpth the aboute her sonne which is spcke. This wyfe, and this wyfe answer her. And when she came, she sayned her selfe to be another woman. But when Ahiah heard the sound of her feete as she came to the dore, he sayde: Come in thou wife of Ieroboam, whyp saynest thou thy selfe to be another? I am sente to the an heauy messenger. Go and tell Ieroboam, thus sayeth the Lorde God of Israel: for as much as I aduanced the aboute the comon people, and made the prynce ouer my people Israel, and dyd plucke the kingdome away from the house of David, and gaue it thee: and thou haste not ben as my seruaunt David, who kepte my commaundementes, and folowed me with all his hert, to do that only whych semeth ryght in myne eyes, but haste done euyl aboue al that were before thee, and hast gon and made thee other gods & images of metal to prouoke me, and hast cast me behinde thy backe: therefore beholde I wyl bringe euyl bypon the house of Ieroboam, and wyl stricke frome Ieroboam all that pylseth agaynst the wall, and what soeuer is in pylsonne, or forsaken in Israel, and wyl take away the remnaunt of the house of Ieroboam, as menne take away a dong hyl, tyl it be consumed. And whosoever of Ieroboams house dye in the towne, hym shall the dogges eat, and hym that dyeth in the field, shal the fowles of the ayre eat: for the Lorde hath sayed it: arise and gette the into thine house, & as sone as thy foote entreteth the cypse, the chyld shall dye. Howe be it all Israel shall mourne hym, and burie hym, for thys onlpe of all Ieroboam shall come to the sepulchre, because in hym there is founde goodnesse towarde the Lorde God of Israel in the house of Ieroboam.

Moreouer the Lorde shall sette hym by a kyng ouer Israel, who shall destroy the house of Ieroboam in that day. And what is that, that is now in hand? And the Lord shal smite Israel, as a rede that groweth in the water is shaken, and wyl wede Israel oute of thys good Lande whiche he gaue to the fathers, and wyl scatter them beyond Euphrates, because they haue made them groues to anger the Lord. And he wyl geue gave Israel up, because of the synne of Jeroboam, wherwith he did sinne, and made Israel synne also.

And Jeroboams wyfe arose & departed, & went to Thersah: & by that time she was come to the threshold of the dore, & her lad was deade. And all Israel buried hym, and lamented hym, accordyng to the worde of the Lord, which he spake by the hand of his seruaunte Ahiah the prophete. The reste of the dedes of Jeroboam, howe he warred, and how he raigne, are writte in the booke of the cronicles of the kyngs of Israel. And the dayes whiche Jeroboam raigne were two and twenty yere. And then he rested with his fathers, and Nadab his sone raigne in his steade.

1. Par. xii. a

And Rehoboam the sonne of Salomon raigne in Juda, and was .xli. yere oulde when he beganne to raigne, and raigne .xvii. yere in Jerusalem the cytye whiche the Lord had chosen oute of al the trybes of Israel, to put his name there. His mothers name was Naamah an Ammonite. And Juda wrought wickednes in sighte of the Lord, and angered hym aboue all that they fathers dyd, wth they synne whiche they synned. For they also made them hyl aulters, and Images, and groves on euery hyl, and vnder euery grene tree. And thereto there was a stues of male children in the lande, and they dyd accordyng to all the abhominatons of the Heathen, whiche the Lord caste oute before the children of Israel. And the yere of kyng Rehoboam, came Sefacke kyng of Egypt up to Jerusalem, and toke awaye the treasure of the house of the lord, and of the kynges house, and all that was to be had. And he toke the shildes of golde whiche Salomon made. In whose steade Rehoboam made brasen shildes, and put them in the keping of the captaynes of the garde, whiche waited at the dore of the kynges house. And as oft as the kyng went into the house of the Lord, they of his garde bare them, and ever brought them agayne into the gard chamber.

lit. Re. x. d

The reste of the actes of kyng Rehoboam and al he did, are writte in the booke of the acts of the kyngs of Juda. And there was war betwene Rehoboam and Jeroboam all they lyues. And Rehoboam layed hym to reste wth his fathers, and was buried wth his fathers in the cytye of David. And his mothers name was Naamah an Ammonite. And Abiam his sonne raigne in his place.

The .xv. Chapter.

Wicked Abiam raigne ouer Juda, & right wille Asa succede in his rowme. The battel betwene Asa and Baasa. Asaphath succede in Asas place. Nadab succede in Jeroboams place. Baasa killeth Nadab.

And the .xvii. yere of kyng Jeroboam the sonne of Nabat, raigne kyng Abia ouer Juda, and ruled thre yere in Jerusalem. His mothers name was Maacah the daughter of Absalom. And he walked in all the synnes of his father, whiche he dyd before him, and his herte was not hole wth the Lord his God, as the herte of David his father.

Neuerthelesse for Dauides sake, the Lord his God gaue hym a lyght in Jerusalem, that he set up his sonne after hym, to contynue in Jerusalem. Because that David did that which pleased the Lord, and turned from nothing that he commaunded him al the dayes of his lyfe, & saue onlye in the matter of Urias the Hethite.

ii. Re. xii. a.

And there was warre betwene Rehoboam, and Jeroboam, as long as he lyued. The reste of the dedes of Abiam, and al that he dyd, are writte in the Cronicles that were done in the dayes of the kyngs of Juda. And ther was war betwene Abiam, & Jeroboam. And Abiam rested with his fathers, & they buried him in the citi of David. And Asa his sonne raigne in his steade.

The .xx. yere of Jeroboam kyng of Israel beganne Asa to raigne ouer Juda, and rule d in Jerusalem. .xli. yere, whose mothers name was Maacah the daughter of Absalom. And Asa dyd that seemed righte in the eyne of the Lord, lyke David his father. And he made the stews of males departe the lande, and putte awaye all the Idols that his fathers had made.

And thereto he putte downe Maacah his mother frome bearyng rule, because she hadde made an Idole in a groue. And Asa destroyed her Idole, and burnt it by the broke Cedron. But he put not downe the hyl aulters. Neuerthelesse Asas herte was hole wth the Lord all his dayes. And he brought in that his father had dedicate, & the thinges hallowed vnto the house of the Lord, siluer, gold, & Jewels. And ther was war betwene Asa & Baasa al their dayes.

Another for grandmo-ther as David is often called father of the to who he was grand father, as zephora, whos wyfe called

And Baasa kyng of Israel wente up agaynst Juda, and buylte Ramah, because he woulde lette none of Asas people kyng of Juda go in or out.

Raguel father, whiche yet was his grand father

Then Asa toke all the syluer and goulde that was left in the treasure of the house of the Lord, and all the treasure of the kynges house, and deliuered it vnto his seruautes, and sente them to Benhadad the sonne of Tabrimon, the sonne of Bezan kyng of Siria, that dwelte at Damasco, sayinge: there is a bonde betwene the & me, as was betwene thy fathers and mine. Therefore I send the bothe golde and syluer for a gifte, that thou go and breake the bonde betwene the and Baasa kyng of Israel, that he maye departe from me.

And Benhadad herkened vnto kyng Asa, and sent the captaynes of the hostes whiche he had agaynst the citi of Israel, and smote Ahion, Dan, Abel called Beth, Maacah, and all Ceneroth, wth al the Land of Reythali. And when Baasa heard that he left buyldyng of Ramah, and dwelte in Tharzah. Then kyng Asa made proclamations thorowout al Iuda: that none shold be excused. And they toke the stones of Ramah, and the timbre wherewith Baasa had built: and king Asa built therewith Bazaah in Ben Iamin, and Gazphah.

The reste of all the dedes of Asa, and of all hys proceadynge, and the ctytes whiche he buylt are wrytten in the cronicles of the actes done in the dayes of the kynges of Iuda. Neuertheles in hys old age, he was diseased in his fete. And Asa laid him to rest with his fathers, and was buried with hys fathers in the cite of Dauid his father. And Josaphat hys sonne reigned in his rowm.

Radab.

And Radab the sonne of Jeroboam began to rapgne vpon Israel, the second pere of Asa kyng of Iuda, and rapgned vpon Israel two pere. And he dyd euil in the syghte of the Lord, and walked in the way of hys father: and in his sinne wherewith he made Israel synne. But Baasa the sonne of Ahiah, of the house of Isachar conspired against him, and slewe hym at Sebethon, a ctyte of the Philistines, for Radab and all Israel laye at seage before Sebethon. And it was the thirde pere of Asa kyng of Iuda, when Baasa slewe hym, and rapgned in his stede. And as sone as he was kyng, he slewe all the house of Jeroboam, and lefte hym naught that breathed, vntil he had vtterly destroyed hym, agreynge to the sayinge of the Lord whiche he spake by hys seruauit Ahiah the Silonite, for the sinne of Jeroboam wherewith he synned, & made Israel synne, and for hys angreyng that he angered the Lord God of Israel. The reste of the dedes of Radab, and all hys proceadynge are wrytten in the Cronicles of the Kynges of Israel. And there was warre betwene Asa, and Baasa, kyng of Israel, al their dayes.

In the thirde pere of Asa kyng of Iuda, Baasa the sonne of Ahiah beganne to rapgne ouer all Israel in Tharzah, and continued. xliii. pere. And he dyd that displeased the Lord, for he walked in the way of Jeroboam, and in hys synne, wherewith he made Israel synne.

The. xli. Chapter.

Jehu prophesied agaynst Baasa, of whiche he is sayne. Elah succeadeth Baasa, zamri killeth hys master Elah, and destroyeth the house of Baasa. He is reiecte, and Amri chosen, zamri burneth hym selfe, and hys house. Wycked Shab succeadeth Amri and taketh to wyfe wicked Jezabel.

Jehu.

Then came the word of the Lord to Jehu the son of Hanani against Baasa saying: for as muche as I exalted the out of the dust, and made the captain ouer my people Israel, and thou hast walked in the way of Jeroboam, and haste made my people Israel sinne, to anger me with their synne: I wil make cleane riddaunce of Baasa, and of al hys house, and wyl make his house lyke the house of Jeroboam, the sonne of Nabat. * And he that dyeth of Baasa in the ctyte, hym shal dogges eate, and hym that dyeth in the fieldes, shall the fowles of the ayre eate.

The reste of the dedes of Baasa, & what he dyd, and hys warres, are wrytten in the booke of the histories of the kynges of Israel. And Baasa fel on sleepe with hys fathers, and was buried in Tharzah. And Elah hys sonne rapgned in his stede. And by the hande of the prophet Jehu, the sonne of Hanani, the worde of the Lord came agaynst Baasa, and agaynst hys house: because of the wyckednesse that he did in the syghte of the Lord, in angreyng hym with the workes of his handes, that he shoulde be lyke the house of Jeroboam, because he hadde kyled Nabat.

The. xli. pere of Asa kyng of Iuda began Elah the son of Baasa to rapgne ouer Israel in Tharzah, and continued two pere. And hys seruante zamri capytayne of halfe hys charrettes, conspyred agaynst hym: as he was in Tharzah drynkyng of stronge dryncke, in the house of Azab steward of hys house in Tharzah. And zamri came and smote hym, and killed him, the. xlii. pere of Asa kyng of Iuda, & reigned in his stede. And as sone as he was kyng, and sat on his seat, he slew al the house of Baasa, & left not a piffer agaynst the wal.

And thereto he slewe all his kinne, and frendes, and so zamri destroyed al the house of Baasa, accordynge to the worde of the Lord, whiche he spake to Baasa, thorow Jehu the prophet, for al the synnes of Baasa, and the synnes of Elah hys son, wherewith they synned, and made Israel sinne, to anger the Lord of Israel with their vanities. The reste of the dedes of Elah, & all that he did, are wrytten in the cronicles of the kynges of Israel.

The. xlii. pere of Asa kyng of Iuda, zamri reigned eyght dayes in Tharzah, the people beleagynge Sebethon, a ctyte of the Philistines. And when the people that laye in the seige hearde saye howe zamri hadde conspyred, and howe he hadde slaine the kyng also, then all Israel made Amri capytayne of the menne of warre king that same daye ouer Israel, euen in the hoooste. And Amri departed from Sebethon, and all Israel with hym, and beleaged Tharzah. And when zamri sawe that the ctyte muste needs bee taken, he wente in to the palapce of the kynges house, and sette the kyngs house a fyre on hym selfe, and there dyed, for hys synnes, whiche he synned in doyng wyckednesse in the syghte of the Lord, and for walkynge in the way of Jeroboam, & in his synnes which he dyd, and made Israel sinne. The reste of the actes of zamri, & the treason that he wrought, are wrytten in the booke of Cronicles of the kynges of Israel.

Moreover, the same season was Israel ell beuyned in twatue, for halfe the people folowed Thebny, the sonne of Syneth, to make him king, and the other halfe folowed Amrye. But the people that folowed Amri, preuailed agaynst them that folowed Thebny, the sonne of Syneth. And so Thebny dyed, and Amri raygned. The xxxi. yere of Asa kynge of Iuda, beganne Amri to raygne ouer Israell, xii. yere: and ruled. vi. yere in Tharzah. And he bought the hylle of Samaria of one Semar, for two hundred talentes of syluer, and built in the hyl, and called the name of the cytye whych he had built Samaria, after the name of Semar the Lorde of the hylle. And this Amry wroughte wyckednes in sight of the Lorde worse then all that were before hym, & walcked in all the wayes of Jeroboam the sonne of Nabat, and in hys sinne, wherwith he made Israell sinne, to anger the Lord God of Israel with their vanities. The rest of the acts of Amri which he dyd, & the battels he fought, are writen in the cronicles of the kynges of Israell. And Amry layde hym to rest with his fathers, and was buried in Samaria, and Achab his sonne raygned in his stede.

The. xxxviii. yere of Asa kynge of Iuda, began Achab the sonne of Amri to raygne ouer Israell, and raygned in Samaria. xlii. yere. And he displeased the Lorde above all that were before hym. For it semed him a lighte thinge to walcke in the synne of Jeroboam. But toke Jezabell the daughter of Ethbaall kynge of the Sidonites to wyfe, and went & serued Baal, & bowed vnto hym. And he reared an autel to Baal in the house of Baal whych he had made in Samaria. And Achab made a groue, and proceeded further in angering the Lord God of Israel, then all the kings of Israel that were before hym.

In hys dayes Hysell of Bethell buylte Jericho. And it cost hym Amram hys eldest sonne when he laid the foundacyon, & his youngest sone whē he set vp the gates, agreying vnto the word of the Lorde whych he spake by Josua the sonne of Nun.

The. xvii. Chapter.

Elijah is nourished and fedde of Ravens, and after is sent to the woman of Sarepta whose childe he rayseth to lyfe.

And Elijah the Thesbite whych was of the inhabitantes of Galaad, sayd to Achab: *as trulve as the lord god of Israel liueth before whom I stand, ther shall be neither dewe nor raine these yeres saue as I appoynte it.

And the worde of God came to hym, sayinge: get the hence, and turne the eastward, & hyde thy selfe in the broke Karith, that lieth before Iordan: drynke of the ryuer, for I haue commaunded the Ravens to fede the ther. And he went and dyd accordyng to the worde of the Lorde: he went and dwelt by the broke Karith, that lieth before Iordan. And the Ravens brought hym bread and fleshe euery moynynge, and euery euening, and he dranke of the broke. And it chanced after a while, that he dyed dryed vp, bycause there fell no raine vpon the earthe. Then came the word of the Lorde vnto hym, sayinge: aryse, and gette the to Sarepta, a citey of Sydon, and dwel ther. Behold, I haue commaunded a wyddowe ther, to susteine the. And he arose, & he to Sarepta. And whē he came to the gate of the cyty, ther was a widow ther gathered strykes. And he called vnto hyr and sayed: *set me A prayr the, a lytle water in a dysch that I may dryncke.

And as he wente to set it, he cryed to hyr and sayed: Wrynge me I praye the, a morsell of breade in thyne hande. And she answered: as sure as the Lord thy god liueth I haue no breade, but euen an handefull of meale in a pytcher, and a lytle oyle in a cruse. And so, I haue gathered a fewe spekes for to goo and bake it for me, and my sonne, that we maye eat it, and then dye. And Elijah sayed vnto hyr: feare not but goo and do as thou haste sayed: and make me a lytle cake spytte of all, and wrynge it oute vnto me: and afterwarde make for the and thy sonne.

For thus sayeth the Lorde God of Israel: the pytcher of meale shall not be wasted, neyther shall thy Oyle cruse be wythoute Oyle, tyll the Lorde haue sente raine vpon the earthe. And he wente and dyd as Elijah badde. And he, and he, and hyr house, dyd eat a good space, and the pytcher of meale wasted not, neyther was the oyle cruse wythoute oyle, accordyng to the worde of the Lorde, whych he spake thowhe Elijah. And after these thynges it happened that the sonne of the wyfe of the house fell sycke. And hys sykkenes was so sore, that there was no dreath leste in hym. Then sayed she vnto Elijah: What haue I to doo wyth the, O thou manne of God, arte thou come vnto me, that my synnes shoulde be thoughte vpon, and my sonne slayne?

And Elijah sayed to hyr: gyue me thy sone. And he toke hym out of hyr lap, and caried him vp into a loft, where he laye, and laid him vpon his own bed, & called to the Lorde, and sayed: O Lorde, my God, haste thou bene so euill vnto the wyddowe with whom I sojourne, that thou hast slayn her sonne? And he stretched hym selfe vpon the childe thre tymes and called vnto the Lorde, and sayed: O Lord my God, let the childe soule come into hym agayne. And the Lorde herd the voice of Elijah, and the soule of the childe came into him agayne, and he reuiued.

And Elijah toke the boye and broughte him downe out of the chambie into the house, and deliuered hym to hys mother and sayed: se thy sonne lyueth. Then the wyfe sayed to Elijah: Now I know thou art Gods man, and that the word of the Lorde in thy mouth is truthe.

Elijah's sente to Achab. Abd. ah hydeh an hundred Prophetes and sauerh them. Baal can not heare although the people cry verpe loud. El. ah hyllat al Baal Prophetes: and after outeyneth rayne.

Elias of Eliab.

As at last the word of the lord came to Eliab the thirde pere sayinge: goo shew thy self vnto Achab, that I mai send raine vpon the erth. And Eliab wente to shewe hym selfe to Achab, for ther was a great famyshment in Samaria.

Wherfore Achab called Abdia the gouerner of his house which feared god grealy: in so much p whē Jezabel destroyed the Lordes Prophetes, he toke an hundred of the Prophetes, and byd them, sytpe in one caue, and sytpe in an other, and prouyded bread and water for them. And Achab sayed vnto Abdiah: walke thorowe the Land vnto all fountaynes of water, and vnto all brokes, to se whether anye grasse maye be foud, that we may saue the horses, and the egules, that we destroy not the beasts. So they deuided the Lande betwene theym to walcke thorowe it. Achab wente one way by hym selfe, and Abdiah wente another by hym selfe.

And it chaunced as Abdiah wente in the waye, that Eliab met hym. And Abd-ah knewe hym, and fell on his face and sat ed: Arte not thou my Lorde Eliah? And he said vnto hym: I am he. So and tel Achab that Eliab is here. And the other answered: What haue I spyned, that thou wouldeste delyuer me into the handes of Achab to sea me? As sure as the Lorde thy God lyueth, there is no nacyon nor kyngedome whether my Lorde the kyng hath not sente, to seke the. And whē they said thou wast not ther, he toke an oth of the kyngedome, and nacion, by cause he found the not.

And now thou saiest: So, tel thy Lorde, Eliah is here. And as sone as I am gone from the, the spirite of the Lorde shall cape the awaye, wherher I shal not knowe: and then when I haue gone and tolde Achab, and he can not fynde the, he shal sea me. And yet I thy seruante haue feared the Lorde from my yowth.

Was it not tolde my Lorde what I byd when Jezabel slew the Prophetes of the Lorde, how I byd an hundred of the Lordes Prophetes, sytpe in one caue, and as many in an other, and prouyded them bread & water? And yet now thou sayest, go shewe thy Lorde that Eliab is here, to the intente he myghte sea me. Then Eliab sayed, as truly as the Lorde GOD of heastes lyueth be fore whome I stande: I wyll shewe my selfe vnto hym this day.

And therupon Abdiah wente to Achab and tolde hym. And Achab wente agaynst Eliah. And when Achab sawe Eliah, he sayed vnto hym: Arte thou he that troubleth Israell? And he sayed: it is not I that troubleth Israell, but thou, and thy fathers house, in that ye haue forsaken the commaundementes of the Lorde, and haue folowed Baal. But nowe send and gather me al Israell vnto mount Carmell, and the Prophetes of Baal, four hundred and sixty, and the Prophetes of the groves four people of hundred, whiche eate of Jezabels table.

And Achab sente for all the chyldren of Israell, and gathered the Prophetes vnto mounte Carmelle.

And Eliah came vnto all the people, and said: Why halt ye betwene two opynions?
If the Lorde be ver y God, folowe him: or if Baal be he, then folow him. And the people answered hym not one word.

Then sayed Eliah vnto the people: I only remayne of the Lordes Prophetes, and Baals Prophetes are four hundred and sytpe. Let two oxen be geuen vs, and lette them chose the one, and cut hym in peaces, and laye him on wood, and putte no fire vnder. And I wyll dresse the other, and put hym on woode, and put no fyre vnder. And call ye on the name of poure God, and I wyll calle on the name of the Lorde. And then the God that answereth by fyre, he is the verpe God.

* And all the people sayed: It is well spoken. Then sayed Eliah vnto the Prophetes of Baal, chose you an ox, & dresse him sytpe (so ye are manye) and calle on the name of poure God, but putte no fyre vnder. And they toke the ox that was geuen them, and dressed hym, and called on the name of Baal, from moonyng, to noone, saying: O Baal, heare vs. But there was no voyce, nor answer. And they lepte aboute the aulter that they had made. And at noone Eliah mocked them & sayed. Call lowde, for he is a God: but he is falskyng or persynge bys ennemyes, or happelye he sleapeth, that he maye awake. And they cryed a lowde, and cutte theym selues (as their maner was) with knyues and launcers, tyll the bloude folowed on them. But when mydde daye was passed, and they hadde played the Prophetes tyll it was tyme to offer, and yet was neyther voyce nor answer, nor any that regarded them, Eliah sayed to all the fowlke, come to me.
And all the people came to hym. And he mended the aulter of the Lorde that was broken, * and toke. xii. stones, accordyng to the nombre of the twelue trybes of the sonnes of Jacob, vnto whome the worde of the Lorde came sayinge: Israell shal be thy name. And with the stones he made an aulter in the name of the Lorde.
And he made a gutter rounde aboute the aultare, able to receyue twoo peckes of corne, and he putte the woodde in order, and hewed the ox in peaces, and put hym on the woode, and sayd: syll four pychers wyth water, and poure it on the sacryfye and on the wood. And he said: do so agayne and they byd so agayne. Then he said: do it the thyrde tyme. And they byd so the thyrde tyme.

ty me. And the water ranne rounde aboute the aultare, and the gutter was full of water also. So when offerynge tyme was come, Eliab the prophet wente to & sayde: Lord god of Abraham, Isaac, and of Israel, let it be knowne this daye, that thou arte the God of Israel, and that I am thy seruante, & that I doo all these thynges at thy commaundemente.

Hearc me, O Lorde, that this people may knowe, that thou arte the God, and that thou hast turned theyr hertes backward. And there fell fyre from the Lorde and consumed the sacrifice, and the wood, and the stones, and the house, and lyched vp the water, that was in the gutter. Whiche when all the people sawe, they fell on their faces, and said: the Lorde he is God, the Lord he is God. Then sayd Eliab vnto them, lay hands on the prophets of Baal, let not one of them escape.

And when they had taken them, Elyab broughte them downe vnto the brooke Kison, and slewe theym there. Then Elyab sayd vnto Achab, gette the vp, & eate & drinke, for ther is a sound of much rayn. And when Achab wente vp to eate and dryncke, Eliab wente vp to the toppe of a moūt Carmel, and bowed hym selfe to the earth, and put his face betwene his knees and sayd to his seruante: goe vp and loke toward the Sea. And he wēt vp and looked, and sayd: here is nothyng, and he sayd: go agayne seuen tymes. And the seuenthe tyme he said: beholde, there aryseth a lytle cloude oute of the sea, lyke the paulme of a mannes hande.

Then he sayd: go and saye to Achab, put the horses in the charerre, and gette the downe, that the rayne stoppe the not. And wythin a little whyle, heauen was blacke with cloudes and wynde, and there was a greete rayne. And Achab rode and went to Jezrabell, and the hande of the Lorde was vpon Elyab, and he gyrded by his lopnes, and ranne before Achab, tyll they came to Jezrabell.

The .xix. Chapter.

Eliab fleynge from Jezabell, is nourished of the angell of God. He complayneth that he is lefte alone, and that they seeke his lyfe to. He is commaunded to annoynte Jehu, and Eliseus.

And Achab told Jezabell, al that Eliab had done, & altogether how he had slaine the prophetes with the swerde.

When Jezabell sente a messenger vnto Eliab, sayinge: * So do God to me, and so thereto, but if I make thy Soule lyke one of theyrs, by to morowe this tyme: when he sawe that, he arose and wente for his lyfe, and came to Bersabe in Iudā, and lefte his seruante there. And he wente a dayes iourneye into the wyldernesse, & when he was come, he sate downe vnder a Junypar tree, and desired for his soule, that he myghte dye, and sayd:

It is now inoughe, O Lorde, take my soule for I am not better then my fathers.

And as he laye and slepte vnder the Juniper tree: beholde, there came an aungell and touched hym, and sayed vnto hym: arise, and eate. And he looked aboute hym: and loe, there was an imber cake, and a cruse of water at his heade. And he eate and dranke, and layde hym downe agayne to sleape. And the aungel of the Lorde came agayne the seconde tyme, and touched him, and sayed aryse and eate, for thou haste a longe iourney to go. And he arose, and dyd eate and dryncke, and went in the strength of that meate fortye dayes, and fortye nyghtes vnto Horeb, the mount of God, and entered there into a caue, and lodged there all nyghte.

And then the worde of the Lorde came vnto hym, and sayd: what doste thou here Eliab? And he answered: I haue bene thome angre, for the Lorde God of hostes sake. For the chylderen of Israel, haue forsaken thy couenaunte, and haue broke downe thyne aultares, and slayne thy prophetes with the swerde, and I onely am lefte, and they seeke my Soule to haue it to. And he sayed: come oute and stande before the Lorde.

And beholde the Lorde wente by, and a myghty stronge winde, that rent the moūntaynes, and brake the rockes before hym, but the Lorde was not in the wynde. And after the winde came an Earthquake. And after the earthquake came fyre, but the Lorde was not in the fyre. And after the fyre, came a smalle stylle voyce.

And when Elyab hearde it, he covered his face with his mantell, and wente out, and stode in the mouth of the caue. And lo ther came a voyce vnto hym, and sayed: what dost thou here Elyab? And he answered: I haue bene earnestlye angre for the Lord God of hostes sake: bitaue the chyldren of Israel haue forsaken thine appointemente, and haue cast downe thyne aulters, and slayne thy prophetes with the swerd, and I onely am lefte, and they seeke my soule to haue it. Then the Lorde sayed vnto hym: go, and turne thy way to the wilderness of Damascus, and go and annoynte Hazael to be kynge of Syria.

And Jehu the sonne of Ramsay anoint to be king ouer Israel. And Eliseus the sonne of Saphat, of Abel Meholah annoynt to be prophete in thy towne. And who so esca- perth the swerde of Hazael, him shal Jehu slea, & if any man escape the swerde of Jehu hym shal Eliseus slea. And thereto I haue left me seuen thousand in Israel, of whiche neuer manne bowed his knees vnto Baal, * no; kissed hym with his mouth. The. xx. Chapter.

The fyrst and seconde tyme that Samaria was besyged of Benhadad kynge of Siria

AND Benhadad kynge of Siria gathered all hys booste togyther, and xxxii. kynges wth him, with horse and charret and went by and besieged Samaria, & warred agaynst it. And he sente messengers to Achab kynge of Israell into the city, and said vnto hym: thus sayth Ba-hadad. Thy syluer and thy golde is myne, and the beste of thy wyues, and the beste of thy chyldren be myne. And the kynge of Israell answered and sayde: my lord king accordyng to thy sayinge, I am thynne wth all that I haue.

And the messengers came agayne to Achab, and sayed: thus sayeth Benhadad. I haue therfore sente vnto the, sayinge: deli-uer me then thy syluer, and thy golde, and thy wyues, and thy chyldren. Or els I wil send my seruauntes vnto the by to morow this tyme: and they shal search thine house and the house of thy seruauntes, which shal take all that is gloriouse in thynne eyes, and brynge it awaye wth them.

When the kynge of Israell sente for the elders of the lande, and sayed: take hede I praye you, and see howe thys felowe goeth aboute myschyfe. For he sente vnto me, for my wyues, and my chyldrenne, and my syluer and my golde: And all the elders of Israell, and all the people sayed: hearken not to hym, nor consente. Where-vpon he sayed to the messengers of Ben-hadad, tell my Lorde the kynge, all that he sente for the fyrste tyme, that I wyl do, but thys requeste I maye not doo. And the messengers departed and broughte hym worde.

Then Benhadad sente vnto hym and sayed: thus doo the Goddes to me, and so hereto, if the duste of Samaria be inoughe for all the people that folowe me, that e-uerie man maye haue an handefull. And the kynge of Israell answered and sayed: Tell hym, lette not hym that puttech on hys harnesse booste hym selfe, as he that putteth it of. * And when Benhadad hearde that answer, as he and the kynges were dyncynge in the pauplyons, he sayed vnto hys seruauntes: put youre sel-ues in arape. And they put theym selues in arape agaynst the cyyte. And beholde, there came a prophete vnto Achab kynge of Israell, and sayed to hym. Thus sayeth the Lorde: Seeke thou all thys greete multytude: Beholde, I wyl delpue them into thynne hande thys dape, that thou mai-este knowe that I am the Lorde. And Achab sayed, by whome? And he sayed, thus saierh the Lorde: euen by the gouernoures men of the thyrres. And Achab sayed: who shall fyrste toynne battayle? And he sayed, thou.

Then he numbered the men of the gouer-ners of the thyrres, and they were two hundred. xxxii. And after them he numbred all the people, and all the chyldrene of Israell were seuen thousande. And they marched forwarde at noone, when Benhadad was a dyncynge stronge dyncke in the pauillions wth the two and thyrtye kinges that holpe hym.

And the men and rulers of the thyrres, wente oute fyrste. And Benhadad sente forth, and they shewed hym, sayinge: Ther come men from Samaria. And he sayed: if they come to make peace, take theym a lyue. And also, if they come for warre, take theym yet alyue. And when those menne of the thyrres of the thyrres were come out of the cyyte, and the booste after them, they slewe euerye man hys enemye that stode in hys waye.

And the Sirpans fledde, and Israell folowed after them. And Benhadad the king of Siria escaped on a horse, wth hys horse men. And the kynge of Israell wente oute and smote horse and charrette, and slewe a great slaughter of the Sirians. Then ther came a prophete to the kynge of Israell, and sayed vnto hym: go forth, and play the man, be wyse and take heed what thou doeste: for when the yere is gone about, the kynge of Siria wyl come agaynst the agayne.

Then said the seruauntes of the kynge of Siria to him. The Goddes of the hilles ar they? Gods, and therfore they had þ better of vs. But let vs fyghte wth them in the playne, and vndoubtedlye we shall haue the better of the. And this do, take the kinges awaye, & put Dukes in theyr roumes.
And turne the a new hoste, lyke the hoste that thou hast losse, and horse for horse, and charret for charret, and let vs fyghte wth them in the playne, & for a wager we gette the better of the. And the king hekked vnto their counsel, and dyd euen so.

And as sone as the peare was gone about, Benhadad numbered the Sirians, and wente by to Apheck to warre wth Israel. And the chyldren of Israell were num-bred and prouided of vitaille, and wente a-gaynst them, and pitched before them, lyke two litle flockes of kyddes, but the Sirians fylled the countrey.

Then ther came a man of God, and sated vnto the kynge of Israell, thus sayeth the Lorde. Bycause the Sirpans say: the Lorde is but a God of the hylles, and not God of the valleyes too, therefore wyl I delpue all thys greete multitude into thynne hand: that ye may knowe that I am the Lorde.

And they pitched one ouer agaynste the other. vii. dayes, and the seuenth day they topned battel. And y childre of Israel slew of the Syrians, an hundred thousand foremen in one daye. And the reste fledde to Aphek into the cite. And there fell a walle vpon. xxvii. thousande of them that were left. And Benhadad fledde, and went into the city, from chamber to chamber.

Then sayed hys seruauntes vnto hym: Beholde, we haue hearde saye, that the kinges of the house of Israel be merciful kinges. Let vs put sackcloth about our loines and ropes aboute oure heades and go oute to the kynge of Israel: haply he wyl saue thy lyfe. So they gydded sackcloth aboute their loynes, and put ropes aboute their heades, & went out to the kynge of Israel, and sayd: thy seruaunt Benhadad saith: I praye the let me lyue. And he sayed: Is he yet aloue? What, he is my brother. And they toke that word for good lucke, and ha selfe caught it out of hys mouth, and sayed: Yea thy brother Benhadad. Then he sayed goo and brynge him. And Benhadad came oute to hym, and the other toke hym vp into the charette. And Benhadad sayde: the cytys whiche my father toke from thy father, I wyl restore agayne.

And thou shalt make streates for the in Damasco, as my father dyd in Sama. I. And I wyl make a leage wth the, and sende the away. And so made a leage wth him and sente hym awaye.

Then a certayne man of the chyldren of the prophetes sayed vnto hys felowe wth the word of the Lorde: smite me I praye the. And the man woulde not smyte hym. And he sayed, because thou hast not obeyed the voyce of the Lorde: behold, as sone as thou art departed and gone from me, a Lion shal lyue the. And as sone as he was departed from hym, * a Lion founde hym and slew hym. Then he found an other man and sayed to hym: smyte me I praye the. And the man gaue hym a good stripe and wounded hym. And the prophet wnt forth & waited for the kynge by the waye and tyed a kercheise ouer hys eyes: and put himselfe oute of knowledge. And when the kynge came by, he cryed vnto hym and sayde: thy seruaunte wente oute in the myds of the battel. And lo, ther was one began to slee. And there came a man to me and said: kepe thou thys man. And if he be missed, thy lyfe shall goo for hys, or els thou shalt paye a talente of siluer. And as thy seruaunt had here and there to do, he was gone. And the kynge of Israel sayd to hym: euen so shal thy iudgement be as thou haste desyned thy selfe.

And he bailed and vnfolded the kercheise awaie from hys eyes: and the kynge of Israel knewe hym, that he was of the prophetes. And he sayde vnto the kynge, thus saith the lord: because thou hast let go a man that ought to haue died, thy lyfe shal go for his lyfe, & thy people for hys. And the kynge of Israel wente to hys house all sad and hert heuy, and entred into Samaria.

The. xxi. Chapter.

¶ Jezabel comendeth to kyll Naboth, for the vyneyard that he refused to sell Achab. Wherby he reprooueth Achab, and he repenteth.

After these thinges were done, it chaunced that Naboth the Jezabelite had a vineyard in Jezrael hard by the place of Achab kynge of Samaria. And Achab spake to Naboth, sayng: let me haue thy vineyard, to make me a garde of herbes therof, because it lieth so nigh my house: & I wyl geue the a better vyneyard for it: or if it please the I wyl geue the the worth of it in siluer. But Naboth said to Achab: the Lord forbidd that fro me, that I shuld geue the enheritance of my fathers vnto the.

Then wnt Achab vnto his house exceeding angry, and euylayued, because of the wordes which Naboth & Jezabelite had spoken to him, sayng: I wil not geue the enheritance of my fathers. And he layd hym downe vpon hys bedde, and turned aways hys face, and would eate no meate.

Then Jezabell hys wyfe came to hym, and sayed vnto hym: Why arte thou so frowarde, that thou eatest no meate? And he sayed vnto hyr: I spake vnto Naboth the Jezabelite, and sayed to hym: Gyue me thy vyneyard for siluer, or els if thou wylte, I wyl geue the an other vyneyard for it. And he sayed: I wyl not gyue the my vyneyard.

Then sayed Jezabell hys wyfe to hym: What a goodly kingdome were thou able to make in Israel? Up and eate meate and sette thynne herte at reaste, for I wyl gyue the the vyneyard of Naboth to Jezabelite. Then she wrot a letter in Achabs name and sealed it wth his sele, and sente it to the elders, and chiefe men of his cite, that dwelte where Naboth dwelte. And she wrot in the letter, sayinge: proclayme fastynge, and set Naboth on hygh among the people, and set two naughtre felowes before hym, and lette them testyfy agaynst hym, sayng: thou dydst blaspheme both God and the kynge. And vpon that cary hym out, and ston hym to deathe.

And the elders and nobles of hys cite whiche dwelt in hys cite, dyd as Jezabell had sente vnto them, and as it was wrytten in the letter whiche she hadde sent vnto them. They proclaymed fastynge, and set Naboth on hye amonge the people, and ther came in two vnrhyfpe persons and sare before hym. And the two deuplysh detsonnes wytnessed agaynste Naboth before the people, sayinge: Naboth dyd curse god and the kynge. * And vpon that they caryed him forth of the cite & stoned hym wth stones to deathe.

And they sente to Jezabell, sayinge: Naboth is deade.

Act. vii. g

both is stoned to death. And whē Jezabell heard that Naboth was stoned to death, she sayed to Achab: arise and take possession of the vineyard of Naboth, the Jezrahelite, which he denied to give the forsiluer for Naboth is not alive, but dead. And when Achab herd that Naboth was dead, he arose to go down to the vineyard of Naboth & Jezrahelite to take possession of it.

And the worde of the Lord came unto Elishah the Thesbite, saying: arise & go down to mete Achab king of Israell, whyche is in Samaria. Beholde, he is in the vineyard of Naboth: for he is gone downe thither, to take possession of it. And saye unto hym, thus sayth the Lord: thou haste spled, and more ouer gotten possession. And saye after that unto hym: thus sayeth the Lord: in the place where Dogges lapped the bloude of Naboth, hal Dogges lap euen thy bloude also. And Achab sayed to Eliah haste thou founde me thy ennemye at anye tyme? And he sayed: yea, bycause thou arte vtterlye appoynted to worcke wyckednes in the syght of the Lord.

Beholde, I wyll byynge euyl vpon the, and wyll make cleane riddaunce of thyne issue, and wyll destroye of Achab, all that pisseth agaynst the wal, & euen the incluse, and furcheste in Israell, and wyll make thyne house, lyke the house of Ieroboam the sonne of Nabat, and lyke the house of Baasa, the sonne of Abiah, bycause thou hast prouoked me to anger, & made Israell synne. And also agaynst Jezabell came the word of the Lord, saying: Dogges shall eate Jezabel vnder the walles of Jezrael. And he that dieth of Achab in the towne, hym shall dogs eate: & he that dieth in the fields, hym shall the foules of the ayre eate. For there was none at al lyke Achab that was so vtterly appoynted to doo wyckednes in the syghte of the Lord, and that bycause Jezabell his wyfe pricked hym forward. And therfore he dyd excedyng abominably, in folowynge Idols, in al thynges, lyke as dyd the Amorytes, whiche the Lord caste oute before the chyldren of Israell. When Achab hearde these wordes, he rente his clothes, and putte sackecloth aboute his fleshe, and fasted, and laye in sacke, and went comfortlesse. And the word of the Lord came to Eliah the Thesbite, saying: seeke thou howe Achab humbleth hym selfe before me? bycause he so hūblerh hym before me, I wil not byynge the euyl in his daies: but in his sonnes daies I wyll byynge euyl vpon his housse.

The. xxi. Chapter.

Four hundred falsse prophets do counsel Achab and Josaphat to warre agaynst Ramoth: only Michiah propheth the truerh, for whyche he is swythen, and put in prison.

And they continued thre yere wythoute warre betwene Siria and Israell. * And the thirde yere Josaphat kyng kyng of Iuda came to the kyng of Israell. Then sayed the kyng of Israell vnto his seruantes, knowe ye not that Ramoth in Galaad is oures, and welste syl, and take it not oute of the handes of the kyng of Siria? And he sayed to Insaphat: wylt thou go wyth me to batteill, to Ramoth in Galaad? And Josaphat sayed vnto the kyng of Israell: * I wyll be as thou arte, and my people shal be as thyne, And Josaphat sayed to the kyng: aske counsayle I pray the, of the Lord to daye. And then the kyng of Israell gathered of the prophetes togyther, vpon a foure hundred men, and sayed vnto them: shall I goo to Ramoth in Galaad to battayl, or be syl? And they sayed: go for the Lord shall deliuer it into the handes of the kyng. And Josaphat sayed: is there not one prophet of the Lord here more, that we myghte enquire of hym?

And the kyng of Israell sayed to Josaphat: there is yet one, by whome we may aske counsayle of the Lord, one Michiah the sonne of Iemlah, but I hate hym for he neuer prophetieth good vnto me, but euill. And Josaphat sayed: let not the king saye soo. Then the kyng of Israell called vnto one of his chamberlaynes and sayd: set Michiah the sonne of Iemlah byther at once. And the kyng of Israell and Josaphat the kyng of Iuda, sate eyther in his seate, and they appatell on them, in a voide place beside the enterpyng of the gate of Samaria, and all the prophetes, prophying before them. And Jeechiah the sonne of Canaanah made hornes of iron, and sayed, thus sayeth the Lord: wyth these hornes thou shalt winowe the Syreanes, vntyll thou haue made an ende of them. And all the prophetes prophcyed euen so, saying: go to Ramoth in Galaad and prosper, for the Lord shall deliuer it into the handes of the kyng.

And the messenger that was gone to call Michiah, sayed vnto hym: see, the wordes of the prophetes speake good of the kyng wyth one voyce, let thy wordes I praye the be like the wordes of one of the, and speake that is good.

And Michiah sayde: as surelye as the Lord liueth, what the Lord putteth in my mouthe, that wyll I speake. And when he was come vnto the kyng, the kyng sayde vnto him: Michiah, shal we go to Ramoth in Galaad to battaile, or shal wee be syl? And he sayd vnto hym, * goo and prosper, the Lord shall deliuer it into the handes of the kyng. And the kyng sayde vnto him: howe often shal I adiure the, that thou tel me nothyng but truthe, in the name of the Lord? Then he sayde: I sawe all Israell scattered vpon the hylls, as sheepe that haue no shepheardes. And the Lord said, these haue no mayster, let them retorne euery man to his house in peace.

Then said the kyng of Israell to Josaphat:

Saphat: Dyd not I tell the, that he wolde prophecie no good vnto me, but euyl? And Michiah sayde: Heare thou therefore the worde of the Lorde: I saw the Lorde sitte on hys seate, and al the company of heauē standyng about hym, on his ryghte hande, and on hys lefte, and the Lorde sayde: * Who shal deceiue Achab, that he maye go and be slayne at Ramoth in Galaad? And one sayde on thys maner, and an other on that. Then came forth a spirite and stode before the Lorde, and sayde: I wpll deceiue him. And the Lorde sayd: wherewith? And he sayd: I wpll go out, and be a false spirite in the mouthes of all his prophets.

And the Lorde sayde: Thou shalt deceiue hym, & also preuayle, go forth, and do euen so. Now therefore beholde, the Lorde hath put a lyeinge spirite in the mouthes of all these thy prophets, when in very deede the Lorde hath spoken euyl toward thee. Then Zedekiah, the sonne of Canaanah went to, and smote Michiah on the cheke and sayde: Howe is the spirite of the Lorde gone from me, to speake in the? And Michias sayd: Behold, thou shalt se in þe daie, whē thou shalt go fro chamber to chāber to hide the. And the king of Israel said: Take Michiah, and carpe hym backe agayne vnto Amon the gouernour of the city: and vnto Iosab the kynges sonne, and saye: thus saythe the king: putte this fellow in pryson, and fede him with breade and water straghtly, tyl I retorne in peace. The Michias laide: if thou come safe agayne, the Lorde hath not spoken in me. And he laide: herken ye people, euerpe one of you.

And so the kyng of Israel, and Josaphat kyng of Iuda wente vp to Ramoth in Galaad. And the king of Israel sayde to Josaphat, I wpll chaunge myne apparell, and get me to warre, but put thou on thyne owne apparell.

And the kyng of Israel chaunged hys raymente, and wente to battell also. But the kyng of Siria had commaunded the captaynes of hys Charettes, of whych he had. xxii. sayinge: fyght nether with small nor greute, saue with the kyng of Israel onlye. And when the captaynes of the Charettes saw Josaphat, they thought he had bene the kyng of Israel, and therefore they turned to hym to fyghte. But Josaphat cryed out. And when the captaynes of the charettes saw that he was not the kyng of Israel, they turned backe from hym.

And a certayne man drew a bow vntwates and smote the kyng of Israel betwene the ribbes of hys harneis. Wherefore the king said to the driuer of his charet, turne thy hand, and carpe me forth of the host, for I am hurte. And the feilde encreased that day, and the king continued in his charet before the Sirians, and died about nighte. And the bloude ranne oute of the wounde into the botto me of the charet. And there wente a proclamacion thowrowoute the hoste after the sunne was downe, sayinge: let euerpe man departe to hys cyty, and to hys owne contry. And when the king of Israel was deade, they came to Samaria, and buryed him there.

And whyle they washed the charette in the pole of Samaria, the Dogges lycked vp hys bloude, and harlottes washed hym accordyng to the word of the Lorde which he spake. The reste of the dedes of Achab, and all he dyd, and the quorpe house whiche he made, and the cytyes that he builde, are wrytten in the booke of the cronycles, of the kynges of Israel.

And when Achab was layde too reste with his fathers, Jhoziah hys sonne reigned in hys stede. Josaphat the sonne of Asa began to raygne vpon Iuda, the fourth yere of Achab kyng of Israel, and was xxxv. yere olde when he began too raygne, and raygned. xxv. yere in Ierusalem. Hys mothers name was Azubah, the Daugh- ter of Balahi. And he walcked in all the wayes of Asa hys father, and bowed not there frome, but dyd that was ryghte in the syghte of the Lorde. Onelye he did not put the hyll aulters oute of the wape: for the people offered, and burnt thepyre sacrifices yet, in the hyll aulters. And he had peace with the kyng of Israel.

The reste of the dedes of Josaphat, and the myghte that he vled, and howe he warred, are wrytten in the Cronycles of the kynges of Iuda. And also the remnaunte of the bodgerpe hopes, whiche remayned in the dayes of hys father, he putte cleane oute of the Lande.

There was then no king in Edom, the kinge was but a deputye. And Josaphat made shippes in the sea, to go to Ophir for golde, but they wente not: for the shippes brake at Azion Gaber. Then sayde Oziah the sonne of Achab vnto Josaphat: Lette my seruantes go wpyth thyne in the ships. But Josaphat woulde not. And Josaphat laide him too slepe wpyth hys fathers, and was buryed wpyth hys fathers, in the cytye of Dauid his father: and Jehoram hys sonne reigned in hys rowme.

The first Chapter.

Uphoziah is hurt, and asketh counsell of Belzebub how he may come by helth. The captaines ouer syty with their souldiours are burnte, by the praiser of Heliah. Phoziah is reproued of Heliah, and dieth, and Jehozah hys brother succeedeth hym.

Uphoziah the sonne of Achab began to raygne vpon Israell in Samaria, the xviij. yere of Josaphat kyng of Iuda, and was kyng ouer Israell two yere, and did euyll in the sighte of the Lord, and walked in the way of hys father, and in the wape of hys mother, and of Jeroboam the sone of Nabat whiche made Israell synne. And he serued Baall, and bowed hym selfe to hym, and angered the Lorde God of Israell in all thyng, as dyd hys father. And Phoziah fell thorow a lattesse wyndowe, oute of an upper chamber that he hadde in Samaria, and fell speke.

Then he sente messengers, sayinge vnto them: Go and enquire of Beelzebub the God of Akaron, whether I shall recouer of this dyssease, or no. But the Angell of the Lorde spake to Eliah the Thelbite sayinge: aryse, and go agaynste the messengers of the Kyng of Samaria, and saye vnto them: Is there no God in Israell, that ye go to aske of Beelzebub the God of Akaron? Therfore thus saith the Lorde: Thou shalt not come downe from the bed wherein thou lyest, but shalt dye. And Eliah departed.

B And the messengers toured backe agayne vnto Phoziah. And he sayed vnto them: whye are ye thus come agayne. And they sayd vnto hym: ther came a man agaynste vs, and sayde vnto vs: go and retorne vnto the kyng that sente you, and shewe hym. Thus sayeth the Lorde: Is there no God in Israell, that thou sendest to enquire of Beelzebub the God of Akaron? Therfore thou shalt not come downe from thy bed whereon thou arte gone vp, but shalt surely dye. And he said to them: What maner manne was that whych met you, and tolde you these wordes? And they sayde vnto hym it was an hearpe manne, and gyrded wth a girdle of a skinne about hys loynes. And he said vnto them: it is Eliah the Thelbite.

Then the kyng sente vnto hym a Captayne ouer fifty, with his fiftye that were vnder hym. And when the captayne was come vnto hym, beholde, he sat vpon the toppe of an hyll. And the Captayne sayd vnto hym: Man of God, the kyng byddeth the come downe. And Eliah answered and sayde to the captayne ouer the fiftye: If I be a man of God, fyre come downe from heauen, and consume the and thy fiftye.

* And there came fyre downe from heauen and deuoured hym and hys fiftye. And the kyng sente to hym a nother Captayne ouer fiftye wth his fiftye me with him, whiche answered and sayde vnto hym: O man of God, thus saith the kyng: make hast and come downe. And Eliah answered & sayde to them: If I be a man of God, then lette fyre come downe from heauen, and consume the and thy fiftye. And there came fyre downe from heauen and consumed him and hys fiftye.

Luke. ix. f.

And the kyng sent agayne the thyrde captayne ouer fiftye. And when the thyrde captayne ouer fiftye was come vp to hym, he fell on hys knees before Eliah, & besought hym, and sayd vnto hym: O man of God let my lyfe, and the lyfe of these fiftye thy seruantes be precious in the sighte of my Lord. Behold, ther came fyre downe from heauen and burnte vp the two fore Captaynes ouer fiftye wth thei fiftyes: But lette my lyfe now be precious in thy sighte. Then sayde the angel of the Lorde vnto Eliah: Go downe wth hym, and be not afrayed if hym: And he wente downe wth hym to the kyng.

And he sayde vnto the kyng: thus sayth the lord: for as much as thou sentest messengers to aske thorow Beelzebub the God of Akaron, as though ther had bene no God in Israell to aske thorow hys word, therfore thou shalt not come of the bed on whiche thou art mounted, but shalt surely dye. And so he dyed accordynge to the woorde of the Lorde whiche Eliah spake, and Jehoram was made kyng in hys steade, the seconde yere of Jehoram sonne of Josaphat kyng of Iuda, because he hadde no sonne: the rest of the dedes of Phoziah whiche he did, are written in the Chronicles of the kynges of Israell.

The.ii. Chapter.

Elijah deuidereth the waters with his mantle. He is taken vp into heauen. The bytter and venemouse waters are healed by the salte that Elizeus put into them. The chyldrene that mocke Elizeus are rent in peeces.

And it chaunced when the Lord wold take vp Eliah to heauen in a wholye wynde, that Eliah and Elizeus were goynge from Galgall. And Eliah sayd to Elizeus: tary here, for the Lorde hath sent me to Bethel. But Elizeus sayd: as surely as the Lord liueth, & as thy soule liueth, I wyl not leaue the. And when they came to Bethel, & chylde of the prophets that were at Bethel, came forth to Elizeus, & saide to him: knowest thou not that the Lord wyl take awaye thy master, that he be no longer thy heade thy dape? And he sayde: I knowe it to, holde your peace.

 hys charette manne: but he sawe hym no more, and therefore toke hys owne clothes and rente them in two peaces. And then he toke vp the mantell of Eliah, that fel from him, and wente backe agayn, and stode by Jordanes syde, and wpyth the mantell of Eliah that fell frome hym, he smote the wa-ten the water, it deupded parte thys way, and parte that way, and Eliseus went ouer. And the chyl dren of the prophetes of Jericho, whych saw hym a farre, sayd: the sperte of Eliah dothe reste on Eliseus, and wente agaynst hym, and bowed too thee earthe to him. And they sayed vnto hym, se there be amonge thy seruantes fytte lusty men: let them go and seke thy maister, happely the sperte of the Lorde hath taken hym by, and hath caste him vpon some mountayne, or in some valye.

And he sayde: sende not. Neuerthelesse pet they lape vpon hym, tyll he was ashamed, and sayde: sende, and they sente fytte menne, whych soughte hym three dapes and thre nightes, but founde him not. And they came agayne vnto hym, for he sayed at Jericho. And he sayd to them: dyd I not saye vnto you, that ye shoulde not goo?
 When the men of Jericho said to Eliseus, beholde, the citie standeth pleasauntelye as my Lord seeth, but the water is nought and the ground barren. And he said, bryn-ge me a newe cruse: and put salt therein. And they broughte it to hym. And he wente vnto the springe of the water, and caste the salte in thether, and sayed, thus sayth the Lorde: I heale this water, there shall not come hence forth epyther deathe or barren-nesse. And the water was healthsome euer after, accordinge to the woorde of Eliseus whych he spake.

And he wente from thence to Bethell.
 And as he was goinge in the waye, there came little laddes out of the citie, and mocked him, & said vnto him: go by thou balde heade, go by thou balde head. And he tour-ned backe, and looked on them and cursed them in the name of the Lord. * And there came two Beres out of the wood, and tare xlii. of the boyes. And he went from thence to mounte Charmell, and from thence he wente agayne to Samaria.

one of the kynges of Israels seruauntes answered and sayed: here is Eliseus the sonne of Saphat * whiche powred water vpon the handes of Eliah. And Josaphat sayd: the worde of the Lorde is wpth hym. And so the kynges of Israel, and Josaphat, and the kynges of Edom wente do vne to hym.

And Eliseus sayde to the kynges of Israel: what haue I to do wpth the? Set the to the prophetes of thy father, and of thy mother. And the kynges of Israel sayed vnto hym: Oh nape, but hathe the Lorde called the the kynges to deliuer them into the handes of the Moabites? And Eliseus sayed: as trulpe as the Lorde of heles lyueth (in whose spghte I stande) and it were not that I regarded the presence of Josaphat the kyng of Iuda, I wolde not looke toward the, nor yet sethe. But nowe byng me a minstrel. And as the minstrell played, the hande of the Lord was vpon hym. And he sayde: thus biddeth the Lorde, make at thys brokes head ditches, & ditches againe. For thus sayth the Lord: ye shall see neither wynde nor rayne, and yet thys brooke shall bee fylled wpth water, that ye maye drinke, & your beastes, and your cattel also. And thys is but a smal thing in the spghte of the Lord: But he wil giue the Moabites into your handes also.

And ye shall destroy all stronge townes, and all goodlye cyties, and shall fell all pleasaunte trees, and stoppe all the welles of water, and make al good plots of ground wpth stones. And in the mornynge aboute offerynge tyme, there came suche a water the waye from Edome, that the countrey was fylled wpth water.

When all the Moabites hearde that the kynges were come to spghte agaynst them they assembled from the pongest that was able to put on harnes, and so vppward, and waited in the borders. And they beinge vpp earlye in the mornynge, the sunne arose, & shone vpon the water. And when the Moabites sawe the water a farre of, as redde as bloude, they sayde: it is bloude: the kynges haue foughte together, and one slayne another. Nowe therefore ye Moabites, gette you to the spople. And when they came to the hoste of Israel, the Israelites stode vpp and layde on the Moabites, that they fled before them. And so they entered the land, and destroyed the Moabites. And they ouerthrew the cyties, and on every good parcel of land, cast euery man his stone, & ouer couered it, and stoppt al the welles of water, and felde all the good trees. And as longe as the stones thereof dyd remayne in the walles of the byrche, the spngers wente vppon it and beate it.

Some read
of Iherosolym

And when the kynges of Moab sawe that the battell was to stronge for hym, he toke wpth hym seven hundred menne that drew the sword, to haue broken vpp vnto the king of Edom, but they could not. And then he toke hymselfe sonne that shoulde haue raygned in hys stede, & offered hym a burnt offerynge vpon the walles. And there came so great wrath vppon Israel that they departed fro hym, & returned to theyr owne lade.

The.iii. Chapter.

God geueth a certayne poore woman oyle and flour by Eliseus: Eliseus obtayneth of God a childe for hys hyselle: which dyeth, and is after rayled to lyfe thowgh him he maketh swete the potage, and multiplieth the loues.

And there cryed a certayne woman of the wyues of the chyl dren of the prophetes vnto Eliah, sayinge: thy seruaunt my husbnde is dead, and thou knowest that thy seruaunt did feare the Lorde.

And the manne that lent vs monye is come to sette my two sonnes, too be hys bondemen. And Eliseus sayed vnto hyr: What shall I do for the. Tel me, what hast thou in thyne house? And she sayde, thine handmayde hathe nothynge at all in hyr house, saue a pitcher with oyle. And he said: Go and borowe the in other places, of all thy neighboures, emptye vessels, and that not a few, and then go and shutte the doore to the, and to thy sonnes, and poure out in to all those vessels, and put the ful alwaies aside. So she went from him, and shut the doore to hyr, and to her sonnes.

And they broughte to her and she poured out. And when the vessels wer ful, she sayd to her sonne: bring yet a vessel. And he said: there is no mo. And then the oyle ceased. When she came and tolde the man of God. And he said: go and sel the oyle, and paye thy dettes. And liuethou and thy chyl dren of the reste. And it be fel on a day, that Eliseus came to Sunam wher was a ryche woman that toke him in for to eate breade. And as ofte as he came that way, he touned in thither to eate bread. And she sayde vnto her husband: se, I perceiue that this is an holpe man of God, and cometh of ten tymes by vs, let vs make him a chamber wpth a litle wall, and lette vs sette hym there a bedde, a table, a stoole, and candelstyeke, that he maye tounie in thither wher he cometh to vs.

And it fortunied on a tyme that he came thither, and touned into the chamber, and laye there. Then he sayde to Bihezis seruaunte: call thys Sunamite. And he called her, and she came before hym. And Eliseus sayd to hym, say to her I pray the: se, thou hast made all thys prouision for vs, what shall we do for the? woldest thou be spoken for to the kyng, or to the capayne of the host? And she sayde: I dwel among myne own people: the he said, what is to be done for hyr? And Bihezis sayd: Verely she hathe no childe, and hir husbnde is olde.

And he sayd: call her. And he called her: And we came and stode at the doore. Then he sayde: by suche a tyme, and in suche an houre, if thou liuest, thou shalt embrace a sonne.

sonne. And he sayde: Oh nap my Leide, thou manne of God, do not lye vnto thynne handmayde. And the wyfe conceiued and bare a sonne that same season and houre, that Elizeus sayd vnto her. And when the chylde was well wares, it fell on a day, that he wet forth to his father to the heruest me.

And ther he complained vnto his father, saying: my head, my head. And hys father sayde to a seruaunt: carpe hym to hys mother, & he toke hym and brought hym to his mother. And he late on her knees til noone and then dyed. And she caried him vp, and layd hym on the bed of the man of God, & shut the dore to hym, & went out, and came to her husband and sayde: send me one of the pong men and an asse, that I may run to the man of God. And he sayd: wherfore wylt thou go vnto hym to day: whyle it is neyther new moone, nor saboth day? And she sayd: be content. Then she saddled an asse, and said to her seruaunt: leade away, & make me not cease rydyng tyl I byd the.

So she went, and came to the man of God to mounte Carmell. And when the man of God sawe hir a farre, he said to Bihezi his seruaunt: se where oure seruaunte cometh. Nowe go and mete hir and aske hys whether it be wel with hir, & with hys husbände, and wpth the chylde. And she sayd, all is wel. Then she wente to the manne of God vp to the hill, and caughte him by the fete. And Bihezi wente to hir to thrust hys awape. But the man of God sayde: let hys alone, for hys soule is vered, and the Lord hathe hid it from me, and hath not told it me. Then she sayde: did I desyre a sonne of my Lorde? dyd I not say that thou shuldest not mocke me? Then he sayde to Bihezi: gird vp thy lopnes, & take my staffe in thine hand, & get the hēce. If any wā mete the, salute him not. And if anye salute the, answer hym not. And put my staffe vpon þ hope. Notwithstandpng the mother of the chylde sayde: as surely as the Lord lyueth, and as thy soul liueth, I wil not leaue the. And then he arose and folowed hir. Bihezi wente before them, and putte the staffe vpon the ladde. But ther was neyther breath nor fealpng. And then he went against his mayster and toulde hym, sayinge: it hathe not awaked the chylde.

When Elizeus was come to the house, beholde, the bope was dead, and layde vpon his bedde. And he wente in and shutte the dore to the chylde and hym: and praied vnto the Lorde. And he went vp, and layd vpon the lad, and put his mouth vpon his mouthe, and his eyes on his eyes, and the palme of hys handes, on the paulme of hys handes, and spred hym selfe vpon the lad, that the fesse of the lad wared warme. And wente agayne and walked vppe and down in the house, and then went vp, and spred hym selfe vpon him, and then the lad knesed bi. tymes, and opened his eyes. And he called Bihezi and sayde: Call for thys Sunamite. And he called hir. And whē she was come vnto him, he sayd: take the sonne. Then she wente, and fell at his fete and bowed hir self to the ground, and toke vp hir sonne, and wente forth. When Elizeus was come vnto Balgal agayn, ther was a dearthe in the lande, and the chyl- dzen of the prophetes dwelte wpth hym. Then he sayde to hys seruaunte, put on a greate pot and make potage for the chyl- dzen of the prophetes. And one wente out into the feilde to gather herbes, and found as it were a wylde byne, and gathered ther of Colouintidaes his lap full, and came & shred them into the pot of potage, and wist not what it was. And they poured oute for the men to eate. And when they had tasted of the porage they cryed oute, and sayde: there is death in the pot, thou man of God, and coulde not eate thereof. Then he sayd: bynge meale. And he cast it into the pot, & said: fil for the people, that they may eate, and there was no harme in the pot.

There came a man from Baalsalia: and brought the man of God bread of the firste fruites, euen twentye loues of barley, and new corne in a clothe he had. And Elizeus bad put it before the people, that they may eate. Then his minister sayde: what, hal I set this before an hundred mē. And he said: set it before the people, & let them eate. For thus saith the Lord: They shal eate & leaue. And he set it before thē, and thei eat & lefte accordpng to the word of the Lord.

The. v. Chapter.

Naaman the Syrian is healed of his leproy. Bihezi is stricken with a leprosy because he toke mouye and rayment of Naaman.

Naaman captain, of the host of Siria, was great with his master, & wel taken, for thozow him the Lord saued Siria. And he was an actiue mā, & a ryche, but yet a leper. And there was a compaign of souldiours gone out of Siria a rounng, and had brought of the cuntrye of Israell a little maid, which was wpth Naamans wife. And the damosel said vnto hir Lady: I woulde my mayster were wpth a prophete that is in Samaria, he wolde deliuer hym of hys leproy.

And she went and tolde her husband, say- yng: thus and thus sayth the mayde of the land of Israell. And the king of Siria said: go thy waye, and I wyl sende a letter vnto the kyng of Israell. And he wente, and toke wpth hym ten talentes of syluer, and thre thousande pieces of golde, and tenne chaunge of raymentes. And he brought the letter to the kyng of Israell, contepning in effecte these wordes. When thys letter is come vp to the: Behold, I haue sent Naaman my seruaunte to the, that thou shuldest rydde hym of hys leproy. And when the kyng of Israell had read the letter, he rent hys clothes, and sayde: am I God, to sle and to make aliue that he shuld send to me to deliuer a man from hys leproy? But con-

Under I pray you and se how he ppeketh quarelles wpth me. And when Eliseus the man of God, had hearde howe the kyng of Israell had rente hys clothes, he sente to the kyng, sayinge: Wherfore hast thou rent thy clothes: lette hym come to me that he maye knowe there is a prophet in Israel.

And Naaman came wpth hys horses and hys charet, and stode at the doore of E-liseus. Then Eliseus sent a messenger saying go and wash the in Jordā seven times and thy flesh shalbe hole, and thou shalt be cleane. And Naaman was wroth and went away, and said: Behold, I thoughte in my selfe, he would haue come oute, and stande and cal on the name of the Lord his God, and put his hande on the place of the dysease, and so take awaye the leproye. Are not Abanah and Pharpar riuers of Damasco better then althe waters of Israel. Might I not rather washe in them and be cleane?
And so he turned and departed in anger.

Then came hys seruauntes, and talked wth hym, and sayde: Father, if the pro-phete had byd the done some greates thyng oughtest thou not to haue done it? Howe much rather then shuldest thou do it, while he saythe to the only, wash and be cleane.

* Then he went downe and washed seven tymes in Jordan as the man of God bad, and his flesh chaunged, like vnto the flesh of a lytle boye, and he was cleane.

Then he turned agayne too the man of God and al his companie wpth hym, and came and stode before hym, and sayde. Be-holde I knowe there is no God in all the worlde but in Israel. And now I praye the take a reward of thy seruaunt. But he said

* as surely as the Lord liueth, before whō I stand, I wil receiue none. And the other wold haue constrayned him to receiue, but he wold not. And Naama sayd: if thou wilt not, yet I praye the make there not be geuen thy seruaunt the burthe of two mules of earthe. For thy seruaunte wpll hence-forthe offer neyther burnt sacrifice nor offeryng vnto any other God then to the Lorde. But herein the Lorde be mercifull to thy seruaunte, for when my master goeth into the house of Remon to worshippe there, * he leaneeth on myne hande, and I musse worship in this house of Remon: let the Lorde I pray the be merciful vnto thy seruaunte in this case. And he sayd to him:

go in peace. And when he was departed from him a furlong of ground, Bihezi the seruaunte of Eliseus the manne of God, sayd: se, my master is so pitiful to this Si-rien Naaman, that he woulde not receiue of hys hande that he offered. As surely as thy Lord lyueth, I wpll runne after hym and take somewhat. And so Bihezi wente after Naaman. And when Naaman sawe him running after him, he came downe oute of the charet against him, & said: is al well?
And he saide. yea. But my master hath sent me, sayinge: so there be. ii. poungemen come to me oute of Ephraim of the chyldren of prophetes: geue them I praye thee, one talente of siluer, and a couple of good garmentes. And Naaman said: auenture and take two talentes of syluer, and he con-strayned hym, and bound two talentes of syluer in two bags, with two goodly garmentes, and deliuered the vnto two of his seruauntes to beare it before hym. So whē he came to the towre he toke it of their har-des, and bestowed it in the house, and lette the men go, and they departed.

Then he wente and stode before hys master. And Eliseus saide to him: whence commeth Bihezi? And he sayde: thy seruaunte wente no whither. And he sayd: wente not myne hert wpth the, when the man turned and came of hys charet againste the? Dyd not I know the time when thou wentst to receiue syluer, and to receiue garmentes, olpue trees, vineyards, oxen, shepe, mē seruauntes and mayd seruauntes? The leproye therfore of Naaman cleaue vnto the, and vnto thy seede for euer. * And he went oute from hym a leper as whyte as snowe.

The. vi. Chapter.

Eliseus maketh prou to swymme aboue the water. The Syrians besiege Israel, so that two womē agre together to eat theyr own chyldre

Then sayde the chyldren of prophetes vnto Eliseus: se, the place where wee dwel with the, is to litle for vs. Let vs therfore take euerye man a pece of tymber and build vs a place there to dwel in. And he sayde: goye. And one sayd: begyn I pray the, and go with thy seruants. And he sayd I wil, and so wente wpth them.

And when they came to Jordan: they cutte downe woode. And as one was hewynge of a tree, the axe head fell into the water. And he cryed out and sayde: Alasse master, for it was lent me. And the mā of God sayde: Where fell it? And he shewed hym the place. And he cut an helue and caste it in thpyther, and made the axe head swym.
And he said: take it vpto the. And the other stretched hys hande and caughte it.

And the kyng of Siria fought against Israel, and toke counsel with his seruauntes, sayinge: In suche a place, and in suche a place wpl I pptech. And the man of God sent vnto the kyng of Israel, sayinge: Beware thou go not by suche a place, for there are the Syrians gone downe. And the kyng of Israel sente too the place whpyche the man of God told hym and warned him of,
and saued hym selfe there more then once or twyse. And the herte of the kyng of Si-ria was troubled therewith, that he sente for hys seruauntes, and sayde too them: * wyl ye not shew me, who bewrapeth me to the kyng of Israel? And one of hys seruan-tes sayde: nay my Lord kyng, Eliseus the prophete that is in Israel, he telleth the kyng of Israel, the woordes that thou speakest in thy pryue chamber. When he sende and let hym. And oue told the kynge, sayinge: se he is in Dorhan. And he sent the ther horse and charers, and a greate hoste. And they came thither by nyght and enuy-roned the towne about.

And when the seruaunte of the man of God rose vp early and was gone oute, be-holde there was an host rounde aboute the towne with horses and charers.

Then sayd his seruauntes to hym. Alas master, what shall we doo? And he sayde: fear not, ther are mo wyth vs then w the.
D And Eliseus prayed and sayde. Lord open the eyes of the pong man, and he saw. And beholde, the mountayne was full of horses, and charettes of fyre rounde aboute Ely-seus. And whet he souldpoutes came down to hym, Eliseus prayed vnto the Lord, and sayde: Smyte this people with blindnes.
And he smote them with blindnes accor-dyng to the desire of Eliseus. The Eliseus sayd vnto them: this is not the waye nor this is not the towne. But folowe me and I will bring ye to the man ye see. And he led them to Samaria.

When they were come to Samaria, Elyseus sayd: Lord open they eyes, and let them se, and the Lord opened they eyes that they sawe. And beholde, they were in the myddes of Samaria. And then sayd the kynge of Israel vnto Elyseus when he sawe them: shall I smyte them? Shall I smyte them father? And he sayde, smite them not. But smyte those whom thou ta-kest wyth thine owne swearde, and wyth thine owne bowe, but let breade and water before them, and lette them eate and drynke and goo to they master. And he made greate ordynance before them. And whet they had eaten and dronke, sente them awaye, and they wente to they master.
And so the souldpoutes of Siria came no more into the land of Israel.

E After this, Benhadad kynge of Siria gathered all the hoste, and wente and besieged Samaria. And there arose greate deathe in Samaria: for they besieged it tyll an asses heade was worthe foure score sicles of syluer, and the fowrthe parte of a cab of doues dong worth fyue sicles. And as the kynge of Israel walcked vpon the wals, ther cried a woman to him, sayinge: helpe my lord king. And he sayde: May the Lord helpe the. But wherewith shoulde I helpe the, wyth corne or wyne? Then sayde the kynge to her, what ayleth the? And she answered, this womā here said to me, bring thy sone, & let vs eate him to day, & we wyl eate myne to morowe. And so we dressed my sonne & did eat him. And I said to her a nother day, bring thy sone, that we maye eate him: But she hath hid her sone. When the king hearde the wordes of the woman, he rente his clothes euen as he was walc-kinge on the wals. And when the people looked vpon him, lo, he was clothed in sacke vnder. Then he sayd: God do so and so to me, if the heade of Elyseus the sonne of Sa-phat tarpe on him this daye. And as Elise-us satte in his house and the elders wyth hym, the kynge sente one for hym. But ere h messenger came at him, he said to h elders: Se you not howe the sonne of this mur-derer hath sente to take of myne heade?

Be circumspect therfore when the messenger cometh, and shut the doze, and thrust him backe therwith, for the sould of his masters sece foloweth hym. And while he per talked wyth them, Beholde, the messenger was come vnto him. And he sayd behold, this euill is of the Lord, what more shal we lōke for of the Lord?

The. vii. Chapter.

Eliseus' prophcieth plentifulnesse of bys tayles and other thynges to Samaria. The Sirians run awaye no man following them, The Lord that would not helue the wordes of Elyseus is troden to death.

Then Elyseus sayde: heare the worde of the Lord, for thus sayeth the Lord: to morowe this tyme a bushel of fyne floure shal be sold for a sicke, and two bushels of barlepe for an other in the gates of Samaria. Then a Duke, on whose hand the kynge leaned, answered the manne of God, and sayde: though the Lord would make wyndowes in heauen, yet would not this be. And he sayde agayne, Beholde, thou shalt se it wyth thine eyes, and shalt not eate therof.

And there were fower leapers set wyth out the gate of Samaria. And they sayde eeke to his companyon: what spt we here vntyll we dre? though we thoughte that we myghte come into the ctyte, yet is the deathe so great in the citty, & we shal ther dre. And if we tarpe here, we are but dead also. Some therfore come and let vs flee to the hooite of the Syrians: yf they saue oure lyues, we shal lyue: And if they kyll vs, the are we dead. And so they arose in day spring to go to the hooite of the Sirians.
And when they were come to the side of the host of Siria, loo there was no man there.
For the Lord had made the host of the Sirians heare a noyse of charettes, and a noyse of horses, and the noyse of a greate hoste.
In somuch that they sayd one to another: lo the kynge of Israel hath hyred agaynst vs the kynges of the Hethites, & the kings of Egypt to come vpon vs. Wherupō they arose, and fled in the darke, and left their tentres, their horses, they asses, & the fiede they had pytched, euen as it was, and fled for they lyues. And whet these lepers came to the edge of h host, they went into a tent, and did eate and drinke, and caried thence, syluer, golde, an raymente, and went and hydde it, and came agayne, and entered in to another, and caried thence also, & wente and hydde it. Then they sayde one to another, it is not well that wee doo, for this daye hath broughte good tydynes wyth it. And if wee holde oure peace and tarre tyl it be day lyghte, we shal fynd myschefe. Now therefore come, let vs go a tel the kynges households. And so they went and called to the porters of the ctyte, and tolde them: sayinge: we came to the panyons of the Sirians, and lo there was no manne there, neyther voyce of manne, but horysses and asses, tyed, and the tents euen as they were. Then the porters called and tolde the kynges house wythin. And the kyng arose in the nyghte, and sayd to his seruantes: I wyl thewe you how the Syrians haue serued vs. They know we are oppressed wyth hunger, and therefore are gone out of their panyons to hyde them selues in the field, sayinge: They wyl come out of the ctyte, & then we shal catche them alius, & get into the ctyte. And one of his seruantes answered and sayed. Let men take foue of the horysses that remayne and are left in the ctyte. Beholde, they are as good as all the myltitude that are leste in the ctyte, and as good as all the myltitude of the ctyte that are consumed, and lette us sende and see: And they tooke two charrets of horysses, and the kyng sent after the host of the Sirians, sayinge: Go and se. And they folowed after them, euen unto Hozdane: and loo, all the waye was ful of clothes and vesselles whych the Sirians had caste from them for haste.

Then the messengers returned and told the kyng: and the people stued oute and robbed the rentes of the Syrians. And so a bushell of flour was solde for a sycke, and two bushells of barley for a sycke, according to the Lordes worde. And the kyng set the Duke on whose hande he leaned, to kepe the gate. And the people trode him in the gate, that he dyed, accordyng to the sayinge of the Goddes man, whych he sayed when the king came downe to hym. And it came to passe accordyng to the worde of the man of God lookē to the kyng, sayinge: two bushells of barley for a sycke, & a bushell of barley for an other, shall be to morowe this tyme in the gates of Samaria. When unto the Duke answered the man of God and sayed: though the Lord made wyne, & dowes in heauen, yet woulde this not be. And the other sayde: beholde, thou shalt se it wyth thine eyes, and shalt not eat ther of. And so it chaunced, for the people trode him vnder fete in the gate, that he dyed.

The. viii. Chapter.

Eliseus prophesied vnto the Sunammite of deaeth of seven yere. After the deaeth of Benhadad raygned Hazael in Siria. Jehozam son of Josaphat raygneth in Iuda. Edd fell lech from Iuda. Shoziah succeedeth Jehozam.

Then spake Eliseus vnto the woman whose sonne he had restored to life, sayyng: arise and go both thou and thine house and sojourn where thou thyngest beste, for the Lord wyl cal a deeth, whiche shal come on the land seven yere. And the woman arose, and dyd after the sayinge of the Gods man, and wente borthe she and her household, and sojourned in the land of the Philistines seuen yere. And at the seuen yeres ende, when the woman was come agayne out of the lande of the Philistynes, she went out to speake to the kyng for her house & for her lad. And the kyng was talking wyth Gehazi the seruant of the man of god, sayinge: tel me I pray the, al the great dedes whiche Eliseus did. And it chanced as he was tellyng the kyng howe he restored a deade bodye to lyfe agayne, came in the woman whose sonne he reupued, and cryed to the kyng for her house and land. The said Gehazi: My Lorde kyng, this is the woman and this is her sonne whiche Eliseus brought to lyfe agayne. And the king asked the woman, & she told him. And so the kyng sent wyth her one of his chamberlaynes, sayinge: restore all that pertaineth to her wyth al the frutes of the field sythens the daye she leste the lande vnto this tyme.

After this Eliseus wente to Damasco, and Benhadad the kyng of Siria fel sicke. And one told the kyng, sayinge: The man of God is come hyther. Then sayde the kyng to Hazael: take a presente wyth the and go agaynst the manne of God, and aske the Lorde by hym whether I shal recover of this my dysease or no. And Hazael wēt to mete him, and toke presentes wyth hym, euen of all the good thynges of Damasco as muche as fourtye camels coulde beare, and came and presented hym selfe before him, and sayed: thy sonne Benhadad kinge of Siria hath sent me to the, sayinge: shal I recover of this my dysease? Eliseus sayde: go and say to hym, thou shalt recover, how be it the Lord hath shewed me that he shall surely dye. And the man of God stode styl by hym, and was taken wyth a sore maledie, in somuch that he chaunged colerence & wept. And Hazael said, why wepest my lord? And he answered, for I knowe that thou shalt do euil vnto the children of Israell, thou shalt strong ctytes thou shalt set on fyre, and they: yongmen thou shalt sle with the sword, & shalt dash out the braynes of they: sucking children, & al to reare they: women with child. And Hazael sayed, what is thy seruant, whiche am but a dog, that I shuld do this great thinge? Eliseus sayed, for the Lord hath shewed me, that thou shalt be kyng of Siria. And so he departed from Eliseus, and came to his myster, whych he sayed to him: What said Eliseus to the? And he sayd: he toulde me that thou shouldest recover. And on the morowe he toke a rough cloth, and dypte it in the water, and spredde it on his face, and he dyed, and Hazael raygned in his stede.

The fyfte yere of Jehozam sonne of Achab kyng of Israell (Josaphat yet king of Iuda) Jehozam sonne of Josaphat, kyng of Iuda beganne to raygne: this tyme and two yeres olde was he when he began to raygne, and raygned eight yere in Ierusalem. And but dyd in he walked in the way of p kings of Israel as dyd the house of Achab, for the doughter of Achab was his wyfe, and he dyd that dyspleased the Lorde. Neuerthelesse p lord wouide not destroye Iuda, bicause of Dauid hys seruante, as he promysed hym to gyue hym a lighre in hys chyldren alway.

And in hys dayes, Edom fell awaye fro vnder the bande of Iuda, and made theym a kyng of theyr owne. And Jehoram went to Seir, and all his charrets with hym. And he rose by nyghte, and layd on the Edomites whych compassed hym in, and the captaynes of hys charret and the people fled into theyr tents. And so the Edomites slypt awaye from beyng vnder the bande of Iuda vnto this daye. And then Lobnab slypt awaye to, euen that same tyme.

The reste of the dedes of Jehoram, and al he dyd, are writte in the cronicles of the kyngs of Iuda. And Jehoram rested wth his fathers and was buried w hys fathers in the citty of Dauid. And Ohoziab hys son raigne in his stede. The twelfe yere of Jehoram sonne of Achab, kyng of Israel, dyd Ohoziab the sonne of Jehoram kyng of Iuda begin to raigne. Two and twenty yere olde was Ohoziab when he bega to raigne: & raigne one yere in Ierusalem, his mothers name was Atalia daughter of Amyr kyng of Israel. And he walked in the way of the house of Achab, for he was a sonne in law to the house of Achab.

And Jehoram the sonne of Achab wente to war wth Hazael kyng of Siria, at Ramoth in Galaad, and the Sirians wounded hym. Wherefore kyng Jehoram wente backe agayne, to be healed in Jezrebel of the wounde whiche the Sirians had gyuen hym at Ramoth, wher he foughte wth Hazael kyng of Siria. And Ohoziab the sonne of Jehoram kyng of Iuda, wente downe to se Jehoram sonne of Achab in Jezrebel, bicause he was speke.

The ix. Chapter.

Jehu is made kyng of Israel, and killeth Jehoram the king therof, and Ohoziab king of Iuda also: and thereto causeth Jezrebel to be cast downe forth of a window, whom dogges eat.

And Eliseus the prophete called vnto one of the children of the prophetes, and said to hym: gyrd vp thy loynes, and take this bove of oyle in thyne hande, and get the to Ramoth in Galaad. And wher thou comest thither, thou shalt ther se Jehu the sonne of Josaphat p sonne of Ramsi, & go to him and make him arise vp fro among his brethren, & carpe hym to a secrete chaber. And take the bove of oyle & poure it on hys heade, and say, thus saith p Lord: I haue annointed the to be kyng ouer Israel. And then opene the dore and fle, & tary not. So the seruante of the prophete dyd gette hym to Ramoth in Galaad, and when he came, the captaynes of the host were sittyng together. And he sayd:

I haue an errand to the, sy capayne. And Jehu sayde: vnto whych of al vs? And he sayd: to the p capayne. And he arose and wente into the house.

And the other poured the oyle on hys head, and sayd to him, thus sayth the Lord god of Israel: I haue annointed the to be kyng ouer Israel the people of the Lorde, that thou sle the housholde of Achab thy master. For I (sayth the Lord) wyl auenge the blud of my seruantes the prophets, and the blud of al the seruants of the Lord, of the had of Jezabel (for the hole house of Achab shall be destroyed) & I wil destroy vnto Achab what pisseth against the wal, & none shall escape, no not so much as the prisoned or that is forsaken in Israel, and wil make the house of Achab like the house of Jeroboam the sonne of Nabat, and lyke the house of Baasa the sonne of Abiah. And concerning Jezabel, the dogs shall eat her in the felde of Jezabel, and none shall bury her. And he opened the dore and fled. And wher Jehu was come out to the seruantes of hys Lord, they sayd to hym: is al peace? Wherefore came this mad felow vnto the?

And he saied vnto theim: ye knowe the felowe, and hys communicacion. And they sayd: it is not so. But tell vs a feloweshipp. And he sayd: thus and thus spake he to me, sayinge: Thus sayeth the Lord: I haue annointed the to be kyng ouer Israel. And they hastened and toke euery man hys mantel and put vnder him on an hye bench at the top of the steppes, and blew a trumpet, and sayd: Jehu is kyng. And so Jehu the sonne of Josaphat, the sonne of Ramsi, conspyred agaynst Jehoram. And Jehoram hadde bene waytynge at Ramoth in Galaad, and all Israel wth hym, for feare of Hasael kyng of Siria, and was returned to be healed in Jezrebel, of the woundes whiche the Sirians hadde gyuen hym, as he foughte wth Hasael kyng of Syria.

Ther sayd Jehu: If it be your myndes let no man escape out of the citty, to go and tell in Israel. And Jehu rode, and wente to Israel: for Jehoram laye there and Ohoziab kyng of Iuda was come to Jehoram. And the watchmanne that stode on the tower in Israel, espied the companye of Jehu as he came, and sayd: I se a companye. And Jehoram sayd: take an horsemanne, and sende agaynst theym and lette hym aske whether it be peace.

And there wente one on horsebacke agaynst hym, and sayd: Thus sayeth the kyng: is it peace? And Jehu answered: what haste thou to doo wth peace? tourne and come after me. And the watchman tolde, sayinge: the messenger came to them but he cometh not agayne. Then he sente out another on horsebacke, whiche came to them, and sayd: thus sayeth the kyng: Is it peace? And Jehu answered, what haste thou to doo wth peace? tourne and come after me. And the watchman told, saying: he came to them, but he commeth not againe, and the dypynge is lyse the dypynge of Iehu the sonne of Hanani, for he dyueth as he were mad.

Then sayed Jehoiam, make ready. And they made readye hys charrette. And Jehoiam kynge of Israell, and Ohoziab kynge of Iuda wente oute epyther in hys charrette agaynst Iehu, and mette hym in the furlonge of Naboth the Jezrahelyte. And when Jehoiam sawe Iehu, he sayed: is it peace Iehu? And Iehu sayed: what peace should there be, so longe as the boresomes of thy mother Jezabell, and hit wycheecraftes are so greates? And Jehoiam turned hys hande and fledde, and said to Ohoziab: there is falseheade in hande Ohoziab. And Iehu tooke his bowe in his hande, and smote Jehoiam betwene the shoulders, that the arrowe came oute at hys breste. And he felle downe thre fouldes in his charrette. Then he sayed to Badu-kar a Lord of hys: take and cast him in the plot of the ground of Naboth the Jezrahelyte. For I remembre as I and thou rode together after Achab hys father, howe the Lorde spake these woordes agaynst hym: I haue sene yesterdape the bloude of Naboth and of hys sonnes sayd the Lorde, and I well reacquite hym in thys ground, sayth the Lorde. Nowe therefore take and caste hym in the platte of grounde, according to the Lordes word. And when Oho-

And Iehu folowed after hym, and sayd: smyte hym also. And they smot hym in hys charrette at the gornge vp to Sur, by Jezblaam, and fledde to Magedo, and there dyed. And hys seruantes carped hym to Hierusalem, and buryed hym in hys Sepulchre wryth hys fathers in the cytye of Dauid. And in the eleuenth yere of Jehoiam sonne of Achab, heganne Ohoziab to raygne ouer Iuda. And when Iehu was come to Jezrahell, Jezabell hearde of it, and beeynted hir eyes, and tryed hys head, and looked oute at a wyndowe. And as Iehu entered at the gate, she sayed: had I anye peace, whyche Ileme hys mayster? And he lyfte vp hys eyes to the wyndow, & sayd: Who is of my syde, who? And there looked downe two Lords þ were chamberlaynes. And he sayed: Throwe hys downe. And they threwe hys downe. And he sprynckled of his bloude vpon the walles, and on the horses, and rode hys vnder fote. And then when he was come in, and had eaten and droncke, he sayed: goo and vyllette I praye you pounder coursed Creature, and burye hys, for she is a Kynge's daughter. And when they came to burye hys, they founde no more of hys then the sculle, and the two fere, and the two handes. And they came agayne and tolde hym. And he said: It is the worde of the Lorde, whyche he spake by the handes of hys seruantes He-lyab the Thespyre saying: in the fyeelde of Jezrahell, shall Dogges eate the fleshe of Jezabell, and the carkasse of Jezabell shall be donge vpon the earthe in the fyeelde of Jezabell, that men shall not saye: thys is Jezabelle.

The .x. Chapter.

Iehu causeth the thre scoze and ten sonnes of Achab to be slayne, and after that fortye and two of hys brethren. He sendeth a meane also to kille all the prestes of Baal. After hys deathe hys sonne raygneth in hys stede.

Achab hadde thre scoze and ten sonnes in Samaria. And Iehu wrot letters, and sente vnto Samaria vnto the elders that were Lordes of Jezrahell, and to them that nourced vp Achabs chylde, here called saying: now at the commynge of these letters to you, ye haue with you your masters sonnes, and ye haue with you charrets and horses, and a stronge cytye, and harneys. Therefore chose the beste, and hym that moste pleasest you of your masters sonnes, & put hym on hys fathers seat, and syght for your Lordes house. And they were exceedingly afrayed, and said: se two kings were not able to stande before him how shall we then stand. And the gouernours of the kinges house, and of the city, and of the elders and of the vources sent to Iehu, saying: we are thy seruantes, and wil do all that thou shalt bydde vs: we wyll make no manne kynge, but doo thou what semethe good in thine eyes.

Then he wrot other letters to them, saying: Ye be myne, & wyll obey my voyce: then take the handes of your masters sonnes, and come to me to Jezrahell by to morowe thys tyme. And the kynge's sonnes were lxx. personnes wryth the greates men of the cytye whiche nourished theym. And when the letters came to theym, they toke the kynge's chylde, and slewe them in nuber thre scoze and ten personnes, and put theyr heades in cophures, & sente theym to hym to Jezrahell.

And there came a messenger and tolde hym, saying: they haue brought the heades of the kynge's sonnes. And he sayde: lette them putte them on two heapes in the entrynge of the gate, tyll it be dape. And in the moynynge he wente oute and stode, and sayde to all the folcke: Ye be ryghteous: for see, I conspyred agaynst my master, and slewe hym: But who slewe these?

* Consider nowe, howe there is nothynge of the Lordes worde fallen to the earthe, whyche he spake agaynst the house of Achab: for the Lord hath done that he spake to hys seruante Eliah. And so Iehu slewe all that remayned in the house of Achab the Jezrahelyte, and all that were greates wryth hym, and companions, and his prestes, tyll he hadde lefte hym naughte. And he arose, and departed, and wente to Samaria. And as Iehu was come vnto the house

And he sayed: take them alpye. And they toke them alpye, and flew them at the well beside the house wher the shepheardes bynde their shepe, in numbrye two and forty persons, that he left none of them.

D And when he was departed thence, he met wyth Ionadab the sonne of Rechab commynge agaynst hym. And Jehu welcomed him, and said to hym: is thyne hert ryghte, as myne herte is wyth thyne? And Ionadab said to him, yea, it is. He sayed: if it be, then gyue thyne hand. And he gaue hym his hand, and the other toke him vp in the charette, and sayed: go wyth me, and se the zeale I haue to the Lorde, and made with hym in hys charer. And when he came to Samaria, he flew all that remained to Achab in Samaria, tyl he had wryt him out accordyng to the sayinge of the Lorde, whiche he spake to Eliah.

After that Jehu assembled all the people togerther, and said to the: Achab serued Baalle a lyttle: But Jehu shall serue hym a good. Nowe therefore call vnto me all the prophetes of Baal, and all hys seruantes, and all hys priestes, that none be lackynge. For I haue a greute sacrifice to do to Baal: and if anye man be myssed, he shal not lyue. But Jehu did it of a wyle, to destroye thy seruantes of Baal. Wherfore Jehu sayed: Appoynt a solempne feast for Baal, and they proclaymed it. The Jehu sente thowout all Israel. And all the seruantes of Baal came, that there was not a manne leste behynde that came not.

And when they were come into the temple of Baal, the temple was full fro the one ende to the other. When he sayd to the keeper of the vestrie: bypnye forth garmentes for the seruantes of Baal. And he broughte them oute garmentes. And Jehu wente wyth Ionadab the sonne of Rechab into the house of Baal: and sayd vnto the seruantes of Baal: searche and loke that there be none wyth you of the seruantes of the Lorde, but the seruantes of Baal only. And they went in to offer sacrifice & burntofferings. But Jehu appointed him four score me without, and sayd: If any of the me which I shal bring to your hands escape, he shal lette hym go, shal die for hym.

And as sone as they had made an ende of offeringe of burnt sacrifice, he sayed to theym of the garde, and to the captaines: go in and slea theym, and lette none come oute, and they smote theym wyth the edge of the swearde. And the garde and the captaines cast them oute, and wente into the city of the house of Baal, and fet the image out of the house of Baal, & burnt it. And they brake the Images of Baal, and brake the house of Baal, and made a flake of it euer after. And so Jehu destroyed Baal out of Israel. But from the spynne of Jeroboam the sonne of Nabat, whiche made Israel synne wyth the golden calves in Bethel and Dan, Jehu departed not. The Lord sayed to Jehu, because thou haste buslype done that pleaseth me and haste done to the house of Achab all that was in myne herte: Therefore shal thy children in the fourth generacion sit on the seate of Israel. But Jehu forced not to walke in the lawe of the Lord God of Israel withal his herte, for he departed not from the synnes of Jeroboam, whiche made Israel synne. In those dayes the Lord began to cutte Israel short, for Hazabel flew them in all the coastes of Israel, from Jordan Eastward euen all the land of Galaad: the Gadites the Rubenites, and the Manassites, from Arocr vpon the ryuer of Arnon, wyth Galaad, and Basan. The reste of the actes of Jehu, and all he dyd, and all hys power are wrytten in the chyronicles of kinges of Israel. And when Jehu was layde to rest wyth hys father, they buryed hym in Samaria, and Joachaz hys sonne raygned in hys stede. And the tyme that Jehu raygned vpon Israel in Samaria, was eyght and twenty yere.

And he was with hyr, hid in the house of the Lord syx yeres. And Athalia dyd raygne ouer the Lande.

In the seuenth yere Joiada sent and fet the captaynes, and souldiers, and toke the vnto hym into the house of the Lorde, and made a leage with them, and toke them vnto hym in the house of the Lord, and flewed them the kynges sonne, and commaunded them, saying: this is the thyng that ye must do: one thyrde part of you shal come on the Saboth day, and kepe the watch of the kynges house: and an other parte shal be at the gate Sur, and an other thyrde part shal be at the gate behynde the garde chamer, and so shal ye kepe the watche of the house of the Lord, and two porcions of you, that is, all that go oute vpon the Saboth daye shal kepe the watche of the house of the Lord, about the kyng, and shal compass the kyng round about, euer y manne wyth hys weapon in hys hande.

The captaynes dyd all thynges as Joiada the þriest had commaunded, and toke euery man his men, that is, the that came in the Saboth daye with them that went out the Saboth daye, and went to Joiada the þrieste. And the þrieste gaue to the captaynes the speares and shildes that were kynge Dauiddes, and hadde remayned in the temple.

And the gard stode euery man with his weapen in his hand, roundabout the king from the ryght corner of the Temple to þe lyfte, along by the aultar and temple. And he brought out the kynge's sonne, and put the crowne vpon hym, and deliuered hym the wyrtulle, and made hym kynge, and anoynted hym. And they clapt their handes & said: God saue the king.

When Athalia heard the noyse of þe people, she came to the people into the house of the Lorde. And when she saw the kynge stande by a pyller (as the maner was) and the syngers and the troumpetters by the kynge, and all the people of the Lande reioysunge, and the blowynge of the troumpettes, she rente her clothes, and cryed, treason, treason.

Then Joiada the þrieste commaunded the captaynes that hadde the rule of the hooſte, and sayed vnto them: haue ye oute wythoute the ranges, and if anye folowe ye, let hym dye with the swearde: for the þrieste sayed, he maye not be slayne in the house of the Lorde. And they layed handes on her, & she wet the way that the horses of the kynge wet out, and was slayne there.

And Joiada made a bonde botwe the Lorde and the kynge, and betwene the people and the Lorde, that they shoulde be the Lordes people, and also betwene the kynge and the people. Then all the people of the Lande went into the house of Baal, and destroyed his aulters, and brake downe his images lustely, and slew Nathan the þrieste of Baal before the aultar. And the þrieste sette watchemen in the house of the Lorde, toke the rulers ouer hundredes, and the captaynes, and the garde, and all the people of the Land. And they brought the kyng to þe house of the Lorde, & wet the key of the gate of the garde to the kinges house. And he sette hym downe vnder the clothe of estate. And all the people of the Lorde reioysed, and the cytye was in quyet. So they slew Athalia with the swearde in the kynge's house.

The. xiii. Chapter.

Joas maketh prouision for the reparynge of the temple. He is kylled by two of his seruantes. Amazia raygneth in his stode.

Joas was seven yere old when he began to raygne the seventh yere of Ahab, and raygned forty yere in Hierusalem.

And Joas sayd to the þriestes: all the siluer that is geuen to the vse of the temple, and broughte to the house of the Lorde by straungers, whether it be the mony that euery man is set at, or the money that any mans herte geueth hym to bringe into the house of the Lorde, let the þriestes take it to them, and let them repayre the broken places of the Temple, in al places wher oughe is founde decayed. Then kyng Joas called for Joiada the þrieste, and for the other þriestes, and sayed vnto them: why repayre ye not the broken places of the temple? Howe therefore se ye receyue no more money accordyng to your order, but deliuer it to repayre the temple wythall. And the þriestes consented to receyue no more money of the people, but that it shoulde goo to the repaying of the temple.

Then Joiada the þrieste toke a cofer, and boored a hole in the lydde of it, and put it besyde the aultar on the ryghte syde as one cometh to the house of the Lorde. And into that dyd the þriestes that keppe the doores, putte all the mony that was brought to the Lordes house. And when they sawe there was muche money in the cofer, the kynge's scribe, and the hye þriest came and sealed vp the mony, that was found in the house of the Lorde, after they had tolde it. And they gaue the mony by sums into the handes of the maysters of the works, that had the ouersyght of the house of the Lorde, and they brought it oute to the carpenters and buylders that wroughte vpon the house of the Lorde, and to Masons and bewers of stone, to bre timber and fre stone, to repaire the decay in the house of the Lorde, and all that needed reparacions in the house: howbeit there was not made in the house of the Lorde, bowles of syluer, shreadynge knyues, basens, troumpettes, or anye other instrumentes of gold or siluer, of that mony that was broughte for the house of the Lorde. For they gaue that to the workemen to repaire ther in the house of the Lorde.

iii. re. xxi. a

Moreouer they rekened not with the man into whose handes they deliuered the mony to be bestowed on the workemen: But they dyd it euen of fidelite. Howbeit trespass money, and sinne money, might not be brought into the house of the Lorde, for it was the þriestes. Then came Hazael the kynge of Siria, and foughte agaynst Beth and toke it, and appoynted hym selfe to go vpon Hierusalem.

But Joas king of Iuda toke the dedicate thynges things, that Josaphat, Jehorah, & Dhoziah his progenitors kynges of Juda had dedicated, and that he hym self had dedicated, and all the gold that could be found in the treasure of the Lordes house, & of the kynges house, and sent it to Hazael kyng of Siria, and so he departed from Jerusalem.

The residue of the actes of Joas, and all he dyd, are writen in the chronicles of the kynges of Juda. But hys owne seruantes arose and wrought treason, and slew Joas in the house of Melo, in the wape down to Sela. For Jozachar the son of Semaath, and Jozabad the sonne of Somer his seruantes smote hym that he died. And they buried hym with his fathers in the Citie of David. And Amazias his sonne reigned in hys place.

The. xiii. Chapter.

Joachaz the sonne of Jehu is deliuered into the handes of the Sirians, and dieth. Joas his son reigneth in his stede. Eliseus dieth

Joachaz the thre and twenty pere of Joas son of Dhoziah kyng of Juda, Joachaz the sonne of Jehu was made kyng ouer Israel in Samaria, and continued sedentene peres, & he wrought wickednes in the eyes of the Lord, for he folowed the sin of Jeroboam the sonne of Nabat, which made Israel to sinne, & departed not from the same.

Wherfore the Lord was angry with Israel, and deliuered them into the hande of Hazael kyng of Siria, and into the handes of Benhadad the sonne of Hazael al their daies. But Joachaz besoughte the Lord, and the Lord hearde hym, for he had sene the affliction of Israel, howe the kyng of Siria oppressed them.

And therfore the Lord gaue vnto Israel a deliuerer, and they were deliuered forth of the handes of the Sirians. And the chyldre of Israel dwelt in their tentes as beforetime. Neuertheles, they departed not from the synne of the house of Jeroboam who made Israel sinne, but walked therein. And ther remayned a superstitious woode also in Samaria still, but there wer left of the people to Joachaz, but spfpe horsemen, and ten charrettes, and ten thousand fotemen, for the kyng of Siria had destroyed them, and made them like thred chaffe. The rest of the actsof Joachaz and all he did, and his power, are writen in the chronicles of the kynges of Israel. And Joachaz rested with his fathers, and they buried him in Samaria. And Joas his son raygned in hys stede. In the. xxxvii. pere of Joas kyng of Juda, beganne Joas the sonne of Joachaz to raygne ouer Israel in Samaria, and contynued sixtene peres, & did naughtelp in the spghte of the Lord, and departed in nothynge from the synnes of Jeroboam the son of Nabat, that made Israel synne, but walked therein. The remnaunte of the actes of Joas, and all he did, and his power, howe he foughte wth Amazias kyng of Juda, are wrytten in the Chronicles of the kynges of Israel. And when Joas was layde to rest wth hys fathers, Jeroboam late vpon hys seate, and Joas was buried in Samaria amonge the kynges of Israel.

When Eliseus was fallen speke of the sykkenes wherof he dyed, Joas kyng of Israel came to him, and wept to him, and sayde: O father, father, chariot of Israel, and conductoure of the same. Eliseus said vnto hym: brynge bowe and arrowes. And he sayde vnto the kyng of Israel: Butte thynne hande vpon the bowe. And when he had put hys hande vpon the bowe, Eliseus put hys handes on the kynges hands. Then he sayde: open a windowe eastwarde, and he opened. And Eliseus said: shot, and he shot. And he said: the arrowe of help of the Lord, and the arrow of help against the Sirians for thou shalt beate the Sirians in Aphek, tll thou haue consumed them.

Then he sayd: take arrowes, and he toke. Then he said to the kyng of Israel, smote the ground: and he smpte thyspe, and ceased. And the man of God was angry wth him, and said: Thou shuldest haue smitten five or sixe times, and then thou hadst smitten the Sirians vntill thou haddest consumed them: where nowe thou shalt beate them but thyspe.

When Eliseus was dead and buried, an army of the Moabites came into the lande the yere folowinge. And it chaunced as they were buryng a man, they espped the soilders, and therfore cast the dead corps into the sepulchre of Eliseus. And as sone as it touched the bones of Eliseus, he reuiued, and stode vpon his fete.

And Hazael oppressed Israel al the daies of Joachaz. But the Lord hadde mercepe on them, and turned to them because of his promyse made wth Abraham Isaac, and Jacob, and wold not destroy them, neither cast them from him as yet. And when Hazael kyng of Siria was deade, Benhadad his sonne raygned in his stede. And then Joas the sonne of Joachaz wente agayne, and toke out of the hand of Benhadad sone of Hazael, the cityes whiche he had taken forth of the handes of Joachaz hys fathers by lawe of armes. And thre tymes dyd Joas beate hym, and brought the cityes of Israel agayne.

The. xiiii. Chapter.

Amazias kyng of Juda putteth to deathe the murtherers of hys father: and smiteth Edom. Joas kyng of Israel taketh Amazias. Joas dieth, and Jeroboam succeedeth after hym raygneth zacharias. Amazias is kylled, and Azarias raygneth in his stede.

The second pere of Joas sonne of Joachaz kyng of Israel, raygned Amazias sonne of Joas kyng of Juda, he was five and twenty peres old whē he began, and raygned nyne & twenty pere in Jerusalem. Hys mothers name was Joadan, and was of Jerusalem. And he dyd that that pleased the Lord: yet not lyke David hys father, but in all thynges as Joas hys father dyd. Neether toke they awaye the hil aulters, but the people flew and offered still in hil aulters. And as sone as the kingdome was setteled in hys hande, he flew hys seruantes that killed the king his father. But the chyldren of those myrtherers he flew not accordyng to that is wrytten in the booke of the lawe of Moyses where the Lorde commaunded, saying: *the fathers shal not be for the childrens cause, nor the children for the dedes of theyr fathers: but euery man shalbe aaine for his own sinne.

* And he flew of the Edomites in the salte

The fiftene yere of Amazias sonne of Joas kyng of Iuda, was Jeroboam son of Joas made kyng ouer Israell in Samaria, and reigned .xli. yeres, and wroughte wyckednes in the syghte of the Lorde: for he tourned in nothyng from the synne of Jeroboam the sonne of Nabat, whiche made Israell to synne.

Jeroboam.

He restored the costes of Israell from the entering of Hemath vnto the Sea, in the wilde fieldes, accordyng to the woorde of the Lorde God of Israell, whiche he spake thorowe hys seruant Jonah the sonne of Amithai the prophete, which was of Beth Dophim. For the Lorde hadde sene howe the affliccion of Israell had bene excedyng bitter, in so muche that the pyloned, and the forsaken were at an end. And ther was no helper vnto Israell. And the Lorde had not yet sayde, that men shoulde put out the name of Israell frome vnder heauen. And therefore he help them by the hand of Jerobegan to raygne. Sixtene yere olde was he when he was made kyng, and reigned two and fift yeres in Hierusalem: his mothers name was Zachalia, and was of Hierusalem.

And he dyd that pleased the Lorde in all thynges, as dyd hys father Amazias, saue that they put not the hyl aulters away, for the people offered and burnt still in the hyl alters. And the Lorde smote the kyng that made kyng vpon Israel in Samaria, and reigned sixe monethes, and dyd that pleased the Lorde, as dyd his fathers, and turned not from the synne of Jeroboam the sonne of Nabat whiche caused Israel to synne. And Selum the sonne of Iabes conspired agaynst hym, and smote him before the people, and kyled hym, and reigned in his stede. Therest of the dedes of Zacharias, are writen in the Chronicles of the kynges of Israel. This is the saying that the Lorde spake vnto Jehu, sayinge: thy sonnes shal sit on the seate of Israel in the fourth generacion. And it came so to passe. Selum the son of Iabes began to regne the nyne & thyrty yere of Azarias kyng of Iuda, and he reigned a moneth in Samaria. For Manahen the son of Badi came vp from Tharzah, and went to Samaria, & smot Selum the sonne of Iabes in Samaria, and slew hym, & reigned in his stede. The reste of the dedes of Selum, and the treason whiche he conspyred, are wyrtten in the chronicles of the kynges of Israel. The same time Manahen destroyed Thaphsah, and all that were therein, and the costes thereof from Tharzah (because they opened not to hym) he smote, and rente all the women wth chylde.

The nyne and thyrty yere of Azarias kyng of Iuda, began Manahen the sonne of Badi to raygne vpon Israel, and continued ten yeres in Samaria. And did euil in the syghte of the Lorde, and turned not all his dayes from the synne of Jeroboam the sonne of Nabat whiche made Israel synne. And Shul kyng of Assiria came vpon the lande. And Manahen gaue Shul a thousande talentes of syluer, to helpe hym to stablyshe his kyngedome. And Manahen raysted the monye in Israel, vpon all men of substance, for to geue the kyng of Assiria, fifty cycles of syluer a peice. And the kyng of Siria turned backe agayn, and rayped not there in the lande. The reste of the dedes of Manahen, and all he did, are wyrtten in the Chronicles of the kynges of Israel. And when Manahen was layed too rest with his fathers, Shalmaneser his sonne reigned in his stede.

The fiftieth yere of Azarias kyng of Iuda, began Shalmaneser the son of Manahen to raygne ouer Israel in Samaria, and continued two yeres, and wrought wyckedly in the syghte of the Lorde, and lefte not of from the syn of Jeroboam the son of Nabat, which caused Israel to syn. And Shalmaneser the sonne of Manahen, a capytayn of his, conspyred agaynst hym, and slew him in a tower of the kings house, wth Argob and Ariah, & ffty men wth him that were Babilonites. And when he had killed hym, he raygned in his rowme.

The reste of Shalmaneser, and all that he dyd are wyrtten in the Chronicles of the kynges of Israel. In the two and fiftieth yere of Azarias kyng of Iuda, beganne Shalmaneser the sonne of Manahen to raygne ouer Israel in Samaria, and continued two yeres, and dyd euil in the syghte of the Lorde, and turned not from the synnes of Jeroboam the son of Nabat, that made Israel to syn. In the daies of Shalmaneser kyng of Assiria, came Tiglath Pileser kyng of Assiria, and toke Aion, Abel, Beth, Maaca, Hanua, Iades, Hazor, Galaad, Galile and all the lande of Nephthali, and caried them awaye to Assiria.

And Hosea the sonne of Elah conspyred treason agaynst Shalmaneser the sonne of Manahen, and smote hym, and slew hym, and raygned in his stede, the twenty yere of Jotham the sonne of Ahas. The reste of the actes of Shalmaneser, and all that he did, are wyrtten in the Chronicles of the kynges of Israel.

The seconde yere of Shalmaneser, sonne of Manahen kyng of Israel, began Jotham the sonne of Ahas kyng of Iuda to raygne. Fyue and twenty yeres olde was he when he began to raygne, & he rayned xvi. yeres in Ierusalem. His mothers name was Ierusa, the daughter of Sadocke. And he dyd ryghte before the Lorde, euen in all thyng, as dyd his father Ahas, so did he. But he put not awaye the hyl aulters, for the people offered and burnt incense still in the hyl aulters, he buylte the hylle dore in the house of the Lorde. The reste of the dedes of Jotham, and all he dyd, are wyrtten in the Chronicles of the kynges of Iuda. In those dayes the Lorde began to send agaynst Iuda, Razin the kyng of Siria, and Shalmaneser the sonne of Manahen. And Jotham rested wth his fathers, and was buried wth his auncestours in the cypre of Dauid his father, and Ahas his sonne raygned in his stede.

The xvi. Chapter.

Ahas kyng of Iuda, consecrateth his son in fyre, and hath many battelles agaynst the kyng of Israel. He causeth an aulter to be made lyke vnto it at Damasco. In the stede of Ahas rayneth Ezechias his sonne.

The seuentene yere of Shalmaneser son of Manahen kyng of Israel, Ahas sonne of Jotham kyng of Iuda, began too raygne, being of thage of twenty yere, when he was made kyng, & rayned sixtene yere in Ierusalem, and dyd not the thyng that was ryghte in the eyes of the Lorde his god as did Dauid his father.

But wente in the waye of the kynges of Israel, and therto he offered his sonne in fyre, after the abominacion of the heathen whiche the Lorde caste out before the chyl dren of Israel. And he offered and burnt the fat in the hyl aulters and on the hylles and vnder euery grene tree. Then Razin kyng of Siria, & Shalmaneser sonne of Manahen kyng of Israel, came vp to Ierusalem to syghte.

the kyng of Siria broughte Ailah agayne to Siria, and ridde the Jewes thence. And the Edomites wente to Ailah and dwelte therein vnto thys daye.

Then Achis sente messengers to Teg-lath phalasar kyng of Assiria, sayinge: I am thy seruante and thy sonne, come and deliuer me oute of the hande of the kyng of Siria: and oute of the hande of the kyng of Israell, whiche be rylen agaynst me.

And Achaz toke the siluer and the golde that was founde in the house of the Lorde and in the treasure of the kynges house: & sente it for a reward to the kyng of Assiria. And the kyng of Assiria was applyng to hys mynde: and wente too Damasco, and toke it, & caried the people awaye, to Kyz and Awe Kizin,

And kyng Achaz wente agaynst Teg-lath phalasar kyng of Assiria, too Damasco. And when he sawe a certayne aulter that was at Damasco, he sente too Uria the priest the paterne of the aulter, and the facion of al the workmanship thereof. And Uria the prieste made an aulter in all popntes lyke too the paterne whiche kyng Achaz had sent from Damasco, and had finished by the kynges comming from Damasco. And when the kyng was come from Damasco, and sawe the aulter, he wente too it, and offered thereon. And he burnt hys burnt offeringe, and spycked the bloude of hys peace offeringe, and poured hys vessels, and spycked the bloude of hys peace offerings vpon the sayde aulter. And the brasen aulter that was before the Lorde, he remoued from betwene the aulter and the house of the Lorde, and putte it in the North syde of the sayde aulter.

And the kyng commaunded Uria the prieste, sayinge: vpon the greates aulter set on fyre in the mornynge burnt offerings, & in the euen, meat offerings, & the kynges burnt sacrifice, & his meat offerings, and the burnt offerings of all the people of the Lande, and theyr meat offerings, and theyr spycke offerings, and poure thereon all the bloude of all manner meate offerings. But the brasen aulter shall be for me too enquire wth. And Uria the prieste dyd all thynges as kyng Achaz commaunded hym.

And kyng Achaz brake the sydes of the bottomes, and toke the lauers from them and tooke downe the sea from the brasen open that were vnder it, and putte it vpon a pauement of stone. And therto the pulpet for the Saboth that they had made in the house, and the kings enterie wthout, turned he vnto the house of the Lorde, for feare of the kyng of Assiria.

The reste of the dedes of Achaz whiche he dyd, are wyrtten in the Chronicles of the kynges of Iuda. And Achaz laped hym to rest wth hys fathers, and was buried wth hys fathers in the cite of Dauid

The. xvi. Chapter.

Hezekias his son reigned in hys rowme.

The. xvi. Chapter.

Hosea kyng of Israell is taken. And he & al hys realme broughte to the Assyrians.

In the twelke yere of Achaz kyng of Iuda, Hosea the sonne of Elah beganne to prayne in Samaria vpon Israell, and continued nyne yeres, and did that displeased the Lorde, but not so euill as dyd the kynges of Israell that were before hym. And Salmanasar kyng of Assiria came vpon hym and Hosea became hys seruante, and gaue hym tributes. And the kyng of Assiria founde treason in Hosea, because he had sente messengers to Sua kyng of Egypte, and sente no tribute vnto the kyng of Assiria, as he was perelpe wonte to do.

Therefore the kyng of Assiria beleged hym, and bounde hym, and put hym in pryson.

* And then the kyng of Assiria came thowoute al the lande, and came to Samaria, & beleged it thre yere. And in the nyne yere of Hosea, the kyng of Assiria toke Samaria, and carped Israell awaye to Assiria and put them in Bala, in Babor on the riuer of Byzan, and in the ctyes of the Medes. For the chyldren of Israell had sinned agaynst the Lorde theyr God, whiche had broughte them oute of the lande of Egypte from the hand of pharao kyng of Egypt, & worshipped other goddes. And they walked in the ordinaunce of the heathen, whiche the Lorde cast out before the chyldren of Israell, and in the thynges whiche the kynges of Israell had made. And the chyldren of Israell wrapte them selves in thynges that were not well toward the Lorde theyr God. And they buyt them hil alters in all theyr ctyes, bothe in the towres wher they kept watch, and also in strong townes. And they made them images, and superstitious woodes on euery hyl, and vnder euery grene tre. And there they sacrificed in the hyl alters as did the heathen whiche the Lorde carped awaye at theyr commynge, and wroughte wycked dedes to anger the Lorde wth. And they serued Idols, concernynge whiche thinge the Lorde had sayde to them: ye shall not do so. And the Lorde testyfyed to Israell & to Iuda by al the prophetes and by all the Seers, sayng: Turne from your wycked wayes, and kepe my commaundementes, and myne ordynaunces, accordynge to all the lawes whiche I commaunded your fathers, and as I sente to you by my seruantes the prophetes. But they wold not heare, but hardened their neckes, like vnto the neckes of theyr fathers that did not beleue the Lorde theyr God.

And they refused hys ordynaunces, and hys couenaunt that he had made with theyr fathers, and the witnes whiche he had witnessed to them, and folowed banitie, and became vayne, lyke to the heathen that were round about them, of whiche the Lorde had charged them that they shoulde not do lyke them

But they lefte the comaundementes of the Lord theyr God, and made them images of metal, that is to say, two calves, and made groues, and bowed them selues vnto al the host of heauen, & serued Baal. And they sacrificed their sonnes & daughters in fyre, and bled wytchcraft and enchauntments, and had euen appoynted the selues to worke wyckednes in the sight of the Lorde for to anger hym.

Wherefore the Lorde was exceeding wroth wth Israell, and put them oute of hys syght, that ther was left but the tribe of Iuda only: and therto Iuda kepte not the comaundementes of the Lord their God, but walked in the ordynaunces of Israell whiche they had made. Therefore the lord caste by all the seede of Israell, and beryed them, and deliuered them into the handes of spoylers, vntill he had cast them oute of hys syghte. And Israell deuoyded them selues from the house of Dauid, and made Jeroboam the son of Nabat kyng. Which Jeroboam thrust Israel away from the lord, and made them synne a greates synne. And so the chyldren of Israel walked in all the synne of Jeroboam whiche he had set byppe and departed not frome the same, tyll the Lorde had put Israell awaye oute of hys syght, as he sayd by all his seruantes the prophetes. And so he translated Israel out of their land to Assyria, euen vnto this day.

Jer. x. 17.

And the kyng of Assyria broughte people from Babilon and from Cutha, and from Aua, and from Demath, and from Sepharuaim, and put them in the cityes of Samaria in stede of the chyldren of Israell. And they possessed Samaria, and dwelte in the cyties thereof. But at the begynnyng of theyr dwelling, they feared not the Lord. Wherefore the Lord sent Lions vpon them which slew them. Then men told the kyng of Assyria, saying: The nations which thou hast brought & put in the cityes of Samaria know not the maner of the god of the land, and therefore he hath sent Lions vpon the, whiche slaye them because they know not the maner of the God of the lande.

Then the kyng of Assyria commaunded saying: carpe thither one of the priestes whiche ye broughte thence, and lette hym go and dwell there, and teache them the facyon how to serue the God of the country. And then one of the priestes whiche they had carped thence, wente and dwelt in Bethel: and taughte them howe they shoulde feare the Lorde. Howe be it euery nacyon made their owne goddes and put them in the houses of the hyll aultares whiche the Samaritans had made, euery nacyon in theyr cyties where they dwelt. The men of Babilon made Socoh, Benoth. The men of Cuth made Rergell. They of Demath made Asima. The Euites made Nabahaz, & Tharthak. And the Sepharuaites burnt theyr chyldrene in fyre vnto Adramelech, and Anamelech, the goddes of the Sephar uaites. And though they feared the Lord, yet they made them priestes of the loweste of the people, for the hyll aulters, whiche sacrificed for them in the houses of the hyll aulters. And so they feared the Lord, and yet serued theyr owne Goddes after the manner of the people from whence they were broughte.

Vnto this day they do after the old manner: they neyther feare the Lorde, neyther do after theyr owne ordynaunces and customs, and after the lawe and commaundemente whiche the Lorde commaunded the chyldren of Jacob whose name he called Israell, and made an appoyntemente with them and charged them, saying: feare not anye other goddes, nor bowe your selues to them nor serue them, nor sacrifice to them: but to the Lorde whiche brought you out of the land of Egypt wth a great power and stretched oute ayme, hym feare and to hym bowe, and to hym do sacrifice. And the ordynaunces, customes law and commaundement which I wrote for you, se ye be diligēt to do, for evermore, and fere not anye other goddes. And the appoyntment that I haue made with you se ye forget not and ye feare none other goddes: but the lord your god ye shal feare, & he shal deliuer you out of the handes of al your enemyes. How be it they herd not, but dyd after the olde maner. And euen so did these nations feare the Lorde and serue theyr images thereto: and so do theyr chyldren and theyr chyldrens chyldren to: Euen as dyd theyr fathers, so do they vnto this daye.

Not to feare
the lorde, is to lyue care
les, and to serue theyr lustes & ap petites: and not to set bi

Ezechias king of Iuda putteth down the brasē serpent, and destroyeth the Idols. Salmanser bringeth Israel to the Assyrians. The blasphemy of Sennacherib.

The thyrtye pere of Hosea sonne of Ela, kyng of Israel, reigned Ezechias son of Ahas kyng of Iuda. Twenty and fyue peres olde was he, when he began to reigne, and reigned. xxix. peres in Ierusalem. His mothers name was Aby the daughter of zacharias, and he dyd that pleased the Lorde in all thyng, lyke to Dauid his father. He put away the hyll alters, and brake the images, and cut down the groues, and al to brake the brasen serpent that Moyses made. For vnto these dayes the chyldren of Israell dyd burne sacrifice to it, and called it Nehusta. He trusted in the Lorde God of Israel, so that after hym came none like hym amonge all the kynges of Iuda, neyther amonge them that were afore hym. He claue to the Lorde and departed not from hym, but kepte his commaundments which the Lord commaunded Moyses. And the Lord was wth hym. And what soeuer he toke in hand he did it wisely. And he rebelled against the kyng of Assyria and serued him not. He bet the Philistines euen vnto Azah and the coastes therof, both in castels of garrysons and stronge cities to.

land and destroy it. Then saied Eliakim y<sup>e</sup> sonne of Helkiah and Sobnah and Joah, to Rablakah: speake, we praye the, to thy

But the people helde theyr peace and clothed in sacke, to I say the prophete the sonne of Amoz. And they sayd to him: thus sayth Ezechias: Thus day is a day of rebulacion, of rebukynge and raplynge: Euen as when the chyliden are ready to be borne and the mothers haue no power to be deliuered. Wherfore that the Lord thy God wolde heare al the wordes of Rabshakeh whome the kynge of Assyria bys maister hath sente to raple on the luyng God, and to rebuke hym wyth wordes, whiche the Lord thy god hath heard. Wherfore lyft vp thy prayer for the remnant that are left. Whē the seruautes of kynge Ezechias were come to Ilat, Ilat sayd to them. So shall ye say to your master. Thus saye the Lord: be not afrayde of the wordes thou herddest wyth whych the younge men of the kynge of Assyria haue railed on me. For I wil send him a blast & he shal hear tidings and so return to his owne land: And I wil ouerthrow him w the sword, euen in his owne land.

And Rabshakeh went backe agayne and found the king of Assyria fighting against Lobnab: for he had herd that he was departed from Lachis. And he herd tydings of Theraha kynge of the blacke Mores, that he was come out to fight against him. And therupon he departed and sente messengers vnto Ezechias, saying: Thus saye to Ezechias king of Iuda. Let not thy God carry the out of the waye in whome thou so trustest, saying: Ierusalem shal not be deliuered into the hande of the kynge of Assyria. Behold, thou hast herd what the kynge of Assyria haue done to all lāds, how they haue vtterly destroyed them. And how shaldest thou escape? hath the goddesses of the heathen deliuered them whych myne auncestours haue destroyed: as Bofan, Haran, Reseph and the chyliden of Eden whiche were in Thelasar: wher is the king of Hamath, the king of Arphad, the king of Sepharuaim, and the kynge of Ana, and the kynge of Hauab.

When Ezechias had receyued the letters of the hand of the messengers and had red them, he wente into the house of the Lord, and layd them abrod before the Lord. And Ezechias prayed before the Lord, and sayd: Lord God of Israel, whiche dwellest betwene the Cherubyns, thou art God alone ouer al the kyngdomes of the earth, and thou haste made both heauen and earth. Open Lord thyne eyes and see: and heare the wordes of Sennacherib whiche hath sent to raple on the luyng God. Lettes O Lord, the kynge of Assyria haue destroyed nations and their landes, and haue sette fyre on their Goddes. For they were no gods but the worke of handes of mā, euen wood and stone. And therefore they destroyed them. Now therfore (O Lord our God) saue thou vs oute of his hande, that al the kyngdomes of the earth may know that thou art God alone. And Ilat the sonne of Amoz sent to Ezechias saying:

Thus sayeth the Lord God of Israel: the thyng that thou hast prayed to me concerning Sennacherib kynge of Assyria, I haue heard. This is the thyng that the Lord sayth of him: He hath despyed the, O virgin doughter of Sion: He hath shaken his head at the thou doughter of Ierusalem: whom hast thou railed on, and whom hast thou reuyled? Against whom hast thou by thy voyce, and haste elcuate thine eyes so hygh? Euen against the holy of Israel. By the hand of thy messengers thou hast railed on the Lord and sayd: wyth the multitude of my charrettes I am come vp to the heyght of the mountaynes, euen as longe by the sydes of Libanon, and haue cut of the hygh Cedar trees, and the lustre of fyre trees thereof, euen to the woode of Carmel that belongeth thereto. I haue digged and dronke strange waters, and haue dryed vp wyth the soules of my fete pooles enclosed. But haste thou not heard howe I haue ordeyned suche a thyng a greate whyle ago, and haue prepared it from the begynnynge? And now I bring it forth, & it shalbe to destroy, & to bringe stronge cities into rude heapes of stones. And the inhabitants of them shal be of lytle power and saynte berred and confounded. * They shalbe lyke the grasse of the fiede, and grene herbes, and as the hey on the toppes of the houses whiche wythereth or it come to a ny heyghe. I wote where thou dwellest, and thy commynge oute, and goynge in knowe I to, and howe thou setteste vp thy byskelles agaynst me. And because thou setteste vp thy byskelles agaynst me, and that thy raging is come vp to myne eares therefore I will put a rynge in thy nose and a byt in thy lippes, and wyl bring the backe agayne the same waye thou camest. And this shal be a sygne vnto the: eate this pce of the frutes of the land that fel out, and the next pce that waret of it self And the thrid pce sow ye and reape, plant vineyards & eat the fruts thereof. For the house of Iuda that is escaped and left, shal yet agayne take rooting downward, and beare frute upward. For oute of Ierusalem shal go a remnant, & a nūber that shal escape oute of mount Syon: the zeale of the Lord of Hostes shal bring this thyng to passe.

Wherfore thus sayth the Lord ouer the kynge of Assyria: he shal not enter into this cite, nor shote one arrowe into it, nor come before it wyth shield, nor cast any banke agaynst it: but shal go backe agayne the waye he came, and shal not come at his cypse, sayth the Lord: For I wyl defende this cite, and saue it, for myne owne sake, and for David my seruantes sake.

The selfe same nyghte the Angell of the Lord wente oute, and smote in the hoste of the Assyrians an hundred fourescore and spue thousande. And when they were rysen earlye in the mornynge, beholde they were all deade corpes. And so Sennacherib kinge of Assyria auoyded and departed, and wente agayne, and dwelte at Assyrie. And as he was in hys deuocyon kneelinge in the house of Asyroch hys God, as Dramelech and Sarasar smote hym wth the swerde. And they escaped into the land of Ararat, and Asarhodon hys sonne raygned in hys stede.

The.rr. Chapter.

Ezechias is sicke and receyue the signe of hys healeth by the pal of Achaz. He receyue the reward of Berodach, & is reproued of Asay because he shewed hym the treasure. He dyeth, and Manasses hys sonne raygneth in his stede.

ABout that time Ezechias was sicke vnto the death. And the prophete Asay sonne of Amoz came to hym and sayd to hym, thus sayth the Lord: put thine household in an order, for thou shalt dye and not lyue. And Ezechias turned hys face to the wal, and besought the Lord, saying: Oh remember yet howe I haue walked before the trulpe, and wth a perfecte herte, and haue done that which is good in thy sight, & wept a great pace. And Asay was scarce gone out into the myddle of the ctyte, but that the word of the Lord came to hym, sayng: turne agayne and tell Ezechias the leader of my people. Thus sayth the Lord God of Dauid thy father: I haue heard thy prayer and sene thy teares. Beholde I wyll heale the, and thys daye thre dayes thou shalt go vp into the house of the Lord. And I wyll lengthe thy daies yet fyfene yeres, and wyll deliuer both the & this ctyte out of the hand of the kyng of Assyria, and I wyll defend thys ctyte for myne owne sake, & for Dauid my seruantes sake. And Asay said: bring a lipp of figs. And they broughte and put it on the soze, and he recovered.

Then sayed Ezechias to Asay: What is the sygne, that the Lord wyll heale me, and that I shal go vp into the house of the Lord the thirde day? And Asay sayed: thys sygne shalt thou haue of the Lord, that the Lord wil do that he hath spokē: shal the shadow go forward ten degrees, or go backe agayne ten degrees? And Ezechias sayed: It is a lyght thing for the shadow to go downe ten degrees. Wherefore I wyll not that: but let the shadow go backward ten degrees. And Asay the prophete called to the lord, and he brought the shadow ten degrees backward by which it had gon down, in the dial of Achaz.

At this same season Berodach Baladan the sonne of Baladan kyng of Babylon sent letters and presentes vnto Ezechias, for he heard that Ezechias was sicke. And Ezechias bakned vnto them, and shewed them al that was in the spyccery house, and his syluer and gold, and odoures and precyous ointments and his armory and al that was founde in his treasure, there was nothing in hys house or in al hys relme, that he shewed them not.

Then came Asay the prophete vnto kyng Ezechias, and sayde to hym: What saye these men, & from whence come they to the? And Ezechias sayd: they be come from a far contry, euen from Babylon. And he sayd: what haue they sene thy house? And Ezechias sayde: all that is in my house haue they sene: there is nothinge amonge my treasure that I haue not shewed them. And Asay said to Ezechias: Hear the word of the Lord. Behold the day shall come that all that is in thyne house and that thy fathers haue layde vp in store vnto thys day, shall be carryed to Babylon, and nothinge shalbe left sayth the Lord. And of thy sonnes that proceeded out of the which thou begatest, shal they be carryed, away and shalbe made chāberlaynes in the place of the kyng of Babylon. And Ezechias sayde to Asay: well come be the word of the Lord which thou hast spoken: so that peace and truthe be kepte in my dayes.

The reste of the dedes of Ezechias, and all his power, & howe he made a poole and a conduit and brought the water into the ctyte, are written in the booke of Chronicles of kynges of Iuda. And Ezechias laid him to rest with his fathers, and Manasses hys sonne raygned in hys stede.

The. xxi. Chapter.

Manasses restoreth agayne the Idolles, and after dyeth: in whose stede Amos hys sonne succeedeth, whiche is kyled of hys owne seruantes: After hym raygneth faithfull Josias.

MAnasses was twelue yeres olde when he began to raygne, and raygned fyfty and foue yeres in Ierusalem: his mothers name was Haphsibath. And he dyd that dyspleased the Lord, euen after the abhomyacions of the heathen, whiche the Lord threwe out before the children of Israel. And he went and buylte the high alters agayne, whiche Ezechias his father had destroyed. And he reared vp alters to Baal, & made groues as dyd Achab kyng of Israel. And he bowed hym selfe vnto all the host of heuen & serued the. And he buylte alters in the very house of the lord, of which the Lord had said: *in Ierusalem I wyll put my name. And he built alters vnto all the host of heauen, euen in two courts of the house of the host of the Lord. And he offered his sone in fyre, and obserued dismal dates & used witchcraft, and mayntayned workers wth spytres, & tellers of fortunes: and wrought much wickednes in the syght of the Lord to anger hym.

And he put an ymage of a groue that he had made, euen in the very temple of whiche the Lord hadde sayde to Dauid and to Salomon hys sonne: *in thys house and in Ierusalem whiche I haue chosen oute of all trybes of Israel, wyll I putte my name for ever. And the Lord spake by his seruantes the Prophetes, sayinge: because Manasses kynge of Iuda hath done suche abhominacions, and hath wrought wyckedlye aboue all that the Amorites whiche were before hym dyd, and hath made Iuda sinne also with his Ydole: therfore thus saith Jer. xix. a.

I the Lord God of Israel. * Behold, I wyll brynge suche euill vpon Ierusalem and Iuda, that the eares of al that hear it, shal tynge at it. And I wyll stretch ouer Ierusalem the squarynge lyne of Samaria, and the plometre of the house of Achab. And I wyll wype out Ierusalem, as a man would wype a dyke, and when he hath wypped it turneth it vpside down. And though I leue a remnant of myne inheritaunce, yet I wyll deliuer them into the handes of them that hate them, and they shal be robbed and spoyled of al theyr enemyes: euen because they haue done wyckedlye and haue angred me syns the tyme theyr fathers came out of Egypt vnto this daye. And moreouer Manasses shed innocent bloude excrucyng aboundauntlye, in so muche that he replenished Ierusalem in all corners, besyde his synne wherewith he made Iuda synne, and to doo euill in the syghte of the Lord. The reste of the actes of Manasses and all he dyd and his sinne that he spinned, are wyrtten in the booke of Chronicles of kynges of Iuda. And Manasses layd him to sleepe in his fathers, & was buried in the garden of his owne house, euen in the garde of Oza, and Amon his sonne raygned in his steede.

II. pa. xxxviii.

And was .xxii. yeres olde when he beganne to raigne, and he raygned two yeres in Ierusalem. His mothers name was Mesalemeth the daughter of Barui of Iathabab. And he dyd that dyspleased the Lord as his father Manasses dyd. He walcked in all the waie that his father walcked in, and serued the Ydoles that his father serued, and bowed hym selfe to them. And he forsoke the Lord God of his fathers, and walcked not in the way of the Lord.

Amon.

And the seruantes of Amon conspired agaynst hym, and slue hym in his owne house. But the people of the lande slue all that conspired agaynst kynge Amon, and made Iosias his sonne king in his roume. The rest of the actes of Amon, whiche he dyd, are wyrtten in the Chronicle of the kynges of Iuda. And they buried hym in his sepulchre in the garde of Oza, and Iosias his sonne raygned in his stead.

Iosias was .viii. yeres olde when he beganne to raigne and he raygned .xxii. yeres in Ierusalem. His mothers name was Jedya the daughter of Abiah of Bezerah. And he did that seemed right in the syght of the Lord, and walked in al the wayes of Dauid his father, and bowed nether to the right hand ne to the left.

II. pa. lxxviii.

And the .xxiii. yere of his raigne kynge Iosias sente Saphan the sonne of Azalia the sonne of Mesulam the scribe to his house of the Lord, sayinge: goo to Helkya the high priest, and let hym sum the syluer that is broughte into the house of the Lord, whiche the keepers of the doores haue gathered of the people, and let them deliuer it into the handes of the workemen that haue the ouersight of his house of the Lord, whiche shal giue it to the that worke vpon the house of the Lord, to repara the decayed places therof, euen vnto carpenters and masons, and for to bye tymber and free stone to repaire the house. Howe be it letre no rekenyng be made with them of the money that is deliuered into theyr handes, but let them do it of theyr consence.

II. pa. lxxviii.

And Helkya the hyghe priest sayd to Saphan the scribe:

II. pa. lxxviii.

I haue founde the booke of the lawe in the temple of the Lord, and Helkya gaue the booke to Saphan, and he redde it. And then Saphan the scribe went to the kynge and brought hym worde agayne and sayd: thy seruantes powred out the syluer that was founde in the temple, and haue deliuered it vnto the workemen that haue the ouersight of the house of the Lord. Further more Saphan the scribe shewed the kinge, sayinge: Helkya the priest hath deliuered me here a booke. And Saphan red it before the kynge.

And the kynge as soone as he had heard the woordes of the booke of the lawe, he rent his clothes, and commaunded Helkya the priest and Ahikam the sonne of Saphan, and Achobor the sonne of Meshai, and Saphan the scribe, and Ashbyah, a seruante of the kynge, sayinge: goo ye and seeke of the Lord for me and the people, and for al Iuda, concernyng the wordes of this booke that is founde. For it is a greete wrath of the Lord that is kyndled vpon vs that our fathers haue not hearkened vnto the woordes of this booke, to doo in al points as it is writte therein. And Helkya the high priest and Ahikam, Achobor, Sapha, & Asaia, went vnto Olda the Prophetesse, wife of Selum the sonne of Tekuah sonne of Baraham keeper of the robes, which prophetesse dwelt in Ierusalem in the second ward, & communed with her. And she sayd to them: Thus sayth the Lord god of Israel. Tell the man that sente you to me thus saith the Lord: Beholde I wyll brynge euill vpon this place, and on the dwellers therein: euen all the woordes of

The. xliii. Chapter.

Josias readeth Deuteronomium before the people. He putteth downe the Idolles, after he had kyled the Priestes thereof.
He kepeth passouer. He was killed in Magedo, and his sonne Jehoaz reygne in his stede. After he was taken, his sonne Jehoahym was made kyng.

Then the kyng sente and gathered vnto hym all the elders of Iuda and of Ierusalem, & the kyng went vp into the house of the Lorde, & al the men of Iuda and al the inhabitantes of Ierusalem wth hym & the priestes & prophets and al the people both smalle and grete. And he red in hearyng of them, all the wordes of the booke of the testamente, whiche was founde in the house of the Lorde. And the kyng stode by a pyller, and made a ceuenaunte before the Lorde, that they shoulde walcke after the Lorde, and kepe his commaundemen-tes and his wytnesses, and his ordinaun-ces wth al theyr hertes, and all theyr sou-les, and make good, the wordes of the sayd appoyntemente that were wyrtten in the foresayed booke. And all the people consented to the appoyntemente. Then the kyng commaunded Helkiah the hyghe priest and the lower Priestes and the keepers of the doore, to bringe oute of the Lordes temple all the vesselles made for Baal, and for the groue and for all the hoste of heauen. And he burnt them withoute Ierusalem in the felds of Cedron, & carped the ashes of the to Berbel. And he put downe the *religious personnes, whiche the kyng of Iuda had sette to burne offerynges in the hylaul-ters in the Cyties of Iuda, rounde aboute Jerusalem, and also them that burnt sacryfyces vnto Baal, to the sun, and to the moone and to the planettes, and to all the hoste of heauen. And he broughte oute the groue from the temple of the Lorde withoute Ierusalem, vnto the brooke Cedron, and burnte it at the broke Cedron, and stamp-it to poulder, and *caste the duste thereof vpon the graues of the people of the coun-treys. And he brake downe the buggerye places that were in the house of the Lorde, in the whiche the women woue correynes for the groue.

* This dyd
he to the destestacion of them & had worshipped
the in theyr
lyfe tyme.

And he broughte all the priestes oute of the Cyties of Iuda, and defaced the hylaulteres where the priestes dyd burne sacryfyce, from Babaa to Berelabe. And he brake downe the hylaulters of the Bates that were in the entry of the gate of Josua the gouernoure of the city, whych were on the lefte hande of the gate of the ctye.

Neuerthelesse the priestes of the hylaul-ters myghte not come at the aulter of the Lorde in Ierusalem, saue only they did eate of the swete breade among their bretheren.

* He des-

tryng of the house of the Lorde in the chamber of Nathanamelech the chamberlayne whych was of *Sarutarin, and burnt the charettes of the sunne wth fyre. And the aulteres that were on the top of the parter of Achaz whiche the kynges of Iuda had made, and the aulteres whiche Manasses had made in the two courtes of the house of the Lorde, the kyng brake downe, and carre thence and cast the dust of them into the broke Cedron.

as tourned hym selfe he espyed the graues that were in the mount and sent and set the bones out of the graues and burnt the ym-

The rest of the dedes of Josias, and all he dyd, are wrytten in the booke of the Chro-

* In hys dayes Pharaos Neco, kyng of Egypte, went agaynst the kyng of Assyria to the ryuer Euphrates. And kyng Josias went agaynst hym, and was slayne of him at Megiddo when he had sene hym.
And hys seruantes caried him dead from Megiddo, and broughte hym to Jerusalem and buried him in his own Sepulchre. And the people of the lande toke Joachaz the sonne of Josias and anointed him, & made hym kyng in hys fathers towne.

And Joachaz was thre & twenty yeres olde, when he began to raygne, and raygued thre monethes in Jerusalem. Hys mothers name was Hamitall, the dought-ter of Jeremia, of Lobnah. And he did that dyspleased the Lorde, in al thynges as hys fathers had done. And Pharaos Neco put hym in bondes at Riblat, in the lande of Demath, in the tyme of hys raygne in Jerusalem, and put the lande to a tpybute of an hundred talentes of syluer and a taberlaynes. And the kyng of Babylon toke hym in the eyght yere of his raigne.

And he caried oute thence all the treasure of the house of the Lord, and the treasure of the kynges house, and brake all the vesselles of gold whiche Salomon kyng of Israell had made, in the temple of the Lord, as the Lord had sayed. And he carryed awaye all Ierusalem, and all the Lordes and all the men of myghte, to the nombre of ten thousande into captiuitie, and all craftes menue and Ioyners, none remaynyng save the poore people of the lande. And he carryed awaye Iocacyn to Babylon, and the kynges mother, and the kynges wyues, and his chamberlaynes, and the myghtye of the lande carryed be awaye from Ierusalem to Babylon. And all the men of Actiuyte to the number of seven thousande: and craftsmen and Ioyners a thousande, all stronge and apte for warre, byd the kyng of Babylon bynge to Babylon to dwell. * And the kyng of Babylon made Mathanpah his fathers brother, kyng in his stede, and chaunged his name, and called hym zedekya.

zedekia was one and twenty yeres olde when he beganne to raigne, and he raigned eleuen yeres in Ierusalem. His mothers name was Hamical, the daughter of Jeremja, of Lobnah. And he dyd euyl in the syghte of the Lord, in all popnes like to Iocakim. For through the wrath of the Lord it so chaunced to Ierusalem and Iuda, butyll he had caste them oute of his syght. And the said zedekia rebelled agaynst the kyng of Babylon.

The. xxv. Chapter.

By the rebellyon of zedekia is the towne of Ierusalem besieged of Nabuchodonozor. The towne and the temple are both burnte. The sones of zedekia are slain before his eyes & after are his eyes put out. Iuda is brought to Babylon, and after is Iocacim exalted.

Wherefore in the nynthe yere of his raigne, the tenth daye of the tenth month, came Nabuchodonozor kyng of Babylon with his power to Ierusalem and pitched agaynst the towne, and made engynes agaynst it on every syde. And the ctyte continued besieged vnto the eleuenth yere of kyng zedekyas. And the nynthe daye of the fourth moneth of that yere, ther was so greate hunger in the ctyte, that ther was no sustenance for the people of the lande.

And the ctyte was broken vp, wherefore all the men of Armes fled by nyghte, by a way thorow a gate betwene twoo wallles hard on the kynges garden: the Caldees lyinge aboute the ctyte.

Then the kyng went straight toward the wyldernesse, and the host of the Caldees folowed after him, and rooke him in the wyldernesse of Iericho, al his army being scattered awaye from hym.

Whē they had taken hym, they brought hym to Nabuchodonozor the kyng of Babylon to Reblah, whiche impeched him of treason. And they slew the sonnes of zedekyas before his eyes, and put out the eyes of zedekyas, and fettered hym, and caried hym to Babylon.

In the seventh daye of the fifth moneth which was in the ninth yere of kyng Nabuchodonozor kyng of Babylon, came Nabusaradan seruaunte of the kyng of Babylon, and chyefe Captayne vnto Ierusalem: and burnte the house of the Lord, and the kynges house, and al the houses of Ierusalem, and al greate houses wyth fyre. And al the host of the Caldees that were wyth the chyefe Capytayne, brake downe the walles of Ierusalem roundabout. And thereste of the people that were left in the ctyte, and thein that were fled to the kyng of Babylon, and the reaste of the common people Nabusaradan the chyefe Capytayne carryed awaye, and left of the poore of the lande to dresse the vyues, and to tyll the grounde.

And the pylers of brasle that were in the house of the Lord, and the bottomes and brasen sea, that was in the house of the Lord, the Caldees brake, and caried the brasle of them to Babilon. And the lawers, shouelles, dressinge knyues, ladelles, and the mynystryng vesselles of brasle they caried awaye. And the fyre pannes and basens that were eyther of golde or siluer, toke the chyefe Marshal awaye wyth the two pylers and the sea of brasle, and the bottomes whych Salomon had made in the house of the Lord. The brasle of all these vesselles was withoute wayghte. The heygth of one piler, was .xviii. cubytes and the heade thereon was brasle, and thre cubytes longe with a wreth and pomegranets roundabout vpon al the head of brasle. And of the same fassion was the second piler wyth a wrethe.

And the chief Capytayne toke Saraiab the chief priest, and Sophonab the hygheste prieste saue one, and thre keepers of the doore. And out of the ctyte he toke a certayne chamberlain that had the ouer syght of the men of war, and fyue men that were enen in the kynges presence, whiche were found in the ctyte, and Sopher the Capytaine of the hoste that taught the people of the land the seates of war, and thre scoze men of the people of the land that were found in the ctyte also. And Nabusaradan the chyefe Capytayne toke them, and brought them to the kyng of Babylon to Reblah. And the kyng of Babylon smote them and slewe them at Reblah in the land of Hemath. And so Iuda was carryed away out of their land.

And ouer the people that remayned in the land of Iuda, whiche Nabuchodonozor kyng of Babylon lefte, beset Bodolpab the sonne of Abikam, the sonne of Saphan. And when all the capitaines of the men of warre, and the men hearde that the kyng

And Bodoliah sware too them, and to theyr men, and sayde to them feare not, ye seruauntes of the Caldeies. But dwel in the land and serue the kyng of Babylon: and ye shal be in good state.

But it chaunced the seventh moneth after, that Ismaell the sonne of Nathaniah the sonne of Elisama of the kynges bloud came, and tenne men wyth him, and smote Bodoliah that he dyed: and so dyd he the Jewes and the Caldeies that were wyth him at Gaspah. Whereupon al the people both smal and greate, and the captaynes of the men of war arose, and went to Egypt: for they were astrayde of the Caldeies.

Notwithstandyng yet the thyrty and seuenthe yere after Joacin kyng of Juda was carped away, the twentye and seuenth daye of the twelfth moneth, dyd Euilmerodach kyng of Babylon lyfte vpp the heade of Joacyn kyng of Juda oute of the prison house, and spake kyndely to hym, and sette his seate aboue the seate of all the kyngs that wer wyth hym in Babylon, and chaunged his prison garments. And he did euer eate breade before hym all the dayes of hys lyfe. And a contynual porcyon was assigned hym of the kyng from daye to daye as longe as he lyued.
